The "little pond" at Mohegan park had a large gathering of skaters Thursday evening. The ice, although reported a bit rough by Superintendent F. W. Krohn, is of sufficient thickness for safe skating. Superintendent Krohn reported that as fast as the recent snow fell it was absorbed by the water which is now frozen over. A string of lights about the pond throws sufficient light for night skating.

STORMY WEATHER CAUSES MANY AUTO CRASHES

Stormy weather, poor automobile equipment and the carelessness of operators and pedestrians have resulted recently in a large number of accidents, many of which caused serious injury or death, according to reports to the state motor vehicle department. Rain, snow, ice and slush have contributed to the making of dangerous road surface conditions which scores of cars, apparently, were unable to offset because of bad brakes, smooth tires and other defective equipment.

The situation is considered so serious that the department has issued instructions to its inspectors to keep special watch on the highways for cars with equipment which will not meet conditions. Particular attention will be paid to tires on which the shoes are worn smooth and are thus without traction and unable to grip the road. The inspectors will instruct such drivers to use chains or tires not likely to skid or slide so that the vehicle may not become a menace in traffic. Brakes in poor condition will be ordered repaired. Windshield wipers and lights must also be kept in good condition.

Pedestrians have been direct contributors to accidents through carelessness, the inspectors report. Many approached too closely to vehicles, when crossing streets, although it was obvious, apparently, that the vehicles were liable to skid at any time. Reports show, too, that the fact that vehicles are unable to stop quickly under bad road conditions was not considered. Misjudgment of distance has been common on the part of both operator and pedestrian.

That many motorists are lax in keeping equipment up to the standard required for safety, and by law, is indicated in a report by the inspection section of the department on 888 cars which were taken from active participation in traffic for examination. Of this number, only 322 cars were found properly equipped. About two-thirds, actually 566, had defective equipment and many were without articles required by safety laws and regulations. The defects in a large number of cases were of a serious nature.

One hundred and sixty-three vehicles had foot brakes unfit for use, in every case the brakes being found incapable of stopping the car quickly or within a safe distance. The emergency, or hand brake, was found defective on 331 cars. In many instances the hand brake was out of order on the same cars which had bad foot or service brakes.

Eight cars were found to be without headlights. The lights on 110 cars were defective and on 28 were not properly placed or equipped with illegal lens. There were no tail lights on 57, and defective rear lights on 149. Markers were missing or broken in many cases, as were also mirrors, windshield wipers and horns. Eighteen steering gears were in poor condition.

The inspectors discovered many commercial motor vehicles which were not equipped with reflectors. These are required on the rear of all commercial vehicles by a law which became effective on Sept. 1. Broken reflectors were also numerous. Drivers were instructed that the reflectors must be maintained in good condition, the same as any other article of safety equipment.

DECISION AGAINST FUNERAL HOME ON CLIFF STREET

The joint zoning board, which held a public hearing on the petition of Rose G. and Charles M. Hutzler and Louis L. Gotthelf for modification of the zoning ordinance so as to allow a funeral home at the Hutzler residence at 82 Cliff street, has rendered a decision against the petitioners. At the hearing before the board it was shown that the firm of Cummings & Ring desired to establish a funeral home there.

The decision of the zoning board follows:

That the strict application of the ordinances and regulations of the city of Norwich, relating to zoning, will not cause any difficulty or unreasonable hardship to the appellants in relation to the premises owned by them located at 82 Cliff street.

Whereupon, it is decided and adjudicated that the appeal of Charles M and Rosa G. Hutzler and Louis L. Gotthelf be not granted and that no variation or modification be made by this board in the application or any of the regulations or provisions of the ordinances relating to the use, construction, alteration or erection of buildings or use of the land insofar as said ordinances concern the real estate of the Hutzlers and Gotthelf, located at 82 Cliff street.

CHELSEA CHRISTMAS CLUB MAKES $116,470 DISTRIBUTION

Checks to over 2,200 members of the Chelsea Savings bank Christmas club, the largest enrollment in its history, were mailed out Thursday by the bank. The total distribution was $116,470, which was about $32,000 more than last year.

The form of providing money for Christmas uses is growing in popularity and had about 400 more club members this year than last. Miss Beatrice Krajewski has special charge of the Christmas club deposits which are received each week in amounts from 25 cents to $5. The bank's records show that the $2 a week club has the most followers. Payments are made for 50 weeks, with interest which amounts to an extra week added, and the distribution of the money at this time is mutually helpful to the club members and the merchants with whom they wish to use their Christmas money.

FORMATION OF COUNCIL TO GUIDE AMERICAN INDUSTRY

Was Considered After the Recess of the National Business Conference in Washington Yesterday—Julius H. Barnes, Chairman, Announced His Intention to Proceed With Care—Will First Interview the Nation's Business Leaders—Consultation Prior to Announcement of the Organization Will Be Undertaken at Private Meetings Next Week.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Outlines of organization for a possibly permanent council of guidance for American industry were being formulated slowly today after the recess of the national business survey conference begun by President Hoover.

Julius H. Barnes, named as chairman of that gathering, announced his intent to proceed with care and to interview the nation's business leadership generally. Notwithstanding this, the tentative program shaped after close of the session yesterday at the chamber of commerce of the United States, appeared to call for the creation of a large assembly conference committee representing many business lines. A small executive group acting as a sort of second chamber of council, is contemplated.

"The committees which the business conference asked the chairman to appoint will be considered this coming week," Barnes said today. "It is quite likely there will be named one larger conference committee based on trade association representation, and a smaller working committee, the members of which will be selected for their individual attainment and their wide knowledge of business affairs. This requires a little thought and study as to their field and their name."

He added that data given in the reports to the conference as to the outlook in individual industry was so important and extensive that much study would be required to complete its analysis. He indicated that additional material also was being assembled.

"Certain things stand out concerning the conference itself," Barnes continued. "First that it presented an extraordinary and comprehensive cross section of the whole fabric of American business represented by leaders who could speak with authority; second, that in taking up any possible slack in wages and employment an elasticity of new construction and maintenance is the chief factor, maintenance which means new equipment and construction which means not only expansio but improvemet of mechanical production and distribution.

"Third, that this implies large capital expenditures for these purposes and this must be provided from industrial treasuries or most largely by borrowings for capital investment.

"Fourth, these borrowings depend upon the ability to obtain money at reasonable rates and in ready and adequate quantities.

"This situation has developed rapidly in the last few weeks so that this assurance is present. This is shown by the treasury refunding today of $325,000,000 at 3 1-8 per cent against its last borrowings at 4 7-8 per cent, not long ago. This is probably the most extraordinary change ever recorded in treasury operations between transactions.

"Fifth, that industry, being assured of available capital, requires then only vision and courage to proceed. These qualities were clearly evidenced in the presentation by industrial leaders yesterday.

"Manifestly, confidence in the country's future and preparation for the constantly extending business, which inevitably comes from the activities of 120,000,000 energetic people warrants preparation for ultimately larger business.

"Industrial and business judgment approved immediate expenditures that cheapen production and distribution costs.".

Though 70 of the business leaders who assembled yesterday were named by the conference chairman to meet privately after the main gathering had adjourned, the prolongation late into the night of the general session prevented the smaller assembly from being effected.

From the conference membership so designated, it is expected that a large part of the new general committee for the contemplated industrial council will be selected. Virtually all the participants to the gathering left Washington today, and further consultation prior to announcement of the organization will be undertaken at private meetings.

MURDER REMAINS MYSTERY, THOUGH SLAYER CONFESSED

UNION CITY, Tenn., Dec. 6.—(AP)—The state tonight had a prisoner charged with murder, and a confession, but the Parks case remained a mystery and investigation of the death of the 65-year-old invalid capitalist continued.

Jack Pugh, 24, chauffeur for Lexie S. Parks, former banker, leading citizen and "man without an enemy," confessed to officers today that "I shot him because I was drunk and he worried me."

He made the confession in the face of a death-bed statement by Parks that his chauffeur did not shoot him.

He said, according to officers, that he shot Parks on the outskirts of Union City late Saturday. With the wounded man at his side in a coupe, he said he drove back through town, stopped several times and chatted with friends. As they passed a busy corner, shoppers had said, they spoke to Parks and he smiled a greeting. At that time, according to Pugh's story, he was mortally wounded.

Pugh told officers immediately after the shooting that a man leaped on the running board of the car as they passed a busy corner last Saturday and shot Parks. He said he knew the assailant, but "will never tell, because it would create a scandal—and I am shielding somebody in a way."

SHIPWRECKED CREW WAS RESCUED BY LINER BALTIC

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 6—(AP)—Another of the 19 little fishing schooners blown far to sea in the storms which have swept the North Atlantic ocean since last Friday night, was accounted for today with the rescue of the captain and crew of the Northern Light by the liner Baltic.

Only two members of the ill fated fleet still are missing, the schooners Kenzine and the Lloyd Jack.

Five seamen were taken off the Northern Light today by the Baltic and the schooner was abandoned. It was a daring rescue, made in heavy and dangerous seas and it resulted in the death of one of the Northern Light's crew, Rex Parson, 20.

The big liner sighted the disabled schooner about 600 miles southeast of Cape Race according to a radio message received from the Baltic's commander, J. Kearney.

The Baltic's rescue follows that by the liner Republic yesterday, in which the captain and 10 seamen of the schooner Gander Beal were picked up nearly 1,000 miles off Cape Race.

TOY MANUFACTURER AND WOMAN EMPLOYE FOUND DEAD

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Dec. 6—(AP)—The bodies of George Otstot, prominent Springfield toy manufacturer and Mrs. Rose McCutcheon, an employe, were found in Otstot's factory by Walter McCutcheon, husband of the dead woman late today. Both had died as the result of bullet wounds.

McCutcheon, who works as a laborer at the National Water Motor company, found the bodies after he had missed his wife, who always stopped for him after the day's work.

McCutcheon entered the toy factory, and smelled escaping gas. Peering into the office he saw Otstot and Mrs. McCutcheon stretched on the floor. About them were scattered heaps of toys. His wife was shot three times.

Otstot was shot once through the temple. His hand, police said, gripped a pistol. Powder burns were upon his fingers.

Coroner D. F. Schaefer started an investigation. Police expressed the theory of murder and suicide.

GEN. BULLARD SERIOUSLY ILL WITH HEART ATTACK

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—(AP)—Major General Robert Lee Bullard, retired, commander of the Third American Army corps, during the World war, was seriously ill tonight at his apartment at the Hotel Adams as the result of a heart attack on Monday.

In a statement tonight his daughter, Miss Rose Bullard, said that although his condition still was serious, it had improved steadily since Monday, and that he appeared to be in no immediate danger.

The veteran warrior himself made light of his illness. Although unable to leave his bed, and ordered by doctors to remain absolutely quiet, he insisted on receiving visitors and answering queries as to his condition.

"I have had a little trouble with my heart," he said smilingly, adding that "the weather" probably would keep him in bed for a few days.

General Bullard is 68 years old, a veteran of the Indian wars and the Spanish-American war.

RETIRED BEER MERCHANT OFFERS TO PAY GOV'T. $25,000

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.— (AP) —Terry Druggan, retired beer merchant whose offer to pay the government $25,000 on a $300,000 income tax claim has embroiled him in court proceedings, regarded his offer as liberal in view of the years of what he terms "hazardous and very unprofitable business." His tender to the government was made public today.

Druggan admitted his gross income for two years might have exceeded $200,000, but insisted his net earnings were only $100,000 or $125,000. Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson has under advisement the plea of Druggan's counsel to throw out of court his indictment for evading tax payments.

The reason he filed no tax returns in 1922 and 1923, was that he was told the courts had ruled no return was required on the profits from manufacture and sale of beer, Druggan said in his compromise offer.

SEVERE GALES MENACING IN THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

LONDON, Dec. 6—(AP)—Severe gales developed in the English channel tonight and again menaced shipping around the British Isles and off the coast of Spain. Violent winds had already taken a toll of 19 lives at sea and 7 on land with other vessels missing.

The Clyde line steamship Arklow was 18 hours overdue at Waterford, Irish Free State. Three lifeboats from Bembridge, Isle of Wight, Worthing and Selsey put out into the storm tonight in response to signals from the Hungarian steamer Honved which the gale was forcing ashore at Selsey. A cable ship also was proceeding to the aid of the vessel. Along the south and southwest coasts of England the guests of wind reached a velocity of 90 miles an hour.

LADIES GARMENT WORKERS APPROVE THREE STRIKES

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 6—(AP)—Delegates to the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union convention here today voted approval of three strikes in the industry.

The three strikes given support today will be in New York, Boston and Baltimore, and bring the total number of walkouts already sanctioned to seven in five cities.

The New York strike will involve 12,000 underwear makers. In Boston 5,000 workers will be affected, and in Baltimore another 5,000 will lay down their shears and needles.

The strikes so far sanctioned involved nearly 100,000 workers.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 6.—(AP)—President Moncada has issued a statement making clear the negotiations now in progress for an advance to the Nicaraguan government for developing the public works of Nicaragua.

WARSAW, Dec. 6.—(AP)—With Marshal Joseph Pilsudski absent from the government seats, and no sign of the military cohorts with which he overawed the national legislature on Oct. 31, the Polish diet held a ten-hour session without a sign of disorder.

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The German government and Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the reichsbank, will make a trial of strength next Wednesday. The government will then ask the reichstag for a vote of confidence on its financial reform program which Dr. Schacht has attacked.

BANK MESSENGER SHOT DEAD IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6—(AP)—C. Cameron Cook, 55, a messenger for the Bank of Philadelphia and Trust Co., lost his life today in a vain attempt to prevent three robbers who held him up from stealing $15,000 in cash which he carried in a satchel.

Cook stepped from a postoffice substation at Seventeenth and French streets, where he had collected $327 in checks when a man jumped from a car parked in front of the substation and confronted him with a pistol. Cook made a motion to strike the man, but was shot through the head.

The robber seized Cook's satchel, threw it into the parked motor and made his escape with two companions in the car.

Two men suspected of connection with the robbery and murder were arrested tonight. Their names were not divulged.

MORE THAN 29,000 FATAL AUTO ACCIDENTS IN 10 MONTHS IN U. S.

HARTFORD, Dec. 6—(AP)—The number of fatalities resulting from automobile accidents in the United States during 1929 will be in excess of 29,000, the Travelers Insurance company announced here today. The company based its estimate on the rate of increase in deaths since May over the same period last year.

The final figures, the company said, may even reach 30,000 when data not reported monthly by states is compiled.

The first five months of the year saw a decrease in the death toll as compared with the previous year, but since then statistics show the increase over 1928 was in excess of 15 per cent.

Three hundred, sixty-four persons were killed in Connecticut during the first 10 months of this year. The lowest toll was reported in October when 52 were killed and the lowest in February when 26 died in accidents.

TROOPS GUARD STATIONS OF MEXICAN RAILWAY

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Troops tonight guarded the stations and other properties of the Mexican railway, a British-owned line connecting the capital with the important port of Vera Cruz, to make sure that no strike-breakers were put to work and that order was preserved.

Many of the railway workers went out on strike this noon. Tonight the telegraph operators gave notice that they would join in the strike. The company maintained that enough employes remained loyal to keep up an emergency service and it appeared that regular service would be maintained between Vera Cruz and this city over the Inter-Oceanic line which is part of the National railway system.

INTERNATIONAL LIVESTOCK SHOW CLOSES TODAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Prize ribbons and curry combs, vacuum cleaners and overalls were laid away in hand bags and suit cases tonight as the herdsmen and shepherds who made history of the International Livestock show prepared their trek back to the farm tomorrow.

Judging in all classes ended today, and all that remains on the program tomorrow are some of the cattle sales and the matinee and evening horse shows. Sponsors of the 30th annual exposition at the Chicago stock yards estimated a half million persons viewed the 20 acres of livestock and hay and grain exhibits during the week.

Awards were distributed over all sections of the United States and Canada.

SENATE MAY DALLY OVER INCOME TAX REDUCTION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Facing an uncertain future in the tariff-embattled senate, the $160,000,000 tax reduction resolution will be considered tomorrow by the senate finance committee with a view to reporting approval of it early next week.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, announced tonight that if the resolution gets before the senate next week he will favor immediate consideration. Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, democratic spokesman in revenue legislation, has contended the tax cut must await a decision first by the senate on the tariff.

Leaders of the various factions in the senate will determine sentiment over the week-end recess on the procedure for the tax and tariff measures and also on suggestions for modification of the tax proposal

COMMITTEE TO MANAGE THE FOX ENTERPRISES

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—(AP)—William Fox, president of the Fox Film corporation and the Fox Theatres corporation, tonight announced the formation of a trusteeship committee, of which he is a member, to manage the Fox enterprises.

In addition to Mr. Fox, H. L. Stuart, of Halsey, Stuart and Company, and John E. Otterson, president of the Electrical Research Products, Inc., also will act as trustees.

GAME WARDEN LAWTON DIED OF HEART DISEASE

TORRINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Word was received here tonight of the death in Kent today of Arthur N. Lawton, of this city, Litchfield county game warden. Mr. Lawton's family was notified that he had died of heart disease while in an automobile.

Mr. Lawton is survived by his widow and two sons.

Formal Settlement of The Roman Question

Ceremonies Today Will Mark End of Discord Between the House of Savoy and the Holy See.

ROME, Dec. 6—(AP)—Rome lives this week in an atmosphere of high ceremony and meetings of state.

Yesterday King Victor Emanuel and Queen Helena paid their first visit to Pope Pius. Tomorrow Crown Prince Humbert and his sisters, Princesses Giovanna and Maria, accompanied by the king, also will visit the pontiff to mark the settlement of the Roman question and the end of discord between the House of Savoy and the Holy See.

The ceremony tomorrow will be as simple as that which accompanied the visit of the king and the queen, and will be significant in extending friendly relations with the papacy to the whole House of Savoy.

The crown prince and the princesses will drive to the Vatican from the Quirinal palace along the route followed by the king and the queen. Their procession will be private until it reaches the castle Sant'Angelo, where it will become official.

Thousands of persons who know the route to be followed are preparing to post themselves at advantageous points to see the royal group go by.

Special precautions have been taken to assure the safety of Prince Humbert.

The ceremonial for the reception at the Vatican will not be so elaborate as that for the welcome of the king and the queen, but as Humbert is the heir to the throne, it will be more elaborate than usual in receiving a royal prince.

Pope Pius is expected to congratulate Prince Humbert on his engagement to Princess Marie Jose of Belgium and to give him his blessing. The prince's wedding will take place January 8.

The audience of the prince and princesses with the pope, unlike that of the king and the queen, will not be secret, because it is considered only a presentation. The pope will present his visitors with religious gifts.

The royal visitors will later visit Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, whose apartments are on the floor below those of the pope. Then they will descend to St. Peter's, where they will worship at the tomb of the apostles.

Their return to the Quirinal palace will be made in the same manner as their journey to the Vatican.

Patrick Jay Hurley Named Sec'y Of War

Announcement Made by President Hoover—Had Been Acting Since Death of Secretary Good.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.— (AP) — Patrick Jay Hurley, of Oklahoma, lawyer, soldier and executive, was appointed today by President Hoover as secretary of war, a post in which he has been acting since the death of James W. Good last month.

Thus the chief executive gave effect to the wish of the southern states for a cabinet member and selected a man from one of the states of the south which gave him its electoral vote a year ago.

In announcing the appointment simultaneously with the dispatch of the nomination to the senate, the president said Hurley had been endorsed by the leading men of practically every state in the south. He added that the new cabinet officer was a lawyer of long experience, a distinguished soldier, and an executive of proved ability.

News of the appointment was received with expressions of satisfaction at Capital hill. Acting Chairman James, of the house military committee, predicted that Hurley would make "a very successful secretary of war," adding that his experience had fitted him "to face the matters which need revision, such as increased pay, promotion and retirement."

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the republican floor leader, said that "during Mr. Hurley's short service as assistant secretary of war he has shown a fine grasp of the duties of that office."

Hurley was born in the Choctaw nation, Indian Territory, Jan. 8, 1883. He was graduated from Bacone college, Indian Territory, in 1905, and began the practice of law at Tulsa, Oklahoma, in 1908. Four years later he became attorney for the Choctaw nation, serving in that capacity for five years.

The new secretary's military service began in 1902 as a captain of cavalry of the Indian Territory Volunteer militia. Later he was a captain in the Oklahoma National guard and during the World war reached the grade of lieutenant colonel. He was awarded the Distinguished Service medal and the silver star citation for gallantry in action near Louppy, France, on Armistice day.

In 1927, he became president of the First Trust and Savings bank, Tulsa, Oklahoma, and also has been a director of the First National bank in that city.

Secretary Hurley on Dec. 5, 1919, married Miss Ruth Wilson, daughter of Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, U. S. N., retired. They have three children, Patricia, Ruth and Wilson.

That Gift!

Funny how birthdays and all sorts of anniversaries creep up so quietly you never notice them until they're right on top of you. And then suddenly you realize there is someone you should remember with a gift.

No need to rush out frantically to see what you can find. Instead, sit down with The Bulletin and look over its news of merchandise as well as news of events. Run through the merchandise news—the advertising. It won't take you long to find just what you want, at the price you want to pay and you'll know right where to get it.

Why not adopt this same method to help you in your regular daily expenditures? Groceries?—Of course they're advertised. House furnishings? Clothes? Books? Musical instruments?

Just think what time you'll save by simply using the advertisements as a fund of information on where to buy, what to buy and how much to pay!

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT BY HUNTING COMPANION

SANDISFIELD, Mass., Dec. 6—(AP)—The first fatality of the present deer hunting season in South Berkshire county occurred here today, when Edwin H. Hart, 54, of Winsted, Conn., was accidentally shot in the back by his hunting companion, Arthur Richburgh, also of Winsted.

The two men were walking along a hillside when Richburgh is believed to have stumbled, causing his shotgun to go off. Hart died instantly.

CRUISERS IN COLLISION TO NORTHWEST OF SPAIN

MADRID, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The Spanish cruiser Prince Alphonse was reported today to have collided with the cruiser Jaime in a violent storm off Ferrol, the northwest corner of Spain. No details were available for some time.

COPPER RIVET REMOVED FROM 10-YEAR OLD BOY'S LUNG

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—(AP)—A copper rivet which Joseph Peloso, 10, of New Canaan, Conn., swallowed four months ago was removed from his lung at Post-Graduate hospital today.

The rivet was half an inch long, a quarter of an inch in diameter, and had two split edges. At first it caused the boy mild discomfort, then severe pain. Physicians said the child would suffer no ill effects.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Three brothers, Thomas Leathead, 9 years; Edward, 8, and Frank, 6, were drowned this afternoon when their express wagon ran down a hill and broke through the ice on Newton lake.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.— (AP) — Senate membership was denied to William S. Vare today and, while the Pennsylvanian limped from the chamber, the senate also refused the seat to his democratic opponent in the 1926 election, William B. Wilson.

With the chair that has been unoccupied for two years formally vacated by two decisive votes, all eyes turned toward Governor Fisher, of Pennsylvania, who now is empowered to fill it.

Even before Vare was excluded by 58 to 22 because of expenditures of $785,000 and charges of fraud in his senatorial primary race, warning was given in the senate that Joseph R. Grundy, prominently mentioned as a possible successor, would not be acceptable. Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota, gave that notice and the senate waited apprehensively tonight for Governor Fisher's decision.

Nye called attention that Governor Fisher was nominated on the Mellon-Pepper ticket in the 1926 primary, the ticket which opposed Vare and which was reported to the senate to have spent $1,304,979 in fighting Vare's $785,000 campaign.

"If the senate is going to damn one ill-smelling machine," declared Nye, "it will have to damn the other. And I give notice here and now that the appointee of Governor Fisher will need be one far removed from affiliation with the Mellon-Grundy-Fisher machine before I will vote to seat him."

The resolution of Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, denying Vare membership, was supported by 25 republicans, 32 democrats and the one farmer-labor member. Twenty-two republicans opposed it.

Turning immediately to the contest of Wilson for the seat, the senate adopted by 56 to 15 the resolution of Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, holding Wilson was not elected.

ADDITIONAL MARINES ARE TO BE DISPATCHED TO HAITI

President Hoover Has Sent a Message to Congress Explaining His Reasons For Sending More Marines—The U. S. S. Wright is Loading Supplies and Airplanes at Norfolk—Probably Will Leave, With 500 Marines, as Soon as Loading is Completed—Report Says That Haiti Has Become Tranquil Under Martial Law.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Additional marines are being assembled for dispatch to Haiti because of the seriousness with which the administration views the disturbed situation there.

President Hoover is so concerned over the events which have required establishment of martial law there today he sent a special message to congress, believed to contain an explanation of his reasons for sending more marines. The senate and house had adjourned, however, and the contents of the message consequently were withheld from public.

Both the white house and the navy department tonight carefully refrained from divulging any information as to the plans.

Word from Norfolk, Va., that the U. S. S. flagship Wright had received "secret orders" to sail sometime tomorrow with a detachment of marines for "duty beyond the sea" elicited no comment.

At Quantico, Va., the marine base near Washington, leave was denied all troops and preparations were pushed for an early departure of a detachment which probably will consist of 300 officers and men.

Others were ready at Parris Island, S. C., and Norfolk. They will reinforce the 700 marines already on duty in Haiti, who are in barracks at Port Au Prince and Cape Haitien. A 950-ton navy mine sweeper is stationed there.

These forces are regularly stationed on the island, the United States never having removed all marines since it co-operated with Haitian leaders in setting up a government in 1915.

"SECRET ORDERS" FOR "DUTY BEYOND THE SEA"

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 6.—(AP)— The U. S. S. Wright, flagship of the aircraft squadron's scouting fleet, received "secret orders" today to sail sometime tomorrow with a detachment of marines for "duty beyond the sea." Officials were unable to say when the ship would sail or just how many marines would board the vessel tonight, and tomorrow morning, although it was understood that a detachment from Quantico was to arrive at the naval base early tomorrow morning.

The Wright will take 500 men. A special train with 120 men and five officers will arrive here tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock from Parris Island, S. C., and a special boat from Quantico with approximately 300 officers and men is due about the same hour. Seventy-two men will be picked up at the marine barracks here.

The Wright is loading supplies and airplanes tonight, and is expected to leave just as soon as loading is completed. It is virtually certain at the naval base that Haiti is the destination, although no officials claim to know definitely just where the vessel is bound.

HAITI BECOMES TRANQUIL UNDER MARTIAL LAW

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 6.—(AP)—After two days of popular unrest, which was ended with the proclamation of martial law by marine corps authorities, Haiti was tranquil today.

The occasional conflicts between certain sections of the populace and detachments from the marine corps and the Haitian garde that occurred yesterday and the day before were absent today.

Press dispatches reporting that the Washington state department had advised President Borno of the receipt of his declaration that he will not be a candidate for re-election helped to calm the unrest in opposition circles.

Leaders in the agitation admitted that the situation had gotten beyond their control, when the marine corps intervened and said they regretted the incidents, which had gone far beyond their plans.

The provisions of martial law have not been extended beyond Port Au Prince and Cape Haitien.

Medical students and law students, who have been on strike, were reported to be ready to return to their studies. The students of agriculture and the employes also are expected to go back.

The only restrictions of martial law in the capital have been the forbidding of agitation or defiance of American troops and the barring of citizens from the streets between dark and daylight, except in case of necessary duties.

SHERIFF'S POSSE FAILS TO FIND NEGRO ASSAILANT

MIDDLETON, Tenn., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Wet, cold, sleepy and baffled, several hundred men abandoned search tonight for Sheriff A. W. Nealey, who had in his custody Tom Gunn, Negro, charged with stabbing and attempting to attack a 13-year-old white girl.

The crowd dispersed about 7:30. At the same time it was announced that the girl had suffered a relapse and was in a serious condition at her father's home, near here. She was cut badly about the chin and body by a Negro yesterday late, who fled when the girl's screams attracted the attention of two white men.

It was believed here tonight that the Negro had been taken to Corinth, Miss., Memphis, Jackson, or Bolivar, Tenn.

A Negro near here furnished the clue that led to Gunn's capture. He told the sheriff that Gunn was the assailant of the girl and that he had sought shelter at his home last night. The sheriff and his deputies captured Gunn while several hundred men searched nearby.

WARSAW, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The government went down in a decisive defeat tonight when the sejm or diet sustained a motion of lack of confidence by a vote of 246 to 120.

The vote followed a long debate in which Premier Switalsky, four of his ministers and numerous deputies participated. Announcement of the vote was received with tremendous cheering by the opposition. It was understood that the government would resign and would be reconstituted in a manner calculated to appease the opposition. It was generally understood that the premier and minister of labor would not be included in the new cabinet.

BESSIE LOVE TO WED STOCK BROKER DEC. 27

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Bessie Love, motion picture star, today filed notice of intention to wed William B. Hawks, Beverly Hills stock broker. She disclosed her real name as "Juanita Horton" and said she was 23 years old. She gave her birthplace as Midland, Tex. Hawks is 28. The marriage was announced for Dec. 27.

OBITUARY

William Fairfield Warren

BROOKLINE, Mass., Dec. 6.—(AP)—William Fairfield Warren, president emeritus of Boston university, died at his home here tonight in his 96th year. Dr. Warren was taken ill with pneumonia a few days ago.

Dr. Warren was the first president of Boston university and gave 30 years of active service to that institution. In 1873, when he became president, there was only one department in the university, the School of Theology.

He was born in Williamsburg and was graduated from Wesleyan university. In 1853, he established a classical school at Mobile, Ala. Later he studied at Andover Theological seminary, and held pastorates in Wilbraham and Boston. In 1866, he became president of the Boston Theological seminary, which formed the nucleus of Boston university.

MUTINY IN CHINA HAS GROWN INTO REBELLION

SHANGHAI, Dec. 6.— (AP) —The mutiny Tuesday of several thousand nationalist soldiers at Pukow had grown today into a rebellion in several provinces of central China, the declared object being the overthrow of the government and its president, Chiang Kai-Shek. Other rebels continued to threaten Canton, chief city of south China. Meanwhile renewed raids by Russian troops are reported to have taken place Wednesday in western Manchuria.

Nanking, China's capital, was placed under martial law tonight to prevent untoward developments while the government troops marched northward to meet rebel forces estimated at 30,000 reported moving upon the capital from their base at Pengpu, 80 miles distant.

COMMENT ON DRY LAW DECISION IN ALABAMA

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—(AP)—Prohibition Commissioner Doran said today that the decision of the Alabama state court that a purchaser of liquor was equally guilty with the seller of violating the state prohibition laws could in no way affect enforcement under the national prohibition laws.

The Alabama decision is purely a state law and does not apply to the Volstead act in any way," Doran said. "It is purely a state affair with which the federal government has no connection and the decision could not be used by the federal government even if we wished."

WILLIMANTIC FIRE DEPT. CALLED TO FIRE IN EASTFORD

EASTFORD, Conn., Dec. 6—(AP)—The J. M. Tatem Handle company's factory, a one story structure, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin tonight. J. M. Tatem, owner of the concern, estimated the damage at between $20,000 to $40,000.

The Willimantic fire department was summoned, but the fire was beyond control when its apparatus arrived here after the 17 mile run from that city.

The company, Eastford's only industry, employed 20 persons and manufactured pick and axe handles.

THE WILSON H. LEE CO. WINS PRINTING CONTRACT

OLIVER GOBIN FINED $100 AND COSTS IN SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 6—Judge Edward M. Yeomans, presiding over the Windham county criminal court session here this afternoon, imposed a fine of $100 and costs in the case of Oliver Gobin of North Grosvenordale, charged with concealing property sold under a conditional bill of sale. Gobin's case was heard by a jury Thursday, a verdict of guilty being returned late in the afternoon against the accused. Imposition of the sentence was deferred until this morning. State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford recommended that a sentence of two months in the county jail at Brooklyn be imposed but defense counsel, Attorney Samuel B. Harvey, pleaded against this on the grounds that the ends of justice would be fully met with a fine. The case involved the purchase, by Gobin, of six cows from Amedee Guillet of Auburn, Mass., on a conditional bill of sale.

Short calendar cases were taken up at today's session. In the uncontested divorce case of Mrs. Esther Paquin, witnesses for the plaintiff were Frank Barber, Officer L. Winchell and Ellery Ethridge, all of Danielson. Mrs. Paquin is seeking a decree of divorce on the grounds of cruelty and intemperance. Judge Yeomans reserved his decision in the case.

The following court cases were assigned for Tuesday of next week in Willimantic: John D. Prince vs. George L. and Margaret M. Shepaum; George J. Rood vs. Jacob Starr; Samuel Spector vs. Blanchette and Blanchette and Fred Gee vs. Noel A. Millane.

Jury cases assigned for Tuesday, December 17 were: Edwin Sugalski P. P. A. vs. George Gendron and Jennie L. Farrar vs. Edward A. Winter. The jury case of Robert G. Smith and Emma A. Smith, an appeal from the commissioners on the estate of Hannah F. Smith, was assigned for Thursday, December 19.

Cases assigned for trial in Putnam Thursday were: Wilfred Viens vs. Clotilde Filiens; Ernest E. Dupuis vs. Albert Deforge; Amelia Farron vs. Everett Hyde; Camille Leflamme vs. Cleophas Leflamme; Adelard Leflamme adm'r vs. Cleophas Leflamme; Daley G. Bosworth vs. Burton D. Bosworth; Philias F. Tetreault, appeal from the state department of health.

The short calendar session then opened. In the case of Jennie K. Allen vs. Arthur St. John, Judge Yeomans gave judgment by default for the plaintiff in the amount of $112. The case of the Willimantic Savings Institute vs. Zenowitz, administrator, et al, was claimed by Attorney Arthur T. Kelely and the hearing was fixed to follow the cases of Tuesday in Willimantic. In the case of Benjamin Prague vs. Hermann Frag, et al, an argument on demurrer, the court overruled the demurrer. The court accepted the motion of Attorney Harry S. Gaucher to have two alienists examine the defendant in the case of Gertrude C. Chappell vs. Edson Chappell.

A continuance of one week was ordered in the case of Joseph F. Coombs vs. Herbert L. Fortune et al. A continuance was also ordered in the case of Samuel B. Harvey vs. Ruel M. Hyde et al. The case of Max Lehrman vs. Sadie Rosenthal et al was allowed to stand on the calendar for one week.

The plaintiff secured judgment of $1,246.60 in the case of Robert Jennings vs. Mary Oliver of Hampton. The redemption period was limited to January 2. Witnesses in this case included the plaintiff and Deputy Sheriff Lester H. Bliss of this city who made an appraisal of the property in question. Mr. Jennings is now a resident of New Jersey.

A temporary agreement was reached in the case of Vilda H. Osterhoudt vs. Raymond R. Osterhoudt, seeking support of the minor children of the couple. The court ordered the case of Vine R. Franklin vs. Edward Langford and Anthony K. Magall off the calendar, similar disposition was made in the case of J. Frank Dee et al vs. Camp Lincoln, in which an answer has been filed. The uncontested divorce case of Jennie K. Allen vs. George H. Allen was also ordered off the calendar.

The application of N. Stuart Campbell et al vs. National Rhea company for an order to sell the estate of the corporation at public auction was granted and Attorney Howard C. Bradford for the plaintiff was authorized to prepare a newspaper notice to be inserted in a Putnam paper.

Attorney Bradford is to replace Attorney Frank H. Foss in the case of John D. Prince vs. George and Margaret Shepaum, owing to the fact that Attorney Foss presided as judge in police court here on the criminal action in which Shepaum was found guilty of reckless driving. The case is the aftermath of an accident in which Prince was injured when struck by a car driven by Shepaum.

Court adjourned until next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock to reconvene in this city.

An effort is being made to have the tabulations completed and indexed by January 1, in the property revaluation work now being conducted in the town of Windham and city of Willimantic by the Cleminshaw Municipal Service company of Hartford. L. J. Cleminshaw said today that if his concern is successful in completing the work so that the indexed figures are in the hands of the board of assessors by January 1, most of the month will be taken up by the appearance of property owners in regard to the new valuations. The board of relief will take up its duties in February and there is every indication that they will be confronted with many problems.

Numerous discrepancies in the lists have been found, mostly in the outlying districts. Some farms were found by the experts to have three or four times the area listed on the old tax lists. Some lots in the city proper were not recorded at all and several buildings were found not listed. The aerial maps of the city disclosed most of these faults. The maps remain as the property of the town to be consulted in settling disputes.

Good patronage favored the opening of the annual Christmas bazaar of the Methodist Episcopal church in the vestry this afternoon. The vestry is colorful in an array of well-supplied booths. Mrs. E. B. Lewis is in charge of the variety store; Miss Ethel Simonds of the candy booth; Mrs. Fred P. Duvall of the home-cooked foods; Mrs. Charles W. Chass of the ice cream and soda; Mrs. Nellie Powell, apron booth; Miss Louise Bonney, "mystery" booth; Mrs. Frederick J. Williams, fancy goods; Mrs. M. Leslie Nichols, handkerchiefs and Mrs. Thomas Kelleher, "white elephant" booth. A cafeteria supper was served from 5 to 7 o'clock by a group in charge of Mrs. Clarence O. Barrows. The entertainment this evening included music and a one-act play, The Acid Test, staged under the direction of Mrs. Charles H. Beebe and Mrs. Carl E. Rice. The bazaar will continue Saturday afternoon and evening when the one-act play to be staged will be entitled Hired and Fired.

Officers of A. C. Tyler camp, No. 8, United Spanish War Veterans, elected for the year are: Commander, Thomas Mara; senior vice commander, Herbert L. Loomis; junior vice commander, Archibald A. Burton; trustee for three years, Past Commander David Loree; chaplain, John D. Galivan. Quartermaster Jeremiah A. McCarthy, Past Commander Francis J. Teevan and Past Department Adjutant Frederick N. Flagg are to act as a special patriotic committee to cooperate with other veteran and patriotic organizations in the city and town on work of mutual interest. The charter of the camp now stands draped for 30 days in memory of the late Comrade John T. Ashton.

Mrs. Elsie G. Keating, newly installed president of James J. Shea post, No. 19, American Legion has announced the appointment of the standing committees for the ensuing year as follows: Flag, Alice Lee, Rose Marrotte, Ellen Keith; constitution and by-laws, Jeanette Piche, Olive Nield; rehabilitation, Margaret Moriarty, Elizabeth Daley, Jennie Green; child welfare, Nellie Lively, Myrtle Mastin, Loretta Blair; memorial, Anna Goss, Blanche Young Nellie Haddad; finance, Marguerite Healy, Emma Maass, Hattie Maass, Lucy Lee; membership, Florence Burchnall, Edna Litterick, Blanche Lariviere; publicity, Winifred Downer

The tremendous advantages of an improved road linking Willimantic with the new Jonathan Trumbull highway at a point in the vicinity of Liberty Hill is receiving consideration by the chamber of commerce. Secretary John J. O'Rourke of the chamber is meeting with strong support in his advocacy of having the matter taken up with the state highway department. The project of a good road out of Willimantic over Mountain street through Village Hill to the Lebanon town line, a distance of about three miles is not entirely new in local and Lebanon circles. Residents of that section living between this city and the Lebanon line are forced to travel over very poor roads to reach Willimantic either directly or via the village of Columbia which provides a roundabout course. The proposed plan is for a good road running directly south out of Willimantic and connecting with the Jonathan Trumbull highway running from Andover to Lebanon via Columbia.

Garments secured or made by members of the local branch of the Neddlework Guild of America were placed in the annual exhibition held in the vestry of the Baptist church this afternoon. The exhibition which was the 35th annual, included over 800 garments. The address of the afternoon was given by Miss Constance Leigh, matron of the Newington Home for Crippled Children, who spoke on the splendid work of that institution, also gave incidents of the international Needlework Guild conference held in Geneva, Switzerland last year. The garments are to be distributed to the Willimantic Welfare bureau, St. Joseph's hospital, the Newington home, Windham County home at Putnam and other places. Tea was served during the afternoon by Mrs. Arthur E. Stiles and assistants and the reports were given by Mrs. Jennie Scripture, president; Mrs. William A. Buck, secretary and Mrs. D. C. Barrows, treasurer.

Governor John H. Trumbull has acknowledged the resignation of Burton M. Welch as judge of the Chaplin probate district court to take effect January 1, 1930. The selection of a new judge will remain until the election, November, 1930, probate matters to be carried on until that time by Merritt Welch, clerk of the Chaplin probate court. A judge from one of the neighboring districts will be called in to preside over new cases brought to the attention of the Chaplain court.

Mrs. Otis G. Bunnell of the state forestry department delivered an illustrated lecture on Trees of Connecticut at a meeting of Lyceum of Windham high school held this forenoon. The talk was a most interesting one. During the meeting Captain Arthur Melkie on behalf of the 1929 football squad of the school presented Coach Thomas A. Callaghan with a testimonial in gold.

The nation-wide lull in the foundry business is being felt at the Vanderman Manufacturing company, makers of iron tool chests and other metal equipment. During the dull season the plant has reduced its working hours from 48 hours weekly to four days of 32 hours.

COLCHESTER

CLARK Z. OTIS HONORED BY N. Y. STATE DRUGGISTS

The following, from a recent Binghamton, N. Y. paper, regarding Clark Z. Otis who has been selected as representative from New York state to attend the national convention of pharmacists governing body, is of interest to Mr. Otis's many friends and relatives in Colchester, Norwich and vicinity. Mr. Otis is a former well known resicent of Colchester and a frequent visitor during the summer months with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Van Cleve of South Main street:

"After 54 years as a pharmacist, practically all of which years have been spent in Binghamton, signal honors have come to Clark Z. Otis of this city, dean of N. Y. state druggists. Mr. Otis, who back in the 80's conducted Otis Brothers' drug store on the site now occupied by Liggett's is still actively engaged in his profession, being proprietor of the East End drug store on Robinson street.

"Mr. Otis has been selected as one of the five N. Y. state representatives to attend the convention of the U. S. Pharmacopeia, the national governing body which decides upon the official formulae that all medicins has to comply with, the convention being scheduled for Washington, D. C., in May of next year. The Binghamton druggist is to serve on the revision committee, an important body which has the final word to say in regard to methods in the preparation of prescriptions, and other matters of vital interest to the profession. The appointment is in recognition of his long service in the state organization.

"Appointed in 1884 by Governor Grover Cleveland as one of the first members of the State Board of Pharmacy, Mr. Otis has kept alive his active associations for nearly 50 years. In 1886, he was elected president of the N. Y. State Pharmaceutical association and at a recent golden jubilee observance of that body, held at Saratoga Springs, he was a guest of honor, being one of the five living past presidents and the oldest member of the organization.

"At this gathering Mr. Otis was escorted to the banquet hall by a band and was tendered a remarkable ovation by the assembled guests, among whom were chemists of international reputation and notables in the pharmaceutical profession from all parts of the county. A gold medal suitably inscribed, was presented Mr. Otis in token of his service. Mr. Otis responded with an address covering the early history of the organization, its accomplishments and reminiscences of the first presidents of the association. This address made a distinct impression and has been published in full in the national publication of the profession.

"The Washington convention, in which Mr. Otis is to have a major part, is held at stated intervals for the purpose of revising the United States Pharmacopeia. The revision committee from New York state has five members and Mr. Otis was one of those selected.

Recognition came to Mr. Otis early in his career. When he was proprietor of Binghamton's first large Court street drug store, he was active in stamping out the dope evil which at that time was regulated by few state or national laws. Remedies offered to the public were found to contain habit-forming drugs and it was through the efforts of Mr. Otis that a great deal of the early corrective legislation was brought about.

"He continues to enjoy the reputation for a strict observance of the ethics of his profession gained at that time and is a recognized authority on all matters relating to the retail drug trade. Though approaching his 80th birthday Mr. Otis is active in the conduct of his business, enjoying the confidence of leaders in the medical profession both in his home city and throughout the state.

"He has watched the city develop from the day of the cedar block pavement on Court street, the horse cars and the farmers' rigs which used to tie up at the hitching posts in front of his store, to its present metropolitan aspect, and is as well posted on local affairs as he is on matters pertaining to his profession."

Fred O. Brown has been confined to his home by illness, the past few days.

WILLIMANTIC—S. N. E. T. CAR COLLIDE ON ICY HILL

About 4:30 Friday afternoon, a Pontiac coach, Connecticut registration 48706, operated by Andrew Lick of Willimantic, collided with a new Ford roadster, Connecticut registration 32,-789 half-way down the John Wade hill on the Colchester-Norwich turnpike about two miles from Colchester center. The Ford car, the property of the S. N. E. T. Co. was operated by a division engineer of the company from the Hartford office, whose name was not given out. The Pontiac car was said to have been traveling down the hill toward Norwich and upon getting half way down the incline, the Willimantic car skidded into the Ford, which was coming up the hill. The two men were considerably shaken up and cut by broken glass and were taken by a passing motorist to the office of Dr. C. E. Pendleton in Colchester. The Hartford man sustained a severe cut on his head and both men were badly bruised and suffered cuts about the body. State Policeman Roy B. Pettingill of the Hartford barracks is conducting an investigation. The front of the Ford was badly smashed in, windshield and steering wheel broken and the left front wheel was completely demolished. The Pontiac car was also badly damaged, the left side of the body being completely smashed in. The slippery condition of the roadway is thought to have been a contributory cause of the accident.

Stafford Springs

E. P. TETREAULT, PASCOAG, GIVEN THREE MONTHS IN JAIL

Eugene P. Tetreault, of Pascoag, R. I., was sentenced to three months in jail by Judge William H. Heald when he pleaded guilty in the borough court Friday morning to the charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Early Wednesday morning, Borough Policeman George Kealy found an automobile on East Main street with no one in charge. The officer took the machine into custody and upon examination discovered a .32-calibre revolver with four chambers fully loaded. The local state police were notified and they got in touch with the police in Pascoag, who found that the car belonged to Tetreault. Tetreault returned to Stafford Springs in company with Albert Ballou Thursday afternoon to get his car and was immediately placed under arrest by Sergeant Hulburt and taken to the Stafford Springs detention house. Tetreault told many conflicting stories of his whereabouts and was unable to give any reason for abandoning his car in Stafford Springs. He said that he had been traveling through New England for several weeks looking for work and admitted being in the vicinity, Saturday night, of Westfield, where Gerael Salvatore, a baker's helper, was found dead early Sunday morning. Detective Manning, of Westfield, with Chief of Police Thomas F. Daley and Inspector William A. O'Brien, came to Stafford Springs late Thursday afternoon and interviewed the prisoner. While the police have considerable doubt at this time that Tetreault had any connection with the Westfield homicide, it is believed that he is not entirely beyond suspicion and his movements for the past few days are being checked up. County Detective Rowe Wheeler, of Windham county, came to Stafford Springs and interviewed Tetreault Friday afternoon to see if he could get any clue to the recent burglaries in Putnam and other eastern Connecticut towns. Albert Ballou, who came here with Tetreault Thursday afternoon pleaded guilty in the borough court Friday morning to having his car illegally registered. His case was nolled upon payment of costs.

Walter R. Ide, of Fitchburg, Mass., was fined $44 and costs of $11.35 at the Friday morning session of the borough court for operating an overloaded truck. Ide was carrying iron pipe and had an overload of 4,400 pounds.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Mary White Roche

There was a large attendance at the funeral of Mrs. Mary White Roche at St. Edward's church Friday morning at 9 o'clock. Rev. Felix J. O'Neill sang requiem high mass and burial was in St. Edward's cemetery. The bearers were Patrick J. Murray, Frank Silk, John Quinn, William Purcell, George Young and Victor J. Bissonnette.

The Junior school held a bazaar in the assembly room of the grammar school Friday evening. Four playlets were presented and there was music by the school orchestra. Candy, fancy articles, leather and woodwork made by the children were on sale.

The Stafford Savings bank has mailed checks to Christmas club members this week. Almost $25,000 has been received by the members for savings during the year.

James Crapulli has sold his bungalow on the Hollow road to Omer J. Foucher, of West Stafford. Mr. Foucher will take possession immediately.

Rev. Bhasker P. Hivale, of Bombay, India, and Cambridge, Mass., is to preach at the Sunday morning service in the Congregational church. Dr. Hivale is a graduate of the University of Bombay, Andover Theological seminary and Harvard university. He plans to spend a part of next year at Oxford university and will then return to India to teach at the University of Bombay. He has traveled not only in America and India but in China, Japan, the Hawaiian Islands, Great Britain, France, Switzerland and Italy.

John Roche, of Grafton, Mass., has been spending several days with borough relatives.

ORREN AVERY INJURED BY FALL IN CHAPEL

Orren Avery, a painter employed by William Slater, was seriously injured by a fall while at work on the mortuary chapel in Stafford Springs cemetery Thursday morning. Mr. Avery stepped on a piece of tin between the rafters and fell from the ceiling to the floor and was rendered unconscious. He was taken to Johnson Memorial hospital and has since been in a precarious condition. Up to a late hour Friday night he had not regained consciousness.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week there was talk in Norwich that at least three real estate owners were contemplating the erection of theatres in this city. The week, as a whole, was a quiet one in the city. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of the first week in December, are as follows:

Monday, Dec. 1, 1879—It is encouraging to know that now less than three real estate owners in this city are now talking of building opera houses and we feel assured that if each one carries out his plans, Norwich will be amply supplied with public hall accommodations for the next quarter of a century.

The locomotive whistles on the Norwich and Worcester railroad have been modified so that instead of four whistles, one now answers for crossings. This was one of the blessings that the people living along the line gave thanks for the other day.

The Buckingham Guards were inspected at their armory on Market street Saturday evening, by Paymaster Gilbert of the Third regiment. They showed proficiency in the tactics and passed a creditable inspection.

Tuesday, Dec. 2, 1879 — The announcement of the death of Mrs. William C. Gilman, at her residence at Norwich Town, early last evening, will touch a particularly tender chord in the hearts of our people. Mrs. Gilman was the daughter of the late Thomas C. Perkins of Hartford, one of the ablest lawyers in the state, the niece of Henry Ward Beecher, and the sister of Mr. Charles Perkins of Hartford, a well known member of the bar.

Howorth's Hibernica is to appear at Breed hall Thursday and Friday evenings. As the name indicates the entertainment is of an Irish nature. Tickets are on sale at Noyes and Davis.

The following officers have been selected by the Shetucket Steam Fire Engine Co., for the ensuing year: Foreman, Patrick Barry; first assistant, Martin Carroll; second assistant, James Rigney; clerk, John Foley

Wednesday, Dec. 3, 1879—The Rev. W. W. Bentley will continue his labors with the First Baptist society through the present week. Meetings will be held every evening. The Thursday afternoon prayer meeting will commence at 2.30 o'clock.

A new locomotive named The Thames, from the Hinckley Locomotive works, Boston, passed over the Norwich & Worcester road, Tuesday evening, en route for New London, to go into the service of the New London Northern road.

The ladies of the Central Baptist church are to hold a fair in Breed hall next Tuesday and Wednesday. The announcement is made thus early so that none need stay away, as they have time to arrange therefore beforehand. Make a note of it in your diary.

Thursday, Dec. 4, 1879—Mr. N. S. Wentworth, for several years acting school visitor and secretary of the town school board of Preston, has resigned his position. Mr. William E. Hiscox has been appointed to fill the vacancy and will enter at once upon his duties.

John S. Gilman, who was struck by a freight train on the Norwich & Worcester railroad, some ten days ago, at Dayville, has died of his injuries, although it was thought at the time that he was not seriously injured.

Sherman Bishop, a son of Mr. S. B. Bishop, was slightly injured a day or two since, by jumping from the horse cars on Franklin street, while they were in operation.

Friday, Dec. 5, 1879—The Catholics of Danielson have just made a handsome offer for the prettiest and most central piece of real estate in that enterprising borough.

The Rev. L. T. Chamberlain of this city will deliver an address on the 20th inst., before the Connecticut Temperance union at Hartford.

Saturday, Dec. 6, 1879—The Murphy Miniature Opera Co., which played here a short time since with such a charming Little Buttercup, is to appear here again next Thursday evening, in H. M. S. Pinafore. Wherever this company has appeared it has been enthusiastically received.

Mr. Gideon Sparks, foreman on the Norwich & Worcester road, was severely burned on the left arm and the left side of the face, Thursday, while firing the locomotive Attawaugan.

An East Main street provision house recently received a spring lamb from Mr. John Tucker, of Scotland, that weighed alive one hundred and twenty-eight pounds. A good one.

To make this bread better for bodies of growing children

We gladly pay $2,000,000 extra each year for our ingredients and then . . . slo bake every loaf

By ALICE ADAMS PROCTOR

EVERYBODY eats bread. It is the first solid food on which the infant's tiny teeth are tried; the last to be mumbled by the gums of age.

We like to think of a bakery as a place where human beings are made, because the bread that is baked today will tomorrow be forming part of the blood and muscle and brain of active growing children.

The baker who improves his bread improves the quality of his fellow men just as surely as the baker who cheats his loaf is cheating the bodies of his customers.

Because we realize our responsibility to mothers and growing children we will never compromise on the quality of slo-baked Wonder Bread. That is why we spend $2,000,000 extra every year for better ingredients—that Wonder Bread may be a better bread—that Wonder Bread eaters may be better fed people.

Add to this the fact that Wonder Bread is "slo baked." An idea originated by Continental, for better flavor, and cooled before wrapping, for cleanliness and safe keeping.

You can buy this bread today. Grocers have it and offer it to every family that they know believes ardently in better foods. Continental Baking Company also bake Wonder Pan Rolls and Hostess Cake.

EXTRA FOR THESE INGREDIENTS

By ALICE ADAMS PROCTOR

Bread is not created in bakeries. It begins in the wheat fields and on the dairy farms. Different soils produce different grains. Flour mills grind differently. I personally know the very color of the wheat berry it is made from, and I know that only the nutritive "heart" of the wheat berry is used. Experts at Continental headquarters constantly test and inspect this flour.

Neither flour nor milk can reach a Wonder Bread bakery until tests have proved it up to Wonder Bread standards. The Wonder Bread recipe calls for twice the usual amount of pure sweet milk high in butter fat and twice pasteurized. Even the salt we use is an advertised brand familiar to every housewife. The yeast comes from one mother cell and therefore never varies. We pay $2,000,000 extra every year for these better ingredients.

VILLAGE DUCK HUNTERS HAVE SURPRISING LUCK

The duck season is on again and many shots are heard around the different islands in the harbor. Noank's crack shot with a shot gun, Sure Eye Elbert Palmer and Never-Fail Ben Chesebro took down out of the attic, their shot guns, covered with oil and cleaned them thoroughly. Then, setting the Big Ben clock for 4 on Friday morning, a big lunch was put up with a gallon of coffee, and in their power boat, named "We," and a row boat in tow, they started for Mumford Cove, getting all set before the sun rose on the world. As the day was breaking the ducks were flying but would not come near these crack shots. Around 7 o'clock a large flock of ducks came within reach of a gun shot. Sure Eye Palmer said, "When I count three we will let go both barrels," and they let go, and how those ducks fell—like a red skin biting the dust in the Indian war. When the smoke left the salt water the gunners went out to pick up their ducks and had killed 30. Not so bad on four shots! So staying for a few hours more, though it was cold and the wind was mean, Sure Eye Palmer put newspapers in his vest to keep away the wind, but Never Fail Chesebro said, "This is nothing! In my home town in Canada I used to shovel snow in my shirt sleeves and raise a sweat!" "Well," his pal said, "I will hand you the bird cage for that one!" Then another flock was flying a fast clip going to a feeding place. Again the signal was given and the water was peppered with the ducks. This time they counted 12 but seven got away, being winged and hurt but could make it on slow time. Well, both sharpshooters claim it was a good day's work. It was around 3:30 o'clock when they landed at the town dock and had 21 ducks each. They had eight red-heads and several black ducks, and a ring shelldrake, so it was too many for Sure Eye Palmer to bring home and he gave his friend Mike Passi about seven of the game and his pal, Chesebro, gave away all of his, because he loves to shoot them. While Passi was cleaning his Sunday dinner he saw something that looked like a ball that comes out of a big league baseball. Right near the cove used to be a ball field and some said it was a golf ball, but how could a duck swallow a golf ball with such a small mouth? John Cammery said, "How does a snake let a frog go down the dark alley and never return?" Well it was a golf ball, for today in this world there is nothing that cannot be done once." Sure Eye Palmer said, "A coon happened to leave too much fire water and his feet too heavy. He saw an undertaking wagon in front of a railroad station and opening up the hearse he saw a coffin and got inside to have a rest. The cover went down and he soon was in dreamland. When the hearse reached the undertaker's rooms the undertaker and his partner took out the coffin and put it inside and opening up the coffin found the coon. They could not make out how he came there. McCan got him up and his eyes rolled a couple of times and that coon made his feet do the fast mile and they never could find out his name. It is the time that I ever saw a man get a ride in a coffin for 14 miles and still alive."

The champion hunters went home after a good day of fun among the boys who had any luck this season as well. They are trying to beat the record of duck shooting held by Rollin Rathbun in 1925. With "me" all the duck shooters will wait and see how this race is coming out at the end of next month.

THE VARE CASE

In the refusal to seat Senator-elect Vare of Pennsylvania the senate has done what it had been indicated that it would do, but that doesn't mean that it has dealt out justice either to Mr. Vare or to the state of Pennsylvania.

It has, in the first place, refused Mr. Vare his seat, and at the same time it has told the voters of Pennsylvania that it doesn't make any difference who they indicate by their ballots that they want to represent them in the senate, that body will do as it pleases about admitting him. It has denied the senator-elect his seat because there was the expenditure of a large sum in the primary without giving any attention to the fact that the direct primary encourages the expenditure of large sums in making appeals to the voters of large states when there is a spirited contest. The fact that larger sums per voters might have been spent by candidates in smaller states got no consideration from the senate.

It is unquestionably true that the case was prejudiced by the fact that Mr. Vare had been long and prominently identified with politics. He had gotten the reputation of being the head of a political machine, and a successful head. That in itself makes it impossible for some people to give him a fair thought or a fair deal, but there was the senate committee report showing that he was legally elected and a report of the committee on privileges and elections handling the Wilson contest which showed that Mr. Wilson was not entitled to the seat. Those reports were not acted upon. Vare was refused a chance to take his seat by the same sort of tactics that were employed in excluding from the senate Colonel Smith of Illinois. Perhaps Mr. Vare is not the highest type of man that could be picked for the senate but that would be enough to disqualify plenty who are already there.

The disposition of the Vare case means that Pennsylvania may once more get the representation to which it is entitled in the senate and which it has been denied ever since the Vare election. Now it rests with the governor of Pennsylvania to fill the vacancy by appointment, and the opportunity to do that is the only just thing the senate has done in this matter and that has been subjected to unwarranted delays.

WHAT WILL MASSACHUSETTS DO?

A few days ago a fine solution was reached for the adjustment of a bothersome political situation in New Jersey. There it was arranged by the governor to temporarily fill the vacancy caused by the selection of Senator Edge as ambassador to France and to follow that as soon as possible by accepting the resignation of the temporary appointee and making a second appointment to the senate in the person of Dwight W. Morrow, now ambassador to Mexico and a delegate to the London conference. The excellence of this arrangement has gained widespread approval and endorsement.

In the state of Massachusetts there will soon be an opportunity for an equally good solution. Senator Gillett has announced that he will not be a candidate to succeed himself. He has made an excellent record in the house and in the senate but he has reached the age where he believes he should no longer continue such political activity. He hasn't broken but he doesn't want to wait until he does before shifting the responsibilities to other shoulders.

In this instance there will be no opportunity for appointment by the governor of Massachusetts to fill any vacancy, since he plans to serve out his term. It will, however, rest with the republicans of that state to come to an understanding whereby a candidate of the Morrow stamp can be put forth for the next election for United States senator. If that is done there can be no question as to the outcome. If there is such a squabble as has developed on some other occasions in contests for that office in the Bay state there can be no such assurance of the right outcome. When republican forces divide it means a pleasant outlook for the opposition. Massachusetts demonstrated that at the last national election.

Eyes are naturally being turned to Massachusetts to get an idea what it is going to do. There may be plenty of time but much that might be harmful can be prevented by early and well-directed action. Senator Gillett has helped to clear the way for that by his announcement and now it remains for those of influence to make as clever a disposition of the problem as was done in the state of New Jersey. Massachusetts itself must realize the importance of it.

OPPOSING THE FEES

Some time there is going to be sufficient opposition displayed to the present practice of collecting a tax of $10 on passports to bring about a substantial reduction in the amount. It is a matter which has never been popular. We are able to collect substantial sums from those going abroad and turn in good sums to the treasury. That is all well and good when such taxation is needed but from the way it works out it simply means a burden for those involved.

Just at the present time the Merchants association of New York is launching a movement for the reduction of the fee to $2. It is recognized that there is a certain amount of expense involved in the issuance of passports. Reports show that the various bureaus cost the government in 1927 $124,657. But the revenue from the passports totaled more than $1,600,000, so that the suggested lowering of the rate would more than meet the bureau costs.

Further than that, it is anticipated that such action on the part of this government would result in similar action by other governments which now impose fees for approving the passports as presented. These visa fees reach a tidy sum for any traveler who visits many of the European countries, since they are collected every time a tourist crosses a border from one country into another.

Through an agreement between nations there are those who have abandoned the visa fees or reduced them to a nominal amount, but there remain those where no change has been put into operation, though the need is apparent. The disadvantage rests with the American traveler rather than the European. Those from this country who tour Europe must of necessity visit many countries and each country gets its fee. If it is large it draws heavily on the pocketbook. On the other hand, when Europeans come here there is but one fee and they can travel over a much larger territory than Americans can in Europe.

Demands for the elimination or reduction of the fees are by no means new but hope for eventual success has by no means been abandoned.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY

Tomorrow is Golden Rule Sunday. For a number of years it has had special significance because of the efforts which have been concentrated on that day for the raising of funds for the relief of the orphans in the Near East. We were told that the appeal last year would be the last for that specific work because it has been brought so close to completion.

Thus, this year's appeal in behalf of Golden Rule Sunday is broadened to include child needs wherever they may be found. That opens a more extensive field and certainly it is a movement that cannot fail to elicit the support of those who are interested in child welfare and its betterment, whether in this country or elsewhere.

When we give thought to child welfare we may be inclined to consider conditions right about us and to insist that there should be a reduction of child exploitation wherever it really exists and a reduction of illiteracy. These things are included in the programme of the organization that sponsors Golden Rule Sunday, but it can be appreciated that the opportunities for improvement where children are concerned are by no means restricted to this country. They are to be found in all quarters of the globe and the purpose is to deal with them as extensively and broadly as those who are interested will provide funds to permit.

Child needs may not be completely monopolized by other countries, for we still have our own, but there are conditions in many sections of the globe which cry out loudly for relief. Individually it isn't possible to do much for the relief of these conditions but collectively there is a great opportunity for not only setting in motion such work but of backing an organization that is well prepared as to equipment and knowledge for tackling such problems. Through Golden Rule Sunday encouragement it should have a busy year laid out before it.

SPATTERING THE SPOSH

We have reached the time of year when the weatherman provides snow and then sposh. It cannot last indefinitely, but while it is with us there is good reason for the users of the highway to give the pedestrian on the sidewalk a bit of consideration and not see how much of the water and wet snow can be thrown all over him.

What the autos can do when they speed through puddles of water and snow, or when the chained wheels are circulated through the sposh, is evidenced by the appearance of sidewalks and the sides of buildings to say nothing of the much disgruntled, and reasonably so, person on a sidewalk who has been plastered with the dirty wet snow. It is easy to spoil a new dress or coat in short order because of such inconsiderate treatment.

It would not be fair to claim that such sprinkling of the people on the walks was done deliberately. And yet that doesn't relieve the situation any. It is a matter which calls for a little bit of consideration on the part of auto drivers. They must be aware of the fact that other cars going through sposh scatter it for wide distances on each side. They can see it and their cars may show the effects of it. That being so, it is a fair inference on their part to assume that their machines are doing quite the same thing.

Thus the driver of any type of motor vehicle has reason to take into consideration those who may be drenched because of their method of driving. They may not be able to avoid the water and sposh but they can slacken speed sufficiently to prevent the throwing of the dirty water. They are in a position to do a little bit of thinking as to what they might like others to do under similar circumstances, even though being careful is a difficult thing for some motorists to understand and practice.

EDITORIAL NOTES

New York still has its Rothstein mystery with slight prospect of solving it.

You never can tell from the amount of work a president points out to congress how much of it will be done.

Men who look like deer are finding it dangerous to be in the woods with other hunters.

It will be chiefly those who do not participate in it, and those who fail to get as much as they would like, who will oppose the tax reduction.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

One of the greatest, as well as one of the oldest, curses that has afflicted humanity, is tuberculosis, formerly known as consumption. It was until comparatively recent times supposed to be absolutely incurable, even in its incipient stages. It was not looked upon as a contagious disease, but hereditary. When one showed symptoms of the malady, his family history was raked over to find some scapegoat who was responsible for tainting the blood of his descendants. All this has been thrown overboard by modern science. It is now universally believed that it is a contagious disease, and that it can be cured if taken in time. Hospital records show that it does yield to treatment, and that life in the cool, fresh air has much to do in stamping out the disease. It has also been found out that intemperate habits have much to answer for in making an easy approach for this dreaded malady.

In regard to the above there is much to be said about eliminating the conditions that are favorable for producing and spreading tuberculosis. Like many other great bodily ills, this great curse is a germinal disease. This germ is often found in, and nourished by, filth and especially found in the expectoration of a tubercular patient. Hence the greatest care should be used by an infected patient in this regard. The infected matter, when dried, and scattered abroad by the wind may be a menace to a whole community. The public at large need to be educated along this line in regard to spitting on the streets. To make the community safe from this great curse in its manifold ways requires money. It is something that all should be interested in, and we can do this by buying the Christmas seals.

It is very difficult to measure either the moral or political influence of a suggestive cartoon. It has the power of bringing to the eye a suggestion that could not be so forcibly expressed by mere language. There are many now living who remember the great cartoons of Thomas Nast in Harper's Weekly during and after the Civil war. A senator on the floor of congress made a remark that went around the world: "Thomas Nast," he said, "did as much with his pencil to banish slavery as Gen. Grant did with his sword." This put emphasis on the old expression that "the pen is mightier than the sword." The cartoon makes very vivid to the eye what language sometimes fails to do. A cartoon in a recent issue of The Literary Digest representing a woman and two children in a starving condition during war because food was scarce has given a force to President Hoover's Armistice day speech that has been discussed everywhere.

One cannot have much patience with those who are everlastingly prating about the growing wickedness of the world. No sensible person will claim that we have any surplus holiness that we can dump upon the inhabitants of Mars. But anyone with unprejudiced mind can see that through every line of human endeavor advancement has been made. How about material things in the last half century! In the line of locomotion has there been any advancement over the old stage coach and the horse and buggy? How about the development of schools of all grades, from kindergarten to university! How about the hours of labor before and after the Civil war! How about vacations in the summer time! Is the electric light any advancement over the old tallow candle? Is there a larger percentage of crime either among our foreign citizens or native born Americans?

There is really but one way to make a better world, and that is for every person to be a better man or woman. Instead of talking about how bad the other fellow is, it might be well now and then to turn the field glasses back upon ourselves, and if the sun happened to be shining very brightly, and the field glasses were very clean, we might possibly discover here and there a few black specks upon our own immaculate persons. Suppose we set apart one day a month on which we will not try to discover just how black foreigners are, but look steadily at ourselves—the American supermen—and see if there are any spots that need scrubbing up. The discovery might not be very flattering to all the descendants of the Pilgrim fathers, but it might result in a happy reaction.

Church people of Norwich have recently received a suggestive little pamphlet entitled "The Guest Book," sent forth in the interest of missions. It contains 28 readings, a page a day for the 28 consecutive days. It covers as far as possible in the limited space a graphic picture of the different phases of various missionary enterprises. It throws upon those obscure parts of the world a vivid light through the personality and labors of brave men and women, who, in the great name of their Master, have left the comforts and refinement of civilization to "labor in the uttermost parts of the earth." And the glory of it all is that those "uttermost parts" are responding.

In spite of the fact that just behind us is Thanksgiving, and a short distance ahead is Christmas, both of which are inspirational in the thoughts they suggest as to the goodness of God, yet to many this feeling is modified to some extent by the thought of the vast amount of suffering and wickedness that neither of these two great days touch. How many appealing letters come to public men, especially ministers, written by people whose pens are dipped in tears, for this, that and other worthy causes. In the Far East there are more than a million starving adults and children mutely urging us to give them bread. There is an equally loud call for food by those who inhabit the regions known as the near east. There are many retired ministers who must be helped because age and infirmities prevent them from being wage earners. We must not let them and others suffer.

The dark, lowry weather that preceded the recent cold snap gave notice of what seemed to be coming, but which in reality failed to materialize, and that was a hard, soaking rain which did not come to pass. What at times threatened to be a downpour, flattened out into a gentle feeble drizzle. Now the question is whether will real winter set in with so little water in the springs. The writer motored the other day by Columbia lake. The usually beautiful and expansive sheet of water had dwindled down to less than a fourth of its usual size. The outer rim seemed like the gentle slopes of bare pasture land. This was enough to make one thoughtful. Has winter really set in with such a dearth of moisture? Has real winter ever set in here in New England without first filling up the springs? The older people say no, and if they are right the situation at present is a bit dubious.

A champion of the back-seat driver, Geo. Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts has urged passengers in motor cars to insist that the person in control drive carefully.

Nine miles east of Westerly the Kimball Bird sanctuary, a preserve 29 acres in extent that was once the home of the late Walter H. Kimball, is situated in the town of Charlestown, R. I., in the edge of woodland near Watchaug pond. This property was deeded by Mr. Kimball to the Rhode Island Audobon society, subject to the life interest of Edward C. Sanford, who quit-claimed to the society on March 25, 1924.

The isolation of this bird haven, a mile and a third from the Boston Post road, serves to keep out picnickers and curiosity seekers, while at the same time it furnishes ideal conditions for nature lovers and bird students. The sanctuary is planted with trees, shrubs and other vegetation on which birds feed. Native wild flowers thrive in abundance, as well as varieties of plants foreign to this section, that have been contributed by visitors.

Fortunately for the ornithologists of Norwich, all of Rhode Island and by far the greatest part of eastern Connecticut are in the same zone of bird life—namely the Transition or Alleghanian zone—so that the observations taken at the Kimball sanctuary supply a guide to the birds that is equally reliable for both localities. For this reason, the Kimball sanctuary notes, which have appeared in the Providence Journal from time to time in the course of the present autumn, are herewith reprinted.

Warbler Falls Down Chimney.

As of Oct. 2, Agnes Hall Walter writes:

"An incident of more than passing interest in the fall migration occurred lately at the Kimball sanctuary, where records of the daily happenings in the bird world bring to light many a strange situation.

"Who that has watched the tiny and exquisite northern parula warbler, or listened to its 'quaint, drowsy, little gurgling sizzle' in the spring, would believe that it would go down a chimney in the fall and make its appearance inside the headquarters at the sanctuary.

"Yet this is what actually took place though whether the warbler perched on the chimney to rest, in its migration flight, and was swept down into the open throat by wind, or accidentally lost its footing, and fell down, no one can say. It did not seem injured and lived some days, although unable to fly, taking food and calling from time to time, a sweet, call-note, in response to a friendly advance from the caretaker's wife. This was a rare experience, and one that brought great pleasure. The northern parula is one of the smallest of its kind, only four and three-quarters inches in length, just an inch longer than the humming bird. It nests sparingly in this state, the only record at hand being under date of June 5, 1905, in Kent county, where a nest containing four eggs was located in a 'clump of usnea moss.' The unexpected visitor to the sanctuary bungalow was in adult plumage, and was probably a male bird, since in this species the female, though resembling the male closely, is less highly colored and marked across the under parts.

"Whether bound for the Bahamas, the West Indies, or somewhere between Vera Cruz and Nicaragua to spend the winter no one knows, but for these regions it had started on its way."

"Talking" With the Hermit Thrush

"I have had the most delightful experience this morning with a hermit thrush, just back of the house," the caretaker's wife writes on Oct. 9 from the Kimball sanctuary. "As I went down the path, I heard it call, so I began to call back until I got real close to it, when I sat down and kept very still, all the while talking to it (by kissing the back of my hand) until it came very near to me. It finally settled itself on a scrub oak and would you believe it, sang its complete song to me in the softest undertone several times. It was beautiful beyond description.

"The morning of the 7th, the birds were singing as if it were a spring morning.

"There were birds everywhere. Warblers in great numbers were flitting about as if it were a May morning. There were black-throated blues, black-throated greens, pine, prairie, black-and-white and Maryland yellow-throat warblers, besides vireos, and lots of the olive-backed and hermit thrushes.

"The juncos, brown creepers and golden-crowned kinglets returned on the eighth, the white-throated sparrows coming several days earlier. Robins, many phoebes, the white-breasted nuthatch, chickadees, twhee, flickers (a great many), osprey, downy woodpecker, chipping sparrow, blue jay, crow, goldfinches and song sparrows, mourning dove, myrtle warbler, yellow-bellied sapsucker, field sparrow, quail and partridge also came on the seventh and eighth.

"The bird that fell down the chimney of a cottage at Watch Hill Sept. 19 and was found in the living-room was a black-throated blue warbler. (Through an error in a verbal report this bird was described as a parula). The children were delighted of course, and immediately made a cage for it. Although the bird seemed all right, are well and eyes were bright, it could not fly. "As the family was going home in a few days, it was thought best to bring the bird to the sanctuary. I would set a shallow dish of water in the cage and it would take a bath and preen itself, as if it had always been in a cage. It was very tame and seemed to enjoy eating the flies and bugs from my hand rather than have me put them in the cage. When it died a little over a week later it was a real grief to me."

The black-throated blue warbler is perhaps even more rare than the parula as a nesting-species hereabout, the first record of its breeding in Rhode Island being May 30, 1911, in the vicinity of Burrillville and Exeter. As a migrant, it is fairly frequent—but not common, like the ovenbird or yellow warbler.

Many Varieties in October

"Columbus day," writes Agnes Hall Walter, "was nowhere more inviting in beauty and serenity than at the sanctuary. Phoebes and crested flycatchers were about and a single chebec was seen. The myrtle warblers seemed to be feeding upon insects, which they flew and caught in the manner of flycatchers.

"Although the pair of sparrow hawks which have nested in the sanctuary for several seasons had left some time before, a pair was seen Oct. 5 at Bristol Highlands, finely displayed on the wing and at rest on a telephone wire, showing that they were still to be found hereabouts.

"Perhaps the most bewitching episode took place in the sanctuary at a newly placed bird bath by the little rock garden just west of 'headquarters.' The bath, a fair-sized rock hollowed out at the top with a drill to form a shallow basin, is filled daily with fresh water. A song sparrow came first for a quick wetting, flying off into the shrubbery with sprightly mien.

"Following closely upon its exit, came a white-throated sparrow that began its ablutions in more leisurely fashion. Quite like the devotee of salt water bathing, it wet its feet, standing at the edge of the bath, surveying the tiny pool of water with an air of full proprietorship.

"Meanwhile another song sparrow began climbing up the steep side of the rock, giving evidence of its ability to use its claws efficiently for this rather unusual exercise. Arriving at the top, eyes met and the white throat promptly plumped down into the bath, spreading its wings out a bit as if to signify that there was only room for one.

"And so there was, or the song sparrow seemed to regard it that way, for after looking over the situation a moment it flitted down to the ground, just as a phoebe came along. The white-throat held its position, by a somewhat selfish display of superior size, and even if it did not care to splash as merrily as the first song sparrow had, it nevertheless took a thorough wetting.

"The oportunity to compare size, form and actions of the two species of sparrows was particularly interesting, impressing differences between the two that no picture or description in books can give.

"Among the water weeds collected from the pond for careful examination, hydra were found. Whether or not this form of coelenterates adds to the fare of birds that frequent the water, it as least adds to the variety of life about the sanctuary."

Hundreds of Bird Guests

As of Oct. 28, the caretaker's wife writes: "Hundreds of robins came to the sanctuary this a. m. There were fifteen and twenty on the bird bath at one time, and others all eagerly waiting to drink. One cedar tree was so full of robins that it looked like a decorated Christmas tree. Catbirds, chewinks, phoebes, hermit thrushes and white-crowned sparrows came under the windows and bluebirds were singing as if it were a spring morning."

The day before, Oct. 27, "it is just such a morning as we had a week ago. The wind is now beginning to blow a bit. At 8 o'clock, it was like a May morning, birds everywhere, robins, bluebirds, phoebes, song sparrows, hermit and olive-backed thrushes, a great many myrtle warblers, jays, nuthatches and chickadees. The robins and bluebirds had a fine time bathing in the bath near the rock garden.

"One big fat robin was a funny looking fellow, all white around the head and had one white wing, and white feathers on the breast mixed in with the red. (A partial albino).

"The thrill of the morning came when I went into my bedroom. The east window was open and as I stepped toward it, I heard a wren call. I immediately began to 'talk' to it by kissing the back of my hand, when suddenly it came into view. I continued to call and very soon it was on the poplar tree right beside the window, where I could have touched it, a handsome male Carolina wren. Last week two flocks of geese went over, making the list of species seen in two days sixty."

Goldfinches in November

What everyone feels who visits the Kimball bird sanctuary—a refreshment of mind and relaxation of body, a glimpse of the natural haunts of birds and animals, of trees and flowers — may be brought nearer and nearer to our homes by the magic influence of insight and response.

"A flock of geese just went over, and down by the pump a big deer came slowly along," was the report from the sanctuary in the middle of last month. "Four fox sparrows have joined the flock under the kitchen window. At 10:30 a. m. yesterday the thermometer at the back door stood at 81 degrees. Robins and bluebirds were singing, also song sparrows. Many goldfinches are about."

The Nov. 21 entry reads:

"Our first snowstorm was of short duration, as the sun is now shining, and bluebirds and robins are calling 'all's well with the world.'

"We had a near tragedy this morning, when of a sudden a shrike appeared above our large family of tree sparrows and juncos and quicker than a flash was on top of a junco. We went to the rescue in time to save the junco, but in the struggle it lost both white tail feathers. It flew away otherwise unharmed apparently, although what reaction the terrible fright may have on it we do not know.

"Our family of birds that feed under the windows here at the west of the bungalow, now numbers more than 50 (it is hard to count exactly), the greatest number being tree sparrows, the next, juncos, white-throated, song, and fox sparrows and chickadees.

"A white-breasted nuthatch also feeds on the ground with them, perhaps an exception to the rule.

"On Nov. 17, three barn swallows were seen, rather a late date for them to be around. On that same day great flocks of goldfinches were here. Many of them have stayed with us. Could any sound be more cheerful these gray November mornings than the cheerful call of the goldfinches?"

Sunday Morning Talk

Christ's Love for the Soul.

There were ninety and nine that safely lay in the shadow of the fold.

It may seem strange that with ninety and nine safe, the shepherd should break his heart about one. It speaks to us of the worth to Jesus Christ of a single soul. It tells us of the great concern of God for the recovery of individual men. We are all separately known and individually loved. We often speak of a great city as a mass of people. God distinguishes each separate heart.

Each soul is of infinite value. In the world human souls are little thought of. We sell our own souls for a pittance. We barter with the world for this or that material possession which we desire and usually make a bad bargain. Jesus says "What shall a man be profited if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul."

When the church realizes fully the value of human souls, then shall its work in the power and the spirits of the Lord of Hosts. The church realizes the value of property and of institutions and of endowments and of organization. And while these may be necessary for the larger work of the church, yet it is not for the sake of these things that the church exists in the world, but for the recovery and restoration of the souls of men and women.

Recently, in a report, I saw it figured out to the fraction of a cent how much it cost to reclaim a lost boy and how much it cost to convert a heathen. Do you think the master would ever look at the cost? If it were yourself or if it were your boy would you say "Let him go, the cost is too great." Some of you may have heard of the Royal National Mission to the Deep Sea Fishermen across the sea. At great expense it maintains mission steamers which follow the fishermen into the regions of the north up along the coast of Labrador and into the north seas. They carried physicians and missionaries and ministered to body and soul. From a worldly standpoint the returns were not great, but the spirit of the men who give their lives to this work is the spirit of Jesus who went through hardship and to death to save the lost. No sacrifice being too great.

He seeks until He finds. Jesus spares no pains to find the lost sheep of God's fold. It is true that the quest may end in failure, if we refuse to accept the great gift. But it will not be for want of effort on the Shepherd's part. He does not count the fatigue of the journey. "Surely He hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows."

But yet, withal there was a wonderful gladness in the heart of Christ. "When he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders rejoicing." Jesus experienced perfect joy when He found a lost sheep. Even the death on Calvary He faced gladly "for the joy that was set before Him," in redeeming the souls of men.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.— A hefty monkey wrench is causing trouble in the existing machinery for selection of presidential postmaster appointees.

And if "Buddy" George M. Gosman of the Dillon, Mont., American Legion will look up the congressional record for November 20, he will find that he, probably quite unintentionally, threw same.

All he was seeking to do, so far as discernible, was to join battle in behalf of a legion comrade ousted as postmaster.

What the ultimate result of his action will be, however, it is still too early to tell. Quite possibly Gosman may be able to claim credit later for having taken postoffice appointments out of politics.

What happened, in brief, was this: The term of the Dillon postmaster, a legionnaire and a republican, having expired, an examination was ordered by the postoffice department to provide the three qualified candidates to succeed him.

The incumbent, enjoying a 5 per cent ex-soldier differential in rating, drew a standing of 86 per cent, while his two competitors, both also republicans, rated respectively 76 and 70.6 per cent.

And on somebody's recommendation, presumably the local republican leaders, the low man got the appointment. That did not suit Gosman and his legion comrades at all. So Gorman, having no republican senator from Montana to appeal to, wrote Senator Walsh, democrat.

And he got results so effectively that the senate in open session rejected the nomination, which was something of a slap both at the postoffice department and the white house.

In Open Session

But for the fact that the senate, after a mighty row some months ago, revised its procedure to make secret consideration of executive nominations the exception instead of the rule, the public might have known little of all this.

But the Dillon postmastership matter was threshed out in open session. And republican management was put on notice then by democrats that hereafter every appointment involving seeming political partisanship or failure to accord ex-service men preference was going to be similarly aired.

The significance of the Dillon incident lies in the fact that under procedure established by President Harding, advisory civil service examination ratings for postmaster appointments are provided, three candidates with a rating of at least 70 per cent being required.

It is conceded that congress could not compel selection of the highest man on the list without infringing on the constitutional appointive power of the president.

To The Highest

Back at the beginning of the second Wilson administration, however, President Wilson by executive order required that the highest on the list should be named, regardless of his politics.

In the debate over the Dillon case, both Senators Walsh of Massachusetts and Connally of Texas told of republican postmasters being named in their states under this Wilson policy.

The Texas republican, Connally said, is still holding his job under a Wilson appointment.

Obviously, with postmaster snarls to be aired publicly in the senate, it appears possible that the Hoover administration may consider going back to Wilson procedure which was revoked when President Harding took office.

And when you stop to think of it, wasn't the case Gosman provided for the democrats ideal? It was an all-republican family ruction that also included a chance to champion an ex-service buddy. No wonder they jumped into action.

A YANKEE ABROAD

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Those Poor British Lords!

LONDON—Britain's best side show is the house of lords.

It is here that the formal openings of parliament are staged in a setting of ermine and crimson and glittering jewels.

This upper chamber of the English legislature continues to exist, not because of any special usefulness but because it is picturesque and is a cherished relic of glories of the past. It also provides a place for quiet and reflection for those lords who happen to be in town.

Some savages in Africa bury alive those members of their tribes who have become too old to look after themselves or be of further service to their fellows.

But this is pure barbarism. In civilized countries grandad is held to be entitled to a comfortable seat in the sun, where he can dream and admire the glint of the medals which he won for valor when he was young. It is inhuman even to think of burying him alive.

Time was when the house of lords wielded the big stick in legislative matters. But not any more. The house of commons, composed of very ordinary fellows who are elected by the masses, got to fooling about and by means of the parliament act of 1911 took away virtually all the prerogatives of the upper chamber.

That was one of the biggest revolutions England had ever seen, and it was accomplished without bloodshed.

The lords as a whole naturally didn't care much for this rather high-handed piece of business, but they didn't forget that they were gentlemen. They declined to demean themselves by arguing the point. They simply gathered their robes about them and stalked from the house, leaving parliament to fry in its own fat.

More than 700 peers are entitled to seats in the house of lords, mainly through heredity. These days about 25 show up for a normal sitting. A normal sitting lasts about 15 minutes—sometimes a little more and sometimes less. The house meets shortly after 4 o'clock and frequently rises almost immediately for tea.

The remaining 700 eligibles snap their fingers at the house of lords. They don their coronets and pace their ancestral halls, or devote their energies to fox hunting and such other pursuits as a noble lord can indulge in without smutching his escutcheon.

The great majority of lords rarely go near the house. Some, indeed, never have been in the parliament buildings in their lives, although they are supposed to show up at least once—that is, when they assume their titles.

One doesn't wish to give the impression that the house of lords has no useful function at all. To a small extent it acts as a brake on the house of commons. While commons can pass any bill over the veto of the lords, the latter could delay legislation if they wished.

The house of lords also is used to originate bills when commons is overburdened with work. The upper house furthermore provides a useful forum for pronouncements, and for debates which are crowded out of the lower house.

There has been talk for years of reforming the house of lords and putting it largely on an elective basis. A good many people think that ability, and not heredity, should be the qualification for a seat.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"What Christ Would Say."

Mr. Editor: The account of the debate "If Christ should come to Norwich, etc" seemed so very strange that I can't help making this statement. If Christ should come to Norwich, today he would abide by the law of the land. I wonder if many realize that the government of the U. S. prohibits the use of intoxicants to save its citizens from befuddling their brains, keep them from ruining their health, to help them to live life more fully by being sane in the enjoyment, pleasures and work, instead of letting them make imbeciles, drunks and the like of themselves.

Christ would probably say as He said to Jerusalem "And ye would not." To me it seems too bad that human beings should find pleasure in the dopiness which always follows drinking intoxicants. I can understand a man drinking to drown his sorrow, this very phrase asserts the action of intoxicants on the brain, it benumbs the brain, puts it to sleep until delirium develops.

Campaign for Greek Orthodox Church

Mr. Editor: I understand that the members of the Greek Orthodox church are about to launch a campaign for a most worthy cause, namely, the securing of $5,000 to help pay in part for needed repairs and improvements on their church, which are now being made.

I am told that the members of this church have already pledged or paid the magnificant sum of $10,000 and this has meant a great deal of sacrifice on the part of many of these faithful people.

There are 500 more or less, Greek people in our city, and they average well up in good citizenship, and deserve to be encouraged in their effort and desire for their spiritual interests. It would seem that the whole community of Norwich and vicinity might match the sacrificial giving of these worthy people, by contributing half as much as they have given themselves.

Stories That Recall Others

Strict Obedience

When Mary entered school she promised to obey her teacher. A few weeks later her mother was shocked to see her little daughter with a hot water bottle at her feet and a damp cloth on her forehead.

"Why, daughter, are you sick?" asked her anxious mother.

Mary replied: "Teacher told us to always keep our feet warm and our heads cool. Don't you want me to mind my teacher?"

Meakin—Take dancing lessons! Well, I think not! There are too many other ways by which I can make a fool of myself!

His Wife—Yes, dear; but you have tried all those!

OFTEN WOKE UP WITH A HEADACHE

Finally Took ALL-BRAN Instead of Drugs and Now "Couldn't Feel Better"

How much suffering constipation brings! Headaches, loss of strength and appetite. Sleeplessness. Often it leads to serious diseases. But here is one of the thousands who have suffered and found relief. Read this letter—

"I am 52 years old and have put in years suffering from constipation. Spent lots of money with doctors, bought all kinds of pills and drugged myself every night with them and woke lots of mornings with a headache.

"Haven't taken one pill since I began on ALL-BRAN years ago. I am now feeling the best I have felt in 20 years. I eat heartily and nothing hurts me."—Albert F. Parker, 257 N. Cary St., Brockton, Mass.

It's never too late to try Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is 100% bran and brings sure, natural relief from constipation. Because it is a bulk food it sweeps the intestine clean and stimulates normal action. Results guaranteed. Two tablespoonfuls daily, or in chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend it.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is ready to eat with milk or cream. Try the recipes on the package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Served in hotels, dining-cars and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

SETTLEMENT FOR $350 IN COOK'S INJURY CLAIM

A compromised settlement for $350 has been made in the workmen's compensation claim of Nora Abbott against Lighthouse Inn company of New London for injuries the claimant received on Aug. 27, 1928, while at work as cook for the inn company. Her claim was that a hoematomia developed in her breast as a result of the lid of a poy hitting her when she was moving a pot of lobsters in the kitchen of the inn. She claimed that she was disabled from Aug. 27, 1928, to about Jan. 1, 1929, and partially disabled until April 1, 1929. The insurance company contested the claim, alleging that the cook had met with no injury to her breast at the time claimed or at any other date, or that there was any injury that arose out of and in the course of her employment.

Commissioner A. J. Bailey has given approval to the compromise settlement which has been filed with John H. Walker, clerk of the superior court.

SEWING CIRCLE FORMED BY MOOSEHEART LEGION

Another branch in the interest of Moosedom was started Thursday evening at Moose Home, when Norwich chapter, No. 124, Women of Moose-heart Legion organized a sewing circle for Legionnaires of the local chapter, with President Minnie Smith presiding. Any Legionnaire in good standing in Norwich chapter is eligible, and may join at any of the meetings. This is a new venture, and the co-operation of every Legionnaire is requested by those in charge in order to make it a success, and if the Legionnaires respond, as they usually do, there is no doubt but what it will be successful. It was voted to sew for a sale and supper to be held later in the season.

It was voted to have the meetings once a month in the homes of the members; the first Thursday evening of each month was decided on.

The next meeting will be held at the home of President Minnie Smith, in Fitchville.

OBITUARY

Michael Joseph Slattery

Michael Joseph Slattery, 48, formerly of this city, died Friday morning at his home in Orange, N. J., following an illness of a week. A cerebral hemorrhage was the immediate cause of death.

Mr. Slattery was born in this city, the son of the late Edward and Mary O'Neil Slattery, and attended the local schools. He resided here until about 1921 when he removed to Orange where he was superintendent of an apartment building. Surviving are his wife, an adopted daughter, one brother, Edward Slattery, and three sisters, one of whom is Mrs. Edwin O. Williamson of No. 30 Penobscot street. Mr. Slattery was well known to many Norwich residents who extend heartfelt sympathy to the family.

Mrs. Charles S. Fairclough.

The death of Jasetta Augusta Wheeler Fairclough, wife of Charles S. Fairclough, occurred at her home, No. 10 Rock street, Friday morning. Although she had been in poor health for several years, she had only been seriously ill the past few days.

Mrs. Fairclough was born in Southbury, Conn., April 15, 1862, the daughter of the late Theodore F., and Martha Candee Wheeler. She was a direct descendant of Capt. Samuell Candee, a captain in the United States army in the seventeenth century.

Surviving Mrs. Fairclough besides her husband are one daughter, Mrs. Hazel Martin, and two sisters, Mrs. Robert P. Stevens of Southbury and Mrs. Rossie Mahoney of Seymour. She also leaves two grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Her death was a shock to all who knew her. She was ever a faithful wife and loving mother and grandmother and was highly respected by her many friends who extend heartfelt sympathy to the family in their great loss.

Entertained N. S. Club

Mrs. Arthur Allard entertained the N. S. club at her home on Norwich avenue, Taftville this week. The regular sewing period was followed by a social hour, during which Mrs. Albert Prodell assisted the hostess in serving refreshments. Mrs. John Kelly will entertain next week.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, of Sachem Terrace entertained wit ha luncheon bridge of three tables Friday. The decorations were yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. Joseph S. Whelan, Mrs. Arthur F. Howard, Mrs. Robert H. Montgomery and Mrs. Alfred M. Harding won the prizes.

Miss Marian Royce entertained at bridge at her home on Willey Place Thursday evening, the prize going to Miss Mildred Cass.

Mrs. Frank Cranska and Miss Marion Cranska have returned from New York, where they were holiday guests of Harold W. Cranska.

JUDGE SUSTAINS NORWICH ZONING BOARD IN LATHROP APPEAL CASE

By a decision handed down Friday by Judge Earnest C. Simpson of the superior court, Harry L. Lathrop loses his appeal from the join zoning board of the city and town of Norwich in refusing to grant him a permit for the erection of a gasoline filling station at 271 Washington street.

There is little doubt but that Mr. Lathrop will take an appeal to the supreme court, it is understood.

Judge Simpson rules that there was no abuse af its discretion by the board in denying to modify the zoning ordinance so as to give Mr. Lathrop a permit to erect the filling station in what is a residential neighborhood, according to the zoning ordinances.

Judge Simpson says the Lathrop appeal is limited to this question of refusal to modify the ordinance, but he goes on to express opinion upon other claims made by counsel for the appellant, on all of which he decides adversely to the appellant.

The case was presented in court by Town Counsel H. H. Pettis, assisted by Corporation Counsel E. W. Perkins and Attorney G. H. Gilman for the city and town, and by Attorney Arthur M. Brown, who was counsel for protesting property owners in the neighborhood. Attorney C. Hadlai Hull appeared for Mr. Lathrop.

Memorandum of Decision

In his memorandum of decision Judge Simpson says:

During the trial the court permitted certain amendments to be made to appellant's appeal from the action of the board of appeals. After more mature deliberation, I am now of opinion appellant must be limited to his ground of appeal to the board of appeals. By his appeal he limited the inquiry of the board of appeals to the question as to whether or not the provisions of the zoning ordinance should be modified in his favor, and it is from the denial of this petition for modification alone that the appeal would lie.

Taking this view of the case, there is nothing in the evidence to justify this court in holding that the board of appeals acted arbitrarily, illegally, or so unreasonably as to warrant an inference of the abuse of its discretion in denying a variation or modification of the ordinances.

In view, however, of the appellant's insistence that the court may pass upon his claim that under section 6 of article II he has a right to extend a prior use of his building and premises to the entire lot owned by him at the time of the passage of the zoning ordinances, and that the zoning ordinances are unconstitutional as applied to him under the state and federal constitutions, and because the act authorizing the town of Norwich to enact the zoning ordinances was not approved by the governor within three days, Sundays excepted, after the adjournment of the general assembly in 1925, the court deems it proper to express its conclusion upon these claims, without, however, going into a general discussion thereof.

It may be conceded that under section 6 of article II of the zoning ordinances, the appellant has the right to continue the use to which his building and premises had been put prior to enactment of the zoning ordinances. He also under the wording of the above section has the right to extend the prior use. The right of extension, however, is not an uncontrolled right and is subject to the supervision of the board of appeals. If the appellant's claimed right of extension of his prior use was made and considered by the board in denying his request for a modification or variation of the ordinances as applied to his property, there is nothing in the record as stated above to justify the court in holding that its action was arbitrary, illegal or unreasonable. If it was not so considered by the board, this court is now asked to exercise its judgment upon the matter at first instance and without regard to what the board of appeals might or might not have done. This is not a de novo proceeding, but an "appeal" to determine whether the board of appeals acted arbitrarily, illegally, or so unreasonably as to constitute an abuse of its official discretion. Until the board has acted upon the matter conferred on it by the ordinances the court is without jurisdiction in that matter.

The claim that the ordinances are unconstitutional under the federal and state constitution because as applied to him it is confiscatory, is not supported by the record.

The claim that the act of the general assembly authorizing the town of Norwich to enact zoning ordinances was unconstitutional for the reasons stated above, presents a more serious question. Assuming that the public acts authorizing the town of Norwich to enact zoning ordinances was invalid at the time for the reasons claimed, that act and the act of the town in enacting the zoning ordinances have since been validated by the general assembly and are now in force. At the time the appellant filed his application for a permit, he recognized the validity of the law and his application was based upon it. He is now in no position to claim the law was invalid at the time of his application. Even if he should prevail upon this claim it would be of no avail to him, because in that event he would have to begin all over again, and under laws that are now valid. The prior validity of the statute and the ordinances thus becomes an academic question so far as he is concerned.

The appeal is therefore dismissed without costs.

SCOUT CUB COMMITTEE MEETS I NSPRINGFIELD

According to the local Scout headquarters, a delegation from Norwich will meet with cub scout representatives from all over Connecticut at a luncheon this (Saturday) noon at the Kimball hotel in Springfield, Mass. Dr. H. W. Hurt, editor of the Boys' Handbook, will explain the new U. S. Cub program and the proceedure recommended for its inauguration in a local council. President Charles Coit, Rev. George Warren Potter and Scout Executive John L. Sellman will compose the party going to Springfield. Rev. Mr. Potter has for several years engaged in cub work, while Scout Executive Sellman assisted Dr. Hurt at the national headquarters during the past year on the formation of the Cub program.

The local council plans to have a committee of several men which will probably be headed by Rev. A. H. Abbott of the United Congregational church. Other men who may serve on this committee are A. W. Silverberg of Siberman's and Mr. Burdick of the Alling Rubber company. According to Scout Executive Sellman, once the program is inaugurated, Norwich should very soon have one or two hundred cub scouts actively interested in carrying out an afternoon program of activities which will include a study and appreciation of the great out-of-doors.

ROOF ON FIRE AT HUNTINGTON APARTMENTS

Sparks from a chimney started a good sized roof fire at the northwest corner of the Huntington Apartment, 170 Broadway, Friday evening. The janitor saw a small flame and a telephone call was sent in to central fire headquarters at 5.40 p. m. Engine No. 1, Engine No. 3, Chief Henry R. Taft and Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan responded to the call.

The fire was beneath the shingles and was gaining considerable headway when it was discovered. The blaze gave the firemen a hard half hour's battle as it was difficult to get at the flames. It was necessary to cut a small hole in the roof and nine gallons of chemical were used. The building, three stories in height, is owned by Daniel T. Sligo, and contains apartments occupied by Henry S. Kiecolt, Mrs. K. C. Mayo, Mrs. M. R. McGarrity, Clifford W. Nay and Mrs. E. M. Wetherbee.

THREE UNCONTESTED DIVORCES ARE GRANTED

Three petitioners for divorce had their petitions granted by Judge Earnest C. Simpson in the superior court at New London Friday morning when their cases were heard on the uncontested list.

Albert Barriere of Providence obtained divorce from Olive May Barriere of New London on statutory grounds. They were married Oct. 21, 1925. He was also given the custody of a minor child.

Alice Mabel Doherty of Cohanzie, on the grounds of desertion since 1925, was granted divorce from Robert Roland Doherty whom she married the day before Christmas, 1919.

Josephine F. Paresi of New London secured divorce from Anthony Paresi on the grounds of cruelty. Their marriage took place on Sept. 30, 1923.

The fourth petition which was on the list for hearing was postponed. George Carley against Marjorie Gunn Carley, was postponed.

FORMERLY OWNED MILLS IN STAFFORD SPRINGS

A. B. Paton, 69, who established the A. B. Paton Woolen mills at Stafford Springs more than 25 years ago, died Wednesday in Clifton Springs sanatorium, N. Y., after an illness of six months.

Mr. Paton was a native of Scotland and had been interested in the woolen business at different times in Peacedale, R. I., Webster, Ware and Gilbertville, Mass.

For the past 22 years he was agent of the Sawyer mills of the American Woolen company at Dover, N. H., in which country he introduced the worsted industry in 1888.

LECTURE ON LITERATURE OF SCANDINAVIAN COUNTRIES

Prof. Carola Ernst of Connecticut college gave the last of her series of lectures upon contemporary European literature Thursday afternoon in the rooms of the Woman's City club.

The literature of the three Scandinavian countries of Sweden, Norway and Denmark with Russia formed the subject for the discussion and crowded the hour with interest.

Prof Ernst reminded her audience that Scandinavia was decidedly the least affected by the war. While many foreign influences were at work there was no declination in her literature; the best Scandinavian writers neither stoop nor affect the high-brow; they write out of their own hearts,—not for money; they seek to picture their own people and country and their best literature is soul of the soil.

A generation ago there were dreams of Pan-Scandinavian unity in politics and literature but now a national literature of Denmark, Iceland, Sweden and Norway has developed and they are farther apart than before.

Strindberg belongs to the past and was the last of the great Scandinavian writers. His works in sixteen volumes constitute the most precious possession of the Swedish people.

Europe owes to Sweden the richest lyric poetry of our time. The lyric revival at the end of the nineteenth cent y was the most significant of that period, and Eric Axel Kartfeldt is an excellent illustration of that work. Many had written of the beauties of Lakes Wener and Wetter but Gustav Ullman brings a fresh breath from the sea. Ekelund illustrates the weakness of the new lyric in its imitation of others as it fell under the influence of German thought.

Swedish literature has been growing but a menace has developed and that menace is America; too many have been tempted to transpose the hurry and rush of America to the portrayal of Swedish life; but this is a foreign element and mars the characteristic Swedish style. Likewise it would be just as bad for American writers to adopt a Swedish style. Henning Berger is a novelist obsessed with the American attitude toward life.

Denmark is a little country, too small to play a part in European politics and it has developed a comic spirit. In Copenhagen there is an atmosphere of amused tolerance; the country is untroubled; life's problems here seem all to be solved. In such an atmosphere satire and humor flower.

To George Brandeis belongs the honor of piloting his country into modern life and ideas; he led greater nations to appreciate their great men during life.

Danish poetry has been likened to the delicacy of Chinese porcelain; it is characterized by extreme subtilty and exquisiteness.

Danish lyricism has not made a deep impression on Europe; it is so special one cannot dream of translating it,—the most delicate of Europe but the novels are less delicate.

Norway has recently experienced a strengthening of the feeling of unity in the nation due to the increase of her railroad systems. Ibsen and Bjornsen are well known writers but of a time removed; today Norway is so intent on welding her own people into one there is no time for the world outside. Her best writers employ dialect; all their speech is tinged with the dialect coloring. It is an intimate literature born of the soil.

Norwegian novelists are neither best nor first but Johan Bojer has a peculiar talent for depicting the psychological side of life.

Knut Hamsun is a voice of protest; he protests against the study of forms and types, against what he calls "the pharmaceutical formula," against the themes and bloodlessness of literary art. He alone follows the flowing lines of the artist. He is impatient with the army of the intellectuals and utters strident condemnation of movements of past days.

His constant cry is "Back to nature—back to the land!"

Sigrid Undset is the author of the first historical novel produced in twenty years. Critics have objected that he has put modern people into the costumes and speech of former centuries but even so he has depicted the workings of the human mind of all time.

In this novel he unrolls the history of a woman's soul; its closest depths are laid bare with astounding truth. It is a study of a woman's soul, not from the masculine standpoint of what a man thinks a woman should feel, (of which we have had a plenty) nor from the feminine viewpoint of what she supposed a woman ought to feel (of which again we have had quite enough) out in his hand the woman emerges the full splendid picture of her sex.

The golden age of the Russian novel was from 1855 to 1881. From 1900 to 1910 there are discernible two sections,—the first embracing the interpretors of the intellectualism of the nineteenth century and a second period embracing the modernists.

The development of individualism in morals has changed the face of Russian intellectual life. Nihilism taught the futility of life; death the only reality; the vanity of all human pursuits. This intense realization of death increasingly represents the dying of the old order—the loss of faith in ideals.

The poetry of the symbolists shows symbolism united by mystical and magical attitude toward the world and there is the will to associate poetry to music. On the crest of the wave is Alexander Blok. He has struck a note that finds a response in the great minds. He is transcendental, mystical, and intensely interesting as a poet.

A prophetic group in poetry sprang up about 1917, whose work in some respects is parallel to the symbolists. The younger prose writers are characterized by their striking grotesque language and verbal intensity.

Alexey Tolstoy is anti-philosophical, anti-intellectual and represents the reaction in Russia about 1912. The Petersburg group of poets seem to have a taboo on things in general and have reduced their literature to a craft with emphasis on technic.

About 1920 Russian poetry reached a high water mark, and the greatest is Pasternak. His poetry is new and unprecedented, a fresh expression of experience with a new technic and new vocabulary. It is an instrument of tremendous power and fascination. "My Sister Life" is the title of one of his poems and "Childhood of Luther" is prose.

We must look to Russia for the very newest because life is more normal; in an atmosphere of general calm life becomes humdrum. Literature is called upon to conform to normal. It is difficult to know what book is really greatest but the principal feature is a revival of prose fiction. The main tendencies show it to be devoid of narrative, the subjects taken from the civil war or the revolution, and we note also an absence of the sense of the individual. The emphasis is upon the group, the nation. "My Native Land," by Artsybusher is a most notable example of the reaction.

Although the theatre is vigorous there is a lack of dramatists and Russian drama may be called a parasitic growth.

CHARGED WITH DRIVING UNDER LIQUOR INFLUENCE

Nicholas J Doyle, R. F. D., No 7, was arrested on Main street about midnight Friday, by Officer Simpson, on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. He was booked and held under bonds of $300 for his appearance in the city court this (Saturday) morning.

The officer's attention was attracted by the manner in which Doyle was operating his car.

BLIND MAN CONVICTED OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER

CARLISLE, Pa., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Norman Morrison, blind and recently released from an insane asylum, today was convicted of first degree murder with a recommendation of life imprisonment for the slaying of his former sweetheart, Mrs. Frances B. McBride, on July 12, 1926. The defense filed a motion for a new trial.

Ten days was granted to the defense attorneys in which reasons for a new trial may be filed.

The state had contended that Morrison had shot the woman because she had jilted him and then turned the gun on himself, inflicting wounds which left him permanently blind. Upon his release from a local hospital a sanity commission adjudged Morrison insane and he was sent to the state hospital at Harrisburg. Recently Morrison was released from the hospital at Harrisburg when he was found to have regained his sanity. He immediately was charged with the murder of Mrs. McBride.

The defense contended that Morrison was insane at the time of the shooting.

The jury deliberated three and a half hours.

HELD AS SUSPECT IN ROBBERY OF FIVE BANKS

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Believed to be one of the last active members of the notorious Chapman-Anderson gang of bandits, Joe White, 38, Boydsville, O., was held in jail here tonight as a suspect in the robbery of more than $200,000 from five Indiana banks.

Ralph W. Probst, prosecuting attorney at Columbia City, Indiana, said White was a former associate of Gerald Chapman and Dutch Anderson and had been arrested at Muncie, Ind., in 1925 in the search for Chapman, who was wanted at New Britain, Conn., for the murder of a policeman.

White and two companions, Joe Taylor, 28, Chicago, and William King, 27, taxi driver of Wheeling, W. Va., were arrested at White's home today by Belmont county and Indiana authorities.

Prosecutor Probst said that White also had been an associate of Turk Brennan and Curley Davis in bank and mail robberies and had associated with Bill Boven, Toronto, Ont., in a robbery of a mail train there.

CONDUCTOR H. L. MARVIN, NEW LONDON, FOUND BESIDE TRACK AT MYSTIC

NEW LONDON, Dec. 6—Homer L. Marvin, freight conductor in the employ of the New Haven railroad, residing at 129 Montauk avenue, was seriously injured this evening, in a manner not definitely known to officials of the railroad. Although Marvin sustained a crushed left arm and an injury to his head, the outcome of the injuries could not be foretold tonight at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, to which institution Marvin was taken as soon as possible after he had ben found lying beside the tracks at Mystic. Marvin is married and has been in the employ of the railroad about 30 years.

Marvin was conductor on a work train and his duties were concluded about 5:30 o'clock when the train was put up at Mystic. After the train had been backed to a siding the train crew found Marvin lying alongside the rails, his left arm crushed near the elbow and a deep gash on his head. Medical aid was summoned and on the arrival of the train from Providence at 6:30 o'clock, Marvin was placed aboard it. Reaching New London, Marvin was placed in the hospital ambulance which had been summoned and taken to the institution, where this evening the crushed arm was amputated near the elbow. The extent of the head injury will not be determined before tomorrow.

It is not known whether Marvin slipped and fell beneath his own train or was struck by a light engine that passed his train while it was being moved to the siding. The light engine was en route from New London to Mystic and the engine crew denied any indication of Marvin having been struck by the locomotive.

Stanley Lisa, about 11, residing at 19 Clover court, in attempting to cross Jay street, near Franklin street, this afternoon ran against the side of an automobile driven by Alcide Hadley, 21 Shaw street. The boy was knocked down, but sustained injuries no more serious than scratches and bruises.

Mrs. Rakosky, 27 Waller street, made complaint to the police today that her child's sled had ben stolen from the yard Wednesday night.

FUGITIVE SALVATORE FRANK SPOTTED BY TRAFFIC COP

NEW LONDON, Dec. 6—Salvatore Frank, formerly of Pawtucket, was arrested here today by Patrolman Albert Iverson charged with being a fugitive from justice. He was locked up and later was delivered into the custody of the state police, who took Frank back to Pawtucket, where he will be tried on a charge of assault and battery. Frank, nearly a year ago, engaged in a fight with Patrolman Sheldon, of Pawtucket police department, and in the battle the officer was beaten. Frank escaped and a request to various departments was made to be on the lookout for the fugitive. Today while Iverson was doing traffic duty corner of State and Main street, he noticed a pedestrian who tallied with Frank's description and upon questioning the latter admitted being the man sought. He was then arrested.

A resident at 24 Cottage street tonight made complaint to the police that an automobile had been parked in front of that house for four days and said that the registration of the car was Connecticut, L-7372.

Genaro Gentilella, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gentilella, of 848 Bank street and Miss Maria Pagliarini, of Cranston, R. I., have filed marriage intentions at the office of the city clerk of Providence, R. I. The wedding will be solemnized this month.

Body Sent to Georgia

The body of Archie McClung, U. S. Coast Guard, who was fatally burned when flimsy clothing he wore was mysteriously ignited at the coast guard academy Wednesday afternoon, was taken from an undertaking establishment this evening to the union station under military escort. The body was placed on the Federal express for Columbus, Ga., where the funeral and burial will be held.

Reuben eBnnett, U. S. Coast Guard; Miss Lydia Longacde of New York and Lowe and Mrs. Anthony Stobb and infant son, 48 Belden street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

HABAREK HEAVILY FINED, KORKECZ FINED AND JAILED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 6.—Bleslaw Habarek, 142 Winthrop street, and Witold Korkecz, 89 Corliss street, Providence, were tried for violation of the liquor law, the former charged with possession and keeping with intent to sell and the latter with transportation. Habarek was fined $200 and costs on each of the two counts, while Korkecz was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to ten days in jail. The police had long had the Winthrop house under surveillance, for it was known that Habarek was selling liquor there, but evidence by which a conviction could be established was not obtainable. For several nights the police maintained a watch on the premises, for it was known that Habarek received frequent deliveries of alcohol by automobile. This morning at 6:30 o'clock, Sergeant Samuel Hick and Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey were watching the house, when Korkecz drove up in an automobile. The officers went to the auto before the driver could remove his load and found two five-gallon cans filled with alcohol. Korkecz was arrested and when a search of the house was made additional liquor was found. It is claimed that Korkecz has been making a practice to deliver alcohol two or three times weekly to the Winthrop street house, but it was not until this morning that police were on hand when the shipment was about to be delivered.

GALES FERRY GIRL MARRIED BY METCALF AFTER COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 6.—Charles Metcalf, 13 Cedar street, and Miss Nellie Payne, of Gales Ferry, were presented on a charge of lascivious carriage. They were given suspension of judgment by Deputy Judge McGarry for the couple assured the court that they would get married without delay. They kept their promise, for immediately following court, Metcalf and the young woman went to the office of the city clerk and procured a marriage license, then proceeding to the parsonage of the First Church of Christ where they were united in marriage by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. Metcalf and the young woman were arrested by State Police ficer John Smith last night at Metcalf's home, where they had been residing as husband and wife.

Ronald McCarthy and Michael J. Hern, charged with breach of the peace, were given suspension of judgment. McCarthy and Hern were found fighting on Howard street last night by Patrolman John Foley and to gather them in the officer was compelled to call upon a civilian for assistance.

Two cases of intoxication were tried. One man was discharged and the other was given suspension of judgment.

New York Driver Too Speedy

Henry Howard, 57 West 74th street, New York, was arrested in Groton this morning by State Police Officer Charles Hill, charged with reckless driving. He furnished a cash bond for his appearance in the Groton town court Monday morning next at 9 o'clock. Howard was detected driving at a fast rate of speed on Thames street and when overtaken by Hill, Howard had passed intersecting streets and traffic signals with an utter disregard of the law and the safety of pedestrians or occupants of other automobiles. When ordered to stop, Howard was driving at a speed in excess of 50 miles an hour.

ABANDONED HIS CAR—LEFT IT IN MONTVILLE

Frank Larkwood, submarine base, was arrested in Montville last night charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in abandoning his auto on the public highway longer than 24 hours. He will explain in the Montville justice court Monday afternoon next at 2 o'clock. Larkwood left his car indefinitely beside the highway.

Sailors Pay for Whoopee Drive

In the Groton town court today, William Fleeman, submarine base, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, was fined $100 and costs, the latter amounting to $14.55. He could not pay, but the court granted a continuance of the case in order that the sailor could obtain the money. Two other sailors, George Gleason, of U. S. S. Henley and Robert McKail, submarine base, who were in the automobile driven by Fleeman, were charged with intoxication and each was fined $3 and costs of $18.10. McKail and Gleason paid. Fleeman was driving his auto in a westerly direction and, at Trail's Corner, the driver lost control of the auto when a car driven by Gershon Cammasar, 19 Bayonet street, and proceeding in an opposite direction approached. Before Fleeman could get his car under control, it crashed with Cammasar's auto and caused considerable damage. The state police barracks, Groton, were notified and Officer John Smith, who made an investigation, arrested Fleeman and his companions.

George S. Kelly

The funeral of George S. Kelly, formerly of New London, who died at his home in New York, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Michael Reagan. The bearers were Charles J. Ducey, Andrew J. Collins, John Flaherty, Edward T. Corcoran, Sterling King and Michael O'Connell. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

John Wesley Fordham

The funeral of John Wesley Fordham, of Crescent beach, was held this morning at 10:30 o'clock at 15 Masonic street, the services being conducted by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. The body was forwarded to Mr. Fordham's former home in Sag Harbor, for burial tomorrow.

Mrs. George R. Morris

Mrs. Lillian Carroll Morris, 65, wife of George R. Morris, died this morning at her residence, 143 Ocean avenue. Besides her husband, Mrs. Morris is survived by a son, George R. Morris, Jr. She was a member of the Second Congregational church and of several social and benevolent organizations. Mrs. Morris had been in failing health for several months. She was born in New London, March 12, 1864, the daughter of Leonard and Mary Squire Carroll.

Cornelia L. Stevens has sold to Henry S. Dorsey administrator of the estate of Edward Stevens, a house and lot on Crystal avenue.

Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey early this morning discovered a water pipe burst in the Leiper garage, 617 Broad street. An effort was made to locate the owner of the building, but he could not be found so that water entered the interior of the structure throughout the night.

Robert Keefe, 20 Bellevue place, reported to the police this morning that during last night a thief went to the rear porch of his home and stole a sled that was used for the pleasure of his children. Mr. Keefe had the same experience a year ago.

An automobile owned and driven by Francis DeGange, 60 Ocean avenue, in being backed to a place of parking on State street, near Main, this morning struck and knocked down Miss Ethel Manowitz. The young woman escaped injury however, other than sustaining bruises.

CONROY IS GIVEN FINE FOR THURSDAY NIGHT'S BUMPS

Frank Conroy, submarine base, residing at 125 Thames street, Groton, was in the police court this morning charged with evasion of responsibility. He pleaded not guilty, but the court ruled otherwise and Deputy Judge John McGarry imposed a penalty of $75 and costs. Conroy was driver of a Chrysler roadster, which is listed in the name of his wife, Mary R. Conroy, last night and was accompanied by another sailor. On the westerly approach of the Thames river highway bridge the auto collided with and damaged the auto driven by Mrs. Ida L. Morris, 214 Huntington street. Instead of stopping, Conroy speeded away and continued to Groton. A short time later, while returning to New London and while on the west end of the bridge the auto crashed against a car driven by John Bartolotta, U. S. Coast Guard academy. Conroy did not have an opportunity to repeat his speeding away for Bartolotta's car was directly ahead of the colliding auto, while a bus was behind it. Conroy agreed to accompany Bartolotta to a service station for the purpose of determining the extent of damage done, but at Crystal avenue and Main street, he changed the course of the auto and disappeared. When Bartolotta and Mrs. Morris both made complaint against Conroy a watch was kept for the driver, whom Bartolotta claimed was intoxicated, and Conroy was arrested in Groton by State Police Officers Charles Hill and Edward Wallin.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

When "Hot Stuff" opens tomorrow night at the Breed theatre those who have admired the inimitable antics of Louise Fazenda in silent moving pictures will be able to hear her voice on the Vitaphone.

"Hot Stuff" is a talking picture starring Alice White. It is a snappy picture of modern college life and tells that all the reckless gaiety and well-known "speed" is merely for show purposes.

Miss White, who will be remembered for her striking work in "The Sea Tiger", "The Private Life of Helen of Troy", "Harold Teen", "Naughty Baby" and "Show Girl, has now attained full-fledged stardom, and "Hot Stuff" is an ideal vehicle for her talents.

It is a story of college life, adapted from the romance "Bluffers," by Robert S. Carr. Miss White portrays a little country girl who goes to college and proceeds to become very "hot" with the students there.

Mervyn LeRoy, the young director who handled the megaphone on "Harold Teen", also directed "Hot Stuff." William Bakewell, another young player who scored in "Harold Teen" is the leading man. Louise Fazenda has a comedy role, and a splendid supporting cast, headed by the charming Doris Dawson, is seen.

"Hot Stuff" is said to be ideal entertainment for the tired business man or anyone else.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Once again Pauline Frederick, native of Norwich is to be seen at the Palace theatre. Beginning today for four days she is playing here in the star role of the cast of "The Sacred Flame," a powerful emotional drama of English life. Supporting Miss Frederick are Conrad Nagel, William Courtenay, Lila Lee and other distinguished motion picture stars.

Conrad Nagel is cast as the wounded aviator son of the star, Colonel Maurice Taylor, a young ace of the Royal Flying Squadron who marries Stella Elburn at a fashionable London church. After the wedding the party go to Croyden airdrome where, in tuning up the motor Taylor is struck by the propellor and disabled. For three years he is confined to a wheel chair devotedly served by his wife and by Nurse Wayland who apparently hates her.

Then from South America comes Colin Taylor, Maurice's brother. Maurice insists that he entertain Stella, and he does. In fact so successful is his method of entertaining that, several months later, when Colin is compelled to return to South America, Stella plans to elope with him But when the pair hear Maurice tell how he regrets his illness and how he wishes he had been killed outright, they become conscience stricken and decide not to carry out their illicit plans. The following morning Nurse Wayland, who secretly loves Taylor, announces that he has been murdered in the night?

Thus the stage is set for a sensational mystery—a mystery before it is solved, that brings out an astonishing view of the cross-sections of passion, emotion and lust within that English household. It is amazing and revealing—this picture, "The Secret Flame," and it carries a moral as pointed and as terrible as the barb of a wasp.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

In one of the most amazing roles ever portrayed on stage or screen, that of a man obsessed by his own importance and the victim of two conflicting personalities, first that of an arrogant, self-sufficient master, bullying his way to the top, shouting, ranting, abusing everyone, and a moment later, the kindly friend and companion, gentle as a woman, compassionate, understanding, Erich von Stroheim rises to the heights of dramatic power in "The Great Gabbo," the astounding all-talking drama opening at the Broadway today. The brute nature of the man is a mask, worn in a pathetic attempt to deceive not only the world but himself, but his real nature asserts itself in spite of all his efforts, speaking his soul through the rubber lips of his ventriloquist's dummy. The effect of the two natures battling every moment for supremacy is wonderfully dramatic and forms the basis for a strong emotional drama, at which Von Stroheim is a past master. Finished, perfect in mannerism and gesture, his facial expression a delight to watch, "Von" establishes himself again as the master character actor of the screen, rising to new heights in this, his first talking effort. Betty Compson is a perfect foil for his brutality and displays new talent as a singing and dancing artiste. An enormous cast of 500 adds to the authenticity of the massive stage scenes, many of which are in exquisite colors, and the musical setting, played by a symphony orchestra of 125 is superb. A new talkie star is born in this picture in Margie (Babe) Kane, a romping, stomping, pouting soubrette with plenty of ginger and class. The latest Paramount sound news is also shown, together with "Our Gang" in their all-talking comedy scream "Railroadin'."

Concert Lotus Quartet.

Those who attend the concert in Masonic temple on Tuesday evening, Dec. 10, will be afforded a rare treat by the Lotus quartet of Boston. An added feature of the evening will be the solo work of Mr. Eugene Cowles, composer of the well known and famous song "Forgotten". Mr. Cowles is now a member of this quartet and will appear in Norwich with them. The personnel of the quartet is as follows: Mr. Robert Martin, Mr. William Hicks, Mr. Melvin Crowell, Mr. Eugene Cowles.

A splendid program is always presented by the Lotus quartet and with the added assistance of the dramatic reader an enjoyable evening is assured.

Feature Moving Picture at Y. M. C. A.

The adult public are cordially invited to the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on the coming Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The management has been very fortunate to secure the unusual feature moving picture entitled "Four Sons". The first part will be shown tomorrow and the second part on the following Sunday. The participants in this impressive picture include Margaret Mann, Francis Bushman, James Hall, Charles Morton, George Meeker and June Collyer.

Briefly, it is the simple, intensely human story of a mother and her four sons. The theme is faith—the faith of the mother in humanity. In spite of all the troubles that beset the mother in all her confidence remains unbroken. She is torn between her sons in the German Army and her one son in the American army. With the exception of one scene on the battlefield, in which brother fights brother, the war itself is not projected into the story, except as an off-screen background.

Rather it is the story of a mother the sons leave behind, her struggles and her heartaches, told with honesty and simplicity and at all times with the utmost dramatic effect.

A special invitation is extended to the adult public, and youth fifteen and over will be admitted.

Next Week at United Church

All members of the Sodalitas are urged to attend the regular meeting to be held at 7:30 Monday evening, in the junior department rooms of the church school, to prepare the Christmas gifts for shut-ins.

Charitable circle of King's Daughters will meet on Tuesday afternoon at 3:30, in the junior department rooms of the church school to tie two quilts. Members are asked to bring with them a basket supper and come prepared to stay for an evening. A full attendance is especially desired.

The girl scouts will meet at the Community house promptly at 3:45 on Friday afternoon.

The girls' chorus meets as usual, at the Community house at 6:45 p. m. on Friday.

The entire church family is invited to the Christmas meeting of the Guild to be held at the Community house at 8 o'clock on Friday evening, members of the Sodalitas being the special guests at this time. A unique and beautiful program, A Biblical Drama, "The First Christmas Gift," by William Ford Manley, has been arranged, this to be followed by refreshments and a social hour.

The Brownies meet at the Community house at 2:30 on Saturday afternoon.

All members of the Junior Home-Time are invited to the Community house from 4 to 5:30 on Saturday afternoon, for the regular monthly party.

Woman's City Club

The parliamentary law class holds its second meeting Monday, Dec. 9, at 4 p. m. The twenty members now comprising this group are finding Judge Arthur Libby's lessons most interesting and helpful. On Monday, Judge Libby will explain the rules governing the making of motions. In later lessons the class will have an opportunity to put into practice the knowledge that they have acquired. It is not too late to join this class and any club member deciding to do so will find the course of great practical use.

TYDOL GASOLINE and VEEDOL MOTOR OIL

Eighteen hours of the most difficult and hazardous flying ever undertaken . . .

But not a miss in their motors.

Climbing desperately up the slopes of glaciers—tossed by gusts of winds from mountains of ice . . . up-up-up 11,500 feet to the frozen polar plateau.

But not a miss in a motor.

"It was an awful looking place . . . a wicked place for an airplane to be."

Motor failure meant . . . better not think about it.

The Byrd Expedition also took a supply of Hi-test TYDOL to the Antarctic.

What more convincing evidence for car owners that Hi-test TYDOL, Tide Water's great, green, motor car gasoline, and VEEDOL Motor Oil are the ideal combination for winter!

Hi-test TYDOL gives instant starting and quick acceleration. These are the qualities of a high-test gas.

Before the South Pole Flight we radioed: "How are Hi-test TYDOL and VEEDOL Motor Oil performing?" Back came this reply from Little America:

"Hi-test TYDOL starts immediately, even down here. VEEDOL Motor Oil also giving splendid results."

Fill up your tank with Hi-test TYDOL. Drain and refill your crankcase with VEEDOL, and be . . . "Ready to Go at 10° Below."

WESTERLY

BRADFORD MANAGEMENT WILL NOT TREAT WITH UNION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 6.—At the plant of the Bradford Dyeing association a calm prevailed Friday similar to that which precedes a storm. International Vice-President John Powers, of the Textile union, addressed a mass meeting of the strikers in Burdick hall at 3 p. m.

It is understood that Monday of next week occupants of mill tenements who have not returned to work will have notice from the mill management that their homes are desired for workers who will be employed in the mill. The management has announced that it will hear a committee from the mill workers, but no recognition will be given the union. Since the strike was called for recognition of the union, it would seem that management and workmen are as far apart as ever.

LAWLESS MOTORISTS TAXED FINES AND COSTS OF COURT

Judge Oliver H. Williams held a short session of the Third district court Friday morning when business was disposed of as follows: New writs entered before the calling of the docket—M. Louise Euell vs. Daniel Webster Jackson, trespass and ejectment. Attorney S. H. Davis asked by agreement of counsel a continuance of one week for trial. F. J. Bestang vs. Thomas Saddow and J. C. Tucker vs. Cyrus Williams, each continued one week.

Trial docket—State, Howard C. Lewis, department of state police vs. William M. Rosenfield, 8 Maywood street, Roxbury, Mass. Defendant pleaded nolo. Trooper Lewis told the court that at 4:35 p. m., Dec. 5, the accused operated a Chevrolet truck on the Noose Neck Hill road at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper, having passed four cars at Hopkinton City and driving down Brightman Hill, when it was covered with ice, at 49 miles an hour. The trooper stated that the truck swayed from side to side as it descended the hill and on-coming autos were forced to put on brakes and go onto the shoulders of the highway. Rosenfield was given a fine and costs amounting to $35.

Abraham Miles, of Cambridge, Mass., was charged with operation, at an unreasonable rate of speed, of a motor truck of J. Rosenfield, who accompanied him, Dec. 5, on the Noose Neck Hill road through Hopkinton City and down Brightman Hill when the trucks were about a hundred feet apart, the other truck being driven by the boss' son. The accused said that he had operated for 15 years and told the court that his plea was nolo, as it had been once before. In setting a fine of $50 and costs, Judge Williams asked in the language of the football player if there was good interference on the part of the accompanying trucks and if the one which followed was able to follow through the hole in the line of cars passed.

On the civil docket, the case of Alfred J. Homann vs. Francis J. Sypher was marked settled without costs.

Judge James O. Watts, of Wakefield, R. I., was in court to ask in the trespass and ejectment case, John C. Deering vs. Carrie F. Brown, that a default be declared and an execution be issued.

MRS. BEDFORD LEAVES NORWICH-PLAINFIELD KIN

Funeral services were held Thursday in River Bend chapel for Mrs. Amelia Bedford, 82, widow of John Bedford, who died Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. G. Reed, in Lawrence, Mass. The service was read by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector Christ Episcopal church. Members of the family were bearers. Mrs. Bedford was born in England and came to this country at the age of seven. She made her home in Westerly for a number of years, but since the death of her husband five years ago, had lived with her daughter in Lawrence. Besides the daughter in Lawrence, Mrs. Bedford is survived by a sister, Mrs. Lydia Morgan, of Westerly, with whom she lived for a time, and a sister, Mrs. Samuel Wibberley, of Plainfield, Conn. She also leaves three brothers, Nathan Exley of Plainfield, Conn., Matthew Exley of Norwich Town, Conn., and Albert Exley of Preston, Conn., and two grandchildren.

ST. MICHAEL'S THEATRICALS MET WITH GREAT FAVOR

Received with enthusiasm, both Thursday and Friday evenings, was the dramatic production, "Cinderella Goes to Market," presented by St. Michael's players under the auspices of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent association in St. Michael's hall. The cast was made up of members of the church, coached by Miss A. Jessie Hughes. It included the following: Chang Fu, played by Myles Brennan; Granny Bohne, A. Jessie Hughes; Judith Bohne, Blanche M. Hughes; Willard Wood, Hector Richards; Margaret O'Reilly, Mary Driscoll; Alice Height, Mary Whalen; Gene Tryne, Gertrude Coffey; Lord Cyril Ballantrae, Maurice McGuinness; Jimmy Brayden, Floyd Lamb; Forrest Arnold, Joseph Keane.

Committees in charge of the play were: Manager of scenery and staging, Myles Brennan; assistant stage managers, Thomas Ibison, Thomas Hughes; electricians, Robert Spellman, John Kelliher; publicity manager, Maurice McGuinness; tickets and advertising, Mrs. Mary Parkinson, Mrs. Katherine Devine, Mrs. Sarah Learn, Mrs. Catherine Twomey, Mrs. Helen Bricker, Mrs. Mary Brophy, Mrs. Aileen Shawyer, Mrs. Joseph Whalen, Nellie Sullivan, Madeline Devine, Nellie Keefe.

Difficulty was experienced, Friday morning, by the captain and crew of the big oil tanker, Oswego, which made its maiden trip up the Pawcatuck river last Tuesday morning, when the craft started on its second voyage up the river to discharge a cargo of gas at the yards of the Standard Oil Co. on Mechanic street. The tanker came just entering Little Narragansett bay when it struck fast on the mud flats near the Folly. It was after 12 o'clock when the tanker freed itself as the tide was rising and it then started across the bay to head up the Pawcatuck river. The tanker went on the mud bank some time after 10 o'clock.

The following officers were elected at the annual meeting this week of Societa Di M. S. Cittadini Calabro Americani, held in Stillman hall: Antonio Azzinnari, president; Demetrio Turano, vice-president; George P. Toscano, treasurer; Angelo Morrone, treasurer; Antonio Trebisacci, financial secretary; Frank A. Toscano, corresponding secretary; Faraco Stefano, Frank Ferrare, Angelo Siciliano, trustees; Marchese Luigi, De Marco James, Alico Salvatio, Broccolo Nicola, Simone Michele, arbitration committee; Anthony Azzinnari, G. P. Toscano, F. A. Toscano, G. Mazzarella, D. Turano, benevolent committee.

FUNERALS

Rosanna Holliday

Friday morning the funeral was held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Holliday, 149 Granite street, of their 13-year-old daughter, Rosanna. State health officers granted permission for a public funeral after visiting the Holliday home and investigating the girl's death, with the understanding that the body would be placed in a sealed casket. Requiem high mass was celebrated at the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M., who also read the committal service at St. Michael's new cemetery. Following the mass, Martin Spellman sang Hymn to the Sacred Heart. The bearers were: Thomas, Harold and John Holliday, William Dolan, John Joyce and James Foley. Pupils from the parochial school and members of Miss Holliday's class at Elm Street school attended the services at the church and there were beautiful floral tributes.

Mrs. Joseph Sidebottom

A prayer service was held Friday morning for Mrs. Joseph Sidebottom at 10:30 o'clock at her home by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ church. The body was then taken to Ashton, R. I., where funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at St. John's church, with burial in St. John's cemetery. The bearers were Fred Collins, Albert Fish, Robert Crawford and John Sidebottom. A large number of relatives and friends attended the services, and there were beautiful flowers.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON IN NEED OF ADDITIONAL NEW HOMES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 6—Walter Anderson, as president of the Danielson Building and Loan association, will take up with J. W. Powdrell, president of Powdrell and Alexander, the very important matter of additional housing facilities for Danielson.

As was stated in this column a week ago, Mr. Powdrell, head of an organization employing 1,600 operatives in this town, assures the business interests of Danielson that at least 50 new houses are needed to meet the requirements of workers in his organization alone. It is patent that still more homes than these also are needed.

The chamber of commerce, advised by the new president of the organization, W. H. G. Herklots, as to the needs of Killingly's largest manufacturing concern in the way of facilities for those in its employ, is backing the program for a big building campaign here in the immediate future. The winter season naturally will handicap the carrying out of whatever plans may be adopted for the time being, but an objective is to work out the financing arrangements and to be ready for effective action once the cold weather season shows any indication of relenting.

Mr. Powdrell has said that numbers of his operatives are willing to enter into agreements to buy homes under some such plan as the Danielson Building and Loan association makes it possible for the people who borrow its funds for that very purpose. He has said farther that his company is willing to practically give prospective builders lots for home sites. Under these circumstances it is regarded as very probable that something very fruitful will come out of the present program to build Danielson up to its housing requirements and make it possible for those who work here and live elsewhere to make their homes in Danielson, to the great advantage of everyone engaged in trade or interested in the well being of the community.

The "wild" cattle that were the objects of much chasing and hunting early in the week are all now back on the properties of their owners and in custody. The capture of two made it comparatively easy to get the third one.

Moriah Lodge Elects Officers

Howard G. Franklin is the newly elected master of Moriah lodge, No. 15, A. F. and A. M. The other officers for the ensuing year are Byron F. Barrowclough, S. W.; Homer C. Romane, J. W.; Charles S. Bill, treasurer; A. M. Thompson, secretary; Charles B. Carver, S. D.; Arthur F. Burton, J. D.; Thomas Beckett, S. S.; Walter H. Evans, J. S.; Harry Brearley, chaplain; Burdette C. Hopkins, marshal; Arthur W. Logee, tyler; Frank E. Kennedy, trustee for three years.

There is the possibility that E. C. Rogers of Putnam will afford local people an opportunity to become shareholders in the new hotel he is to develop on the T. E. Hopkins property on North Main street that he purchased some time ago. Meanwhile, he has had plans for the proposed hostlery prepared and they indicate that a splendid development has been envisioned. Mr. Rogers' outline of the arrangement under which shareholders may be allowed to participate in the ownership is much more attractive than that usually offered in proposals for the erection of hotels in which the public becomes interested as stockholders. Mr. Rogers proposes to put in a large amount of his own money in the hotel proposed for Danielson, and on which it is hoped to start remodeling and construction of additions in the early part of the coming year. Mr. Rogers has discussed his proposal with some of Danielson's business men and they have apparently been favorbly impressed. Due to the fact that the holiday season is so near at hand, it is improbable that the matter will be formally discussed until after the first of the year.

Congressman Richard P. Freeman has nominated two local youths to take examinations for entrance to the United States Naval academy at Annapolis—Robert D. Grenon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Doiard Grenon, and George A. Kesaris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Kesaris.

Gaylord W. Douglas, member of the Springfield Rotary club, was the speaker last evening at the weekly meeting of the Danielson Rotary club at Paco lodge. His subject was Rotary and World Peace.

The disappearance of a number of hunting dogs in towns hereabouts indicates to some sportsmen that they are being stolen. In one instance, a dog that was tied up near the home of his owner at Moosup pond was taken. A local man located his dog over in Rhode Island after it had been missing for several days.

Attorney Arthur G. Bill was in Willimantic today to represent clients in matters scheduled for consideration at a session of the superior court for Windham county.

Mr. Dugald Clarke, formerly resident here and a visitor in town today, is now located and practicing in Westerly.

Henry Ricswasser has been elected president of the Killingly Hi-Y club. Other officers are Frederic Arnold, vice president; Clark Wood, secretary and Monroe Knight, treasurer.

John Z. LaBelle, secretary, has given notice of the coming annual meeting of the Killingly Theft Detecting society, one of Killingly's oldest organizations and largely interested in its early years in hunting down horse thieves.

PUTNAM

WOMAN WRECKS MACHINE—ESCAPES SERIOUS INJURIES

(Special to The Bulletin

PUTNAM, Dec. 6—Mrs. Yvonne Demarais, 88 Homestead drive, Springfield, narrowly escaped death late this afternoon when a car operated by her skidded on ice coated pavements of the Springfield-Putnam road near the Woodstock fairgrounds and crashed into a pole before coming to a stop. Mrs. Demarais was severely shaken up and somewhat cut about the face when hurled through a window of the vehicle. The automobile was demolished. The police said tonight. The Springfield woman made her way to this city aboard a Providence bound bus where she reported the incident to police. She complained of severe pains in her chest, but refused to consult a physican on the advice of the police and continued on to Providence.

TRIES TO CONNECT ALLEGED BANDITS WITH CHURCH BREAK

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 6—County Detective Howe H. Wheeler of Willimantic was in Stafford Springs today, where he questioned and finger printed two alleged bandits arrested there Thursday in connection with a Westfield, Mass., murder. Detective Wheeler's investigation there was made in an effort to link up the gunmen with the burglary committed at St. Mary's church in this city on the night of Nov. 10.

An order will be published Thursday giving notice of a court hearing to take place in Willimantic Tuesday, December 17, regarding the application of stock-holders of the National Rhea company of Providence for permission to dispose of its property by auction sale.

It was learned that the matter would be given court attention at an earlier date, but before action can be taken every creditor and stock holder must be given an opportunity to be present at the impending hearing.

A similar hearing will take place in Providence, it was learned today. The Windham county superior court procedure is to take place because the bulk of property owned by the National Rhea company, which is a large mill on Canal street, is located in Putnam.

It is understood that the plan will be to make an effort to have stockholders and creditors agree to the auction sale of the property by a legal instrument known as an upset price, to be made by a leading stockholder.

Since the appointment of a receiver of the National Rhea company several months ago, the Putnam plant has continued in full operation, despite the legal difficulties of stock holders.

The six year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cordier of Main street was injured yesterday when struck by a truck operated by Henry Jodin, a driver in the employ of the L. M. Keith company, South Main street. The accident was termed unavoidable following an investigation by Captain of Police William J. Jarvis. The girl dashed into the street as the car driven by Jodin approached. Thed river sensed the danger at once, swerving sharply to the side of the road in an effort to avert striking the careless child. He stopped at once and rushed the girl to a doctor's office where she was given medical treatment. She was reported as improved this morning. Jodin was not held responsible.

Printed programmes of the Columbia Broadcasting company's net work of radio stations announce that the Jackson murder case, which developed in Willimantic on January 29, 1923, is to be dramatized and presented to the invisable audience next Thursday evening. A cast of characters will re-enact the roles of every person in any way figuring in the unsolved Windham county murder which proved to be the most sensational case in the county's criminal history.

A flock of wild geese were seen flying in a southerly direction over this city at a late hour this afternoon—an indication that an abundance of wintry weather is held in store. The birds were flying in a perfect check formation, the grey color texture of their bodies depicting a beautiful life picture against a sky illuminated by the rays of a setting sun. According to an older resident tonight, migration of geese to the south in mid-winter is a forecast of colder weather.

The school census report of Attorney M. H. Geissler, clerk of the town school committee was forwarded to the secretary of education at Hartford today, with a mention of 1,852 children between the ages of 4 and 16. The enumeration was made in October under the direction of James J. Charron, local business man. The town will receive from the state the sum of $2.25 for each child enrolled in school within the age limits mentioned above. The state fund received annually is expended by the town for educational purposes.

The New Haven railroad began its first delivery of New York mail, Putnam bound, on a new schedule today. The mail pouch leaving the Grand Central station in New York Thursday evening was delivered here early this morning and taken in charge by railroad employes, who delivered it to the post office for assorting at six o'clock. The new delivery programme for the morning mail service was instituted as high railroad officials said today to speed up delivery of first class mail, which is certain to be delayed during the Christmas season, had the present system been continued.

Two rail flaw detector cars operating on the Midland division of the New Haven road were seen here today. The queer looking vehicles attracted much attention and comment from passers-by this morning. William E. Sault, assistant superintendent of the New Haven division, explained this morning that the cars are equipped to detect the slightest flaw that may exist in any rail. The moment the "feeler" encounters a flaw in a rail, a series of electrical shocks register on a chart in the operating cabin of the car. Workmen are then assigned to correct the defect noted. It is impossible, it was said, for any dangerous rail conditions to escape from the recording instruments. The railroad is maintaining the service car for the protection of life and property.

"The Third Floor Front" was the title of the annual dramatic presentation of the senior class of Putnam high school, given Friday evening at the Bradley theatre. A capacity audience witnessed the stage debut of the senior actors. Robert Bulger and Miss Rita Stone, played stellar roles in the play.

JEWETT CITY

STONE HILL WILD GEESE JOIN SOUTHBOUND FLOCK

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 6—The beautiful story of the wild, which has been enacted, with living characters during the summertime just passed, at the Jewett City reservoir on Stone Hill, came suddenly to its final and normal chapter just at dusk Thursday.

Game men and many who are interested in wild life have been watching for several months to see what the outcome would be. Early last spring a pair of wild Canadian geese dropped out of a north-bound flock, and seeking rest and shelter from the sleet storm found refuge in the sheltered waters of the big pond. The strangers stayed and started housekeeping on a small wooded island near the eastern rim of the reservoir, and from seven eggs they hatched out four little fluffy goslings that came to be handsome birds. During the fall, several southbound flocks have passed over the reservoir district. Every time, the big gray gander has caught the distant honkings and seemed strangely uneasy, and once he, alone, traveled into the air, only to return. Thursday evening, when a belated small flock, flying low and at express train speed, winged over the upper end of the pond, the last call came too clear and strong to be resisted. Without ado or preparation, like a Lindbergh flight, there came a roar of wings from the barn yard enclosure, and all six were gone.

Mrs. Patrick Weaver watched them circle once in rising then, in the fast fleeting light, could just make out the six rapidly moving dots, as they joined the fast disappearing flock, southbound.

UNVENTILATED ROOM CAUSE OF PROSTRATIONS

Considerable excitement prevailed at the Pachaug grange meeting Thursday night when several persons seemed to be overcome by gas. This was not possible, for the building is heated with a wood burning furnace and the exhaust from the lighting system is outdoors. Mrs. Susan Lillibridge, of Scotland road, became unconscious late in the night, and Mrs. F. E. Newton, R. N., was also overcome while attempting to revive Mrs. Lillibridge. Several others became excited and nearly collapsed. Dr. G. H. Jennings was called, and he said that the prostrations were caused by a combination of poor ventilation and the heat of the room, combined with overstrained nerves and lack of eating, as concerning Mrs. Lillibridge who had not eaten since noon. About 150 were present, and the degree work was carried on in a closed room which after three hours became very hot.

The Ladies' Society of the Congregational church served a baked bean and salad supper in the vestry Friday. The decorations of red carnations and Christmas napkins gave the season's touch to the tables. Mrs. E. A. Faust was in charge, her committee being Mrs. W. A. Broadfoot, Mrs. C. L. Howe, Mrs. W. H. Payne, Mrs. Abraham Zegeer and Mrs. Walter Marshall. Mrs. E. H. Hiscox had charge of the waitresses, Mrs. N. B. Parkhurst, Mrs. Joseph Gill, Mrs. H. T. Jeffers, Mrs. H. T. Tomlinson, Mrs. John Mills, Mrs. William Hill, C. O. Peterson, Mrs. Andrew McNicol, Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mrs. C. D. Wolf, Mrs. Fred Whalley, Mrs. S. R. Waters and Mrs. W. A. Richardson. C. L. Howe was cashier.

Mrs. G. H. Prior entertained the Harmony club Friday afternoon.

CARD OF GREETING COMES FROM RAILWAY MAIL MATES

E. H. Hiscox, who made his last trip on the railway mail service a year ago December ninth, was much pleased Friday to receive a beautifully embossed card from his one-time Boston and New York night line crew on train 31. Under the caption The Old Gang, there were the signatures of John H. Cahill, Dick Roberts, Edward J. Blenchy, Fred T. Walker, Al. Banach, Joe Patten, Fred Cairns, W. A. Marshall, William B. Toomey, C. R. Hutchins, L. A. Peterson, Thomas A. Rolin, Roscoe Adams, S. J. Miller, Martin V. Quigley, George Schile, Thomas McGuinnis.

These men from all over New England and New York city, come together in Boston every twelfth day, make three round trips to New York, then lay off six nights while a relief crew performs the same duty. Then the same thing over again, six and six, year in and year out, covering 42,000 miles every 365 days.

Mount Vernon lodge No. 75, A. F. and A. M. C. E. Whitaker, master, has decided to furnish at a cost of $150 one of the rooms in the new annex at the Masonic home at Wallingford. The brethren were so enthusiastic in considering this provision, that it was decided to finance the plan by means of voluntary gifts from members of the order instead of voting a draft from the treasury. The room will be known as the Mt. Vernon apartment. A letter was received Friday from George E. Barber, one of the oldest members of Mt. Vernon, and a resident of the Wallingford home, thanking the members of the local craft, for remembrances during the Christmas season.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

So Long As We Love We Serve

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY.

"How Many Hurt?"

"Suppose," said I, "you chanced to see
A small boy tumble from a tree;
How would you tell that tale to me?"

"Why, dad," said he. "I'd simply say
I saw a boy get hurt today
And two men carried him away."

"How many injured would there be?"
I asked. "Just one, of course," said he;
"The boy who tumbled from the tree."

"No, no," I answered him, "that fall
Which hurt the lad brought pain to all
Who knew and loved that youngster small.

"His mother wept, his father sighed,
His brothers and his sisters cried,
And all his friends were hurt inside.

"Remember this your whole life thru—
Whatever hurts may come to you
Must hurt us all who love you, too.

"You cannot live your life alone.
We suffer with your slightest groan,
And make your pain or grief our own;

"If you should do one shameful thing,
You could not bear alone the sting,
We'd spend our years in suffering

"How many hurt we cannot state,
There never falls a blow of fate
But countless people feel the weight."

The Long Road

It is long since I've heeded them,
Long since the day they relinquished
Their care;
It is long since I sat with bowed head
While the old-fashioned "blessing" was said,
Ere the long years had whitened their hair;
It is long since I bade them good-by,
Long, long since they stood in the door
And watched me pass over the hill—
Oh, would that they watched for me still,

It is long since their guidance was mine;
And how since I heard their fond praise
Lavished in their prayers or their song;
And the road that winds back is so long
And has through so many dark ways!
It is long since I bade them farewell,
Long, long since they stood in the door
And watched me with eyes that were wet
Oh, would that they watched for me
yet,

"Home Folks First"

I want you like to know how always
To say
The pleasantest things in the pleasantest way
To bring you the friends you will always need
Those who are true in word and deed?
Just say them to Home folks first.

I want to know how always to give
Those things that courtesy asks of you?
Why, charity is the oil, you know,
That makes the wheels of the day's work go.
Just try them on Home folks first.

Home folks are nearest and dearest and best,
And some love is surest to stand every test
So if you would know how to do and to say
The pleasantest things in the pleasantest way
Just try them on Home folks first.

DAYS ON A NEW ENGLAND FARM

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: It is a beautiful morning after the snow storm. The big pine tree in our yard is loaded with ill and looks like a large Christmas tree; I love to look at it.

I hope you all had a very pleasant Thanksgiving.

I wonder if each one of you think as much of the Social Corner as I do. Each Saturday as soon as the postman brings it, I look to see if there is a full page, and to see if I have a message, for, as Thirty Two says, "It gives one a thrill if they get one." And what really delightful times we have at the gatherings! It isn't so much what we have to eat (though of course that helps) but it seems to be the atmosphere of sympathetic sociability, free from unkind gossip. I believe that is what makes it what it is.

Rosalind: I am the rogue who accepted the pumpkin from Moses' wife but was innocent, as she was when she gave it to me. She thought it was one that had been left in the car by mistake. She asked me if I wanted it. I told her, "I'd just love it," so I brought it home and last week made a fine deep pie and am making another today. I am glad Irma sent you the pumpkin and squash by mail and hope you have enjoyed them as much as I have yours.

I have saved the seeds to the one I had, and in my dreams I can see a whole field of pumpkins and if they come true, believe me, I won't forget you. I have heard, "There is no loss but there is some small gain."

I see by last Saturday's paper you have had another donation of pumpkins. Good! If you keep them where it is cool, they will last you all winter.

I used to live on a fine old New England farm, about a mile from the center of Danielson. It had been our family homestead for seven generations. The house had ten rooms and the attic was one large room, and in it was the accumulation of antiques for one years.

There were six of us children and daily days mother knew just where to find us. I think we took to the old spinning wheels most of all, all the different kinds were there, and sometimes we would turn them so fast it would seem as though they would fly off.

Thanksgiving day meant a whole lot to us all, my mother was a fine cook, and we children had good appetites. There was a long red table in the dining room that would seat 12 or 14, I think, and it was nearly always filled. In moments of retrospect, I can see those bright, smiling faces, but today only a few are left, and the farm has passed into other hands.

Those were the days when we, as children, were free from sorrow and care. All we thought about was getting out of doors and having a good time. In the winter we would grab some kind of a wrap and run out of the house and slide for all we were worth. In front of the house, across the road and over the wall, were some fine meadows and we always made the most of them, with or without a sled.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

Sometimes, after the sun had shone warm, we would slide right into some water.

Thirty Two: Please excuse delay in answering your question. No, I did not make the call, for several reasons. I did not feel equal to it and it was too hot. Besides, I did not like to keep the others waiting.

1926: I see you have had a birthday recently. Many happy returns.

Lotus: I missed you at our last picnic.

Lonesome: I am wondering where you are.

Aron: The poem by Margaret Sangster, which you sent in last week, is one of my favorites.

Aunty Jane: I am going to write to you soon.

Ann Tenna: I am glad you are in your winter quarters. Hope to see you soon. I enjoy your letters.

Best regards to you all.

PAST MISTAKES

Dear Editor: I wish everyone could read the article by Lucy Lowell on Past Mistakes, with understanding so I am sending it for the Social Corner page.

Says Lucy Lowell:

"Of all the things which come to trouble the human mind perhaps that which hits the hardest and wounds deepest is the knowledge of a mistake.

"The mistake, made either carelessly or wilfully, that brings in its wake disaster—failure, loss, disgrace—trouble to others.

"Small comfort for the one who has made the mistake to reflect that everybody errs at times in thought and action. Small comfort to hear friends say kindly, tactful things. He wastes a lot of time and mental energy who goes over and over the situation, wishing he might go back and take a wiser course.

"But this gets him nowhere—this mulling over what is gone. When he has definitely decided that it is gone and the sooner he accepts this fact and does a right-about-face from the past to the future, he will have taken the first step in rectifying his error.

"Self-pity is the thing he must avoid most of all, for this is deadly as an anaesthetic, paralyzing his capabilities and hindering all constructive movement forward.

"Also he must take care not to blame others, for resentment is a two-edged sword, striking equally at the one who holds it as at those he would injure.

"Nor is it helpful to argue that circumstances are difficult, for this helps to fret down the barriers of self-control—the thing he needs at all times if he is to build success on failure.

"For this is what he must do: it is the only thing to do. And it is not so impossible as it may sound at first edged sword, striging equally at the thought."

ARIES

CLUB NO. 6 TO HAVE CHRISTMAS PARTY.

Dear Social Corner Members: As in past years Club 6 will hold its December meeting on the second Tuesday instead of on the third Tuesday so the date will be next Tuesday, Dec. 10 when we hope to have a large number present.

Connie: One of our newer members is to be the hostess and will those who promised to help her not forget? Each one is expected to bring a ten cent gift, wrapped, as there is to be an exchange of gifts, also your dishes and some kind of food. The meeting will be in Mechanics hall, Westerly.

CLUB NO. 1 TO HAVE CHRISTMAS TREE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: As I am to be the hostess for the December meeting on the 11th, I hope there will be a good crowd for we are going to have the Christmas tree for the Corner sisters as we used to have. Each one that brings a ten cent gift will get one in return and I hope they will all be pleased with it.

Come one, come all and bring your plate, knife, fork, spoon, cup and something good for the table. Don't forget the date, December the 11th at the chamber of commerce rooms, Willimantic. Come and bring your friends with you.

ATTRACTIVE CHRISTMAS IDEAS

Dear Social Corner Readers: This is a beautiful winter morning. As the sun shines on the trees and shrubs everything glistens, and to an imaginative mind, one would think he was in fairyland. As I wrote a few weeks ago, each season has its own special beauty.

Oh my! Stranger in the City is having quite a time trying to make the readers of these columns understand how many pieces of pasteboard make a pin-ball. In the letter two weeks ago it read 23. Mistake number one. She corrected it and in last week's paper it read two pieces. Mistake two: Perhaps she won't mind if I step in. Maybe it will be misprinted again but I'll do my best. It requires 20 pieces of pasteboard for a pin ball which Stranger in the City makes. The pinballs certainly make a very pretty Christmas gift.

Speaking of gifts reminds me I have a few to make. Maybe you would be interested to know of my ideas I have in mind.

I have bought cleansing tissue and pink baby ribbon and will make face wipers, to rub away the cream my friend applies to remove the dust. One package of the tissues equally divided will make two gifts. Cut them in any desired shape. For the top use a nice piece of chamois, or if you are unable to find that, a pretty Christmas card would do. A large poinsetta such as we find among the seals in packages would be very pretty. Everything is tied together with the ribbon—pink ribbon with chamois top, red with poinsetta and so forth.

Another small but useful gift is a package of waxed papers four inches square and as many pieces as you like, but 100 would not last long. These are to grease cake pans. Fasten together on one edge with a clip also a pleasing verse if you are keen at making rhymes. Otherwise tie with a holly ribbon or a suitable Christmas card.

And such a variety of apron patterns. They certainly make pleasing gifts. I have a pattern that requires only 32 inches of gingham but it is cut so different and the only trimming is cross-stitch in black with a fancy cut pocket. The cost is very little, gingham 22 cents, cotton for cross stitch, five cents. I want to make several. A very striking one is yellow and white checks, worked in black to give to a sister who waits on table at our metings.

If you have noticed I have kept to my New Year's resolution and I hope my letters have not been too long or too often, and also hope they have been interesting and sometimes instructive.

It hasn't been a cross for me but a pleasure and I do wish this next year more writers would contribute to our columns.

I will close now, wishing our editor and the Social Corner writers a very merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

PRESERVING HISTORIC THINGS.

Dear Editor and Corner Members: I was interested in the member's letter telling about the Wayside inn at Sudbury. What a fine thing that Ford and other wealthy men are interested in preserving and restoring old places and opening them for the public. As some one said about his experiences in visiting the village restored in honor of Edison, 'More American history I learned in one day wandering about here than I ever got in all our history books." I am glad people are developing more and more interest in such things if for no other reason than giving children a source of interest in their history work and I think most teachers today are quick to make use of this source instead of compelling children to learn things in the cut and dried way that often made children hate this study.

Things that we should treasure highly now as old family keepsakes were left in the attic of the old homestead as being of no value and most of them are now scattered to the four winds. One thing however of considerable interest was preserved and that is a leather bound account and record book kept by my great, great, great grandfather who it seems was a justice of the peace under King George III while the states were still colonies.

The records begin in 1760 just about the time young Washington was winning his spurs in the French and Indian wars. The writing itself, on unruled paper and without doubt done with a quill pen is quite legible but the judge as he was called was evidently thrifty and the lines are so closely spaced as to sometimes make read difficult. Perhaps several items may be of interest.

In the first part of the book everything is, of course, reckoned in pounds, shilling and pence. Here are a few things from the accounts under date of 1761:

To 1-2 day reaping with horse and cart 2 shilling 10 pence.

To postage of a letter 1 shilling 9 pence.

To making 2 coffins 5 shilling 6 pence.

To making a pair of lether britches and lether and lining for pockets 11 shillings.

To cuting out 4 wescoats for boys 2 shillings.

To 2 barrels of sider 11 shillings.

To bleeding my wife and Prudence —(the price of the doctor's bill is blurred here so I shall be ignorant of the cost of bleeding).

The accounts are continued over a period of years and after the new currency was established there was mention of articles with price given in dollars and cents and underneath the equivalents in pounds and shillings so perhaps the judge had a little difficulty at first in adapting himself to the change.

Much of the legal writings of the book is concerned with trial of cases involving sums of money which the creditor was unable to collect and there are many orders for commitment to "gaol" until the sum, usually, but a few pounds, was worked out, for that was the law in those days. Also there is account of some who unable to pay a small debt desired to sign over his services as servant for a stated period in payment of his debt.

One Violet was bound out for three years being found guilty of stealing one check flannel apron and sundry other articles to the value of two pounds twelve snillings.

WHEN IRONING SHIRTS.

Dear Social Corner: I have just finished my week's ironing and want to pass on a hint about ironing shirts. I have always detested ironing shirts but since I discovered this way, I can iron two in the time it used to take for one. First iron the collar, strip across the shoulders and the sleeves. Then down between the buttons on front, then button the shirt as though for folding. Lay out flat on ironing table and iron the front. Turn over and press the back and it is ready to be folded and put away. This should be a boon to mothers with boys in school and if they have never done this before I hope they will try it and get as pleasant a surprise as I did. One will find that the piece down the front with the button-holes in it will not be crumpled the least bit as it is when the shirt is ironed first and then buttoned. Yours for a merry Christmas.

KEEPS OUT THE DUST.

Dear Social Corner Members: I have benefited by several ideas on the Social Corner page and would like to share one of mine. On washdays I have spent considerable time wiping off dust from washer and wringer, so made a bag out of heavy unbleached cotton large enough to cover both wringer and washer as far as the legs; put a hem on it so as to be able to put draw string in. Just drop it over and fasten the string at bottom. Now I have no dust whatever and save a lot of time.

We are having some early Christmas weather and I only hope we are favored with as good on the holiday. Best wishes

A NEW FURNITURE POLISH.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I have received so many valuable ideas from the Corner that I feel I must pass on a sort of life saver I stumbled on this morning. My walnut dining room furniture although less than a year old had numerous tiny scratches on it where baby shoes and buttons and just everything had nicked and scratched it. I tried numerous furniture polishes but still the tiny white marks were left and in desperation I tried my husband's shoe polish, the Cordovan Brown kind that polishes and stains. I applied this to the scratches, let it dry, then polished with an old silk stocking and my furniture was like new again.

TAKES ANOTHER'S PEN NAME

Social Corner Editor: I have read the poems and leters recently sent in to The Norwich Bulletin by the Social Corner club and believe I never read anything that suited me better.

I should like to join the Social Corner, as I am studying a high school course and think I can profit by it.

I have chosen for my pen name

POCAHONTAS

(This pen name belongs to another. Please make some other selection and your membership will be recorded in the Corner S. C. Editor.)

GREETINGS AND THANKS FROM B NATURAL.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: It is a long time since I have written owing to my illness and have tried for weeks to be able to write a letter and thank those who sent me lovely cards, and Club 6 which never forgets me—a charter member.

As I cannot thank each one personally please accept my thanks in this letter.

It will be a long time before I shall be able to be around or out of doors yet I feel I have much to be thankful for and never dreamed my church and other organizations would do so much for one of its members.

I had flowers in abundance, sometimes from several at the same time and have at present a Jerusalem cherry tree loaded with the bright red cherries, a gift from a D. A. R. sister. Have had baskets of fruit from many; also numerous delicacies sent in by neighbors and my Bible class friends.

My good friend Susanna remembered me while in Europe and since her return and I regret our club has not met here, and agree with her in wishing it could be arranged, I planned to have them meet here after I returned from Florida but I was in such poor health could not arrange it myself and while we have quite a number of members here they are busy and do not attend the meetings to keep up their interest, but will look forward to the future when it can be arranged in warm weather. Reading is all I can do and our two weekly religious papers and the Social Corner come first.

I extend my sympathy to all sick and shut ins and wish all the members a merry Christmas.

SOME CHOICE RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Friends: I have had a few choice recipes lately I want to share with you. The first is a cake very dainty for afternoon teas and was served at a Girl Scout meeting by one of the mothers. So I have taken it as

Mrs. C.'s Cake: 3 eggs and 1 cup of sugar, beaten light, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, vanilla, 1 cup nuts and 1 cup dates. These may be reduced to 1-2 cup of each if desired. Bake in medium oven. It is something like macaroons and makes such a nice crust. Does not need frosting.

Golden Glow Cake: (Very yellow and moist. The secret is in the squash) 1-4 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup cooked squash, 2 beaten eggs, 1 1-2 cups pastry flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon orange flavor, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 cup hot milk. Bake in tube pan, I frosted with cocoanut, as white looks well on it.

Molasses Buns: One-half cup sugar, 1-2 cup molasses, 1-2 cup butter, 1 egg, ½ cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 cup chopped dates, raisins or nuts, Bake in cup-cake, or muffin tins.

I have missed out on most of the Social Corner meetings but attended the South Killingly church the Sunday before the meeting was held there so could see in my mind how it looked. The spirit of the church is so friendly and forward looking with all those young people. We all need to think of the coming generation and how we can help them out of our experience.

With best wishes to each and all.

THIRTY-TWO.

HOW CLUB 2 MANAGES.

Dear Club Members and Corner Writers: Just to remind you that Club No. 2's meeting is in Buckingham Memorial Dec. 10. Don't forget the food promised. We had such a good November dinner and good praise we want this one to be just as good and trust you come in good numbers and make it as large, if not larger, than the last one.

Practical Polly: Last I heard of you you were not well at the G. A. R. rooms. Glad you are yourself again and can send in such a good letter. I judge by your letter that each club has its own rules to go by. At Club No. 2 all hot dishes are donated. In fact all food is asked for by those coming to the dinner. If for any reason any article of food is short the cash on hand is used for it or to pay any bill of the day's expense that enough isn't collected for. I think this club's way is agreeable to all. In the past year we have on esveral occasions had to draw on the reserve funds and surely always have to when the summer rent is paid to hold the hall for fall opening dates. At that time it doesn't look as if Calla Lily has more money than she needed and they are mighty glad I have it. Ten dollars of our funds must be kept on hand so what is in excess of that isn't such a large amount. Many times it has been remarked Club No. so and so does this, and that club does that. Well our club keeps on as it started and doesn't mean to be a copy cat. We just try to do what is right and in the right way as far as possible by the help and guidance of some of the first charter members for is now impossible to tell who belongs to the numerous clubs. All are welcome and we are glad to see them with us each winter.

I want to thank those who sent me birthday cards on Nov. 26, also thank Catnip and True Blue for their nice gifts. I received quite a number of nice and useful gifts. Your gift, Catnip, I used on a pair of end tables son gave me. Do you remember of giving me one a long time before? Glad of two of them for the same use.

Dearie: Was down your way but didn't know where your home was.

Black-Eye Susie: Well, so you are in the letters by Dad Shaw. Did you see some written by his cartoonist friend with full name? It was a surprise to us and quite a joke. You too are getting prominent.

Guess I'll ring off and hope you all had a nice Thanksgiving. We surely did. Now don't forget Dec. 10.

CALLA LILY.

CLUB 2 PLANNING CHRISTMAS MEETING.

Dear Editor and to the Sisters who were not at the November meeting of Club No. 2: It was suggested that the meeting in December being the Christmas meeting that if anyone had anything in the line of fancy work that they would like to dispose of for money and give that money to the Corner for a little Christmas for somebody that probably wouldn't be remembered in any other way they should bring it. Or if anybody wanted to they could bring something that could be given to help. In that way we could carry out the Christmas joy of giving and know that we had helped somebody to see a little sunshine. Yours for the Corner. RED ROSE.

CLUB NO. 4 PICNIC

Dear Social Corner: I am sure all members of Club No. 4 who didn't attend the picnic on South Killingly hill, Nov. 7, missed a jolly good time.

Every one present seemed in their most agreeable mood and time passed away very swiftly.

While visiting in Hartford, recently, a lady asked me for a recipe for tomato soup cake so I sent her the recipe sent in by Susanna.

She has written me that her first trial proved a decided success and all who had a piece of her cake pronounced it, A No. 1.

Wish I might tell of some useful hint, help or suggestion as so many of the members are doing from week to week. Perhaps I may be able to add my bit in that line sometime.

Hoping to attend our next meeting wherever it is held, will meet you all there.

AMBY.

PLANS FOR CLUB 2'S CHRISTMAS MEETING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Well, we came near having an old-fashioned Thanksgiving, but the snow was just a little too late. But I hope we have a white Christmas. I think it seems a lot more Christmasy to have things covered with white with the green and red for a bit of color.

The roads are filled around my house with children making use of their sleds. I'd really like to join them. We're in hopes that Santa will leave two sleds at our house this year.

I hope each sister will remember and do her tiny bit the tenth of December and bring something that will in time, when added to another's mite go to make some one's Christmas a little more Christmasy.

It doesn't take a big article from each one, some little thing that is useful that can be sold for a few

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.— (AP) — The flames of speculative enthusiasm, fanned by the 4-for-1 split-up of General Electric stock, leapt up anew in today's stock market, reaching new heights for the post-crash period.

The recasting of the capital structure of such a premier industrial enterprise as General Electric, projected at this time, was regarded in many quarters as conclusive evidence of the faith of Wall street's most powerful banking interests in the revival of the stock market.

Furthermore, this action was widely interpreted as foreshadowing the splitting up of several other leading high-priced stocks sponsored by the Morgan interests. Although the economic value of stock split-ups has been the subject of considerable criticism, particularly during the recent market crisis, Wall street knows from experience that split-ups tend to broaden the market for stock and lead to larger dividend payments and an announcement of one seldom fails to engender bullish enthusiasm.

The market showed considerable hesitancy during the early transactions, but soon pointed upward, and with the General Electric announcement, an upsurge in leading stocks got under way, carrying scores of shares up from 2 to nearly 25 points. A little profit taking appeared in the final transactions, but failed to make serious inroads into the day's gains. Total sales were 4,714,800 shares, a new high level since the recent return of normalcy.

Business news was of a moderately favorable character. Julius H. Barnes, chairman of President Hoover's newly organized economic council, warned against "excessive optimism." The American Iron and Steel Institute estimated that steel ingot production in November sank to a new level for the year, mills operating at 68.90 per cent of rated capacity, compared to 87.05 per cent in the same period of 1928. This, however, had been largely discounted. The weekly trade reviews pointed to a large volume of retail trade, apparently larger than that of last year at this time. Wholesale trade and manufacturing activity, however, remained quiescent, although sentiment appeared to have improved considerably. Dividend rates were increased on Allis Chalmers and Reynolds Tobacco.

Money rates were slightly firmer, although the new treasury financing at 3 1-8 per cent, the lowest in two years, offered gratifying evidence of the complete return to normalcy in money conditions in the past two months. Yesterday's increase of 1-8 of one per cent in bankers acceptance rates by two dealers was accepted by the general trade today. Call money held officially at 4 1-2 per cent, and time money, while extremely dull, was nominally quoted a little higher at 4 3-4 per cent flat.

General Electric shot up nearly 25 points to 257, and closed at 254. At the top it was nearly 20 points above the low reached a few weeks ago. U. S. Steel, after fluctuating uncertainly during the major part of the session, surged up more than 7 points to 173 in the last hour.

Allied Chemical rose approximately 14 points, Eastman Kodak 12, Westinghouse Electric 10, DuPont 9, and each share in American Telephone, American Can, American and Foreign Power, Johns Manville, Chesapeake and Ohio, Commercial Solvents, American Smelting, Erie, International Harvester, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, and Union Pacific rose 3 to 6 points. Tobacco stocks turned sluggish with the retail price cutting in the New York area. American Machine and Foundry lost nearly 5 points in realizing, and Delaware and Hudson sagged 2.

Commodity markets were steady to firm. Wheat moved up about a cent on colder weather and firmer cash markets, and corn sold 1-2 cent higher. Cotton futures, however, were barely steady, closing 15 to 70 cents a bale lower.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.— (AP)—Broadening out of European demand for United States wheat put more backbone into Chicago wheat values today, especially during the last hour. Talk was prevalent that domestic stocks of wheat in the west soon would need to be drawn upon for shipments from eastern ports. United States No. 2 hard winter wheat at the Gulf of Mexico was reported today as having been disposed of abroad on the best basis this season.

Closing quotations on wheat here were unsettled but 1-2 to 1 1-4 a bushel above yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-2 to 3-4 cents advanced, and oats 1-8 off to 1-8 cents up, with provisions varying from 7s decline to an equal gain.

Wheat traders took increasing notice today of export developments, and showed a disposition to minimize the effect of figures pointing to large immediate supplies. In this connection, the circumstance was pointed out as significant that British estimates of 10,000,000 bushels more of an Argentina new crop exportable surplus of wheat than other authorities predict were based largely on a forecast of 17,400,000 acres remaining for harvest, whereas the Argentina government forecast was 16,200,000 acres. Such conflicting advices did much to make the market here unusually irregular in the first part of the day, and so too, did the fact that overseas quotations failed to maintain early unlooked for upturns, Liverpool closing today at 1-8 pence to 1 5-8 pence net decline.

Toward the last, however, a scarcity of offerings of wheat future deliveries became apparent here, previous sellers having switched generally to the buying side of the market as evidence piled up that liberal sized export dealings in domestic winter wheat were under way. United States No. 2 hard winter wheat available for trans-Atlantic shipment from eastern ports was said to have commanded as much as nine cents a bushel over Chicago May delivery and yet was actually cheaper than poor quality Argentina wheat. It also was asserted that only 21,000,000 bushels of domestic wheat now at tide-waters was available for export.

Corn and oats were governed mainly by the action of wheat. Prospects of rain or snow throughout the greater part of the corn belt tended further to lift corn values in the last part of the day.

cents. Then that money will be given to a committee who will see that a worthy family will benefit by our tiny mite.

Many will want to exchange gifts at this meeting for the January meeting will be past Christmas time. So come and bring your offerings and have a merry Christmas meeting. Some may prefer to bring vegetables, jellies or something directly for the basket or baskets which ever we happened to be able to fill. If so bring them, as the money can then be used for some other articles for the baskets.

And at the January meeting we'll all be pleased to hear all about the baskets, what was put in them and where they went. It will be then that we will wish we did more. So before it is too late, "do."

I hope you all enjoy yourselves. I don't expect to be there as one of my children has the chicken-pox and a bad arm. But my mite will be there.

So I wish all sisters a Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

GEORGETTE (Club 2)

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: Don't forget the change in date of our Club 6's Corner meeting this month. It will be at Mechanic's hall Westerly, Dec. 11.

Please bring own dishes and something for the table.

Each one is expected to bring a tencent present. I hope to see a good crowd and good weather. I am sending a recipe for a pudding that is very good. You can add more fruit if you like. It makes a very good dessert for children.

Graham Pudding: 2½ cups of graham flour, 1 cup of molasses, 1 cup sweet milk or sour, 1 cup raisins, chopped, 2 teaspoons soda, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 of salt; steam 3 hours. Serve with a hard sauce. COONIE.

COLUMBIA

At the meeting of the grange Wednesday evening, the programme was furnished by the defeated "evens" of the competitive program of the last meeting. A sketch by several of the grange sisters purporting to be a meeting of the recently formed Young Married Women's club gave several interesting items in regard to some of the "odds". Mrs. Ruth Jacobs gave a short sketch showing what effect the radio has on some housewives. Several songs were given and two contests were held between the odds and evens. After the grange closed, supper was served, that being the penalty of the "evens" for losing in the competitive program. Menu cards cleverly designed were provided. After the supper the odds gave a cheer for the wonderful time the evens had given them. At the next meeting the grange will have a Christmas program.

Dwight A. Lyman attended the farewell dinner given to Clifton L. Sherman, retiring editor of the Hartford Times, at the Hotel Bond Tuesday night. The dinner was given by the Hartford Press club, Mr. Lyman was the guest of the club and James P. Mustard, of Willimantic, was Mr. Lyman's guest.

Mrs. Joseph Hutchins and little son of Washington, D C., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hutchins.

There was no session Monday afternoon of the local schools, the teachers attending a teachers' meeting.

About 8 inches of snow fell Monday and after two days has melted hardly at all, as the thermometer has kept well below the freezing point most of the time.

The Young Married Women's club met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Raymond Lyman, with 13 members present.

Chestnut Hill, Stephen Kozak, Francis Hutchins Eva Berkowitz, Helen Zmutski, Myron and Celia Berkowitz, Irving Tennenbaum, Arthur Zenowitz, and Milton Tomchin. This school has only 10 pupils, only one failing in perfect attendance for the month.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Great Disappointment

Schemes as you will, as like as not,
The unforeseen will spoil the plot.
—Reddy Fox.

The best of plans will sometimes fail. Probably you have found that out. I know I have. So have Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy. Reddy hadn't had a doubt in his mind that within a very short time he would have one of those turkeys. From his hiding-place he could see them slowly working up toward the tree where they were in the habit of roosting. It was getting toward shadow-time. Reddy stole along behind an old wall until he was as near as he could get to those turkeys. All he was waiting for now was the sound of that dog barking on the trail of Mrs. Reddy as she led him away. He waited and waited. There was no sound. He couldn't see the barnyard from where he was, so he didn't dare move toward those turkeys. What could have happened? Still he waited, growing more and more impatient.

Suddenly there was a sound of big wings. The big gobbler had flown up in the apple tree. One by one all the other turkeys flew up. There was to be no turkey dinner that night. If ever there was a disgusted fox in all this Great World, it was Reddy Fox. And, of course, he blamed Mrs. Reddy. Sometow, Mrs. Reddy had failed. She must have. He wished then that he had chosen to go lead the dog away.

Reddy glared hungrily up at the turkeys. There was a lot of low talk among them. There was a lot of shifting positions to make themselves comfortable; and there wasn't a thing that Reddy could do. Finally he stole back the way he had come. Mrs. Reddy was waiting for him. She wore as disappointed a look on her face as he did on his.

"What are you doing here?" snapped Reddy.

"Waiting for you," replied Mrs. Reddy meekly.

"What happened?" asked Reddy. "I waited and waited for the sound of that dog and I waited in vain."

"I know it," replied Mrs. Reddy.

"You see, although I hurried as fast as I could, by the time I got around the corner of that barn, that dog had gone in the barn and he didn't come out. There wasn't a thing I could do. And then the farmer came out of the house, so there was nothing for me then but to dodge out of sight. It was just our hard luck. But the turkeys are still there and we can try again."

The big gobbler had flown up in the apple tree

"Yes," said Reddy, "the turkeys are still there—twelve of them. I counted them. And they are going to stay right up in that tree until morning. Now what are we going to do?"

"Go hunt meadow mice," replied practical Mrs. Reddy, "and then try again tomorrow. There is nothing else to do that I can see."

"I suppose you're right," grumbled Reddy. "Well, let's go hunt for those mice. My stomach is so empty that I've got to have something in it pretty soon."

Now, there is one thing about the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows that we humans might profit by. They don't waste time thinking about disappointments. They have so many of them that perhaps they are used to them. Reddy and Mrs. Reddy went to hunt mice and said no more about their disappointment in not having a turkey dinner. And they planned to try the same scheme again. It had proved a failure this time, but the next time they might have better luck.

DAYVILLE

THE KENNEDY HOME SOLD TO DANIELSON PURCHASER

An important transfer of property was made this week when the large and fine home of Mrs. F. S. Kennedy, on Main street, was sold to Mrs. Susie Hopkins, of Danielson.

Mrs. N. Lorne Greig and Mrs. William Swainson, members of a regional committee, attended a business meeting of the Council of Congregational Women of Connecticut at Putnam this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hughes, of Waterloo, N. Y., are spending a few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Alvord.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hillman, of Providence, were recent callers on John Jaegar.

The Congregational Ladies' society conducted a very successful sale and supper Thursday.

Mrs. Ida J. Field returned Wednesday from a visit with her son at Rochester, N. Y.

OBITUARY

Mrs. William Parker

Mrs. William Parker, 53 who died at the Day Kimball hospital Thursday morning, was born in Millbury Mass., but for the last 20 years had resided here. She had been in poor health for a number of years. Three weeks ago she was taken to the hospital when her condition had become serious. She was well known and highly esteemed in the community and was a proven friend to the sick and the needy. She will be greatly missed.

Among the visitors at the Congregational supper were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burdick, Miss Emily Mann, Mrs. Blackmar and her niece, of Danielson, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hughes, of Putnam.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Denham Arnold and Mrs. Emma Harrington learn with regret that they have moved from Elmville to Manchester, N. H., where Mr. Arnold is now employed.

Coeds are outnumbered almost two to one by men at the University of Missouri, which has 4,035 students, its greatest enrollment.

KOZIOL TAKES CLOSE VERDICT FROM LEDOUX; BROUILLARD KAYOES RUSSO

Al Koziol, the Norwich Cyclone battered his way to a close decision over Leo Ledoux of Worcester in a gruelling eight round bout, the final on the all star card of the Shyma club at Parish hall last night. Koziol's aggressiveness and his slashing whirlwind finish in the last two rounds overcoming the lead that Ledoux had accumulated in the early rounds of the bout. The decision was far from popular with the spectators who booed Referee Jack Conway for several minutes after the close of the bout.

In the second star bout Dynamite Lou Brouillard of Danielson knocked out Joe Russo of Westerly, Rhode Island welterweight champion, in the fifth round of a terrific slugging match. Brouillard gave away five pounds to the Westerly lad and then gave him a terrific pasting for four rounds before polishing him off.

The Tourain-Shea bout proved to be a frost and ended in the first round when Shea went down for the count before two minutes of the round had elapsed. Pat Shea, said to be from Hartford, came into the ring in poor shape being soft and fatty, and unable to take any punishment at all. Alex Tourain of New Haven landed solidly only twice during the round and it was enough for Shea. A right to the stomach sent Shea down for the count.

The opener was another brief bout lasting a little over two minutes. Young Lizzio of Westerly was floored in the latter part of the round and although not hurt took a nine count but was slow in jumping to his feet and Referee Conway declared him out for reasons of his own.

Koziol Has Tough Battle

Al Koziol today knows he was in one whale of a battle last night. The Norwich boy took plenty to give just a little more and better out a decision over Ledoux who beat him in Providence two months ago. Ledoux, a rugged and clever jabber had a nasty right cross that smashed solidly against Koziol's jaw in the early rounds. Ledoux after the fifth round missed this damaging right and Koziol began to pick up the points that he had dropped in the other rounds.

Ledoux kept his left hand in Koziol's face continually during the early rounds, the local lad seeming unable to get away from it. A right cross to the mouth in the third round loosened Koziol's bridge work and several teeth bounced across the ring. Koziol fought the same boring fight for which he is noted but it seemed that he was a little wilder and punches lacked some of their steam. In the sixth round Koziol began to land cleaner punches and blows that slowed the Worcester boy, and he took the round by a slight margin. Coming from his corner like a wildman Koziol tore into Ledoux in the seventh and ripped stiff jolts to the head and body. Ledoux was pretty much shaken and he was bleeding from the mouth. Koziol had Ledoux hanging on as the bell stopped the round. Continuing his attack in the eighth Koziol had Ledoux again in a daze but could not connect solidly enough to put him away. In the last three rounds Koziol overcame the lead and earned a point or two that gave him the verdict. The decision was very unpopular with the cash customers and some of those that weren't. Koziol won by the Connecticut point system but would have lost had the bout been scored according to the number of rounds won.

Brouillard Too Tough For Russo

The Brouillard-Russo bout was good of everything except solid punching and there was plenty of that. Brouillard started punching after feeling out Russo in the first round and continued punching until he had Russo face down on the canvas in the fifth round. Russo hit hard but his blows lacked the steam to slow up the Danielson boy who mixed a deceptive shift with just enough cleverness to keep out of range of Russo's haymakers.

Shea Out of Condition

Pat Shea of Hartford, alleged junior welterweight, proved a very poor substitute for Johnny Kop, against Alex Tourain of New Haven. All Shea had was a pair of trunks and pair of shoes and a pair of boxing gloves that he didn't know what to do with. Tourain took the poor substitute by storm, slapped him a few times in the face without little or no return and then drove a solid smash to the midriff and Shea called it an evening's work. Many thought that Shea quit but it was learned afterward that he had been hurt by the blow in the stomach. Shea was entirely out of condition and had no business in any ring. It is those things that put gray hairs in the heads of promoters.

Darr Loses Close Verdict

Vic Darr, local boy, lost a hard fought battle with a clever Worcester lad, Ero Peterson, by just a hair. Peterson was a smart boxer and peppered Darr as he came in but Darr gave the visitor to Taftville plenty in return. In the second round Darr was at his best setting Peterson down in one corner for a count of nine. Peterson weathered the storm and came back strong in the other rounds although Darr tore in hard in the closing stanza striving for a knockout.

Conway Pulls a Fast One

Referee Jack Conway pulled a fast one on Young Lizzio of Westerly when terminated this bout in the first round giving Freddie Nell of Worcester a knockout victory. Young Lizzio, who is easy to through off balance, went down in the first round under a smacking left apparently little hurt. He took what he supposed was a nine count rest. As Conway counted time Young started to get to his feet and as Conway's hand swung down for the tenth count he jumped erect. Conway ruled that Lizzio was out much to the disgust of Lizzio as well as the fans.

A crowd of nearly 300 saw the show which was a good one although marred in two places by things that were no fault of the management.

PLACE COCHET AND LACOSTE FIRST IN FRENCH TENNIS

PARIS, Dec. 6—(AP)—The French tennis ranking committee issued a new list for the 1929 campaign tonight, with Henri Cochet and Rene Lacoste grouped together in first place. Jean Borotra was third and Christian Boussus and Jacques Brugnon were tied for fourth.

In the women's ranking, Madame Mathieu was first, followed by Madame Lafaurie, Madame Bordes and Madame Chenadel in that order. Mesdemoiselles Barbier, Neufend, and Metaxa were grouped together in fifth place.

BOSTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The Boston Braves will open their training season at St. Petersburg, Fla., on February 26, according to an announcement made today by club officials. The first spring game will be played on March 2 with the New York Yankees, who will also train at that resort.

It was also announced that James Neary would succeed Dr. Earle Painter as trainer with John J. McPartland as his assistant.

VON PORAT AND SCOTT IN FEATURE BOUT AT GARDEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The way was cleared today to put three great heavyweights in Madison Square Garden's ring at one and the same time next Monday night.

Two of the heavyweights, Otto Von Porat of Norway and Phil Scott of England, will be combatants in the feature bout of the big charity boxing card at the Garden. The other, if present plans materialize, will be Jack Dempsey, former title-holder, who will act as referee.

Dempsey, now a promoter in the game he once dominated, was granted a referee's license today by the New York state athletic commission. Under a commission rule, the referee can not be named until a few moments before the bout which he is to handle. Notwithstanding this regulation, officials of the show, arranged for the Christmas fund of which Mrs. William Randolph Heart is chairman, declared Dempsey already has been chosen to referee the main bout.

Provided the plan goes through, it will mark Dempsey's first appearance as a referee of a major bout.

Scott and Von Porat, two of the leading contenders for the vacant heavyweight throne, were reported in excellent condition after final workouts today. Von Porat probably will enter the ring a favorite, chiefly because of his tremendous punching power but Scott, one of the cleverest big men in the ring, will not lack for supporters.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL SWIMMING TEAM HOLDS FIRST TRYOUT

The first tryout for the grammar school swimming team was held yesterday afternoon in the swimming pool of the local Y. M. C. A. Considerable interest has been shown in this activity which is a new phase in the physical education program for the younger boys who are in grammar schools in the city.

Starting early in the season, teaching the boys various strokes which include the breast, side, back and crawl strokes, it is hoped that, with several weeks of team practice a mediocre team will represent the Y. M. C. A. in meets. A program of events has been made up as follows: Breast stroke 20 yds., crawl stroke 20 yds., back stroke 20 yds., and free style stroke 40 yds. These make up the sprints and dashes. Diving, the most popular of the events in which the most interest has been shown will be the front, back, jack and two optional dives.

It is expected when the boys turn out for the next practice several more will put in their appearance. Those that were out yesterday were: Chester Pavalok, Stewart Parmlee, George Baker, Edward Hastings, Raymond Hotchkiss, Murley Mero, John Riordan, William Riordan, John Bellicchi, Constandine Malrogrides, Joseph Evans, Charles Rogers and Gustave Sandberg.

INDOOR TRACK SEASON AT N. F. A. OPENS JAN. 8

The Academy's indoor track campaign will open Wednesday, Jan. 8, at the state armory with a three cornered meet with Suffield Prep and Chapman Tech. This will be the first of a 12 meet slate.

On that date, Coach John P. Murphy has hopes of bringing an outstanding performer in the track world as a feature attraction for the meet. For the opening meet it is expected that Bernie McCaffery, of the New York A. C., world's record holder at 600 metres, or Jimmy Quinn, former Holy Cross spring star, will be the choice. The Holy Cross college relay team is also to be seen here at some time during the year.

The Academy's new school band will make its first appearance at this opening track meet. Work on getting the armory into shape will be started soon. A squad of about 30 's at present working out at the armory, having started practice last Monday.

Meets are pending with Springfield, Hartford, New Haven and other schools of the larger cities in addition to Chapman Tech and Windham of the locals.

Invitation events for local amateur runners are also to be included in the meets during the season.

INVITATION GOLF TOURNEY IN NORWICH, JULY 17 TO 20

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Dec. 6.—(AP)—The New Britain Herald today will say that at a meeting of the executive committee of the Connecticut Golf association in New Haven last night, the following program for 1930 was drafted:

Championship playoff:

Wampanoag club, West Hartford, and Hartford Golf club, June 23 to 26.

Amateur tourneys:

Shore Haven, June 17; Shuttle Meadow, July 8; Waterbury, Country club, July 21; Race Brook, August 7; Woodway, August 14; Middletown, August 28.

Invitation tournaments:

Norwich, July 17 to 20; Shenecossett, July 24 to 27; New Haven Country club, August 21 to 23; Brooklawn, August 25 to 28.

The New England championships will be played at Portland, Me., August 4 to 7, inclusive.

Pretty good at that, weren't they, with the exception of the first and the third bouts.

Didja ever see such feeling at a fight in Norwich as there was in that Koziol-Ledoux bout? Gosh, some times I thought the fans would climb right into the ring.

Believe me, it's too bad some of these spectators, who get all het up and know just what should be done, aren't allowed to hop right up in that ring and show their stuff.

Some of the fans seriously doubted the wisdom of Jack Conway's verdict in the Koziol bout. But it was a small majority that understand the Connecticut point system.

Under this system a boy may take the majority of the rounds yet get so badly beaten in two or three that he may lose by a point or two. This was what happened last night.

One of the most excited men at the ringside was Barney Keenan, the trainer-manager of Koziol. Barney felt every one of those blows that Ledoux landed and at times even appeared disgusted when Koziol missed what looked like a sucker shot. Barney's a good old warhorse and takes real interest in his boy.

While Koziol was battering out his victory a new baby brother arrived at the Koziol home on Laurel Hill avenue. The new brother makes twelve children in the Koziol family, five boys and seven girls.

The new bleachers erected over the stage at the hall sure were appreciated and took a big crowd out of the aisles and from around the wall. There were fewer cases of gate-crashing than at the last show.

The show was run in a very orderly manner and the Shyma club have the continued support of the boxing fans. It was too bad that Shea was in such poor shape but it was no fault of the management.

ADOPTS HANDS OFF POLICY FOR ATHLETES IN SCHOOLS

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 6—(AP)—As the National Association of Professional Baseball Club leagues closed its 28th annual convention today, it told the colleges and schools of the United States that it would adopt a hands off policy for athletes seeking education and would be content to sign them for professional baseball when they have laid their books aside.

The convention went on record as "deprecating," invasion of halls of education while students still are occupied with affairs of learning.

Before the baseball men left for their homes they passed resolutions of tribute to the memory of two league presidents and four club executives who have died during the year. The death list since the last convention included the names of John Conway Toole, president of the International league; J. D. Roberts, president of the Texas league. J. A. Perry, president of the Indianapolis club; Henry J. Killilea, president of the Milwaukee club; Paul A. Lagrave, business manager of the Forth Worth club and George T. Stallings, manager of the Montreal club.

Another manager was named today. Tulsa of the Western league appointing Albert (Bruno) Betzel, former manager of the Indianapolis club and a former major league infielder with the St. Louis Cardinals. Tulsa also sold Doc Smith, a catcher, to Williamsport, of the New York-Pennsylvania.

The association, in frowning on interference by professional baseball with school and college athletes, declared in a resolution that it is the "sense of this association that any attempt on the part of organized baseball to induce directly, or indirectly, any college or school boy athlete to sign a contract or give an option on his services for pay while he still is enrolled or in the process of his education at any institution of learning should be deprecated."

Wamby Sold to New Orleans

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 6—(AP)—William A. Wambsganss, better known to baseball as Bill Wamby, has been sold by the Kansas City club of the American Association to the New Orleans club of the Southern association, George Muehlebach, owner of the Kansas City club wired the Star tonight from the baseball meeting at Chattanooga, Tenn. Wamby is an infielder.

TWO TEAMS TIED IN SIX DAY BICYCLE RACE AT 10 P. M.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)— A series of jams tonight shook up the standing in New York's 47th international six day bicycle race and left the French team of Alf Letourner and Paul Brocardo and the Belgian-Italian team of Franco Georgetti and Gerard Debaets tied for the lead at 10 p. m., 121st hour of the race.

With 18,000 wildly cheering fans looking on, the Brocardo-Letourner and Georgetti-Debaets combinations lapped the field during the nightly sprints and gained a joint hold on the lead they had shared previously with two other teams, Beckman and Winter, and McNamara and Belloni. At 10 o'clock the leaders had covered 1866 miles, 9 laps, more than 500 miles behind the record of 2367 miles, 7 laps, set by Moran and McNarama in 1914.

Y SENIORS PLAY AT GREENWICH THIS EVENING

The Y Seniors start out in their hunt for the state Y. M. C. A. championship this evening at Greenwich. The local boys will start on the long trip from the local Y at 1 o'clock this afternoon, arriving in Greenwich in plenty of time for thef ray, unless some unforeseen happening occurs.

Those to make the trip are Coach Lemarest, Manager Leffingwell, Capt. Harris, Brown, Pingree, Eccleston, Ludlow, Grebe and Lynch. Leffingwell and Brown will start at forwards, Harris at center and Pingree and Eccleston at guards.

KAUFMAN LOSES TO FLOWERS BY TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT

DETROIT, Dec. 6.— (AP) —Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., won a technical knockout over Pinkey Kaufman, Bridgeport, Conn., in the sixth round of a scheduled ten-round bout at Iympia tonight. Kaufman's seconds threw in a towel after about one minute of fighting in the sixth round when the Bridgeport fighter plainly could not carry on.

Flowers weighed 136 and Kaufman 140

PITTSBURGH CHOSEN AS OPPONENT FOR TROJANS IN NEW YEARS GAME

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—(AP)—On the historical turf of the Pasadena Rose Bowl the University of Pittsburgh, carrying the football banner of the east, and the University of Southern California, representative of the west, will meet New Year's day for the mythical gridiron honors of the United States, it was announced today.

Invitation of the powerful Panther team, undefeated and united in an outstanding football campaign of the east, and its acceptance was made known by the Southern California Trojans following selection of their team on Tuesday by the Rose Bowl committee.

Pittsburgh was invited out of a field of three possible teams which also included Tulane and Tennessee. Notre Dame was eliminated because of a previous meeting with Southern California in which the Trojans lost by a one-point margin, and Purdue, champion of the Big Ten, was prohibited from playing because of a western conference ruling forbidding postseason games.

"Because of the University of Pittsburgh's outstanding showing during the past season in the east," Gwynn Wilson, general manager of athletics at the Trojan institution said, "The University of Southern California is pleased to learn that Pittsburgh has accepted our invitation to play in Pasadena on New Year's day."

"I do not believe any more worthy representative of eastern football could be selected and Pittsburgh's acceptance assures one of the greatest games of the year for the east-west contest."

For both teams it will be the second battle in the Rose Bowl. Pittsburgh with a loss to recoup and Southern California with one victory to protect. In 1927 Pittsburgh met the Stanford Cardinals and was defeated 7 to 6. In 1923 Southern California locked with Penn State and emerged with a 14 to 3 victory.

The New Year's day game which dates back to 1916, is played annually as the climax to the picturesque Tournament of Roses in the fashionable Los Angeles suburb. Last year it brought together the University of California and Georgia Tech, the eastern eleven winning, 8 to 7.

The impending battle matches two of the country's leading college teams. Pittsburgh has swept through a great season without defeat or tie, while Southern California's record is darkened by two defeats, one by the University of California 15 to 7, and another by the peerless Notre Dame team 13 to 12.

It also will see two noted ends, Tappanan or U. S. C., and Donchess of Pittsburgh, both popular All-American selections facing each other. Another interesting angle to the contest will be the outcome on December 14 of Southern California's battle here with Carnegie Tech. Pittsburgh won handily over the Tech school.

Southern California was chosen for the western honors over St. Mary's which had an undefeated record but a scoreless tie with the University of California. California, which shared the championship of the Pacific coast conference with the Trojans, Stanford and Oregon, withdrew from consideration. Stanford twice was defeated by the Trojans and Santa Clara while California was whipped by Stanford.

THREE PITT MEN NOW LOST TO EAST IN CHARITY GAME

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 6—(AP)—Announcement that Pittsburgh had accepted an invitation to meet Southern California in the Rose Bowl football feature New Year's will necessitate a revision of the East's lineup for the charity game with the West at San Francisco. Andy Kerr of Colgate, coach of the East's all star array, said tonight.

Joe Donchess, Ray Montgomary and Tom Parkinson of Pittsburgh's unbeaten eleven had accepted invitations to play with the East in the event that Pitt did not schedule a post-season game.

Among the men eligible for places made vacant by Pitts Southern California bookings are: Nelson Munson, and Captain Bud Edwards, Brown; Stahley, Penn State; Captain Glenn and Lang, West Virginia; Melanson, Villa Nova; Morris, Haverford; Schulte, Temple; Captain Sherwood, Lafayette; Jones and Woerner, Bucknell

PITT SQUAD LEAVES FOR CALIFORNIA ABOUT DEC. 20

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Two Pittsburgh college football elevens will oppose Southern California on the west coast as a result of the University of Pittsburgh having been invited to participate in the Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena, Cal., on New Year's day, Carnegie Tech and the Trojans will play at Los Angeles Dec. 14, as a part of the regular schedule of the two schools.

The Tech squad will leave here tomorrow for Los Angeles, and it is expected the Golden Panthers will entrain about Dec. 20. Sutherland's undefeated eleven will resume practice for the Roses game early next week and rehearsals will be held en route as the Panthers travel in easy stages toward California.

Both the Carnegie and Pitt squads are reported in good condidition for the far western engagements.

Pitt participated in the Tournament of Roses game in 1927, losing to Stanford, 7 to 6.

GENE TUNNEY INTRODUCED FROM RING AT GREENWICH

GREENWICH, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, retired world heavyweight champion, stepped into the ring tonight, but not in fight togs.

He was introduced by Billy Gibson, his former manager, to 1,000 fans who attended the charity fund exhibition fight program sponsored by the Lions club.

Tunney told the fans that it seemed strange to step into the ring in the role of a non-combatant and said that he was "terribly embarrassed to get into a ring in such an unfamiliar atmosphere." He added, however, that it was best to be an "ordinary spectator" since it saved him from "getting hurt mentally and physically."

The main bout brought together Mickey Genarp, Waterbury, state junior lightweight champion, and Joe Curry, of New York. Curry won the decision in the ten-round bout.

Tunney, who was accompanied by his brother-in-law, George Lauder, Jr., did not stay for the entire program.

CARRIGAN MAY NOT RETURN AS MANAGER OF RED SOX

BOSTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Bill Carrigan, in Boston for a few hours today, stated that he had not yet decided about returning as manager of the Boston Red Sox next season. He informed Robert Quinn, the Red Sox president, that he would make his decision within the next ten days.

Carrigan, who has wide business interests in Lewiston, Me., told Quinn that since the close of the baseball season he has been so busy that he has been unable to give much thought to his baseball plans. Early in the fall, he told Quinn that he was not enthusiastic about continuing as manager of the Red Sox and disliked spending so much time on the, road.

SHEFFLOT IS RESERVED BY COLUMBUS TEAM

Included in the list of players reserved for the Columbus Senators of the American association is the name of George Sheflot, of New London, former Bulkeley high school star. Sheflot is a catcher and was sent to Columbus by the Philadelphia Phillies on option last spring.

Sheflot saw considerable service for a rookie the past season, sharing the catching burden with two veterans, Mickey Devine and Ginger Shinault. Now that the Phils need a catcher since the death of Lerin, some have pointed out that Sheflot may be carried in 1930.

STRIBLING MEETS CARNERA TONIGHT IN RETURN BOUT

PARIS, Dec. 6—(AP)—Whether Primo Carnera is a real heavyweight champion prospect or merely a six foot 10 inches, 265 pound second rater may be determined when the giant Italian meets Young Stribling in a return ten round bout at the Velodrome D'Hiver tomorrow.

The result of the bout in London on November 18, when the American heavyweight lost on a foul in the fourth round after outpointing the Italian mastodon throughout the ten minutes of fighting was regarded as unsatisfactory.

SEVEN MORE PLAYERS NEEDED TO FILL WEST'S ALLOTMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6—(AP)—Two more names were added today to the list of players who have accepted invitations to represent the west in the East-West football game here New Year's day. Shrine officials announced that Sloane, Nebraska half back and Gording Brown, University of Texas tackle had signified their intention of joining the western eleven.

With the acceptance of these two, only seven of the West's allotment of 22 players remain unsigned.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6—(AP)—Championship hopes of Walter Hagen crashed on the fairways of Hillcrest today when the colorful wanderer of golfdom bowed to the superior play of Leo Diegel, defending title holder, 3 and 2, in the semi-finals of the National Professional Golfers' association tournament.

While Diegel met and matched the challenge of Hagen, Johnny Farrell of New York cruised through his test to eliminate Al Watrous, Detroit, 6 and 5. Smiling Johnny fought back from the brink of defeat yesterday, when he came from behind to nose out Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. J., on the 37th, but his conquest today was made with little exertion.

He faces Diegel tomorrow in the 36 hole finals.

Seeking his sixth P. G. A. title, Hagen saw his chances sweep away before a rush of pars and birdies that streaked from the clubs of his keenest rival—the same rival who a year ago eliminated him from the ranks of contenders. Diegel shot subpar golf; Hagen par. It is the answer to the advance of the slender pro from Agua Caliente, Mexico and the reversal of a challenger who now holds the British open title; has twice sat on the national open throne and five times in the past has ruled the roost in the P. G. A. circles.

Diegel toured the Hillcrest Country club course in 68 in this morning's round to lead his opponent two up, at the half way point. Hagen shot a respectable par 71. Two times in the two rounds, "breaks" aided Diegel and necessarily worked against "The Haig." One down at the seventh, Diegel captured the eighth to square the match with a par 4 to Hagen's six. Diegel's ball was headed for some brush but glanced off a spectator's heel and bounded back toward the green. He chipped up nicely and putted in. Meanwhile, Hagen found a trap, had a poor out and missed a putt to take a six.

The 21st hole brought Diegel a three up lead after he had hooked his drive into a fence and the ball had bounded back into the fairway. He eventually rosted a birdie three to Hagen's four.

Hagen won back the 22nd and 23rd to become one down but that was as close as he ever came to squaring up the match in the afternoon. Diegel took the 25th and 26th to go three up again and at the 29th he boosted his lead to four up. The "Haig" made one desperate rally and won back the 31st and 33rd. Two up and three to play, he was unable to equal Diegel's par three on the 34th and lost 3 and 2, the same score that he lost to Diegel in 1928.

Farrell played steady, although not spectacular golf to pile up a three hole lead over Watrous at the end of the morning round. They were all square at the ninth but Farrell won the tenth, 13th and 14th on the incoming trip. Watrous took the fifteenth but Farrell came back with a birdie four on the 18th. Farrell shot 73 and Watrous 74 in the first round.

Watrous' game cracked on the third nine and Farrell proceeded to pick off five holes to reach the 27th, eight up. Farrell shot par for the nine and his opponent went up to 40. After halving the 28th Watrous rallied to win the 29th and 30th but halved the 31st hole and saw his chances swept away, six and five.

Par out: .....434 543 443—35
Par in: .....443 454 345—36

Morning out:

POETRY

New Horizons

Never was there path our childhood used to roam
So long it led not in the evening home;
Nor would the magic of the unknown trail
Prevail against the hearth that called us back.
Over the same hill-tops, wild-rose or gray,
Our evening and our twilight always lay;
And when the night fell all the unknown stars
Grew homely shining through our window bars.
Now we have fared to the country o'er the hill,
And unknown journeys lie beyond us still:—
Ways unadventured, countless paths to roam,
But none that leads us in the evening home.
Onward, not homeward, some adventure calls
With every dawn, and every evening falls
Over new horizons, wild-rose or gray,
And old stars shining on the unknown way.
Strange look and far not those we saw of old
Safe moored in haven skies above our fold.

White Lies

The lies I've told, as I look back,
Seem not so very bad.
Some I have told to try to cheer
My friends when they were sad;
And when I've met an ailing one
Whose outstretched hand I shook,
I have exclaimed, defying Truth:
"By George, how well you look!"
I've often asked of folks I know:
"How do you keep so young?"
Now should a love for truth have put
A bridle on my tongue?
And I confess I've brought myself
Even to go so far
As to tell mothers I have met:
"How sweet your children are!"
Such lies as these I must admit
I have quite often told.
And I expect to tell some more
If I live to be old.
Such lies as these sometimes make life
Much easier to live,
And, lacking malice, are they not Quite easy to forgive?

GREENEVILLE

On Thursday afternoon the Ladies' Guild of St. Andrew's Episcopal church were entertained at the home of Mrs. Edward R. Risley of Twelfth street. Regular business was transacted and special plans were made for the annual Christmas sale and supper. After the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Risley.

Surprise Party Held

A surprise birthday party was held Thursday evening at the home of Merrill Redhead of Central avenue with twenty invited guests present. Games were played during the evening. Guests were present from Willimantic, Jewett City and Saybrook. Lawrence Willard and John Kilcullum gave an exhibition of the latest steps in dancing. Pino Quinn and Richard McNeil rendered several solos in a very pleasing manner. Refreshments were served, consisting of assorted sandwiches, cakes, cookies, fruit candy, ice cream, wafers, and hot chocolate. In the centre of the dining room table was placed a large birthday cake with 16 candles.

Miss Jane Suplicki, a student at Willimantic State Normal school, is spending the week end recess with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Suplicki of Golden street.

UNDER ARREST FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

When automobiles driven by Robert E. Kirkpatrick of Poquonnock Bridge and Charles O. Deschenes of 89 Shetucket street had collided while traveling in opposite directions on West Thames street near the fire station about 7 o'clock Friday evening, Deschenes was arrested by Officer J. E. Calkins on the charge of driving while under the influence.

He was brought to police headquarters in the motor patrol wagon and locked up for the night as he was in no condition to be released on bonds at the time. Both machines were considerably damaged.

Fire In Boiler Room

About 10:45 o'clock Friday morning the fire department was called out by telephone for a small fire in the boiler room in the lower yard of the Edward Chappell Co., No. 44 West Main street. Burning soot caused the chimney to become red hot and sparks were flying from it. There was no damage.

SUDDEN HEART ATTACK FATAL TO MAN RETURNING HOME FROM WORK

Seized with a heart attack near the Marguerite building, about 6 o'clock Friday evening, while on his way home from work at the U. S. Finishing Company's plant, Andrew Dubenetsky, 36, of No. 191 West Main street, died while being taken to the W. W. Backus hospital. When seized with the attack the man called out for help and a Jewett City autoist who was driving by at the time, took him to police headquarters.

An emergency call was sent in to Dr. James J. Donohue from police headquarters and Dr. Donohue and Dr. William Wener, house physician at the Backus hospital, who was nearby at the time, went to the station and immediately ordered the man taken to the hospital. He died on the way.

Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve conducted an investigation and pronounced death due to heart trouble. Undertakers Shea and Burke were given permission to remove the body to their rooms, where an autopsy established heart trouble as the cause of death.

Mr. Dubenetsky is survived by his wife, and five children, three sons and two daughters.

NORWICH REAL ESTATE BORD ELECTS OFFICERS

The fourth annual meeting of the Norwich real estate board was held at the office of the secretary, A. C. Burdick, in the Thayer building, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Annual reports of the secretary-treasurer, and other committees were presented, and a general survey of real estate conditions in the city and town followed.

The following were elected chairman of standing committees: Membership, Gilbert S. Raymond; publicity, Laurence E. Millea; municipal; ordinance and taxation, William F. Hill; arbitration, Louis E. Fontaine; valuation, Francis D. Donohue.

At the present time there are eleven agents who are members of the board, which was organized in 1906, for the purpose of standardizing the business of real estate in Norwich and vicinity, and to secure and hold the confidence and respect of both owners and purchasers of real estate. Membership in the board entitles each member to use the name realtor, which has been copyrighted by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, to which membership automatically becomes possible, to all members of local boards.

MAJOR JOHN MASON MADE C. A. R. SOCIETY TOPIC

The usual opening exercises were followed by the reports of the officers and chairmen of committees, and by the transaction of necessary business.

Major John Mason was the topic of the afternoon, and some account of this valiant soldier and his exploits in the Netherlands, before his removal to this country, in Dorchester, Mass., then at Windsor, Conn., with his residence in Windsor, all the stirring scenes of the Pequot war were given. This war has been called the great event of the early history of Connecticut, and the overshadowing exploit of Mason's life.

His life at Norwich and his death and burial here were touched upon, and pictures of the monument erected to Mason at Mystic, Conn., in commemoration of the Pequot war, and of the monument to Major Mason and the early settlers of Norwich, were exhibited, as also his autograph signature as a witness to the deed given by Uncas to the inhabitants of Norwich.

A rising vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Sinay for her hospitality; the hostesses for the day, assisting Mrs. Sinay, were Mrs. Frank I. Royce, Mrs. Alexander Durie, Mrs. Charles H. Standish and Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer.

The next meeting will be held on Friday, Jan. 17, at the Buckingham Memorial, with Mrs. Lester Greenman as hostess. The topic will be "Harriet M. Lothrop, Founder of the Society of Children of the American Revolution."

EARLY MORNING FIRE ON ASYLUM STREET

The fire department was called out by telephone at 2:30 o'clock Friday morning for a small fire at No. 131 Asylum street, occupied by Victor Sikowski. The occupants of the house were awakened by smoke and the call to the fire department was sent in.

It was found that a large quantity of soot had collected in the chimney and heat from the chimney caused a beam to catch fire. The beam was burned about three-quarters through when the firemen arrived.

DISMISSES WIDOW'S CLAIMS FOR WORKMEN'S COMENSATION

The workmen's compensation claim of Mrs. Mary Silva of 668 Main street, New London, against the Atlantic Coast Fisheries Corp. of Groton, for the death of her husband, Manuel Silva, has been disallowed and dismissed by Commissioner Albert J. Bailey.

While at work on Jan. 16, 1928, and engaged in handling fish, Manuel Silva received a cut in his right index finger from a saw. He resumed work in a week and continued until he died on May 2, 1928. It was the claim made by Mrs. Mrs. Silva that her husband's death was caused by blood poisoning that came from the cut in his hand, general infection extending through the body.

In his finding the commissioner says: I find from the testimony of Dr. Frank W. Hewes, the attending physician at the time of the decedent's injury, also from the testimony of Dr. Lena and Dr. Blank, who attended him the last two days of his life that he was not suffering from any infection in the hand which was injured on Jan. 16, 1928, but I do find from the testimony of the attending physician that the deceased was suffering from chronic myocarditis, and his death was not casually attributable to the injury received by him on Jan. 16, 1928.

The commissioner finds that the injured employe was not disabled beyond the waiting period after cutting his hand in January and therefore he was not entitled to any compensation for disability, but the medical bill of Dr. Hewes is one for which the respondents are liable if it has not already been paid by them.

The finding has been filed with the clerk of the superior court.

NORWICH TOWN

WORK OF THE A. M. ASS'N CONSIDERED AT MEETING

The December meeting of the League of Service of the First Congregational church, held in the chapel Friday afternoon, was opened with devotional exercises led by Mrs. Charles Barber, and a prayer by Mrs. Dwight W. Avery. The American Missionary association and its work especially that among the American indians, was the topic. The story of events which led to the forming of that society, was told by Mrs. Charles W. Chapin. A little account of the work in Dakato, and especially in Santee Normal school was given by Mrs. John L. Browning. A sketch of the Americanization work going on at the Santee school was given by Mrs. Ronald Nelson; Miss Charlotte Barbour read an interesting story of an Indian girl and her work, as told by herself; Mrs. Lovelock Holm read an article entitled, "The True' Story of Some Chestnuts," a real inspiration to sacrificial giving. Miss Susan Hyde closed the meeting with statements as to the wonderful results, if all givers would "step up" in their giving, if only ten per cent. Mrs. Charles Barber and Miss Susan Hyde served punch and cracker sandwiches during the social hour.

THE COMMUNITY TREE TO BE HELD CHRISTMAS EVE

Letters in circulation this week among the residents of the community read:

Dear Sir or Madam:

As in previous years, it has been decided by the Norwich Rural association to hold a Christmas tree celebration on the Norwich Town Green. The association is particularly anxious to make this year's Christmas eve sing a truly community event, with all who possibly can, taking part in the singing of the carols and hymns. Those who come in autos are urged to leave their machines and join the group about the tree. The hearty co-operation of members and friends will insure the success of this fine Christmas eve gathering. (Come and sing). All contributions for this purpose will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely yours,
JAMES R. MORAN,
Treasurer Christmas Tree Fund.

Noticed Big Flock Of Geese

Many Norwich Town residents observed the large flock of wild geese which flew over the town about 4:30 Friday afternoon. One person who made a hasty count, estimated that there were fully 150. At first in following the leader, the group formed a shape in the sky similar to the capital A. Later, as they disappeared from view, they appeared in the form of a straight line, flying in a southwest direction.

Missionary From China to Speak

"A New Kind of Christmas Club Needed" will be the pastor's topic at the Central Baptist church on Sunday evening. The Christmas hymns will be featured in the community sing at the beginning of the service.

Rev. A. F. Ufford of China will be the speaker at the morning service. Mr. Ufford starts back to China on the 13th, so that this will be his last Sunday in a church in the home land before his return. He is a New Englander, a native of Vermont, and is considered one of the finest of the Baptist missionaries.

TAFTVILLE

A very successful whist party and dance was given by the Army and Navy club at their rooms Thursday evening. A large crowd attended. The first prize for ladies went to Miss Loretta Gregory; the second to Mrs. St. Lawrence and the consolation to Mrs. Louis Gregory. Roderick Molleur won the gentlemen's first prize; the second going to Patrick Sullivan and the consolation to Arthur Shadlock. The club plans to have another similar affair in the near future.

At Sacred Heart church Friday evening there were devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, as is customary on the first Friday of the month.

The 1930 calendars being sent out by business firms are adding to the bulk of mail received at the local postoffice.

Friday found the youngsters of the town very much excited over the fact that Santa Claus was to make his landing in Taftville, on his trip from the North Pole today (Saturday). There will be a large crowd to welcome him at the landing field on the Old Canterbury turnpike. This is the first time that the jolly old saint has arrived by airplane, and he will be accorded a hearty welcome.

Buried beneath tons of soft coal in a bin at the Chappell Coal yards, central wharf, early Friday morning, Edward H. Brown, 49, of No. 9 Fourth street, died from suffocation. The fatal accident happened shortly after Mr. Brown went to work at 7 o'clock.

Mr. Brown was sent to a 250-ton bin to "trim" the coal so that it could be more easily loaded into trucks through the chutes. As he had failed to show up a half hour later a search for him was started. Warren Wilcox, an employe, inspected the bin but did not see the man. However, officials of the company, sensing that Brown had met with an accident, ordered the chutes opened. As the flow of coal started, a shovel appeared and later a man's hat, and then the body which was rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital in an automobile. He was dead on arrival at the hospital.

Dr. George H. Gildersleeve, assistant medical examiner, conducted an investigation It is believed that while Brown was trimming the bin the coal above and around the sides of the bin caved in on him. Undertaker C. A. Gager was given charge of the body.

Mr. Brown was a well known Greeneville resident. He was born in this city January 31, 1880, and was the son of William and Margaret Hayes Brown. He attended the local schools and in December, 1920, was united in marriage with Flora Strickland, by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of Greeneville Congregational church. Mrs. Brown died last September.

Mr. Brown was a member of the Y. M. C. A. and of the Greeneville Congregational church. He is survived by his mother, one sister, Miss Alice M. Brown, and two brothers, Louis and Allan Brown, all of this city.

COLUMBIAN COMMANDERY IS GIVEN OFFICIAL INSPECTION

Columbian commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar had one of its largest attended meetings Friday evening at the Masonic temple when Rt. Em. Grand Inspector F. Ward DeKline of Danbury made his official visit of inspection. There was an unusually large attendance of visiting Sir Knights including past commanders from Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Pennsylvania.

The work of the evening was preceded by a supper served at 6:15 and at the meeting the work was in the Red Cross degree by Commander John A. Ferguson and the commandery officers which was carried out in form that won the warm commendation of the inspecting officer.

STRAY BULLET FROM DEER HUNTER'S RIFLE

A stray bullet that entered the home of Mrs. James A. Stoddard at Long Cove, Ledyard, Friday morning apparently revealed a deer hunter's shot that missed the deer.

The bullet was from a high powered rifle and went through a window, then through the drawer of a sideboard on the opposite side of the room and was found inside the drawer. It was a steel jacketed missile, a little over an inch long.

Will Give Zoning Hearing

A hearing before the zoning board of appeals has been set for next Thursday morning on the application of John Eyberse for permission to establish a gasoline station and pumps on his premises on the Canterbury turnpike.

TRUCK DAMAGES HOME OF SERGEANT DELANEY

The residence of Police Sergeant Mathew Delaney at 161 Cliff street sustained damage of between $300 and $400 Thursday morning about 10:30 when it was struck by a motor truck of Levine Bros. which Frank Krupinski of 741 Boswell avenue, the driver, swerved sharply to avoid running over two children on a sled.

The children's sleds were crushed as they shot beneath the truck which struck a piazza in front of the house, and damaged a steam heater located in the cellar beneath the piazza. The heater was loosened from its base.

Dozen Men At Groton Barracks

Two new officers have been added to the force at the Groton state police barracks. They are John Wallin of Bridgeport, and Arthur Kathe of Preston, who have recently graduated at the state police school at Ridgefield. This brings the force at the barracks to a dozen men who are Sergeant George Webber, commandant; Officers Arthur Whitmarsh, Peter Busch, Elmer McKenzie, John Smith, Johnson, James Dygert, Donald Brown, Hill, Murphy, Wallin and Kathe.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS

Turner; council member No. 3, Mrs. Jennie Newberry; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Elizabeth Cobb.

The penny boxes for 1929 were turned in at this meeting and Mrs. Lillian Brewster won the prize for having the best filled box.

It was voted to hold the Christmas tree and entertainment this year as usual after the next regular meeting, each one bringing a small gift to be put on the tree. Refreshments will be served.

As there is to be initiation at the next meeting, it was voted to start promptly at 7:30.

ODD FELLOWS

The first of the district encampment meetings will be held with Palmyra encampment, No. 3, Thursday night, Dec. 12, with Mystic encampment of Mystic and Orion Encampment of New London attending. Supper will be served at 7 o'clock by Hope Rebekah lodge There will be no degree work as there are no candidates at present but will be sort of a get-together meeting. The next meeting will probably be held in Mystic.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich Grange, No. 172, will meet Wednesday evening, Dec. 11th. The lecturer's program will be home economics night. Norwich grange degree teams were in Pachaug Thursday evening conferring the third and fourth degrees on a large class of candidates. Norwich grange is to have two special meetings this month for the purpose of conferring degrees. Dec. 16th the first and second degrees will be conferred and on Dec. 18 the third and fourth degrees, making it possible for those desiring, to take the fifth degree on Dec. 19th at Norwich grange hall as Pomona meets with Norwich at this time.

REBEKAHS

The regular meeting of Hope Rebekah lodge No. 21, was called to order by the noble grand, Mary L. Dow. The lodge onened in due form and the regular routine of business was followed. The second nomination of officers was held. At the next meeting there is to be election of officers for the year 1930, members roll call and silver collection and there is also to be a Christmas tree and party. Each member who was not present at the last meeting is requested to bring a gift not to exceed twenty-five cents in order to exchange with another member at the party. All the children of the members are cordially invited. There is also a whist and pinochle to be held in the near future. The officers urge everybody to come to the next meeting and make a big Christmas party and show the Christmas spirit.

COMPANIONS OF THE FOREST

Nevins-Carver circle, No. 1235, held its regular meeting Monday evening with Chief Companion Marion Bjork presiding. It was voted to have a supper when the new officers are installed. Chairman Nellie Dorr announced a whist and pinochle for next week. Under new business the following were nominated for office for the next term: Chief companion, Nellie Dorr; sub chief companion, Annabell Emback; chaplain, Irene Burns; recording secretary, Teresa Watters; financial secretary, Margaret Comin; treasurer, Mabel Goldberg; right guide, Helen Ericson; left guide, Margaret Tehrholz; inside guard, Flora Gilchrist; outside guard, Ellen Smith. AMERICAN LEGION.

Plans are under way for setting into motion the project adopted by the American Legion at its convention in Louisville, whereby Legion departments in each of the United States and its four territories will send delegations in pilgrimages to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Washington.

A young woman, Miss Mary Frances Hall o Brooklyn, wafs a K. of C. worker in the war, and evolved this plan after she returned to the Unted States. Intensely interested in patriotic aand veterans' affairs, she has conducted several independent pilgrimages to the tomb.

According to her plan, each of the departments of the American Legion would have a week in the year assigned to it. They would, in that week, send a delegation to Washington to pay homage to the Unknown Soldier. The size of the delegation would be unimportant, according to Miss Hall's idea, as a single representative could place a wreath on the grave while posts in his home department were holding special ceremonies.

A special committee of the Legion is now working on plans for putting the proposal into active operation. It is hoped to have the first of the pilgrimages during the first week of the new year.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

The regular meeting of the auxiliary to Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, was held at the armory Monday, Dec. 2, with a good attendance despite the storm. The reports of the various committees were read and approved. The welfare committee reported cards sent to the ex-service men at Uncas-on-Thams for Armistice day and also baskets of fruit for Thanksgiving. Basket of fruit was also sent to a shut-in member. Several members had volunteered their services at the bank for the Red Cross drive. The auxiliary gave $5 to the fund. The president, Mrs. Francis Bogue, and secretary, Mrs. Lila Oat, were delegated to attend the officers' school and the presidents' and secretaries' luncheon at the Hotel Taft, New Haven, Dec. 7. Plans were made for a Christmas party, but the date was left until the next meeting; also several card parties were planned.

LADIES AUXILIARY A. O. H.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Ladies' auxiliary A. O. H., No. 4, was held Wednesday evening, with the president, Miss Nellie McCarthy, officiating. It was voted to hold a Christmas social after the next meeting, Dec. 18. Mrs. Julia Breen was appointed chairman, with Mrs. Annie Brooks, Mrs. Catherine Sullivan, and Mrs. Annie Connelly, assisting committee. Arrangements were also made for another of the popular baked bean and salad suppers to be held before Christmas, with Mrs. M. V. O'Neill acting as chairman assisted by an able and efficient committee of twenty members.

Final arrangements were completed for the joint installation, which will take place Sunday, Dec. 15, at 2:30. A turkey supper will be served after the business meeting and it is expected that a large membership of the order will be represented. An excellent program of songs, recitations and speeches is being prepared for the occasion.

U. S. TO SIGN PROTOCOL FOR COURT OF INT'N'AL JUSTICE

President Hoover Has Authorized Signing Today at Geneva—Jay Pierrepont Moffat, Charge at Berne, Switzerland, Will Sign the Document For the United States—It Contains the Root Formula For American Entry Into the World Court—Secretary of State Stimson Explains Benefits to Be Derived by American Adherence.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—(AP)—President Hoover has authorized the signing tomorrow of the protocol of adherence to the permanent court of international justice, containing the Root formula for American entry into the world court.

Signing of the formula, together with that of the protocol of signature of the statute of the court and the protocol of revision of the statutes of the court, will take place at Geneva, the state department announced tonight.

Jay Pierrepont Moffat, American Charge d'Affaires at Bernes, Switzerland, will sign the documents on behalf of the United States as directed by Secretary Stimson on the authorization of the president.

Thus will be completed the final step which the Hoover administration must take before submitting the problem of American aherdence to the world court to the senate for advice and consent as to ratification.

The state department, simultaneous with its announcement, made public the exchange of correspondence between President Hoover and Secretary Stimson last month in which the latter recommended to the chief executive the signing of the documents and the president's reply authorizing the signature.

The Root protocol, devised by Elihu Root, a former secretary of state, is designed to overcome the objections of the senate, as expressed January 27, 1926, in its reservations to ratification of the original statute by the United States. The first four of the reservations were readily accepted by the other powers but the famous fifth reservation, dealing with advisory opinions by the court was rejected by the other signatory nations.

Under the Root protocol, the objections of the senate in the fifth reservation would be met by permitting the United States to withdraw from the court in case an advisory opinion was asked by another power and pressed over American objection in any suit in which the United States had or claimed an interest, or in which it had a claim or interest through a third party.

The secretary emphasized the fact that although the final movement establishing the world court was on the initiative of the league of nations, the court "took its existence and became effective, not by action of the league, but under a statute and protocol separately signed by over fifty states, not all of whom are league members. It thus owes its existence to the independent authority of those signatory states."

In discussing the question of advisory opinions, Mr. Stimson expressed the belief that "the dangers which seemed to inhere in the rendering of advisory opinions by the court at the time the questions was last presented to this government in 1926 have now been entirely removed both by the action of the court itself and by the provisions of these new protocols."

The secretary said the world situation had so vitally changed since 1926 that the court was more important than ever before, adding that practically all of the nations of the world had, by adhering to the general pact for the renunciation of war, agreed to settle their differences by pacific means.

"By this event not only has the need of developing judical means instead of war to settle the inevitable controversies between nations become more pressing, but it has become even more important to establish and clarify the standards and rules of international conduct by which such controversies can be prevented or minimized," he continued. "Never has there been a period in the world's history when there was such an imperative need for the development of international law by an international court. Admitting freely all that must be accomplished towards this end by the quasi-legislative action of international conferences which may meet to discuss and agree upon international compacts and codes, it is nevertheless too the judicial action of a world court, passing upon the individual controversies which arose between nations, that we must look not only for the application and interpretation of these compacts and codes but for the flexible and intelligent development in this way of all the subsidiary principles and detailed rules which will surely be found necessary in such application."

The part which the world court is to play in the transforming of world civilization from a basis of war to one of peace was next stressed by Stimson. He asserted the court was closely in line with the traditions and habit of thought in America than of any nation.

"And finally it is now possible for us to assist in the support and development of this judicial agent without in the slightest degree jeopardizing our traditional policy as a government of not interfering or entangling ourselves in the political policies of foreign states or of relinquishing our traditional attitude as a government towards purely American questions with which we are concerned. Is there any reason why on such terms our government should not join in the support, moral and financial, of such a court, or why it should not lend its efforts towards the selection of judges who will act in this great work in accordance with the noble traditions of the American judiciary? Or why our government's great power should not be placed in a position where it can influence for good or check against evil in the future development of the court's charter and work? I think not," he said in conclusion.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—(AP)—Seven robbers today held up and robbed a dinner party of 50 Bronx business men attorneys and others, including a magistrate, an ex-magistrate and a detective. The robbers escaped with about $250 in cash and more than $2,000 in jewelry.

Magistrate Albert H. Vitale, in whose honor the dinner was being given, was in the midst of a speech when the robbers entered unostentatiously. As the magistrate finished speaking, the leader of the robbers, who had a handkerchief over the lower part of his face, drew two revolvers and ordered the 50 men to hand over their money. Detective Arthur Johnson reached for his service revolver, but at Magistrate Vitale's counsel, he and two other armed men in the gathering submitted to having their revolvers, together with their money and jewelry, taken from them.

The six unmasked men passed through the dining room and collected the money and jewelry, but several of the dinner guests saved some of their valuables by dropping them to the floor.

Magistrate Vitale lost $40 in cash, but saved a four and one-half carat diamond by dropping it between his legs. Former Magistrate Michael DeSapio, who was sitting next to Magistrate Vitale, lost $62 to the robbers, but saved his diamond ring by dropping it to the floor. Police said another prominent man, whose name was not disclosed, tossed $1,200 under the table and it escaped the robbers' notice.

FOURTH MARRIAGE OF SIDI WIRT SPRECKELS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—(AP)—A wealthy army aviator, Lieut. Roger Alan Gardner has succeeded Prince Fuad Chakir of Turkey as the husband of Sidi Wirt Spreckels, of San Francisco, whose career has thus been extended to four matrimonial ventures.

Gardner, who is 27 and was graduated from West Point in 1925, also is from San Francisco and until recently was stationed at Crissy Field, California.

But, according to reports published in San Francisco, opposition to the match by the flier's family, was strong enough to have Gardner transferred to Langley Field, Virginia.

Undismayed, Sidi Wirt closed her San Francisco apartment and came east. Yesterday Lieutenant Gardner obtained a "short leave." Later in the day the register at Fairfax county courthouse, Virginia, bore an entry which showed that he had married Sidi Wirt Spreckels, of Reno, Nevada, age 35.

The couple was married by a deputy clerk of the circuit court, Elton H. Holbrooke, who said the bride was accompanied by an eight year old daughter.

AIR PILOT AND WOMAN PASSENGER BURNED

STAMFORD, Texas, Dec. 8—(AP)—Lottos Hansen, pilot and Miss Winnie Williams, passenger, were killed in an airplane crash here tonight. The plane burst into flames as it struck the earth and burned the bodies. The woman was an orphan who lived here.

JOSEPH SELDEN HUNTINGTON DIED SUDDENLY IN OLD LYME

OLD LYME, Dec. 8—(AP)—Joseph Selden Huntington, a former member of the state legislature, died suddenly at his home here today. He was 63.

He was born in Old Lyme in 1866, attended the public schools here, the Hartford high school and was graduated from Yale with the class of 1889.

During the World war, he served with the Y. M. C. A. His service under fire won for him the Italian war cross and the Italian service medal. Before enlisting in Y. M. C. A. work he was captain of the Old Lyme home guards.

After his graduation from Yale, Mr. Huntington was employed on a newspaper in Jacksonville, Fla., and later joined the staff of the New York Herald and the old New York Sun. Upon the death of his father he returned to his home to live.

He was elected to the state house of representatives in 1903 and in 1915. He also held the offices of judge of probate and justice of the peace, and every town office save that of selectman.

He was the organizer of the Old Lyme Country club and its president.

FOG IN NEW YORK HARBOR IS CONFUSING SHIPPING

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—(AP)—A thick fog that hung over the harbor for three days continued today to confuse shipping.

The United Fruit liner Tolia, inbound, with 90 passengers, ran aground on the mud flats off Robbins Reef and remained there for an hour until two tugs freed her.

The only other passenger vessel to enter port today was the Buenos Aires of the Spanish Royal Mail line, from Cadiz, which groped through the fog, requiring an hour longer than usual to reach her pier.

The Southern Pacific steamer Creole sailed from Hoboken, N. J., today soon after completion of repairs made necessary by a collision with the Anchor liner Transylvania in the Hudson river yesterday.

Both vessels were outbound when they collided. The Creole's bow was damaged. A hole was punched in one of the Transylvania's plates, but she was able to sail last night.

OBITUARY

Captain Hanford L. Curtis

NEW BRITAIN, Dec. 8—(AP)—Captain Hanford L. Curtis, city comptroller, died in a hospital here today. He was 62.

Although in ill health for sometime, Captain Curtis worked in the savings bank here, where he was employed as a clerk and teller, until last Monday. At that time he arranged for an indefinite leave of absence. Yesterday he was taken to a hospital where he died this morning.

He was born in Stratford in 1867. In 1885, he entered the savings bank where he had been employed ever since.

He was city auditor from 1902 to 1905 and in 1908 became city comptroller at the time that office was created.

NEWMARKET, Eng., Dec. 9—(AP)—The only woman member of the famous Jockey club, Mrs. Montague Tharp, died Saturday at her home, Chippenham hall. Mrs. Tharp owned part of the Newmarket race course and on the death of her husband years ago the jockey club offered her membership which she accepted. She was famous as a hostess and frequently entertained King Edward at Chippenham.

SHOT HIS WIFE DEAD, THEN KILLED HIMSELF

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Maurice E. Harrington, well-to-do planter, today shot and killed his wife with a shotgun and then killed himself with a pistol, a coroner's jury decided.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Peace, neighbors, were charged with assault and battery for their alleged part in the family quarrel which preceded the slaying and suicide.

Evidence at the inquest was that Harrington had been out with Mr. and Mrs. Peace, that a quarrel arose between the women upon their return to the Harrington home near here, and that the women fought.

The shooting occurred soon after Mr. and Mrs. Peace went home.

Mrs. Harrington, it was testified, had made plans to leave her husband.

COLD WAVE IS MOVING TOWARD MIDDLEWEST

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The weekend visitation of moderate weather to the lower middlewest will end tomorrow with the arrival of a cold wave gradually moving down from the snowbound Mackenzie valley, according to weather bureau officials.

A general drop of ten degrees in temperature accompanied by snow flurries in the Great Lakes and immediately adjacent regions was predicted.

The cold will prevail for about three days officials said with Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, North and South Dakota and the northern sections of Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska bearing the brunt of the invasion.

COASTER DROWNED IN THE CONNECTICUT RIVER

SUFFIELD, Conn., Dec. 8—(AP)—Philander Houghton, 14, of Agawam, Mass., fell through the ice on the Connecticut river here today, while coasting and drowned.

Two playmates, after making unsuccessful attempts to rescue him, ran to a nearby house and telephoned for aid. The Suffield fire department responded, but were unable to drag for the body because of the dangerous condition of the ice.

Houghton was visiting his uncle, Stephen White. With his cousin, William Waite, 10, and Lloyd Farquhar, he went coasting on an old wood road near the river. He tried to cross the ice on his sled, and half way across he crashed through into the water.

DRY LAW CONVICTIONS IN NORTHWEST INDIANA

HAMMOND, Ind., Dec. 8—(AP)—The first of the federal government's liquor conspiracy cases in northern Indiana, resulted today in the conviction of three men. One of them, a policeman and the other two, alleged liquor distributors, and the acquittal of six defendants classed by the prosecution as "minor bootleggers."

The jury after deliberating more than 12 hours, disagreed on the remaining eight defendants, seven of them members of the Gary, Ind., police force.

Those convicted were Charles Wampler, motorcycle officer, and two alleged bootleggers, Sandro Necco and Alex Santi.

PROTEST THE SENDING OF MARINES TO HAITI

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Protest against sending of marines to Haiti was voiced in a resolution adopted today by the southern conference of the International Labor Defense, left wing labor organization affiliated with the communist party of the United States.

The resolution declared President Hoover's election in sending additional marines to Haiti was "merely another capitalistic attempt to crush a strike by the use of troops."

DEATH OF FORMER AUTO RACING DRIVER

Death was due, physicians said, to complications from a spine injury received in an accident during a road race between Los Angeles and Phoenix, Ariz., in 1911.

JOHN FELTOVIC WILL BE EXECUTED TUESDAY A. M.

HARTFORD, Dec. 8.—(AP)—John Feltovic, 18-year-old gangster of Bridgeport, tonight spent his last full night in the Wethersfield state prison.

Soon after midnight Monday night, he will hang for shooting Lester Jacobs, chain store manager of Bridgeport, through the heart in an attempted robbery last March. He has no chance of escaping the gallows.

GEN. ROBERT LEE BULLARD MAKING STEADY PROGRESS

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Major General Robert Lee Bullard, retired, who suffered a slight heart attack a few days ago, today at his home was reported to be making slow, "but steady" progress toward recovery.

"He is making slow—not too slow—but steady recovery," Miss Rose Bullard, the general's daughter, said. "He has not had a relapse and is feeling very much encouraged."

Anxiety In Foreign Colony Of Nanking

The City Has Been Isolated as a Result of Interruption of Railroad Service.

NANKING, China, Dec. 8—(AP)—With Nanking isolated as a result of interruption in service of both the Shanghai-Nanking and Tientsin-Pukow railroads, considerable anxiety prevailed in the foreign colony today.

At a meeting of the foreign consular body it was decided that while there was no immediate danger it may be necessary to evacuate women and children in order to avoid any possible incidents.

There are approximately 175 foreign women and children here, including 50 Americans, and 70 Britains. The total in the American community is 120 persons.

The Socony river oil boat Meifoo is being held here in readiness to evacuate American women and children should it become necessary, while sufficient British and Japanese shipping is available to evacuate the remainder. The U. S. S. Tulsa is expected shortly.

Officials of the Nationalist government are continuously on duty and maintaining an outward calm. General Chiang Kai-Shek, president of the Nationalist council, is directing affairs. He and Foreign Minister C. T. Wang insist that the troops guarding the Nanking-Pukow area will remain loyal.

BRITISH STEAMER WAS ATTACKED BY PIRATES

HONK KONG, Dec. 8—(AP)—The British steamer Haiching, en route from Swantow to Hong Kong, with Chinese passengers, was attacked off Chatang Point today by pirates who set the vessel afire. The crew beat off the outlaws and completed the voyage.

Third Officer Woodward was fatally wounded while resisting the attack. He died before the vessel arrived here. The destroyer Sterling went to the rescue of the Haiching, and took off all the passengers. Police here began investigation of the affair, but declined to reveal further details.

THREE AMERICAN WOMEN WITNESSED BLOODY FIGHT

HONG KONG, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Three American women were witnesses to a bloody conflict between a swarm of Chinese pirates and the crew of the British steamship Haiching. The women, whose names had not been learned tonight, were not injured but 12 persons were killed and about 60 native passengers leaped overboard and were drowned.

The steamer reached here tonight with its super structure partly burned away and one officer dead and another wounded. Thirty-eight wounded buccaneers were sent to the hospital where the condition of most of them was said to be serious. Others were brought ashore securely bound and thrown into jail. The ship was under escort by the British destroyers, Hirdar and Sterling which had gone to its aid.

RAILWAY SERVICE TO NANKING RESTORED

SHANGHAI, Dec. 8. — (AP) — The Shanghai-Nanking railway announced late tonight that service to Nanking had been restored. Disruption of this line with other railroads had led to fears for the safety of foreigners in the nationalist capital. Foreign engineers had supervised the railway repairs.

It was said here that rebels at Chengchow, Honan, were retreating southward with nationalist troops in pursuit.

There was some firing on the outskirts of this city last night but it appeared to have come from small gangs of soldiers and hooligans who had attempted to loot shops and homes. The police were able to suppress the movement.

The British cruiser Suffolk was expected to reach Nanking today and stand by to remove British residents. It was by no means certain that such evacuation would be necessary.

BRITISH TROOPS ENGAGED IN FIERCE FIGHTING IN INDIA

LONDON, Dec. 9. (Monday)—(AP)—The Daily Mail today prints a dispatch from Rawalpindi, Punjab, reporting that British troops had engaged in fierce fighting at Wana in southern Wazaristan. Beyond saying that "very important developments had suddenly occurred" the dispatch did not explain what the fighting was about.

Wana is only about 25 miles from the border of Afghanistan and is about 200 miles southwest of Peshawar, northwest provinces. British troops in that section of India have long had to contend with incursions of Afghan tribesmen from their mountain strongholds across the border. These at times have reached serious proportions but there has been none of any consequence for several years.

BODY FOUND HANGING FROM TREE IN WOODS

WINDSOR, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The body of an unidentified man was found hanging from a tree in the woods along the railroad tracks a mile north of the Windsor station, today. Medical Examiner A. P. Pratt said it had been there six months.

In his pockets was a note written in Greek, and no one has yet been able to translate it. There was also a scrap of paper with the words, "7 Arch street, L. A. B." written on it, but no city was given.

THREE MINERS RESCUED FROM ENTOMBMENT

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 8—(AP)—Three miners, entombed for 34 hours in a small space behind a huge fall of coal and slate in a Continental Coal company mine at Cassville, were rescued early today by men who tunnelled through 175 feet of coal to deliver the trapped workers. The miners were in a hospital tonight, but it was said they were little the worse for their experience.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 8—(AP)—The Universal Aviation corporation announced today that three Fokker planes will be dispatched to Canada tomorrow, two from St. Louis and one from Kansas City, to aid in a search for Ben Eielson, missing polar flyer.

Storm Hits Shipping Off French Coast

Several Ships Have Foundered or Are in Distress—Liner Struck by a Huge Sea.

BREST, France, Dec. 8—(AP)—Several ships either foundered or were in distress today in the most violent tempest which has struck the French Atlantic seaboard in many years.

The ocean-going tug Iroise made port this afternoon with the survivors of the Danish cargoboat Helen, which lost her first mate and one sailor off Ushant Light early today when a gigantic comber swept the deck.

The British ship Essex Heath, was waterlogged and reported sinking between Ushant and Brest. The British ship Tinybridge wirelessed that she was foundering 25 miles west of Bishop's Rock.

The three-master Notre Dame De Bonne Nouvelle, a French sailing vessel, and the schooner Bertha both foundered off Ushant Light this morning. The crews were saved.

The telegraph wires between Brest, Paris, Havre, and Cherbourg were down.

MOUNTAINOUS SEA STRUCK THE LINER ANDALUCIA

FALMOUTH, England, Dec. 8—(AP)—With her rudder damaged in the seasonal hurricane which centered off the British Isles yesterday, the Blue Star liner Andalucia Star arrived here today with 110 passengers, some of them cut by pieces of glass sent flying through the air when a mountainous sea struck the vessel while they were at dinner.

The passengers signed a resolution thanking the master, Captain Richard J. Thomas, for his courageous seamanship. During the worst of it the ship had a list of 40 degrees. Many of them expected the vessel to sink.

Most of the passengers were Argentines, Britons, French and Spaniards. Ambrose Alexander, general manager of the Leach sugar estates in northern Argentine, told the Associated Press he was convinced the ship would go down with all hands.

"We were at dinner about 8 o'clock, ten miles off Light, when there was a sudden terrific thud, the consequence of a mountainous sea striking the boat," said Mr. Alexander. "The furniture looked like a jumble sale. Crockery and glassware were smashed, several passengers being cut by flying pieces.

"The passengers behaved wonderfully. There was no excitement and no panic. The damage to the rudder was such that the ship could not be turned, and owing to the huge seas it was impossible to get the boats out. In the twenty years I have been crossing to South America, this was the worst weather I have seen."

WIRE SERVICE WAS DISRUPTED BY STORM

PARIS, Dec. 8—(AP)—Telegraph and telephone service between Italy, France and Spain was interrupted as a result of the storm today, the cable companies operating in France announced serious delays between Paris and New York owing to wires being blown down on land.

STATEMENT BY PUBLISHER OF FOUR NEWSPAPERS

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 8.—(AP)—In a statement sworn to before a notary here and made public today, William Lavarre, publisher of four South Carolina and Georgia newspapers said he and Harold, his former associate, signed a written agreement that he should pay Hall $30,000 for release of his interest in the papers, should Lavarre be able to conclude a satisfactory agreement with the International Paper company for the settlement of the various questions now opened.

DROWNED IN SWIMMING POOL OF BATH HOUSE

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Harry Ginsberg, 26, of Bridgeport, drowned in the swimming pool of the Liberty bath house here, early this morning. He is believed to have suffered an attack of cramps.

Ginsberg, in company with Eli H. Millner, of Danbury, came to this city last night, and took a room in the bath house.

After they had had a steam bath, Ginsberg said he would take a swim before retiring. A short time later Millner found his body in the pool.

POLICEMAN WAS SHOT TO DEATH IN KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Dec. 8.—(AP)—William Hicks, 27, Kansas City, Kas., patrolman, was killed tonight in an attempt to arrest two men who had entered the home of Dr. Glenn D. Asdel here. A patrolman was killed and another seriously wounded last week by gangsters. A fourth policeman was the target of an assassin's bullets but escaped uninjured.

NAUGATUCK POLICE CHIEF HAS INTESTINAL TROUBLE

WATERBURY, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Chief of Police William T. Morris, of Naugatuck, who was taken to St. Mary's hospital here Friday night and operated upon for intestinal trouble, was reported to be still in a critical condition tonight. His condition has remained unchanged since the time of the operation and little hope is held for his recovery by the attending surgeons.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN WAS KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 8.—(AP)—An unidentified man was struck and killed by an automobile driven by Arnold Peterson, of Beacon Falls, near the Racebrook Country club in the town of Orange, tonight. The man was walking along the highway at the time.

BRISTOL, Dec. 8.—(AP)—With the arrest today of George Fiske, 24, police believe they have caught one of a gang which has been committing a series of petty robberies here this fall.

Fiske, police say, confessed to breaking in the West End A. C. early this morning and stealing a quantity of cigars, cigarets and $30 in cash. He was unable to furnish $1,000 bail.

CONDITIONS THROUGHOUT HAITI REPORTED TRANQUIL

Threatened Demonstrations Have Failed to Materialize—Communications Are Open to All Points—News That President Hoover is Sending Marine Reinforcements From the United States Has Contributed to the Feeling of Stability—Washington Hears Reports of Serious Conditions.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Dec. 8—(AP)—Quiet prevailed today throughout Haiti. Wire communications were open to all points threatened demonstrations scheduled for last night and this morning at three points failed to materialize.

The cruiser Galveston with its regular marine detachment of 60 men arrived at Jacmel at 8:00 a. m., and found the city quiet. The inhabitants plainly showed relief that fears of attack had been dispelled.

News of the action taken so promptly by President Hoover and the dispatch of marine reinforcements from the United States was published as a bulletin by the newspaper La Presse and this contributed to the feeling of stability.

Outposts which had been threatened at Chantal, Torbeck and Port-A-Piment in the Cayes district reported today that all was quiet with a handful of gardes in control. Intelligence agents of the garde were circulating through the disaffected area to restore confidence and tranquility.

Under the martial law there has been established no censorship in any form on the press and the usual flexible censorship of cable and telephone communications has not been added to. Three opposition papers have voluntarily suspended publication although encouraged by Brigade Commander Cutts to continue. The reason given by the papers was that no news could be printed but it was said by the authorities that the actual reason was that they were facing bankruptcy.

Under Haitian law only cable messages of plainly seditious nature are referred to the minister of the interior for censorship. Cable business has been brisk and telephone lines have shown a largely increased volume of business so that any censorship necessarily would have been infective.

Despite this freedom of circulation of real information alarmist reports have circulated. One was that airplanes had bombed Aux Cayes without warning and had inflicted heavy losses. Another was that a marine patrol had ambushed peasants without warning and taken a severe toll in killed and wounded.

As evidence that the marines in their brush with natives who tried to force their way into Auxcayes on Friday had been in full control of their fire and had unusually fine discipline the brigade commander today released an official report showing that the ammunition in the machine gun belt used to drive off the attackers was not exhausted. This was said to show that the marines had fired only as long as the attacking band had pressed forward.

There have been three arrests here and one at Cape Haiten in the past 24 hours with the prisoners charged with being strike agitators.

CONDITIONS IN HAITI ARE REPORTED SERIOUS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—(AP)—Reports of serious conditions in Haiti continued to reach Washington tonight as 500 United States marines were moved toward the island Republic to assist the 700 already there in maintaining peace.

The cruiser Galveston which was requested by Brigadier General John H. Russell, the American high commissioner in Haiti to assist the marines, arrived today in Nacmel, 20 miles from Port Au Prince, the capital, to evacuate American women and children.

A gathering of the largest body of malcontents yet reported to the state department was indicated in a telegram received late today from General Russell who said that yesterday morning a crowd of about 2,000 surrounded the outpose building at Chantal crying "down with Borno, down with Freeman."

The "Borno" referred to by the crowd is the president of the republic who now is in Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, on account of illness. The state department said it was unable to identify the person referred to as "Freeman" who was recried by the gathering.

The Aux Cayes district was the scene of the first bloodshed in the situation which grew out of a strike in October of college students who objected to a decrease in the school's appropriations to care for other needs of the institution.

THREE CHILDREN KILLED BY A BOMB IN BROOKLYN

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—(AP)—A time bomb set on a kitchen table in a Brooklyn home today killed three children as they were preparing to go to church.

Exploding with a force that splintered furniture and ripped a jagged hole in the floor, it killed Mary Falzone, 15, and her brother, Philip, 12, instantly. Rose Balzone, 8, died on the way to a hospital.

The mother, Mrs. Jennie Falzone, and her two youngest children, Patsy, 5, and Sally, 3, escaped death or serious injury only because they were late in coming down to breakfast.

Police were told that the father of the family, Joseph Falzone, owner of a marble works, was away on a hunting trip. The principal clue in the hands of a large number of detectives immediately assigned to the case consisted of two threatening letters received by Falzone, one on Oct. 5 and the other Oct. 22.

Both letters contained demands for $6,000 and ordered Falzone to leave the country.

TWO AIR PILOTS KILLED IN CRASH OF AIR PLANE

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 8—(AP)—Two pilots of the refueling ship to the Sealdsweet of Florida, endurance plane, were killed here this morning as their plane crashed in a takeoff with 80 gallons of fuel for the other plane which was forced down about 15 minutes later causing minor injuries to both occupants.

E. A. Dempsey and Stanley Smith of St. Louis, were burned to death in the refueling plane which caught fire as it crashed.

R. W. Schrock, of St. Louis, and Leonard Carrothers, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, suffered minor injuries as they attempted a forced landing with the endurance plane "The Sealdsweet of Florida" near Kissimmee, Fla., in a fog.

Airport authorities were unable to explain the cause of the refueling ship's crash.

RADIUM POISONING WAS CONTRIBUTORY TO DEATH

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—(AP)—An autopsy today established that radium poisoning was a contributory cause of the death of Mrs. Quinta McDonald, of Orange, N. J., one of five women poisoned by radium in a New Jersey factory several years ago.

Mrs. McDonald, the mother of two children, died yesterday at Memorial hospital, where she had been a patient for ten weeks. She and the other four women were poisoned by using their lips to point brushes with which they painted luminous watch dials.

The autopsy was performed today by Dr. Harrison S. Martland, chief medical examiner of Essex County, N. J., and was witnessed by Dr. Charles A. Norris, chief medical examiner of New York city, and other physicians of city departments. The findings were described as of the greatest scientific interest.

DENIAL MADE BY THE FATHER OF CLARA BOW

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Robert Bow, father of Clara Bow, screen star, and Mr. Wesley Hommel, Miss Bow's physician, asked Los Angeles newspapers tonight to print denials that the actress had left her cot in a hospital to visit her fiance, Harry Rehman, at a Hollywood studio.

Miss Bow has been in the hospital three weeks recuperating from an operation. Dr. Hommel said Miss Bow has not been allowed even to sit up in bed.

"The report is ridiculous, malicious and probably emanated from some aberrated mind," the doctor said.

REAPPEARANCE OF YOUTH BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN SLAIN

MELBOURNE, Ark., Dec. 8—(AP)—Alex Fulks, in jail here, one of the five men indicted for the alleged mutilation and slaying of a farm hand in the St. James community of Stone county last March, is today declared a youth brought before him to be Connie Franklin, 23, the man previously believed to have been the one slain. The youth also has been identified by two others of the accused as Connie Franklin.

The youth was taken to Fulks' cell by Sheriff Delbert Johnson of Izard county. Fulks was not told of his coming, Sheriff Johnson said.

Fulks exhibited a broad grin as Franklin approached him.

Then the two rushed forward and clasped hands.

"You see, sheriff I told you all the time Franklin was not dead," Fulks said.

They talked for some minutes, and enacted a scene similar to that of yesterday in the Batesville, Ark., jail when Joe White and Herman Greenway, who also are under first degree murder charges for the alleged crime, were confronted by the man they said was Franklin.

After the youth had been identified by three persons at Williamson's office, he was taken to the sheriff's home. A group of girls had been gathered into a room in which Franklin was ushered. He walked straight to Tiller Ruminer.

"Why, hello Tiller," he said.

"It may be Connie Franklin," she said, "but he has changed since I saw him last."

WOMAN TEACHER ASSAULTED AND BEATEN TO DEATH

ROCKFORD, Ill., Dec. 8.—(AP)—The body of Miss Cordelia Gummersheimer, 30-year-old Rockford senior high school teacher, was found in her apartment tonight, after she had been attacked by an unknown assailant and beaten to death with a piece of gas pipe.

The young woman's body, clad in pajamas was found by the occupant of a neighboring apartment when a girl friend, with whom Miss Gummersheimer had an engagement this evening, became alarmed at her absence and received no answer to her telephone calls. There was a deep gash in the teacher's head. Nearby lay a piece of heavy pipe.

The school teacher apparently had retired for the night and an open book by her bed showed that she apparently had been reading before turning out the lights.

Evidence indicated, police said, that the slayer had attacked Miss Gummersheimer before striking her with the pipe. Then he had unlocked a door and walked outside the hallway and down three flights of stairs to the street, police believe.

KILLED WHEN HURLED FROM MOTORLESS GLIDER

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8—(AP)—Charles J. Ferguson, army warrant officer, whose ambition has been to span the golden gate in a motorless glider, was hurled to his death late today when the machine, towed by an airplane, nosed up into a cross current.

As a private airplane towed Ferguson and his glider from Crissy field, his safety strap broke and the glider pilot was hurled head first from his contrivance.

Thousands of persons watching the attempt gasped as his body shot downward. Ferguson twisted in the air and struck the ground feet first with terrific force.

WEDDING.

Howie-Baker.

John Howie, son of Mrs. T. Frank Howie, of 176 Prospect street, and Miss Flora Elizabeth Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Baker of 32 Chestnut street were married in St. Paul's Episcopal church at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Rev. Walter F. Borchert of Edgewood, R. I., formerly of this city, performed the ceremony, assisted by the pastor, Rev. Frederick C. Williams. The single ring service was used. Mrs. Fred J. Williams played Mendelssohn's Wedding March on the organ. The bride, who was attended by Miss Helen A. Bradshaw of this city, was given in marriage by her brother, William Ernest Baker of Hartford. Philip F. Dean of Middletown, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man. William E. Scales of Troy, N. Y., brother-in-law of the bride and Harold Higgins of this city were ushers.

The bride was gowned in beige georgette with hat and shoes to harmonize and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and ferns. The bridesmaid wore periwinkle blue georgette with hat and shoes of midnight blue and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses. Going away the bride wore a gown of green with a green broadcloth coat trimmed with badger fur. The church decorations were of palms and chrysanthemums.

Over 60 relatives and friends attended the reception held at the home of the bride the house being decorated with cut flowers. Guests came from Troy, N. Y., Boston, Mass., Hartford, Waterbury, Middletown, Naugatuck, Central Village and this city. Upon returning from an unannounced wedding trip the newlyweds will make their home at 176 Prospect street. The bride is a graduate of Windham high school and has held the office of paymaster at the American Thread company plant for some time. She is to continue in this capacity. The groom is a graduate of Windham high school and the New York and Rochester Dental colleges in mechanical dentistry. His office is located in this city.

Andrew Link of 1120 West Main street, this city, driver of a Pontiac coach which figured in a collision with a Ford roadster owned by the Southern New England Telephone company on John Wade Hill, Colchester-Norwich turnpike Friday afternoon, was treated at St. Joseph's hospital here for multiple lacerations and abrasions. John E. Shea of 42 Jackson street, who was riding with him, was also treated at the hospital for a severe injury to his hip.

Henry E. Hall.

Following a long illness, Henry E. Hall, 81, native and life-long resident of the town of Mansfield, died at his home there late Friday night. He was born December 25, 1839, a son of Henry C. and Orrilla Simoonds Hall. He was a veteran of the Civil war, having served with Company C, Sixth Connecticut Volunteers. During the battle of Drurey Bluffs he was captured by the Confederates and he remained a prisoner at Andersonville, Va., for a long time. At the close of the war he returned to Mansfield and for many years followed his occupation of farmer. The deceased leaves his wife, Mrs. Ida Gleason Hall; two sons, Burton H. and Charles G. Hall, and four grandchildren, all of Mansfield.

The funeral services were held in the Mansfield Center Congregational church at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. E. P. Ayer of Branford, former pastor of the church, officiated, assisted by the pastor, Rev. T. H. W. Jones. Burial was in the new Willimantic Center cemetery. The bearers were Thomas A. Barrows, Harold James, Dillis Homer and Lawrence Dunstan. Arrangements were in charge of The J. C. Lincoln company.

Lloyd E. Kennison.

Lloyd Eugene Kennison, aged 11, who had been suffering from poisoned tonsils, died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester M. Kennison of 125 Walnut street, Saturday morning. He was born in Mansfield, September 17, 1918, a son of Lester Murray and Mabel Irene Taylor Kennison of this city; one sister, Mrs. Lena May Whitehouse; and his grandmother, Mrs. Jennette Taylor of this city.

Over 200 fir trees, about 15 feet in height, were hauled into the city Saturday by P. J. Roy and trucks of the city street department, to be placed about the white-way standards in the business section as Christmas decorations. These trees and larger ones at the junctions of main highways leading into the city are to be wired early this week. Thousands of multi-colored lights on these trees and other decorations will be turned on during the coming week to remain in use until after New Year's. The trees being erected at the junction of West Main street and Columbia; Windham Road, top of Jillson Hill; junction of Ash and Main streets and junction of Milk and Jackson streets, each measure 54 feet in height. Willimantic's Christmas decorations which are executed by the Retail Merchants' bureau of the chamber of commerce have brought praise from far and wide in past years.

FUNERALS.

Mrs. Edith V. Lamoureux.

A high mass of requiem was solemnized in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock Saturday morning for Mrs. Edith Vanasse Lamoureux. Rev. E. A. Mathieu was the celebrant and Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau presided at the organ during a special musical program. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Mathieu conducted a committal service. The bearers were Patrick Dahaney, Paul Lachappelle, Adelard Belair, Adelard Desparthy, Fred Champagne and Dewey Sullivan. Arrangements were by The Hurteau-Bosse Corp.

Mary Grattusa.

Mary, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Consolata Gattusa, died at St. Joseph's hospital Friday night. The funeral was held at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon with burial in St. Joseph's cemetery. The Hureau-Bosse Corp. had charge of the arrangements.

Officers of Willimantic lodge, No. 1022, I. O. B. B., elected for the year are: President, Harry Kaufman; vice president, Harry Cohen; financial secretary, recording secretary and treasurer, Benjamin Eisenberg; monitor, Abraham Beller; assistant monitor, Carl Israel; inside guardian, Jack Mandell; outside guardian, Morris Rosen; trustees, Jacob Cohen, Philip R. Cohen and Maurice Davis. These officers will be installed Sunday evening, January 5.

Saturday's hazard of driving, especially in the forenoon, was a heavy fog that was almost impenetrable in some localities. Snow and ice thawed during the day and there was but a minimum of skidding. An overnight lowering in temperature was sufficient, however, to glaze the road surfaces over with a fine sheet of ice that again made driving treacherous. Many who had removed tire chains Saturday were forced to replace them today. Several skidding accidents were reported hereabouts but up to late afternoon none had caused serious damage or personal injuries.

Stafford Springs

The police are still at work in their attempt to connect Eugene P. Tetreault with the murder of Geraci Salvatore, a baker's helper in Westfield, last week Sunday morning. Tetreault is the man arrested in Stafford Springs Thursday last and sentenced to three months in jail for carrying a concealed weapon. He had a 32-caliber revolver in his car which was fully loaded and he was unable to give a satisfactory explanation of where he got the revolver or why he had it in his possession. The investigation thus far seems to negative the idea of Tetreault being connected with the Westfield murder. No reason can be found for Tetreault's abandoning his automobile in Stafford Springs Wednesday morning last.

DANIELSON

RAIN FREEZES AND MAKES TRAFFIC HAZARDOUS

DANIELSON, Dec. 8.—The most punishing Sunday of the season. That's the rating this day earned as the hour of sunset drew near tonight, and it should be made a part of the record that there was no sunset, in the sense of enjoying watching the golden orb disappear in the west. A gray, foggy afternoon.

Rain last night was followed by a drop in temperature early this morning. Wet streets, by daylight, had turned into slippery, glazed arteries of traffic. The same condition applied to sidewalks. Many a proud person sat down unexpectedly and unceremoniously on the way to church, or elsewhere, this morning. The going was terrible. Cars skidded around dizzily, and even drivers who do not like operating with chains came to regarded putting them on as a matter of good judgment.

Good Samaritans sanded walks today in an effort to keep the populace upright. State highway crews sanded trunk line highways and thereby aided materially in reducing the number of motoring accidents, which, happily, were few up to late afternoon. It was estimated that traveling conditions cut traffic at least 75 per cent. There were fewer cars on the roads today than on any occasion since last spring.

Locally, the week end brought a crist of minor matters of interest, some arrests and, to leaven the situation, the beginning of the real rush of holiday buying.

FUNERALS.

J. B. Morgan.

Saturday afternoon at 2.30 at the home of Mrs. George W. Lyon, his daughter, at Elmville, funeral services for John B. Morgan were conducted by Rev. H. E. Lombard of Webster, in which place Mr. Morgan was resident for 22 years. A delegation of nearly a score of members of Webster lodge, A. F. and A. M., of which Mr. Morgan was a past master, attended the service and later conducted the Masonic ritualistic rites at the grave at Evergreen cemetery in Central Village. Acting Master Ernest Dick participating. Members of the lodge acted as bearers. Among those attending the funeral was Eugene Morgan, of Norwich, a brother of the deceased. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Mrs. Henrietta Parker.

At noon today at the home at Killingly Center, funeral services for Mrs. Henrietta Parker were conducted by Rev. A. E. Gallup of the Nazerene church with relatives and numbers of friends in attendance. Friends acted as bearers. Burial was in the cemetery at East Douglas, Mass. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Miss Mary Kelley.

From the home of Miss Annie Skivington, Broad street, Saturday morning, the funeral of Miss Mary Kelley, resident here more than half a century, was held with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. A large number attended the solemn high mass of requiem, of which Rev. Joseph Bergin, M. S., was celebrant. Burial was in the family plot in St. James' cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S. The bearers were George Quinn, James R. Walsh, Peter Reynolds, Thomas Dooley, James Lyons, Moosup, and Thomas Gorman. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Charles Webb.

At one o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Webb, in the Allen Hill section of Brooklyn funeral services for Charles Webb were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church. During the service W. W. Reimer sang Safe In the Arms of Jesus, and Face to Face. Burial was in the South cemetery at Brooklyn. The bearers were George Webb, Providence, George Baker, Arthur Rainville and Theodore Dumas. The funeral arrangements were in charge of L. E. Kennedy.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Napoleon Chagnon.

This afternoon at the home in Wauregan, Mrs. Hermanie Chagnon, widow of Napoleon Chagnon, died, six weeks after she fell while coming down stairs and sustained a fractured collarbone and ribs. A native of St. John's, P. Q., she came to this country as a young woman and was one of the oldest residents of Wauregan, having lived there well upwards of half a century. She numbered practically the entire village among her friends and acquaintances and was held in universal esteem and respect in the community. Mrs. Chagnon is survived by nine children—Rev. Harry Chagnon, curate at All Hallows' church in Moosup; Sister Mary Josephine, member of a Sisterhood and stationed at Hartford; Mrs. H. C. Sylvester, North Dartmouth, Mass.; Misses Rose and Jennie and Mrs. John Goven, all of Wauregan; Mrs. Molly Daly of New London; Mrs. Lydia Coutu of Passaic, and Harmidas, of Taunton. She leaves three sisters, two resident in Canada, and one at Southbridge, Mass., and three brothers, one in Canada, one in Lowell and one in New Bedford.

Edward Lovely, alias Everett Lareneaux, was in custody at the state police barracks on North Main street today with an avowed longing to be the guest of the county for the remainder of the winter season at Brooklyn.

Lovely was picked up this morning near Grove street cemetery in Putnam after he had been observed sealing milk left outside the door of a filling station nearby. State Officer Royal Scranton made the arrest. Lovely, notwithstanding the name, has a long court record. He has been previously arrested for theft, for vagrancy and has served a term in prison for burglary. He will be presented in the Putnam city court Monday morning.

State officers were seeking for Ernest Passmore of East Killingly today. Saturday Passmore borrowed a car of Henry Mahew, chef at a hotel here, for the announced purpose of visiting with his mother, represented as being ill at East Killingly, and with the understanding that he would return with the car in about an hour. When Passmore did bring the car back about one o'clock this morning, many hours overdue, the machine had been damaged. The officers want to ask him about that, and will charge him with taking a car without permission.

There are no dividends in reckless driving, especially when the circumstances involve forcing a state officer off the highway. That particular thing happened down in Plainfield, Alfred Bergeron of that town being the operator of the car and State Officer H. Theodore Strand the representative of the law involved. When the officer met Bergeron tearing around a curve while passing another car there was nothing left for the officer to do but ride off the highway and up a sand pile, if he would avoid a crash. This he did, and then went forth and overtook Bergeron and ordered him into court. A fine of $25 was imposed. It was a Saturday case.

Arcade Plante, Taftville, has been arrested by state officers of the Danielson barracks, to answer to a charge of abandoning a car. It will be charged against him in court that, three weeks ago, he drove a Ford coupe into a driveway at what is known as the Kenneth Griswold property near Bishop's crossing, south of Plainfield, stripped it of such parts as were interesting to him and then left it there. It is understood that the car was given to Plante by his uncle, Fred Lavigne. The point is that throughout the state officers of the state police department have a drive on against those who abandon cars, whatever the reason. Lavigne is said to be resident in Plainfield.

A party of Danielson men on their way home from Providence early Saturday evening stopped to see what a traffic jam at Hopkins Mills, ten miles east of here, was all about and were eyewitnesses within a few minutes thereafter of an accident in which a sedan running as a public service car on the Providence-Hartford rapped itself about a telephone pole when the driver applied the brakes, causing the car to skid on the icy highway surface. There were no serious injury to passengers.

At the week end Mrs. L. A. Wolsard entertained the members of the Entre Nous club. The winners at bridge were Mrs. L. E. Kennedy, Mrs. Lucien Lambert and Mrs. Frank J. Gorman.

DRIVE AGAINST PARKING VIOLATORS STARTS TODAY

PUTNAM, Dec. 8.—The crusade against violators of city parking ordinances as ordered by the common council will be launched tomorrow (Monday) morning, Captain of Police William J. Jarvis announced tonight. The edict of the council will be carried out by police, according to clauses of the city charter published last week.

It was understood tonight that the police captain, who in council meeting last Tuesday evening expressed opposition to the plan of enforcement, will confer with Mayor Charles A. Richard Monday morning regarding the enforcement act which is certain to develop into a tense situation. The subject of the captain's expected conference with the mayor was not disclosed tonight.

According to the notice of warning, a first offense will result in a reprimand from police officers and a second violation will bring the driver of the violating vehicle before the city court.

MRS. EDWARD IRVING DIES SUDDENLY OF HEART TROUBLE

PUTNAM, Dec. 8.—Mrs. Mary W. Irving, wife of Edward Irving of Church street, died suddenly at her home late Friday afternoon, following a severe heart attack. Mrs. Irving, a widely known resident of this city, was thought by her numerous friends to be in good health and her sudden death was received as a shock to members of her family and intimate acquaintances.

Mrs. Irving was returning to her home Friday afternoon, following a shopping visit to the business district. When on Bridge street, but a short distance from her residence, she was stricken and had to be assisted to her home. Upon arrival there she suffered a relapse and died a few minutes later. Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson viewed the body of Mrs. Irving, attributing the cause of death to a disease of the heart.

Mrs. Irving was born in Thompson, Nov. 11, 1875, the daughter of John and Mary A. (Mullan) Brady. She received her education in the schools of Thompson and later was married to Edward Irving of this city, a department official at the plant of the Putnam Woolen Co. Of this union, one child, a daughter, Miss Eleanor Irving, who survives her mother, was born. Besides her husband and daughter, Mrs. Irving is survived by three sisters, Misses Rachel, Catherine and Elizabeth Brady, and by a brother, William Brady, a well known actor. Mrs. Irving was a member of St. Mary's church of this city and was affiliated with church societies.

Miss Elizabeth Constance Moras, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moras of Plattsburg, N. Y., was united in marriage to Leroy W. Thompson of New York city, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Thompson of Woodstock avenue, at a brilliant mid-afternoon ceremony which took place at St. Philip's Episcopal church on Grove street Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, before a large number of relatives and friends.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. P. Wright, rector of the church, the single ring service being used. An arch of evergreen in the sanctuary comprised the only decorations. Durthayer sang O Promise Me. Miss Thayer was accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Pierre H. Myers. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin. The bride was charming in a dress of hunter's green of transparent velvet, but in new princess lines. She wore a transparent hat and slippers of contrasting color to that of her gown. Her bouquet was a shower of large yellow chrysanthemums. Her attendant, Miss Mabel Thompson, a sister of the groom, was attired in a frock of brown chiffon with a hat and slippers of harmonizing tint. A sheaf of small orange chrysanthemums completed her costume.

Mr. Thompson was accompanied by Leon T. Wilson, Jr., as best man. The ushers were Robert Seaman of South Manchester and Edward Spencer-Guidal, Jr., of New York city. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a string of crystal beads and to the soloist, a string of amber beads. The bridegroom's gift to the best man was a cigarette holder. The ushers received key cases and registration containers. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Durand, of Bradley street. A luncheon was served. Miss Winifred Mellor poured. Later Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left for a wedding trip to Hartford and New York. They will make their home in the latter city after Dec. 15.

Miss Moras attended Putnam high school and was employed in the commercial department of the National Rhea Co., a position she resigned recently. Mr. Thompson is a graduate of Putnam high school, class of 1926. He was prominent in athletics and since graduation has been employed in New York city.

A heavy fog Saturday morning followed by warm sunshine coupled with moderating temperature melted the city's crust-covered blanket of snow and churned streets and unshoveled crosswalks into furrows of slush that raised havoc with shopping conditions. During the busiest trading hours Saturday the sudden weather change created many personal losses as passing automobiles plowing through the inches of slush spattered their victims on sidewalks, ruining silk stockings, dresses and overcoats. Late Saturday evening rain arrived, accompanied by freezing temperatures, throwing the city into turmoil this morning when pavements were covered with sheets of glare ice that caused automobiles to describe complete circles in the streets.

Funeral services were held Saturday at 2 o'clock for Charles M. Letters of Grand View, who died Thursday morning following a prolonged illness. Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Second Congregational church of this city, officiated at the service at the Letters home and conducted a committal service at the grave in Grove street cemetery. The bearers were William E. Wheaton, Edward S. Duffey, of Putnam; Frank J. Barber of Springfield and Herbert Johnson of this city.

A community Christmas tree will occupy a prominent place in Union square again this year, E. L. Beebe, secretary of the Putnam Rotary club, announced today. The club decided to purchase the tree and place it on the top of the watering trough in the square, which in past years has always served as a pedestal for this bit of municipal Christmas decoration. It will be illuminated with colored lights, Mr. Beebe said. The directors of the Rotary club, in all probability, will provide needy children of the community with shoes at Christmas time. The matter of Christmas relief was discussed at the directors' gathering Friday evening. A committee will be appointed to investigate conditions and direct the charity work of the Rotary club.

A fire of undetermined origin in the J. M. Tatem Co.'s factory in Eastford Friday evening destroyed the one-story structure which house woodworking machinery of the town's only industry. Shavings and a stock of unfinished wood material proved to be excellent fuel for the flames, which reached spectacular heights to illuminate the sky for miles, attracting hundreds of people to the scene.

J. M. Tatem of Eastford, managing head of the little handle and picker stick factory, said this afternoon that fire loss is estimated between $25,000 and $30,000. Smoke was discovered pouring from the south end of the shop, by a passerby, but before the alarm of fire could be spread around the village, flames had crept into the main working room to envelop the entire factory a few minutes later. Residents of the village rushed to the Tatem mill with buckets and a bucket brigade of several workers was organized to check spread of the fire. This means of fire fighting proved its worth when surrounding stock sheds containing many hundreds of dollars worth of lumber were saved. An effort was made by the country firemen to enter the building to combat the fire, but dense columns of black smoke, believed to have been caused by oil burning in a tank, frustrated this plan.

Mr. Tatem was of the opinion today that the fire was caused by defective wiring on the switchboard, the power outlet for the operation of plant machinery. This, however, is merely a theory, the exact cause had not been determined today.

About 25 employes will be affected by the fire, Mr. Tatem said. Work of clearing part of the charred ruins and salvaging some of the manufacturing equipment was begun early Saturday morning. When asked if he intended to erect a new plant, Mr. Tatem replied that he hardly had ample time to duly consider such plans for the future, but intimated that construction on the new building would be started immediately, if a decision to rebuild is reached.

Collector of Personal Taxes James E. Barnes said today that about two-thirds of the total amount of taxes due the town had been collected Saturday evening at the expiration of a three-day limit in which to pay the annual personal assessment. The number of unpaid taxes is still large, Mr. Barnes intimated, but it is expected that the townspeople will take advantage of the remaining days of the month to make their payments. The total amount of revenue due the town from this source approximately is $7,000.

James Hall of Hartford visited over the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Noble Hall, of Putnam Heights.

George Willis, a student at Northeastern university in Boston, is visiting at his home on Killingly avenue.

Tickets that will admit bearers to Pomfret hall on Sunday evening, Dec. 22, to witness the 16th annual Nativity play will be distributed today at the Putnam Music shop and by Mrs. Lillian Melbert of Pomfret. Tickets are entirely free of charge. Only a limited supply is available and it is expected that the number will become exhausted at an early date.

OUR PRESENCE IN HAITI

There are republics where the approach of an election of a president is a signal for trouble. How serious that may be depends upon conditions and the republic, but there are those in Haiti who apparently believe that, with the approach of the time for naming a successor to President Borno they should exert their influence by causing a disturbance.

The United States government found it necessary years ago to send a force of marines to Haiti and to appoint a high commissioner to aid in directing the affairs of that island republic. Conditions at the time, back in 1915, were such in Haiti that unless this country made a move of that kind other countries would be stepping in and taking control, for Haiti was in a bad way financially and politically. At that particular time the French consulate had been mobbed and it was up to this country under its position under the Monroe doctrine to insure the proper protection of foreigners there instead of leaving that duty to the respective nations.

The result is that this country has been the power behind the president of Haiti. It has resulted to the great good of the republic. There have been valuable improvements and the country has been saved from the ravages that previously occurred there. There have been better roads built, better educational opportunities afforded, less outbreaks and the ending of any possibility of another country getting a foothold there. Haiti has benefited greatly by it but in doing so there has been a denial to the ambitions of a political group, the educated handful in the republic who have deplored the efforts for the general good and the gains which have been taken to the advantage of the peasants. Furthermore, they have not liked the way in which the head of the government has worked hand in hand with the American commissioner.

This country has no desire to be the one to bear the burden of civilizing Haiti, but if there is a better method of insuring peace and stability there than is being followed it will be welcomed. Possibly the commission that President Hoover has suggested can find it. It at least might recommend some fixed policy to follow while we remain there, which promises to be for some time.

SECRETARY OF WAR HURLEY

In the naming of the new secretary of war, President Hoover has followed a logical course in naming Assistant Secretary Patrick J. Hurley to that post. It is to be expected that the assistant to the head of any department is equipped to handle those duties in case of an emergency, that he is thoroughly acquainted with the duties and that he has an excellent knowledge of the various problems. That being the case, unless there is some real handicap, there is reason for anticipating that an assistant would follow as a natural course of events. It hasn't always resulted, because of political considerations, but the naming of Mr. Hurley to the head of the war department indicates the president's policy in the filling of offices, even so important as those in the cabinet.

Mr. Hurley has an excellent military and administrative record and he has a thorough understanding of the flood control and waterway problems which are certain to require much of the department's attention. These were all well known at the time he was made assistant. They were factors which made his choice desirable and certainly entitled him to the chance to demonstrate his ability following the death of Secretary Good. Since that time he has been the acting head of the department and there are reasons why the senate should act without delay upon the nomination.

In naming Mr. Hurley, the president also had opportunity to select a member of his cabinet from an unrepresented section of the country. It brings southern representation into the official family as well as representation from a part of the country where much concern exists concerning flood control.

It is an appointment which must be looked upon as a promotion, and a promotion for merit, inasmuch as there have been plenty of names mentioned for the post, who would doubtless have done credit to it, but the president insisted upon a man who is familiar with the particular questions involved in that department and the fact that Mr. Hurley has been named is good evidence that he measures up to the requirements.

SPASMODIC ENFORCEMENT

When the time comes that disregard for regulations and laws gets bad and noticeable, there is an attempt made to regain respect for them by launching a campaign of arrests for all violators. The idea is to teach the violators a lesson although they have been getting their chief encouragement in the breaking of the rules by the failure to enforce them.

At the present time one of these campaigns is on in Providence and the Providence Journal says, "The arraignment of motorists in sixth district court by the wholesale on charges of having their vehicles improperly lighted while parked or being driven is bound to have a salutary effect if the police keep up their activity of the past two weeks."

Emphasis, of course, rests upon that little word "if." It might further have been used to say that if the police had not permitted a lax condition to prevail concerning the improperly lighted vehicles while parked or being driven there would not now be required the wholesale arrests that are being made.

This is a condition that is by no means peculiar to Providence. It happens in other communities. Rules and regulations are established. For a brief time allowance is made for the people to get acquainted with them and then they are actually put into operation for a time. Almost as soon as the newness wears off there are those who begin to "forget" there are rules. Violations take place. Not even a warning is given concerning the violations. They are repeated and others, seeing that the rules are being disrespected, get into the habit of taking chances under the belief that the rules amount to nothing, and before you know it they don't. Then all of a sudden there is another hue and cry and wholesale arrests are made on Tuesday for what they did without molestation on Monday and daily for a month or two back, all of which could and should have been prevented by respect for the rules but also by the enforcement of the rules.

It is an old story that laws which are not enforced do not amount to much. The same is true of rules and regulations and it cannot be expected that enforcement for ten days or two weeks and toleration for the rest of the year is going to correct the condition aimed at. Let the rules be upheld every day, by warnings or arrests as the case may require, and they will mean something every day.

THE CHRISTMAS CLUBS

Probably the best indication of the appreciation of the Christmas clubs is to be found in the ever increasing number of members and the corresponding gain in the checks that are forwarded every December to those who have been saving their money.

The sum of over $160,000 which has been sent to the members in Norwich and vicinity doesn't mean that that is all that is going to be spent for Christmas, or that all of it will be spent in making Christmas presents, but it means that those who have been regularly putting aside weekly sums have funds which they can employ as they please and this is certainly a time of the year when they can be put to excellent use for holiday gifts or for swelling permanent savings accounts.

The Christmas club does away with the worry as to where holiday funds are coming from. It is a systematic method of saving that cannot fail to appeal strongly to those who have difficulty in saving any other way. The idea was a success from the start and throughout the country it means that a tremendous sum is available for Christmas use by those who in previous years had great difficulty in providing for this season of the year.

It is through the Christmas club that large numbers have received practical lessons in putting aside fixed amounts each week or month for their general savings account. Once convinced of the importance of such a practice they have not only been able to save for the rainy day but they have seen the advisability of it as never before. It has taught the lesson of proper preparation and the ease with which it can be done when the requirements are met. It likewise gives one an independence which cannot be lightly regarded.

CONNECTICUT'S TERCENTENARY

When the legislature was in session its attention was called to the fact that because of the approach of the tercentenary of the state a commission should be named to arrange for it. Governor Trumbull named such a commission and that body is now engaged in providing a fitting programme.

In connection with affairs of this nature there are those who are inclined to criticize errors of commission or omission, or when it is too late to point out that this or that ought to have been done. In recognition of the possible justice of such views the commission has decided to call upon the people of the state for any suggestions they may have. It wants to hear from individuals or organizations and seeks "frank, free and numerous" suggestions.

This move should not only preclude the possibility of anything being overlooked but it should arouse an interest and a cooperation that will be valuable in celebrating the anniversary, and it is to be realized that not much will be accomplished without them.

Connecticut has played an important part in the history of the country and it has a record of achievement that stands out conspicuously. There are many things which will not be overlooked because of their prominence but through an appeal to the citizens of the state to make suggestions, any of which might be overlooked, should be sure of getting the commission's attention before it is too late.

Through the combination celebration by the commonwealth and by the various communities which are entitled to participate, there should be an observance along unusual lines, and one which none of them should be willing to let pass without adequate notice. Those with ideas should not fail to trot them out.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Do you sympathize with or congratulate those who have got their Christmas shopping done?

Strange how one-half of 1 per cent is quickly approved when it comes to an income tax and how much opposition it raised when connected with alcoholic content.

That fear of a congressman that the $160,000,000 will mean a deficit might get more recognition and support if it were so that Secretary Mellon was in the habit of recommending action of that kind.

PAINT AND BAKING POWDER

"Imagine," said Stasia Thorne, "the J. J. Wilder company was purchased yesterday by a woman executive from New York, who will take full charge this very morning. The rumor is that we'll all be transferred—probably right off the pay roll." With that she jerked on a chiffon stocking and after it with as much haste a brown slipper and then she looked at her roommate for a reply.

"If I'm not presuming," answered Georgia Tell, in a slow, important drawl, "the J. J. Wilder company has needed a new manager for the last twenty years. From what I hear of J. J. himself, he ought to be out in the woods somewhere studying the color of English violets. And, anyway," she continued, "when the moment arrives some women have very good business heads." She patted down a reluctant curl and shoved thirty-nine others under a red hat. Stasia giggled.

"Your wisdom is bold. Of course women have good business heads and J. J. has no business in baking powder with his appreciation for art. But whether five years as secretary to the president will mean anything to that new executive I have my doubts," and she added, "but it means a lot to a girl who's slowly towing into her twenty-sixth summer." Then Georgia's eyes turned merrier.

"You ought to be glad you have a position to worry about, Thorny, dear. But I wouldn't worry. Maybe she'll at least let you remain as janitor's assistant. You know there's an old saying about sweeping your way to success." But Stasia didn't laugh. She felt too solemn. Not so much about leaving the company as leaving J. J. Wilder.

Dear old red lacquer office with its small black desk and red leather chair. Her very own sanctum. J. J. Wilder had been wonderful about designing offices to suit his own caprices. What a president! He should have been a designer, thought Stasia, instead of being tucked away in the baking powder business! She knew all the whims of J. J., that he loved oil paintings better than most people loved their breakfasts, that he was always more attentive to the youngest boy-illustrator than he was to the greatest buyer in the baking powder field.

Stasia smiled. In J. J.'s private office one was transported into a glorious room, deep-windowed and mellow with the finality of one who likes well-appointed comfort without being too aware of it.

And perhaps he would have to leave all this—especially this grand old man whose companionship in the office had meant so much to her these five years. J. J. Wilder—half artist and half business man.

Stasia gasped. That was it. J. J. Wilder was probably retiring to study art on some hilltop, where he could throw as much color on a piece of canvas as was on that wild marine in oils hanging above his filing cabinet. As she swung into the tall white building, she knew that suddenly she was glad that the baking powder magnate was leaving his trade behind him.

"Well, Thorny, did the woman make you president or did she think the broom——?" Georgia Tell demanded late that night. "You look ready to pop so it must have been good!" Stasia tilted her blond head and could scarcely speak for happiness. Inside she felt all crinkly and sad, sad because she was so happy. Queer things, being fired can do to you!

"It's just this, Georgia. There's such a thing as being fired from one job; but there's also another thing of being swept right into a new position with so much speed and surprise that it takes your breath away!

"You remember how I always thought J. J. was out of his scope, talking biscuits when he ought to be meddling with color on a brush? Today the thought came to me that dear J. J. was retiring at last to follow the line he has longed for all these years. Imagine my surprise when I learned that he's not going to paint at all, but is going to catch up on some reading he's neglected the last nineteen years.

"He's going back east to be near his oldest son, the son in whom lies all of his proud father's longed-for career, the artist-son who has just returned from abroad and will open a studio in Boston." Her voice trailed off, for her thoughts were miles away.

"Georgia," she said, quietly, "I'm going to Boston next month. I've been asked this very afternoon by J. J. junior himself to take charge of his new studio. My dear, he's grand. Just like his father—and quite unmarried." George Tell grinned. She watched the wide smile break on her roommate's pretty face and said:

"Almost like Cinderella. From baking powder to oil paintings. Well, Thorny, it's so much better than sweeping!"—Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

Get Rid of the Pests.

By Major Edwin M. Skinner, Director
Division of Mosquito Control.
Gorgas Memorial Institute.

A great many people do not know that mosquitoes can be gotten rid of—exterminated—completely wiped out. They can. And what is more, they should be, for it is neither very difficult nor very expensive.

Mosquitoes breed only in stagnant or brackish water, never in damp places, tall grass, weeds and shrubbery, although they harbor in such places to evade the sun's rays and preserve their moisture. The mother mosquito, flying along, sees a small pool of water, an upturned pail full of water, or a tin can containing water, and there she lays her eggs. Within two weeks the mosquitoes hatch, full grown, all prepared to bite.

The common house mosquito is often found breeding within buildings, particularly in basements, and will continue to breed the year around in places which are continually kept warm.

There are twenty or more species of mosquitoes that can be found in the temperate zone. All of them are pestiferous biters, and some species of them transmit disease. All diseases carried by mosquitoes are blood diseases, because the female mosquito can transmit the germs she receives from the blood of an infected person.

More than three million people in the United States every year have malaria fever that has been transmitted by mosquitoes and the cost of this disease to the people of the nation is more than one hundred million dollars. People with malaria ought to consult a doctor at frequent intervals in order that they may be cured. Unless a cure is effected, not only is the person himself very ill, but he is a menace to his neighborhood. All that is required to spread the disease is for the female anopheles mosquito to bite a person ill with malaria, become infected, and after digesting the blood, bite a second person. This is absolutely the only way in which malaria is transmitted.

The other chief mosquito-transmitted diseases are yellow fever and dengue fever. It was yellow fever that General Gorgas conquered in Havana and Panama. The last epidemic of dengue fever occurred in 1922 when nearly five hundred thousand cases were reported in southern states from the Atlantic to Central Texas.

The permanent extermination of all mosquitoes throughout the United States would not be a formidable task and there is nothing that would give greater return for the effort and money expended.

The Gorgas plan of permanent mosquito extermination calls not only for present eradication of mosquito breeding, but for the permanent exhaustion of all mosquito breed possibilities that may be caused by abnormally wet weather conditions. Any city, town or countryside that is infested with mosquitoes or even has relatively few can be freed of them under the Gorgas plan at very reasonable cost. The Gorgas memorial will show you how, and you probably have engineers fully capable of doing the outlying drainage and other work if a specially trained mosquito engineer makes a survey and outlines exactly the necessary procedure under the Gorgas plan.

Boy and Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, Rangers and other organized youth groups can render invaluable service in getting rid of the mosquito pest, and the value of this important community service will endure in the next generation, for it is certain that those who participate in this work now will not tolerate mosquitoes on their premises when they are the home-owners of tomorrow.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 — Uncle Sam's statistical sharps, mulling over data from the federal and state prison populations, fail to find any support for the notion that college education promotes crime.

"Insofar as education, or the lack of it, is a factor in the situation," says a census bureau report dealing with the complete data now available as to such prison commitments back in the first half of 1923, "the statistics indicate that an increase in educational facilities, and their use, should tend to reduce the amount of crime."

That is quite an encouraging observation, in view of the rapidly increasing educational facilities of the country. With the habitual caution of his trade, however, Bennet Mead of the bureau, who prepared the report, adds this discouraging suggestion, pointing out that the figures cover only convicted persons, not all law breakers:

"It is quite probable that offenders having education (partly by reason of their education) are more successful than the uneducated lawbreakers in avoiding arrest and conviction for their crimes."

Be that as it may, the ratio shown for illiteracy among convicted criminals per 100,000 adult population of the country was 42.7 as compared to 27.3 for those able to read or write.

For the same year census figures showed 92.9 per cent of the whole adult population of nearly 84,000,000 able to read and write.

Mr. Mead's analysis of the prisoner data shows also the degree of education as bearing on the situation.

While only 10.7 per cent. of the prisoners were illiterate, 67.5 per cent. had only elementary school educational status, 14.4 high school status, 3.4 per cent. college or professional school status and only 1 per cent. trade school training.

No War Effect Noted.

Another interesting aspect of the report deals with ex-service men of the world war. Data is not complete, but indicates that 20 per cent. of the prison commitments covered were those of men with war time military service.

Most of them, however, saw no service at the front. For this reason Mr. Mead finds the figures throw "little or no light upon the purported influence of active war service in promoting criminality."

"Liquor law violators had the smallest proportion of ex-service men—only 11.3 per cent," report said. The highest percentages were shown in forgery, 30.6 per cent; embezzlement, 26.5 per cent; non-support, 26.3 per cent, and robbery 25.4 per cent.

"It is to be noted," Mr. Mead pointed out, "that the percentage of prisoners with war service was relatively high for most of the gainful offenses against property and relatively low for offenses against persons."

Which seems to contradict flatly the widely held idea that war service induced habits of violence.

As ex-soldiers of the war fall largely into younger age groups, it was to be expected they would show a tendency to the crimes usually found charged against younger offenders.

Less than a third of the ex-soldiers convicted of liquor law violations, for instance, were between 25 and 34 years of age; while just over a third of those jailed for forgery were in that group, yet there were three times as many forgery as liquor commitments.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Reddy Gets a Turkey.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Forget the failures of the past;
Who fails at first may win at last.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy had spent the day much as they had the day before. They had slept in a snug hiding place near the farm where the turkeys were. From time to time between naps they had spied on those turkeys. By the middle of the afternoon they had slept all they wanted to. Then they crept to the edge of the woods and prepared to watch those turkeys until they should go to roost, or until they should have a chance to catch one. This time the turkeys did not come anywhere near where the foxes were hiding. They kept away from the woods. They did spend considerable time down in the open meadow, however.

"If only they would stay down there until after dark," sighed Reddy.

But there was no chance of that and both Reddy and Mrs. Reddy knew it. "Our only chance," said Reddy, "will be to get one while they are going to roost in the apple tree. If that dog would go off somewhere we wouldn't have to bother about him. I hope that this time you will be able to lead him away."

"I hope so," replied Mrs. Reddy. "I did my best yesterday. It wasn't my fault."

"If only they would stay down there until dark," sighed Reddy.

Late in the afternoon the turkeys began to move up toward the apple tree where they were in the habit of roosting. Mrs. Reddy slipped away as soon as she saw the hound over in the barnyard. She wasted no time. She raced around the barn and right across in front of that dog before he realized what was happening. But as soon as he did realize that a Fox had been impudent enough to come right up there in the barnyard, he was off after her with a great baying. All the turkeys stood still with their heads stretched up while they listened. That dog certainly did make a lot of noise. The farmer came to the barn door just in time to see Mrs. Reddy disappearing in the woods with the hound after her.

"Good old dog!" muttered the farmer. "That Fox must have been after a turkey. Well, there'll be nothing to fear from Foxes tonight. It is a good thing I had the dog turned loose."

The farmer disappeared inside the barn and Reddy Fox stole swiftly forward to the hiding place nearest the tree the turkeys roosted in. The big gobbler had already flown up in the tree when Reddy reached his hiding place. Another big bird spread her wings and flew up. And another. The fourth one never got the chance. Reddy darted out from his hiding place and seized this turkey by the neck. There was a moment or two of struggling. Some feathers flew this way and that way and then Reddy started off with the prize he had wanted for so long. That turkey was heavy. It was heavier than Reddy had realized it would be. He knew he couldn't carry it a very great distance. He was thankful that Mrs. Reddy had led that dog away. He was very thankful.

Meanwhile the other turkeys were gobbling with fright and the farmer came out of the barn to see what it was all about. He walked over to the tree where the turkeys roosted and right away he saw the feathers on the ground. He looked hastily in all directions. He couldn't see far because it was already dusk, and he looked mostly in the wrong direction, which was a good thing for Reddy. You see, Reddy was already finding out that he had got more than he had bargained for. That turkey would have to be left somewhere to be eaten later. It would have to be hidden near at hand.

CHILD TRAINING

Are You a Chum?

Mrs. Nestor Noel.

How are we to be real chums? We "kiss the place to make it well" while they are tiny babies, when they are sick we stay awake for them night after night if necessary, we sympathize with them in their little troubles, when they break their cherished toys we mend or replace them. This is not all that is required of us. We share their tiny troubles, patiently, but do we as patiently share their joys?

I once saw a lonely little girl in school on a celebration day. She was in tears. All the other children had their parents there. Why had hers not come? I tried to find out, but there seemed to be no real excuse. When our children have to recite in public, do we put off everything to go?

We can lose our children in more ways than one. We must play with them as earnestly as we work with them and then they will tell us almost everything that is in their hearts. If we don't, they will think we are too "grown up" and will confide in others instead.

"I never think of you as grown up," said my daughter to me one day.

That seemed to me one of the highest compliments she could pay me.

Do you think you are a wonderful parent because you give your child enough to eat and drink, nice clothes to wear and a pretty room in which to play? Maybe she wants you to play with her.

When playing with a child, be careful to play as a child, or she will not enjoy the game. If you get a little huffed, (in pretense) because you lost, she will like you better. I know. I have tried it.

At the same time you must teach her how to take losses in a game. Do not keep up the huff more than a second.

Laugh a great deal with your children. I once heard a child say, "We never laugh in this house unless we have visitors."

Do not be content to say that you do not understand your children. Study to understand them. If you have not been playing with them, try it as a new method of contact. The mother who plays with her children is the mother who is best beloved.

TRIPLE ACTION ends coughs FAST

"There is something terribly pathetic about a little girl coughing. My niece was on a visit to me and somehow she caught a bad cough. I was worried, all right! On the advice of the druggist I gave her Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. It worked like a charm. In four hours her cough was much better. Just to be careful I kept her in the house for two days—and she got well completely."—Mrs. M. Gaffney

Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup ends coughs 1—quickly because it has Triple Action: 2—is mildly laxative, 3—clears air passages. Made by the makers of the famous Smith Brothers' Cough Drops.

POETRY

Broken Dreams.

Night birds singing over yonder
Try to cheer me, so it seems,
As with weary heart I wander
Down the trail of broken dreams.
I am living for you only
Though we've drifted far apart;
Maybe some day you'll be lonely
And will have a change of heart.

Life before me seemed the clearest
Till that golden day was done,
When the dream I held the dearest
Vanished with the setting sun.
For you left me broken hearted
With my grief alone to bear,
As at dawning you departed
Saying you had ceased to care.

Years have passed, but not my sorrows,
Yet I rise at break of dawn,
Face the many sad tomorrows
Live and love and linger on.
For a voice breathes from the meadows:
There's a happy day, to be—
That some day from life's dull shadows
You'll come back to lonely me.
—Clifford Coapland in The Pathfinder.

November

One by one, beyond recalls,
Summer roses droop and die.
—Bishop.

"Summer roses droop and die";
Glued against the cheerless sky,
Birds of passage southward wing
Where unfrozen streamlets sing.

Mute, we stand and wonder why
"Summer roses droop and die."
While on darkened window-pane
Strike the lances of the rain.

On the forest, chill and stark,
Early falls the starless dark;
"Summer roses droop and die."
North winds sing their lullaby

Summer waits one kiss before
Leaving for a fairer shore;
Lover-like, we can but sigh

—Alonzo L. Rice in Indianapolis News.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Boy Friend (at a party): I'm going to propose a toast.

Dumb Dora: Nonsense, it isn't time for breakfast.—Boston Transcript.

"Yes, I noticed it when my husband came home."—Faun, Vienna.

"You want to know the secret of my success? Well, I give the people what they want."

"Gosh! But isn't that against the law?"—Life.

Tramp—No, thanks, ma'am. My brother took a chance once and got three years for counterfeitin'.—Detroit News.

Teacher—Oxygen is absolutely necessary to life; it was discovered in 1774.

Pupil—But, monsieur, how did people manage to keep alive before that?—Dimanche Illustre.

"I say," said the new curate, looking up from the evening paper, "have you heard about the dean who was found in a box?"

"No," cried the rector excitedly. "Which dean was that?"

"The sardine".—Vancouver Province

A New York city school teacher tells about a little boy whose coat was so difficult to fasten that she went to his assistance. As she tugged at the hook she asked:

"Did your mother hook this coat for you?"

"No," was the astounding reply, "she bought it."—Sunshine Bulletin.

A boy was sent by his parent who had coddled him a good deal at home, to a big public school.

He was strictly enjoined to write home regularly and tell them about himself and his new life.

At the end of a week his first letter arrived. It consisted of only a single line:

"There are 370 boys here," he wrote. "I wish there were 369."—Montreal Star.

There are 2,000,000 more women than men in the French republic.

There are over 200 animals that are parasitic upon, or in, man himself.

Forest service officials state that never in the history of the northwest has there been as long a fire season as that of 1929.

Skilled craftsmen were so much in demand in colonial America that their occasional attempts to become farmers were discouraged and even legislated against.

Supplying rabbits for the Christmas trade has become a considerable industry in Missouri, and last year 3,500,000 were shipped as far as New York, Boston and the Pacific coast cities.

What is known as the old Frank Hunt place, situated in South Hiram, Me., does not differ in appearance from scores of other farmhouses, but its history is singular from the fact that there has never been a birth, death or marriage within its walls in its more than a century of existence.

Not long ago a Rochester, N. H., woman was enjoying a ride on top of one of the Fifth avenue buses in New York city. It seemed to her that the bus was making rather frequent stops, but she was in no hurry and gave the matter not much thought until at one the conductor came up the stairs to where she sat. "Pardon me, madam," said he politely, "but would you mind taking your knee off the bell?"

A Pittsburgh, Pa., violinist is the despair of hostesses in that city who wish to exhibit him in their drawing rooms as a social attraction. For this musician has his own way of entertaining guests. Instead of immediately doing what might be expected of him, the violinist shows his prowess as a strong man. He demonstrates how he can lift three men at once, and often does a stunt of lifting the piano bench with one hand. This last requires him to doff his coat, and usually by this time the hostess is in anything but a tranquil state of mind. Later on he plays the violin.

A Philadelphia couple inadvertently "crashed the gate" at a theatre there not long ago. The two are devotees of opera, and for many years have subscribed to a series of performances and always occupy the same seats. But this evening they got some dates mixed and arrived just before the performance began. The doorman recognized them and did not examine their tickets, but waved them through the door. The man told an usher not to bother showing them to their seats; they could find them without assistance. All went well, but on the way home they discovered that the performance had been the opening one of a series given by a new company and for which they had not subscribed. Their seats happened to be the only vacant ones that evening.

PAYS IN COURT FOR BURNING MAN'S HAT

Because he failed to make restitution for a hat which he burned up during a wordy battle in a Montville pool room, Walter Marowski of Montville, arrested Friday evening by State Police Officer Hill, was fined $5 and costs in Montville town court.

Marowski and Steve Haresey, the story goes, engaged in an argument in the pool room a week ago, and Marowski, in order to get "even," threw a lighted cigar butt into Haresey's hat. The latter after trying unsuccessfully to collect the price of the hat from Marowski, complained to the authorities.

SANTA READY TO TAKE OFF AT HARTFORD

SANTA CLAUSE ARRIVES TO BE IN NORWICH FOR HOLIDAY SEASON

Headed for the store of the Porteous & Mitchell company and due to arrive there by airplane from his home at the North Pole, Santa Claus ran into dense fog between Hartford and this city Saturday afternoon, making the visibility so poor that he had to complete the last stage of the journey by automobile.

Santa came in by the way of Fitchville, Yantic and Norwich Town, proceeding to Gallows hill which was to have been his landing field where Boy Scouts, with trumpeters, were waiting to receive him and a multitude of the boys and girls of the city were on hand to see him land from the skies. When he had answered numerous inquiries from the enthusiastic group that greeted him, Santa started for the city by automobile, with the trumpeters heralding his advance, as he came through Taftville, Greeneville and down to Franklin square to go through Main street to the Porteous & Mitchell store.

The street in front of the store was packed with children and all along the line Santa was given a tumultuous greeting as his jolly white-whiskered face and red suit came into view.

At the store the genial old fellow's workshop had been arranged in one of the windows by Joseph F. Farrell, the store decorator, and Santa lost no time in taking his place there to entertain the children with the many novel features which he had at hand. Brought with him as a surprise for the children was a real clown who attended Santa in the workshop and kept the children in uproars of laughter by his funny antics.

Santa had a wonderfully fine variety of toys to display in his workshop and besides these was another article that had the boys and girls wishing hard for it when it was known that he was going to give it away to some fortunate boy or girl on Christmas eve. This gift is a regular aviator's all-leather flying jacket and helmet, such as is worn by the government mail and air pilots.

Santa sent word ahead that he was coming by airplane, dropping a message at Juneau, Alaska, which was forwarded by the telegraph operator there, as follows:

"Santa Claus seen over Juneau today flying low, dropped container saying he was bound for Porteous and Mitchell Co.'s store at Norwich, Conn. Should arrive in Norwich, Saturday, Dec. 7, about 2 p. m. Has big surprise for his young friends."

ELKS' STATE ASSOCIATION FORMED IN CONNECTICUT

Half a hundred delegates from the 24 lodges of Elks in Connecticut at a meeting held Sunday afternoon at the home of the New Haven lodge of Elks, formed the Connecticut Elks' association, thus adding one more state to the more than 40 already having a state association. The organization is brought into existence, in Connecticut for the purpose of fostering a more close and intimate contact between the members of the various lodges in Connecticut. The Elks National Foundation fund which will be used for furthering the charitable and educational work of the order of Elks will be administered by the national organization through these state associations.

The delegates elected the following officers to hold office until the first regular meeting of the association to be held in (Hartford, home of the mother lodge of the state, some time during the early summer. Members of the lodges becoming associated with the Connecticut Elks' association become automatically members of the state association.

The officers chosen for the term to the first regular meeting were: President, Martin J. Cunningham, Danbury; first vice president, Roy R. Powers, Hartford; second vice president, John F. Pickett, Middletown; secretary, William Gleason, Torrington; treasurer, Joseph C. Ivers, Bridgeport; trustees, Lawrence Manzan, New Britain; Raymond E. Gilyard, Ansonia; V. R. Kilbok, Greenwich; Edward L. Hayner, West Haven; Nelson J. Ayling, Norwich.

Representatives to the state association meeting in the summer will be chosen by the various lodges at the time of the election of the lodge officers in March.

State associations furnish to the members of the order of Elks a state convention held yearly about the country and not only will the national fund be administered through the state associations but where state associations are in existence the grand exalted ruler of the Elks will look to them for advice in matters concerning the state lodges and will also receive any recommendations from the association in regard to any matter of benefit to the lodges within the state.

Representing Norwich lodge of Elks at the New Haven meeting were John H. Carney, Frank P. Donnelly and Laurence E. Millea.

AUTO WEDGED BETWEEN TROLLEY AND POLE

A Packard roadster, driven by James Gaffney of the Norwich state hospital, was considerably damaged about 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon when it became wedged between a southbound trolley car and a telegraph pole on West Thames street, at the foot of Thamesville hill, near Shipping street. The trolley car had left the square at 4:15 o'clock bound for New London and the roadster, headed in the same direction, attempted to pass the car where the tracks cross from the right to the left hand side of West Thames street. The trolley car, passing across the street to the left, caused the auto driver to swing to the left. He was unable to get clear of the car and became wedged between the car and a pole. The driver escaped injury but the machine was quite badly damaged. The trolley car sustained a broken step.

BOLD BURGLARY IN FRANKLIN SQUARE STORE

Some time after midnight Thursday entrance was made through a rear window to Sella's Spa, 229-231 Main street, Franklin square, where the burglar got about $35 from the cash register.

A milk can standing under a window that opens on the alleyway in the rear of the building and a screen cut out of the window indicated the way the burglar got in. The break was a particularly bold one as a good view of the interior of the store is afforded to anyone who happened to be passing at the time the burglar was operating.

HOPES TO SEE SALE OF CHRISTMAS SEALS SUSTAINED

In a letter to Mrs. Richard B. Snow, chairman of the Christmas seal sale in Norwich, Dr. John F. O'Brien, superintendent of The Seaside at Niantic, writes of the many instances where incalculable benefit has been afforded to tuberculous children through the funds provided by the sale of the seals and urges that there be no diminution in the number of seals sold.

Dr. O'Brien writes as follows in his letter to Mrs. Snow:

"It was with a great deal of pleasure that I read of your consent to again serve as chairman of the Christmas seal sale. For I know that putting your whole heart into the work, as you have always done in the past, will result in a banner year.

"At this time I would like to express to you my deep appreciation of the whole-hearted cooperation I have always received from the Norwich public health nurses in my work with tuberculous children. There are instances, too numerous to mention, of children now well and a joy to themselves and their parents who might now be hopeless cripples but for the watchfulness and persistence of your organization. And this work was ever done cheerfully and tactfully, unhampered by red tape of any sort. So efficient has been your organization and so happily chosen your personnel as to be the envy of many communities throughout the state. To me it is unthinkable that there should be any drop in your Christmas seal sale which might lesson in any way the scope of the very important work you are doing.

"I wish you all success, and knowing the generosity of the people of Norwich I feel certain you will attain it."

JOHN PORTEOUS SUFFERED INJURY TO KNEE

While walking from the living room to a porch at the home of his daughter, Mrs. B. M. Crosthwaite, in Pelham Manor, N. Y., a week ago Sunday, John Porteous, of No. 242 Broadway, this city, of Porteous and Mitchell Co., missed his footing and wrenched a knee. Since the accident Mr. Porteous has been at the home of his daughter, where he has been recuperating and is said to be coming along finely. He is expected to return home today (Monday).

DISMISSES CLAIM FOR WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

As Rose Spinnato of 30 Montauk avenue, New London is classed as an "outworker" and not an employe of the Schwartz Leather company, according to a finding by Commissioner A. J. Bailey, her claim for workmen's compensation is disallowed and dismissed by him.

The commissioner finds that Mr. Schwartz brought material to the Spinnato home, which material comprised celluloid to be placed into pocketbooks. An explosion occurred at the home on Jan. 28th, last, and the claimant sustained serious burns about the face, neck and hands, the burns being caused by some of the material which she was using catching fire.

DRIVER INJURED WHEN AUTOMOBILE HIT POLE

An automobile driven by Percy J. Willis of 161 Mt. Pleasant street was badly wrecked and Willis sustained cuts on the ear and side of the face Sunday afternoon when the machine hit a pole on the westerly side of North Main street just below the Roath street corner.

As Willis was driving south on the street, the wheels of the automobile caught in the trolley tracks throwing the machine across the street into the pole.

Eleven stitches were taken to close the wound made by broken glass from the windshield.

Boy Struck by Automobile

Tom Sears of 5 Providence street, Taftville, a boy about 12 years old, was struck in Shetucket street Saturday morning by an automobile driven by Roy Reed. The boy had a drum in his hand when he stepped off the sidewalk near the corner of Main street into the path of the automobile. Young Sears told Officer Joseph Gendron that he was not hurt.

CONTRIBUTES TO SANATORIUM FUND

Miss Helen Perkins, Mrs. Mary W. Young, Miss Edith E. Young, Holy Name Society of St. Patrick's church, Rosary Society St. Patrick's church, Rt. Rev. Monsignor Michael H. May, I. Kenyon, Eva Viens, Danielson; Nellie V. Scanlon, North Franklin; A Friend, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McClenathon, Alif Stephens, Mrs C. W. Vaughn, Ruby E. Vaughn, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Parker, Miss Randell, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Y. Messinger, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Tirrell, Turner and Stanton, Ruth L. Cameron, Yalesville; Elizabeth Ortman.

The following letter from a former patient at the sanatorium speaks for itself:

Dear Dr. Campbell:

Enclosed is a check for $28.00 for the holiday fund. This money was raised at two bridge parties, which I gave on Nov. 26th and 30th. Each person invited was asked to donate 50 cents and also assured that it would be very much appreciated if they wished to and could afford to give more. Several gave a dollar and some who could not attend sent the money anyway. The kindness of friends and relatives helped to make both bridges a success. Of course $28.00 isn't very much when one thinks of the 220 patients to be provided for, but I hope it will help just a little to give the same happiness I experienced through the kindness of the holiday fund.

I am feeling good and my temperature and pulse are normal.

Best wishes for a very merry Christmas,

Sincerely,
RUTH L. CAMERON.

JAIL SENTENCE FOR OPERATING UNDER INFLUENCE

Rather than pay a fine of $200 and costs for driving while under the influence of liquor, Charles O. Deschenes of No. 80 Shetucket street, chose a 30-day jail sentence at the city court session Saturday morning. He was given his choice of paying the fine or serving the 30-day sentence.

Accused was arrested early Friday evening after the machine he was driving was in a collision near the West Thames street fire station, with a machine operated by Robert E. Kirkpatrick, of Poquonoc Bridge. Both machines were damaged.

In the case of Nicholas J. Doyle, of R. F. D. No. 7, also accused of operating under the influence, a continuance was taken to next Tuesday.

EAST GREENWICH ACADEMY GOSPEL TEAM HEARD

The evening service at Trinity Methodist church followed this order, the Gospel Team from East Greenwich academy being in charge: Hymns in opening song service, led by Malcome Rawlinson; scripture reading, Psalm 90, the pastor, Rev. Joseph Cooper; prayer; solo, Joseph Brackett; offertory; hymn; sermon, "The Demands of Life," Edward Ward; hymn; benediction.

Fined on Speeding Charge

John Cousins of 25 Rogers avenue was fined $10 and costs when presented in the justice of the peace court Friday night in Preston. The charge was speeding, having been changed from reckless driving with which he had been charged after the automobile of Ernest Ledoux of 20 Spalding street was found crashed against a fence on the Military highway at a point below the state hospital. Ledoux had loaned the machine to Rogers.
the machine to Cousins.

Worked on Christmas Presents

Work on finishing Christmas gifts occupied the time of the members of the Girls' City club when it met Friday evening in the club room at 9 Washington street. In the latter part of the evening there were songs, games and dancing. The membership and attendance are steadily gaining and the club meets again on Friday evening.

CHINA MISSION TRAGEDY RECALLED BY PRIEST

The preacher at the four masses in St. Patrick's church Sunday was Rev. Dennis Galvin, O. P., one of the editors of The Sign, the magazine published by the Passionist Fathers in Union City, N. J. These eloquent preachers devote their lives and talents to spreading knowledge of the passion, or suffering of Christ, in His love for men. Not alone do they maintain a seminary for training young candidates for the priesthood in carrying on Christ's work in this country, but they educate and train missionary priests especially for the Chinese field. The speaker recalled the tragedy of April 23 last, when three young American Passionist Fathers who had been laboring in the Chinese field, the eldest one for six years, were stripped, shot and their bodies kicked into a deep pit, by Chinese bandits.

What gives the urge, what is the motivating power, the missionary preacher asked, which sends these devoted men and others like them to China, where they go for life. In obedience to the Saviour's command, they go to carry His gospel to those in darkness, for with God there is no color line, no distinction of race or condition; all are brothers and sisters of Jesus Christ, who shed His blood for them as for us. Of the 400,000,000 Chinese only two millions are Catholics; and the laborers in this field are consecrated to spread the kingdom of Jesus Christ in China, ignoring hardships, denials, homesickness, burdens of every kind. In particular the preacher asked the children in the great congregation which filled the church at 9 o'clock, to pray for the success of the missionary cause. He explained that the Passionists' magazine, The Sign, means the sign of the cross, to Catholics the symbol of eternal salvation. It is designed to spread the truth regarding the Roman Catholic faith, and to correct ignorance and prejudice which have prevailed since Colonial times. The tree of ignorance always bears the fruit of prejudice. It is not given to the majority of Catholics to go out into the world to teach Christ's gospel; but all can aid by their prayers and material assistance in enabling the Chinese missionaries to carry on, as one unmistakable proof of the fact that religion is of paramount importance in the practical Catholic's life.

The mission Father's appeal met with a most generous response from his hearers. At the 9 o'clock mass he aided Rev. Myles P. Galvin in giving holy communion to an extraordinary number of penitents, following the first Friday and week-end confessions. He sang the high mass at 10:30. It was a busy Sunday in the parish since the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May was in Hamden, Conn., to assist at the dedication by Bishop Nilan of the new St. Rita's church, of which his younger brother, Rev. Francis E. May, is pastor, while Rev. John J. Reilly went to Jewett City to sing high mass for Rev. John J. McCabe, in Washington to assist at the investiture of Rt. Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick, of Norwich, professor of education at a Catholic university and recently appointed a monsignor by Pope Pius XI.

In the absence of the rector, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, senior curate, was acting pastor, doing much to rouse the interest of the 4,000 members of the parish in the Chinese mission project outlined by his namesake from New Jersey.

FOR CHRISTMAS SPIRIT THROUGHOUT THE YEAR

An interesting sermon on the subject, A New Kind of Christmas Club Needed, was delivered by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor, at the service Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church. Throughout the service favorite Christmas hymns of the pastor and congregation were rendered.

The purpose of this message is to make certain of a joyous Christmas for every one, said Rev. Mr. Pitt, in opening his sermon. I believe everyone should have a joyous Christmas and it is possible to have a more joyous Christmas than ever before if we prepare for it. We won't have it unless we prepare for it. There is exceedingly little that just happens in any realm. I am certain we have been interested in the returns from the banks regarding the Christmas clubs. Checks to the amount of $200,000 or more have been received by members of the clubs in Norwich and a similar amount in New London. That is splendid. Somebody has been doing some thinking. Somebody has had some foresight. They have been preparing for a good Christmas.

In quoting Van Dyke the pastor said; "Some people are discouraged. They expect some great experience on Christmas day, but fail to find it, because they do nothing for their hearts to prepare for it." Nowadays people are so busy with other matters that there is no room for the spirit of Christmas and the spirit of God, said the pastor. He suggested the following ways to prepare our mind and heart for Christmas: That we get better acquainted with the story of Christmas; that we become familiar with the thought of Christmas with its changes and that Christmas is empty unless we see the source and heart of Christmas.

After mentioning the three things that Christmas meant to him including "the Christmas hope of a Christlike world" the pastor went on to enlarge on this by saying that he was thinking of the day when it would be Christmas always, Christmas everywhere and Christmas at its best; when that very best Christmas spirit would move us the whole year round and not only at Christmas time.

I want to say to the poorest woman in the audience that I am thinking of her and that she can be helpful in the club I have in mind, a club with people working together and experimenting with the thought of Christmas in making it real, with each and everyone coming forward with suggestions for service to fellowmen. There isn't one of you who can not be used if you are willing.

The pastor spoke of some service that he had rendered to a local person and went on to say, that is the spirit of the master. That is what you want. There is a joyous Christmas for you and through you for others. It is not likely to come if you don't prepare for it. The ways to prepare for it is through the mind, heart and will. Let it be moved with tender love and sympathy for others, he said in conclusion.

BEQUESTS TO RELATIVES IN GEO. W. WELLER'S WILL

A hearing will be held in the local probate court today (Monday), on the admission to probate of the will of George W. THREW ROCK THROUGH STORE DOOR IN MARKET ST. BURGLARY ATTEMPT

Evidently frightened away after a bold attempt to rob the wholesale paper store of the Irving M. Bronerwine Corp., 42 Market street, a thief failed to gain entrance to the store after throwing a large rock through the plate glass in the store door late Sunday afternoon. Officer Henry Fenton, who went on duty at 6 o'clock Sunday evening, reported to police headquarters about 6:15 o'clock that he had found a large hole in the glass in the door.

Mr. Bronerwine was located by telephone at Moosup and informed of the attempted break. He told the police that he was in the store at two o'clock Sunday afternoon and that everything was all right at that time. Officer Joseph Gendron, on duty on the Market street beat Sunday, stated Sunday evening that the glass in the door was intact at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Officer Fenton went on duty at 6 o'clock and discovered the smashed glass 15 minutes later. Mr. Bronerwine, who, upon being informed of the attempted break, immediately came to Norwich and inspected the store, stated that nothing was missing. The rock was found inside the store.

It is believed that the person who threw the rock through the store door glass is responsible for the recent breaks in two local A. & P. stores. Four times within the past few weeks two local A. & P. stores have been broken into and small change, hidden by the store managers, stolen. In one instance a rock was thrown through the glass in the door of the A. & P. store on East Main street during the early morning hours and about $15 in silver stolen. About a week ago someone forced an entrance, through a rear barred window, into the A. & P. store on West Main street, and stole about $15 in silver, which had been hidden in the store by the manager.

CONDUCTOR HOMER MARVIN DIES AT NEW LONDON FROM HIS INJURIES

NEW LONDON, Dec. 8—Homer Marvin, about 56, of 129 Montauk avenue, employed as conductor in the freight service of the New Haven railroad, died at Lawrence-Memorial hospital this morning as a result of injuries sustained Friday afternoon when he was struck by a light locomotive at Mystic. He is survived by his wife. He was a member of the Order of Railroad Conductors and New London lodge of Elks. Mr. Marvin was conductor of a work train and late Friday afternoon while the train was being backed to a siding at Mystic for the night, Marvin who was walking along the tracks, was struck by the light engine, which was running from Providence to Midway. Marvin was thrown outside the main side tracks, but his left arm was run over and crushed near the elbow. He also sustained a lacerated scalp. The engine crew was not aware that Marvin had been struck and he was found lying beside the tracks by members of the work crew. Marvin was taken to the Mystic station and given emergency treatment, then being brought to New London and taken to the hospital where the crushed arm was amputated above the elbow.

Ledyard Offenders Arrested

Clyde Crouch and Florence Drake, both of Ledyard, were arrested at 6 o'clock Saturday morning in a cottage where they had been residing for a long time as man and wife. The charge against the couple is lascivious cohabitation. Crouch and the Drake woman, who were arrested by State Police Officer Frederick Johnson, will be given a hearing before a justice at Ledyard.

The continued case of George Wright, 54, a nurse, residing at 316 State street, charged with violation of the state statute prohibiting the practice of chiropody without a license, was again continued in the police court Saturday. Deputy Judge John McGarry ordered the case continued for two weeks.

Ernest Coe, of Huntington street, employed as a truck driver, was charged with fraud in selling clothing that did not belong to him. Coe recently purchased a suit of clothes and before he made final payment he sold the apparel to a friend. The store proprietor who sold the clothes to Coe made complaint to the police and Coe was arrested. The case was continued to Monday.

One case of intoxication was tried. The man, who was arrested on North Bank street Friday night, was given suspension of judgment.

Struck Machine—Wanted to Fight

George D. King, U. S. Coast Guard, will be in the police court Monday charged with evasion of responsibility, upon complaint of Russell Beckwith, Meridian street, garage proprietor. The car King was driving on Main street Friday night hit Beckwith's auto and damaged it. King instead of investigating the extent of the damage occasioned speeds daway, after he had endeavored to engage in physical combat with Beckwith.

Parked on Crosswalk

Mrs. Elizabeth P. Hartwig, 44 Sherman street, was arrested Saturday by Traffic Officer Albert Iverson charged with violation of the city's traffic regulations in parking her automobile on a crosswalk. Mrs. Hartwig was ordered to present herself in the police court Monday.

Car Struck Tree

Miss Vera Ferro, 10 Chelsea street, was injured and Antonio Menghi, 87 Smith street and Miss Eva Benvenuti, Goshen street, escaped injury Friday night when the automobile in which they were riding crashed against a tree and overturned in Waterford. Miss Ferro sustained lacerations of the leg, the injury being treated at the office of a New London physician. Menghi was arrested by State Police Officer James Dygert charged with reckless driving and will be in Waterford town court Monday. The automobile was proceeding toward New London on the Hartford turnpike. On Ferguson's hill, the car skidded because of its speed and continued 150 feet without Menghi getting it under control, the car, a Hupmobile crashing against a large tree and then falling on its side.

Burial in Uncasville

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth R. Stoddard, widow of Ichabod Stoddard, were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Appley, Long Hill road, Groton. Burial was in Comstock cemetery, Montville.

Blames Westerly Driver

Mrs. William Glynn, 678 Bank street, reported to the police Saturday evening that her son, Francis A. Glynn, 10, had been struck by an automobile and that the driver was guilty of evasion of responsibility. Mrs. Glynn said that the boy was struck on Bank street and the driver when the boy informed the former that he had sustained injury, drove away. A witness stated that the auto carried Connecticut registration, N-6354, which markers were issued to Charles L. Westcott, 5 Hillside avenue, Westerly.

Joseph Foster, 118 Bayonet street, reported to the police Saturday night that while his auto was parked on Washington street, near Brewer, it was struck by another auto and damaged.

The automobile, which was owned by Leroy Buffington, 59 Connecticut avenue, was driven by Wells Geer, 37 Franklin street.

LEBANON EMPLOYE TAKEN ILL AT THEATRE

Fernando Santuri, of Palmer, Mass., employed by the Central Vermont railroad at Lebanon, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, having been taken there Saturday night when he became ill while attending a motion picture performance. His condition is not considered serious. Santuri went to the Crown theatre and while seated there was taken ill. The police were notified and Patrolmen Albert Iverson and Arthur Feeley had Santuri to be removed to the hospital.

COAST GUARD FIREMAN P. M. CASSIDY TAKES IODINE

NEW LONDON, Dec. 8—P. M. Cassidy, 22, United States Coast Guard, a fireman, third class on the destroyer Shaw, attempted suicide this afternoon by swallowing a quantity of iodine. He is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where it is believed that he will recover. Cassidy, it is understood, attempted self-destruction because of ill-health. It is also understood, that Cassidy will be transferred to the Mitchell ward within a day or two. He was on State street about 6 o'clock and approaching Patrolman William Riordan, requested to be directed to a drug store. His request was granted. After Cassidy purchased the poison he walked to Golden street where he swallowed the greater part of the contents of the vial. A pedestrian who found Cassidy lying on the sidewalk with the vial beside him hurried to State street and informed Officer Riordan that a sailor had attempted suicide. Going to Golden street Riordan saw that the man was the bluejacket that had been directed to a pharmacy a few minutes before.

Elmer Allen, of Shaw street, a mason by occupation, was arrested this afternoon by Sergeant John Courtney and Patrolman John Sullivan. He was arrested near his home.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Piotrowski is survived by four daughters, Dorothy, Martha, Mary and Stefana Piotrowski, and by six sons, John, Stanley, Thomas, Leon, Walter and Edmund Piatrowski.

Yolanda Orizetti

Miss Yolanda Orizetti, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlo Orizetti, died Friday night at the residence of her parents in Uncasville, after illness for nine months with heart disease. Besides her parents, she is survived by three sisters, Jennie, Ida and Julia Orizetti.

George H. Miller has granted the city a renewal of lease of a part of the building, 367 Bank street, which is used as a school clinic. The lease is for a year, dating from Jan. 10, 1930, and the rent will be $2,700.

Walter Marowski, Montville, was arrested in that town Friday, charged with breach of the peace. When tried in the justice court later in the day a fine of $5 and costs was imposed. Marowski was arrested by State Police Officer Charles Hill.

GOSHEN

Not many people are acquainted with the fact that the township of Lebanon formerly belonged to Windham county. A Goshen resident, while looking over some old papers, recently learned this fact. The date was in 1804, 125 years ago. The handwriting, though somewhat different from that of the present day, was well preserved.

Mrs. Edward Barrows is ill.

Gustave T. Bochman, of Hartford, secretary of the Connecticut State Temperance union, conducted the morning and evening church services here Sunday.

With the eight inches of snow that came Monday and the low temperature, it was a week of the real old-fashioned New England winter weather. The snow made fine sledding and was well tried out around the farms.

An old gray fox that has been hanging around Maple Hill had a hot chase Tuesday when two wide-awake hounds struck its trail.

The Ladies' Aid society met with Miss Clara Gillett Thursday.

Wild geese are later than usual, going south this year. Two large flocks were heard passing over in the darkness Friday evening, Dec. 6. The aerial travelers broke the present rules of navigation as no lights were displayed. However, their presence was made known by the continuous honking of their horns. They were traveling by instinct, instead of by chart or compass.

A number from here attended the Ladies' Aid society sale and supper held at the Center church, Lebanon, Friday evening, Dec. 6. The social hour was greatly enjoyed, also the appetizing supper. The 50 pounds of home-made candy sold was pronounced extra fine.

CANTERBURY GREEN

Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Hawes and Miss Elise Hawes motored to Southbridge, Tuesday evening where they were guests of the Isaak Walton league.

The Kansas state board of health estimates that more than 75 per cent of all Kansas children between five and 14 have physical defects of some nature.

Are YOU Getting YOUR MONEY'S WORTH In Entertainment?

The American people pay more generously for entertainment than any nation on earth. Their generosity has enriched the motion picture industry.

* * *

Spoken dialog has come to replace the subtitle of the silent picture. Tagging along with the talkie comes Mechanical Music—an economy.

* * *

Real Music is being ordered out of many theatres in favor of this new comer, who never dared a theatrical appearance until he gained the protection of the Talking Picture's novelty and the magic word "Synchronized." Now synchronization with a picture does not give Mechanical Music the quality of Real Music.

* * *

A very great many theatre-goers will answer:

"NO!"

Then why should the aforementioned American people, who pay so generously for entertainment, be required to take less for their money than they were wont to get?

WESTERLY

YEAR OF ACTIVITY SPENT IN THE LOCAL HOSPITAL

During the week, the board of incorporators and the trustees of the Westerly hospital held their annual meeting at the Sarah Alexander Champion Nurses' home. There was an increase of revenue for the hospital for 1929 of $7,240.98, making the total revenue for 1929 $45,352.85, as against $38,112.80 for the year 1928. The net deficit for the year, after all gifts had been counted, showed a slight increase. The deficit for the year 1929 amounted to $1,379.61 as compared with $1,268.35 in 1928. There was a daily average of more than 27 patients at the hospital compared with 23 in 1928, and the total number of patients admitted increased from 727 in 1928 to 747 in 1929. There was a decrease in the average per patient cost for the past year of $6.55, as compared with $7.21 for 1929.

The treasurer's report of the Hospital Aid showed the society to have funds on hand amounting to $8,378.88, to go toward the endowed bed. The Hospital Aid will need $10,000 to complete this fund. Edgar P. Maxson a member of the board of trustees and its secretary since the early days of the hospital, resigned. Mr. Maxson was one of the five original incorporators of the hospital in 1921 and was elected secretary of the board on the death of Harry E. Agard, its first secretary. Two vacancies were filled on the board of trustees due to the resignation of Mr. Maxson and the death of Thomas McKenzie; George B. Utter and Samuel Nardone were elected. The nine trustees elected at the meeting of the corporation are: John O. Mills, Thomas Lenihan, Arthur M. Cottrell, Edward E. Bradley, Alberti R. Stillman, Harold O. Moore, Harvey C. Perry, George B. Utter and Samuel Nardone.

The case of Salvatore Frank, former Pawcatuck resident, who was arrested in New London the past week on complaint of assaulting a police officer, will come before Judge William A. Wilcox in town court Tuesday. Nearly a year ago he was reported to have swung a bottle upon the head of Officer Adin R. Sheldon of Pawcatuck as the officer followed him to his home and demanded that he come out of a room behind a locked door and submit to arrest. Frank has been reported as employed near the Connecticut state police barracks in Groton for some time following his disappearance from Pawcatuck, where former Officer C. Wilson Brown held a warrant for his arrest.

A number of Westerly hunters who went to Hazelville in the town of Preston last week to hear the case in which Lafayette Maine of Swanton Hill had interested himself in behalf of a relative, which case was transferred to North Stonington for trial, will attend the session of court to be held in North Stonington today (Monday).

The adjourned Westerly session of the November term of Washington county superior court, Associate Justice Charles A. Walsh of Providence on the bench, will convene in Westerly this (Monday) morning at 10:45. A new panel of petit jurors has been summoned. Consideration will be given the Westerly trial calendar prepared by Clerk W. Herbert Caswell of Narragansett.

Real Estate Transfer

Dec. 6. Mabel Stimpson Hayes and Edward S. Stimpson, of Newton, Mass., to Richard J. Greenway and Alexia S. Greenway of Westerly undivided one-third interest in two parcels of land, the first together with buildings and improvements, bounded to grantor Sept. 15, 1919, by Mary W. and J. Edward Coleman and the second tract adjoining the first at the northeast corner of same, running easterly along land of Raymond H. Hixon and properties now or formerly of Orville Stillman and of Adolf P. Olson and wife.

Dec. 6. Guardian's deed. H. F. Stimpson, Jr., to Richard J. Greenway et al, an undivided one-third interest in above described property, by Guardian Edward S. Stimpson of Newton, Mass.

Stephen J. G. Cullen of Connecticut college, New London, while driving in Westerly on Saturday morning to take up his duties with the P. H. Ryan company had his automobile overturn on the top of Fort Hill. The icy highway pavement was icy and he also skidded off the road, to overturn and badly damaging the machine. Mr. Cullen, who was alone, escaped injury. He returned to his home in New London Saturday night by train.

Christmas Lights Dec. 11th

Employees of the South County Public Service Co. completed Saturday the stringing of festoons of colored incandescent lamps along both sides of High and Canal streets, to the national bridge of the New Haven road up High street to beyond the road entrance to Wilcox park, Broad street from the Westerly high school further across the Pawcatuck river along to the overhead railroad bridge and along Main nearly to Union street. Those thousands of colored lights will be turned on for Christmas evening, Dec. 11th.

NIANTIC, CONN. MAN MADE PRESIDENT OF C. E. SOCIETIES

Lloyd Barnes of Niantic, Conn., formerly of Westerly, was elected president of the New England Seventh Day Baptist Christian Endeavor society at the Rockville church on Saturday afternoon and evening. There was a good attendance from the societies in Waterford, Ashaway, Westerly, Rockville, Hopkinton and Ashaway. The other officers chosen were: Miss Marion Crandall, Rockville, vice president; Stanton Langworthy, Westerly, secretary; Hiram Davis, Westerly, treasurer. The addresses were delivered by Rev. Clayton Hurley, pastor of Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church. The rally was preceded by refreshments served in the parish house. During the evening session a pageant "Light Bearers," written by Mrs. Alexander Austin of Westerly, was presented by the members of the Senior and Junior C. E. societies of Westerly church.

Bradford Plant May Close

There were rumors in Westerly Saturday that the plant of the Bradford dyeing association at Bradford where the 225 employes have been on strike for a week, was to shut down. The management and strikers are no nearer effecting a settlement now than when the trouble began.

The labor leaders are in session with their committee, they claim, from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily, awaiting an opportunity to confer with the management of the mill. The management, on the other hand, has expressed willingness to confer with the men but will not recognize them as an organization of union men.

It was reported Friday that occupants of the mill houses had been advised they would be required to vacate the mill property unless they returned to work. There are about 25 of these houses on Bowling lane and they accommodate twice that many families, as each is a double house.

The Central Labor union of Westerly has gone on record as favoring the strike, and endorsement, the leaders claim, has been received from the American Federation of Labor and many other labor organizations.

Another mass meeting will be held this (Monday) afternoon in Burdick hall when an address will be delivered by Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America.

OBITUARY

Robert Crowther

Robert Crowther, 68, of Lower Pawcatuck, died at Westerly hospital Sunday. Besides his wife, Alice Ann Ratcliffe, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ira F. Meeker, of Lower Pawcatuck, and a grand-daughter. Mr. Crowther lived here for 35 years, during which time he was employed as a spinner at the American Thread Co. He has been a member of the Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, A. F. and A. M., of Pawcatuck, for twenty-one years.

Mrs. Oscar Wells

Emma J. Vars, 73, wife of Oscar Wells of Ashaway, died suddenly at her home Saturday morning. She was born in Bradford, R. I., a daughter of Alfred G. and Jane T. Vars. Mrs. Wells was a graduate of East Greenwich academy and prior to her marriage taught school in Bradford, also in Charlestown. Fifty-three years ago she married Oscar I. Wells, of Hopkinton, who survives her. Mrs. Wells was a member of the First Hopkinton Seventh Day Baptist church, of the Sewing society, the W. C. T. U., and the Rhode Island Republican club. Besides her husband, she leaves a brother, John B. Vars, and a sister, Mrs. Medora Wilcox of Bradford.

TREE FROM NORWICH IS TO HAVE 300 LIGHTS

The locating of the Westerly community Christmas tree on the site of the main entrance to the burned Rhode Island hotel was completed Friday afternoon. The work of setting the tree in this sightly place adjoining Dixon square was accomplished by men of the South County Public Service company. In the background was also placed a large signboard on which free auto parking for Christmas shoppers was announced by the Westerly and Pawcatuck Retail Merchants' association. The tree stands 35 feet above the ground and will be adorned with more than 300 electric lights. The tree was secured from Norwich by Ernest H. Saunders, superintendent of the South County Public Service company, after he had spent some time in scouring the country in search of a suitable specimen.

C. Palmer Chapman of Avondale, past state grange master, and Walter D. Barber of Hope Valley returned the past week end from attendance at the National Grange meetings in Seattle, where they stayed at the Hotel Olympia. They made the trip in National Grange special train, No. 2, from Boston to Seattle in an itinerary from Nov. 6th to Dec. 7th, returning by way of New Mexico and the Santa Fe system.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Blackler spent the week end in New York where they attended a meeting of a chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, at which their daughter, Miss Louise S. Blackler, of New York, was taken into membership.

Hobart B. Ayers of Pittsburgh, was the guest the past week end of his mother, Mrs. Hannah M. Ayers, in Westerly and at his summer home on the Shore road.

Miss Margaret Marriott has returned, after visiting friends in Oneco.

Miss Doris Leger, of Willimantic Normal school, was the week end guest of Miss Mary McGuinness in Pawcatuck.

NOANK

When the Senior World Wide guild of Noank Baptist church met at the home of the Mrs. William Davis the other evening, the following officers were elected: President, Miss Audrey Brooks; vice president, Mrs. Eleanor Davis; secretary, Miss Eleanor Scapleri; treasurer, Mrs. Mildred Palmer. Plans were made for a Christmas party to be held at the home of Miss Lillian Reid. Baskets will also be packed for needy families in the village. White Cross work was planned for the winter. Refreshments were served by the hostess. Those present were: Mrs. Gertrude Tourjee, Miss Bertha Oles, Miss Eleanor Scapleri, Miss Lillian Reid, Mrs. Elizabeth Hobart, Mrs. Mildred Palmer, Miss Audrey Brooks and Mrs. Edna Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Camille Benoit and daughters, Louise and Clare, have returned after a visit with relatives in Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrie Park have been in Providence, attending the funeral of Mrs. Park's brother, Leon Ouillett, who died in that city.

The Ladies' Aid society of Noank Baptist church held a successful food and fancy article sale in the vestry Friday afternoon. Mrs. Jennie Ashcroft and Mrs. Elizabeth Maio were in charge of the fancy work booth, Mrs. Jessie Anderson, Mrs. Esther Andrews, Miss Grace Knapp, Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson and Mrs. Lida Treon had charge of the food sale. Mrs. Albany Smith, Mrs. Stella Rathbun and Mrs. Lelia Rathbun served tea and refreshments during the sale. The committee in charge was Mrs. Beret Jenssen and Miss Effie Lamb.

When the local troop of Boy Scouts met in the Legion quarters during the week, Scoutmaster Sidney Moon of New London gave the boys an interesting talk and drilled them in scout work. Assistant Scoutmaster Robert Whittaker of the village also assisted at the meeting. Several new members were admitted and a number of applications have been received during the membership drive. Norris Burdick and Walter Carpentar have been elected patrol leaders. Several of the boys have passed the tenderfoot test and others are preparing for it. Plans are being made for a court of honor to be held soon, when the merit badges will be awarded. The boys are planning a hike to Eccleston's woods soon.

J. A. Ellis, of East Greenwich, R. I. spent the week end at his home on Main street.

Report of school savings, issued by a bank in New London, has been received here. The report covers the period from Sept. 9th to Nov. 4th, 1929, and shows the Noank grammar school has gained in savings. The last report, for the period from Sept. to June of last year, showed the local school ranked third in the amount of money deposited by the schools in this town, fourth in the number of pupils enrolled and fourth in the number of depositors. The report just received for the first term shows that although the enrollment at the local school is three less than the period covered by the previous report and that the number of depositors six less the school here ranks second of the twelve schools in this town in the amount of money deposited in this period, although fifth in the number of pupils enrolled and fourth in the number of depositors. The percentage in the local school is 80, being based on the number of weekly depositors and enrollment, or third in the rank of the other schools in this town. The amount of money deposited was $665.80, the present enrollment 198, with 178 depositors.

Thomas MacGowan has returned after a short stay in New York.

Fred Welburn, of Hartford, was in the village Friday.

AN UNUSUAL PET COMES TO STAY AT THE MORSE HOUSE

Mrs. Jennie Moore was busy the other afternoon cooking sugar doughnuts for her husband Trim who works in a machine shop out of town and he sure likes his doughnuts. Mrs. Moore had to open the door to let the smoke out and after her job on the doughnuts sat down to do some sewing. She had supper all ready for her husband and a big piece of cod fish for the cat. "Shoot Twice" all black. While the lady of the house was busy on her sewing a black skunk walked right into the kitchen and cleaned up the cat's dish of fish, then looking around went under the stove to take a nap, for he sure had had a good meal. Soon up the road came her husband, Tim, swinging his lunch box, with a smile, for he had given his boss a good day's work. When he looked and saw the doughnuts he was happier than a child cutting out paper dolls on a rainy day. He said "Well Jennie you knew what I wanted for supper with my Irish stew!" After a hearty supper Tim said "What do I smell around here?" "Nothing, honey!" About then out walked the black cat but it was a skunk instead and not at all afraid. Mrs. Moore was frightened but her husband said "Don't scare him or we will have to bury the house!" Say, that skunk was tame, would eat right out of Tim's hand and he could pet him. Well that beat all, to see a skunk in the house instead of the cat "Shoot Twice." He was like a parade, all by himself, and who came in the kitchen and saw a new mate in his place for the cat is the Gene Tunney of High street and sure guarded that neighborhood O. K. so Mr. Skunk in his slow way came over like a prize fighter being knocked down for the count of nine and the house cat was ready for a battle, but the unafraid skunk kissed the cat and the couple was some surprised. Both went away as if nothing had happened. Mrs. Moore could not get rid of the skunk; and when the hands on the Biz Ben read 8 o'clock, time to hit the hay and the pet of the evening would not go away they thought at first they would give a call to the village smoke eaters and try the hose on the skunk. Still it was getting late and past their bed time so Mr. and Mrs. Moore went into a huddle in a corner, and said they would let the skunk sleep in the cellar where it was warm. So Tim said "Well Mr. Skunk, we have used you like a prince, will you please go down stairs and go to bed, so we can all be in dreamland?" Down went the unafraid animal of the woods and around 4 a. m. when the town was still as water in a lake, what a noise was heard in the cellar! Tim had to go down and see what the matter was and the pet skunk had caught 6 rats. Now, can you beat that? a skunk getting six rats in one night. "We will build a coop for our pet skunk and keep him, for he sure did us a good turn and got rid of the rats! Never did I see a skunk so tame and nothing will scare him. I bet he will face a machine gun gang and would smile at them." The cat gets along well, eats out of the same dish.

The skunk will set up on his hind legs and ask for his crackers and milk.

Mrs. Moore has named the skunk Jerry.

MYSTIC

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sebastian are recovering as well as can be expected, following injuries received last Wednesday evening about 10 o'clock, when their car driven by Mr. Sebastian skidded on a small piece of ice on the road near the residence of Frank Cirioni on the west side of the river, half way between Mystic and Old Mystic. The car crashed against a rock, throwing the two occupants against the windshield, but not out of the car. Mr. Sebastian received a broken rib and many cuts and bruises and Mrs. Sebastian had her nose cut the entire length, cuts under both eyes and numerous other cuts and bruises. The car was badly damaged.

Miss Minnie Flynn visited in Providence Friday.

West Mystic Parent-Teacher association held a whist in the school house Friday evening, with 18 tables in play. In bridge, first prizes were won by Mrs. G. S. Allyn and Lawrence Gremley. Second prizes went to Miss Maud Shaw and John A. Irving. Mrs. James Richards and John Panciera won first prizes in straight whist and the consolation prizes went to Mrs. Catherine McGann and John Panciera. Following the play, refreshments were served by a committee.

Pequot temple, No. 24, Pythian Sisters, is to meet this (Monday) evening. The second nomination of officers will take place, also a class of candidates will be initiated. A social hour will follow. Goff temple, No. 1, of New London, Wilcox temple, No. 6, of Westerly and Clover temple, No. 7, of Norwich, have been invited to attend. The committee of arrangements for the evening will be Mrs. Charles Stribl, chairman, Mrs. Melvin Gilleny and Mrs. Louis Bendett.

Residents have received the Christmas seals which are sent out each year at this time by the State Tuberculosis commission. This is the 22nd annual sale of the seals. The Mystic Visiting Nurse association has charge of them here and the money secured from the sales is retained by the association for the local fight against tuberculosis.

Friends in the village have received cards from Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Allyn, who left Mystic November 26th and arrived in Orlando, Florida, November 25th, making the trip by automobile. They had a fine trip all the way.

A western soap company has had nine men in the village the past week, distributing advertising matter to the people.

The Ladies Aid society of Old Mystic Baptist church is to meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Etta Wheeler.

STONINGTON

Edmund P. Hyde has been chosen by the local branch of the Lions' club to represent the organization at the district meeting to be held in Middletown, Conn., Dec. 10. Paul Schepis, chairman of the dance, reported that the sum of $215.95 had been cleared which will be used in the borough to bring Christmas cheer where most needed. A committee composed of Dr. Owen J. Dennehey, Paul Schepis, Samuel Stewart, and John Bindloss consulted with the district nurse, Miss Marguerite B. Sliney, Thursday. Miss Sliney has had wide experience in this work and will assist the Lions in their distribution of cheer.

Rev. Byron U. Hatfield of the First Baptist church of Westerly, occupied the pulpit in the Stonington First Baptist church on Sunday morning. Rev. P. W. Back conducted the evening service which was followed by baptism.

Five inches of ice has been reported on the Manor Inn pond.

GOSHEN VISITORS AID IN M. E. MUSICAL SERVICE

A congregation of nearly a hundred enjoyed the special musical service at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday night. The service opened with the voluntary by the organist, Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, followed by the congregation singing, "There's a Song in the Air" and "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks By Night." The congregation repeated the great Psalm hymn, the shepherd Psalm. The pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, offered prayer which was followed by a solo sung by Stephen Gorski, of Goshen, a boy possessing a rich, clear voice. The solo was "Dear Saviour Mine," by Hartsough. Rev. Howard R. Bushnell played the accompaniment. A selection entitled, "Spanish Airs," by Charles de Beriot, was played by four members of the C. E. Union orchestra, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, cello, Rev. Howard R. Bushnell and Theodore Sterry, violins, and Miss Louise Sterry, accompanist. The offering was received by Wallace Wagner and Edward Jordan, Boy Scouts in uniform. The congregation sang "Angels From The Realms of Glory," Stephen Gorski then sang the hynm "Blest Calvary," by Gypsey Smith.

A trio, Theodore Sterry, violinist; Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, cello, and Miss Louise Sterry, pianist, played a selection. The pastor of the church, Rev. Mr. Potter, gave a brief talk on the subject, "What Do We Hear." The congregation sang, "O Little Town of Bethlehem", and the service closed with the benediction by the pastor.

A number of the young people from the Goshen C. E. society of the Congregational church of which Rev. Mr. Bushnell is pastor, were present at the service.

The Wolf Cub Scouts are to meet Monday afternoon at 4 and the Boy Scouts are to hold a special meeting at the vestry this (Monday) evening at 7.

At the Sunday morning service the pastor preached on the theme, 'Salt of the Earth," taking for a next Matthew 5:13, "Ye are the salt of the earth." The junior choir, under the direction of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, sang an anthem.

At the session of the church school, Clayton Rose was awarded a book for having the highest total of points in the weekly examination of lessons for the past six months.

Thirteen Scouts 100 Per Cent

At the meeting of Troop 2, Boy Scouts, connected with the Methodist Episcopal church Thursday night, 12 scouts were awarded the 100% duty pins for November. Senior Patrol Leader Donald Olsen, Patrol Leaders Clayton Rose, Arthur Bennett and Wallace Wagner, Assistant Patrol Leaders Albert Eyberse, Leon Ladd and Frederick Ross, Scribe Edward Eccleston, Bugler Edward Jordan and Scouts Edward Gallagher, Rolland Page, John Laskowski and George Hardenbrook. The meeting was in charge of Patrol Leader Wallace Wagner who acted as scoutmaster. The scouts are showing by taking full charge of the regular meetings that scouting really develops leadership. The scoutmaster Rev. George Warren Potter, told of visiting national headquarters in New York this week and suggested a number of things the scouts may do at this season. Assistant Scoutmasters Lewis E. Aldrich and Ralph Smith were present and did the work assigned by the acting scoutmaster.

R. I. REDS AND LEGHORNS TIE IN FIFTH WEEK

Harold G. Colt of West Hartford, sponsoring Rhode Island Reds, and Toivonen Leghorn Farm of Girard, Pa., ran an exactly even race in the fifth week of the Storrs egg laying contest. These two pens representing two different breeds and hailing from rather widely separated sections did precisely 66 eggs each. R. W. Davis & Sons from Rockland, Maine, supplied a pen of Barred Rocks that finished second with 61 eggs.

Edward N. Larrabee's pen of Reds from East Wolfeboro, N. H., finished third for the week with a tally of 59 eggs. Three pens of three different breeds tied for fourth place with 58 eggs each. One was Westfield Poultry Farm's pen of Barred Rocks from Westfield, Mass., the second Homer R. Rowell's pen of Reds from Groveland, Mass., and the third Hanson's Leghorns Farm from Corvallis, Oregon. Thus the heavy breeds are still showing their teeth.

The opening week in December witnessed the first touch of winter but in spite of an abundance of snow and almost zero temperature the hens held steady. The total production for all pens was 4,095 eggs or a yield of over 58 per cent. To be precise the rate of laying was exactly one-half of one per cent. less than for the preceding week but nearly three per cent. better than for the corresponding weeks a year ago.

The fortunes of war played favorites in three divisions, namely Wyandottes, Reds, and Leghorns. Fisher Poultry Farm of Ayton, Ontario, climbed to second place in Wyandottes. Edward N. Larrabee of East Wolfeboro, N. H., is now tied with F. S. Chapin of Longmeadow, Mass., for fourth place in the Reds. In the Leghorn division Tom Barron of Catforth, Preston, England, has grabbed fourth place and Meadowedge Farm from Sterling Junction, Mass., is fifth.

During the past week the management of the contest announced the following prize pens for the month of November: Harold G. Colt of West Hartford, Conn., won the blue ribbon on Reds; George Lowry Poultry Farm of West Willington, Conn., the blue ribbon in the Leghorn class; R. Walter Bishop of Guilford, Conn., had the best pen of Barred Rocks; The Locusts of West Cornwall, Conn., had the best pen of White Wyandottes; and Davidson Bros., of Upton, Mass., the best pen of White Rocks.

Homer R. Rowell of Groveland, Mass., was awarded second place in Reds and in the Leghorns Toivonen Leghorn Farm of Girard, Pa., won second place and Hanson's Leghorn Farm of Corvallis, Ore., won third.

Rhode Island Reds: Harold G. Colt, West Hartford, Conn., 320, Homer R. Rowell, Groveland, Mass., 303, Edw. N. Larrabee, East Wolfeboro, N. H., 277, F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 277.

Distribution by breeds in the present contest is as follows: One pen each of Australorps and Jersey Giants, 6 pens of White Wyandottes, 12 pens of White Rocks, 14 pens of Barred Rocks, 28 pens of Rhode Island Reds, and 38 pens of White Leghorns, making a total of 100 pens.

Geographically, there are 10 birds each from Iowa, Virginia, Wisconsin, Wisconsin, Vermont; 20 birds each from Michigan, Missouri, and England; 30 birds each from Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire and Canada; 40 birds from Pennsylvania; 90 from New Jersey; 150 from New York state; 90 from Massachusetts; and 240 hail from Connecticut.

Breed Theatre

Those who have always admired Alice White as only the Princess of Pep will now have the opportunity of hearing their approval at her charming voice as well. For Alice came through gloriously in her first Vitaphone talking picture "Hot Stuff," the current attraction at the Breed theatre. Her voice reflects her peppy personality and fits the collegiate atmosphere of the picture to perfection.

Adapted from the novel, "The Bluffers," by Robert S. Carr, college youth who has a special gift for writing about youngsters of his own age, "Hot Stuff" proves to be something more than amusement. It is a slice out of one of the greatest of all strictly American institutions, the co-educational college.

Miss White has the youth, the enthusiasm, the saucy beauty that best fits a story laid almost entirely on and about a college campus. She is more than ably supported by Louise Fazenda who plays the part of a spinster aunt with consuming artistry.

Also shown in this bill is Clark and McCullough in an all-talking comedy.

Broadway Theatre

Himself one of the greatest motion picture directors of today, Erich von Stroheim displayed great sportsmanship in accepting the direction of another for his first all-talking picture "The Great Gabbo" which opened to delighted audiences at the Broadway Saturday. The fact that the "boss" was James Cruze, the man responsible for "The Covered Wagon" and other tremendous screen successes relieved von Stroheim's embarrassment somewhat, however, and he has turned out the finest performance of his actor-director career. Pictured as a small time ventriloquist, exalted by success, but the victim of two conflicting personalities, "von" has an exacting role, which demands all his histrionic ability but in which he turns out a most finished performance. Betty Compson is more charming than ever, first as "Gabbo's" maid, and then as the premiere dancuse of a gigantic musical show which forms the background for Gabbo's activities after he has reached the top of the vaudeville ladder. Margie (Babe) Kane is a new and lovable soubrette and Donald Douglas, recruited from the opera, is another shining light in the cast. An all-talking "Our Gang" comedy "Railroadin'" and the latest Paramount sound news are added featurettes.

Palace Theatre

Pauline Frederick, native of Norwich, who is cast as the star of the picture now showing at the Palace theatre, "The Sacred Flame," has some very interesting remarks to make to women on the subject of keeping one's youth and beauty. Every age, she says, has a beauty of its own, whether the age be 18 or 78. Women, she thinks, make the fatal mistake, often of refusing to adjust themselves gracefully to the years.

Miss Frederick, clever actress that she is, knows full well what she is talking about, for she herself in "The Sacred Flame" at the Palace plays the part of the mother of a young man, and few, who see her in that role, which she takes so convincingly, will deny that she is most beautiful indeed. She is cast as Mrs. Taylor, the mother of Colonel Maurice Taylor, who a short time after his marriage in a fashionable London church, is struck by the propellor of the plane which he is running up at Croydon airdrome and crippled for life.

For three years Maurice lies in a wheel chair, while his wife nurses him devotedly along with a regular nurse who hates her but secretly loves Maurice. All is well, however until Colin Taylor, Maurice's younger brother comes home from South America. Maurice asks him to entertain his wife, and Colin obliges so heartily that within a few months she is willing to run away to South America with him. Then occurs Maurice's death and the mystery is on in full blast.

Beginning Wednesday and lasting through Thursday and Friday the Palace will present a big double feature program consisting of "Big News," the great newspaper office mystery and "The Girl From Woolworth's," a smashing Warner Brothers musical comedy hit.

Power to Fight Off COLDS

Why is it that some people never have colds? They are never laid up with serious illness.

This power to resist disease is the result of proper nourishment.

When the necessary elements to build this power of resistance are lacking in the diet, cod liver oil when given in palatable form as in Father John's Medicine will supply the necessary strength and power to throw off the disease.

Father John's Medicine contains the highest grade cod liver oil, so prepared that it is easily taken up by the system and is pleasant to take.

Father John's Medicine has had 75 years of success as a body building food medicine. It is used in 124 Hospitals and Institutions.

LOCAL Y. M. C. A. FIVE BEATS GREENWICH IN FIRST STATE LEAGUE GAME

The basketball team representing the local Y. M. C. A. won its first game in the race for state championship honors Saturday night at Greenwich when they defeated the fast Greenwich team 39 to 22 in one of the best games ever seen on the Greenwich floor.

The game was a nip and tuck affair during the first half but superior passwork in the last half gave the Norwich team a decided advantage. Taking the lead early in the game the Norwich team held it practically throughout the game with the exception of a brief period in the third quarter when Greenwich went ahead by four points. Greenwich started their second varsity but the regulars were rushed in after a few minutes of the first period had passed.

The half ended with Norwich leading by the slim margin of one point, the score being 16 to 15. At the opening of the third period Norwich started a passing game and for a short time Greenwich by long shots forged to the front by four points. However, the Norwich team overcame this lead and they were leading by four points at the rest period. In the final quarter Norwich took no chances playing a close passing game and not trying for baskets unless absolutely sure of a score. The result was that Norwich scored four points and held Greenwich scoreless during this quarter.

The members of the local team were the guests of the Greenwich Y. M. C. A. at the dance that followed the game. The dance was held in the gymnasium and is a regular feature of the basketball games played there. A crowd numbering several hundred attended the game and dance. The local team plays the Stanford team in another league game here next Saturday evening. The summary:

WESTERN CONFERENCE IS ONCE AGAIN A BIG NINE

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP.)— The University of Iowa is a free lance as far as athletic competition is concerned, and the western conference again is the Big Nine.

After hours of debate Friday night and Saturday, the faculty of committee on athletics of the conference denied Iowa's petition for reinstatement to unquestioned athletic standing in the group, and until some change occurs, no western conference teams will engage an Iowa team.

From 1912 to 1917, the conference operated as the Big Nine, after Michigan's withdrawal over questions of rules. Michigan withdrew in 1908, and the league functioned with eight members until Ohio State university was admitted in 1923.

The faculty committee rejected Iowa's plea because the members believed the institution had not accomplished everything possible to clear up charges placed against it when it was barred last May, effective January 1, 1930. Charges of proselyting and subsidizing athletes apparently were cleared up by the reorganization of the Iowa athletic department. The committee, however, was not convinced that every athlete who was said to have benefitted by an athletic fund, and student notes, had been dismissed a step which they considered essential.

FIREMEN AND EMPLOYED BOYS CLASH TONIGHT

The indoor baseball teams representing the Norwich Fire department and the Employed Boys' class of the Y. M. C. A. will clash this evening in a game at the Y. M. C. A. gym at 7:30 o'clock. The probable line-ups will be:

MANY ADVOCATE EARLY CLOSING OF BALL SEASON

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The retreat of the baseball clans from Chattanooga progressed as far as New York today as officials, magnates, managers and camp-followers gained strategic positions in which to await the annual meetings of the major leagues here this week. Driven from its traditional meeting site by the razing of the Waldorf-Astoria, the National league will assemble in the Commodore on Tuesday, and the American league will gather in the same hostelry on Wednesday. The joint meeting of the two circuits will be held at the Biltmore on Thursday.

Aside from the solemn ceremony of voting the two pennants to the Athletics and the Cubs, the two major circuits have two or three pieces of important business upon which to take action, including an earlier closing date and a stand on the question of broadcasting league games. Both the early closing and the radio will be taken up by each league individually, with final decision doubtless awaiting the joint meeting over which Commissioner Landis will preside.

Although the 1929 world series had the good fortune to encounter three very fine afternoons in Philadelphia after a chilly opening and a frigid second game in Chicago, sentiment in the two circuits seems to lean toward a closing date or the last Sunday in September, the twenty-eighth next year. The world series then could be completed in the first week of October, avoiding conflict with football except on October 4.

A mid-April opening and a September 28 closing would give the major leagues only about 170 playing dates for the accommodation of 154 games, as opposed to 176 days available in the 1928 schedule. With Sunday baseball in Boston, however, the makers of the charts should find 169 or 170 days sufficient—provided the magnates first can reconcile themselves to the loss of the twenty-fifth Saturday and Sunday of the longer arrangement. Some few scheduled double headers will be necessary in Philadelphia in the shorter season.

The club owners seem to be somewhat divided on the question of broadcasting with the non-radio group slightly in the majority because of the traditional suspicion with which some of the magnates view anything which smacks of progress. Philip De Catesby Ball, social giant of the major leagues, leads the opponents of broadcasting, contending that fans refused to pay to see the Browns play. William Wrigley, Jr., glowing over the fine business of the Cubs at the gate supports the radio enthusiastically.

Of course, it is merely a coincidence that the Cubs won the pennant last summer as the Browns headed in a straight line for nowhere at all.

Scouts and managers of the two major circuits will haunt the lobbies and the corridors of the Commodore and the Biltmore for the duration of the meetings. Rumors of trades will be rife, but it will be surprising if anything momentous in the way of transfers should take place. The big deals always are saved for a time when they may receive the glare of the spotlight alone.

FAST GAME IN THE CHURCH LEAGUE TONIGHT

Promptly at 8:15 tonight, the Phi Delta Nu of the United Congregational church will open their season, with the Brothers of Joseph, which is the latter's first game also. In the second game, new faces will be seen on the Y court when the Stronghearts of Jewett City will try to pin a defeat on the Gamma club of the Greek church, who have won their only Church league start this year and went through last season with no defeats, to win the league championship.

The league schedule follows:

Saturday, Dec. 14—Gamma vs. Brothers of Joseph; Central vs. Baltic.

HORNSBY VOTED MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, slugging second baseman o the pennant-winning Chicago Cubs, has been voted the National league's "most valuable player" for 1929.

The announcement of his selection by the vote of a baseball writers' committee, of which James Crusinberry of Chicago was chairman, came from the National league offices today. It is the sixth and last official award by the league, carrying with it a bronze medal and cash prize of $1,000.

Hornsby takes the honor for the second time and is the only player to repeat in either major circuit in this contest, which, as a result of criticism of the selections, has now been abandoned by both the American and National leagues. While with the Cardinals in 1925, Hornsby won the award for the first time. He has been a prominent contender every year under the National league regulations which did not, like the American league, bar former winners.

Although his work was a big disappointment in the world's series, Hornsby's batting and all-around play was considered by most of the writers to have played a big part in the pennant victory of the Cubs, nevertheless, Hornsby was declared the winner only after a close contest with Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, of the Phillies, who won the league batting championship with a mark of .400.

Out of a possible maximum of 80 votes, Hornsby polled 60 and O'Doul 54. Each of eight writers named ten players in the order of value. Hornsby was placed first on three lists, second on two, fourth on one and sixth on another. He was passed up entirely by one expert. O'Doul was accorded two first places, two thirds, one fourth, one sixth and one seventh.

Hornsby's vote was the lowest of any winner in the six official National league contests. Dazzy Vance led with 74 in 1924, Hornsby with 73 in 1925, Ross O'Farrell with 79 in 1926, Paul Waner with 72 in 1927 and Jim Bottomley with 76 in 1928.

The complete vote in the 1929 contest:

Rogers Hornsby, Chicago	60
Frank O'Doul, Philadelphia	54
Bill Terry, New York	48
Burleigh Grimes, Pittsburgh	35
Lloyd Waner, Pittsburgh	30
Red Lucas, Cincinnati	26
Pie Traynor, Pittsburgh	25
Hack Wilson, Chicago	24
Babe Herman, Brooklyn	24
Guy Bush, Chicago	16
Chuck Klein, Philadelphia	15
Melvin Ott, New York	15
Taylor Douthit, St. Louis	14
Charley Grimm, Chicago	13
Travis Jackson, New York	5
Rabbit Maranville, Boston	8
Hughey Critz, Cincinnati	5
Barney Friberg, Philadelphia	4
Pat Malone, Chicago	3
Frank Frisch, St. Louis	2
Arthur Whitney, Philadelphia	2
Johnny Frederick, Brooklyn	2
Riggs Stephenson, Chicago	1
Zach Taylor, Chicago	1

Susie Says

We've heard of women suing for divorce on the grounds that friend husband played an atrocious hand at bridge.

We've heard of women even shooting their husbands because friend husband had trumped their ace.

But we've yet to hear of the man who slays or divorces his wife for the said reasons. But we were witnesses to a happening that could well lead to one or both, the other night.

It was our good fortune to be at a bridge party Saturday night and as we (me and the boy friend) had finished our play we were watching play at another table.

It so happened that it was sort of a family affair one married couple playing against another couple so afflicted. It was the last hand of the evening and one of the husbands had a pretty good score.

The cards were dealt and the husband whom we will hereafter call Mr. John opened the bidding with one diamond. The other husband passed. Mrs. John promptly declared one heart, whereupon the other wife passed.

Mr. John having eight diamonds including four honors, and being without a spade, promptly said "Two Diamonds." The other husband again passed and Mrs. John were a trifle more emphasis accompanied by a meaning look at Mr. John says "Two Hearts."

Then Mr. John looking his wife squarely in her eyes says sternly and with a note of determination "Three Diamonds." With their opponents out of the bidding and enjoying the battle Mrs. John frowns severely at her stormy and strife and says "Three Hearts."

The bid around to him again Mr. John with defiance in his voice and a very, very meaning looking at friend wife declared "Four Diamonds." Mrs. John with equal firmness and determination together with a dirty look says, "Four Hearts."

Mr. John knew when he was licked and laid down his hand. Mrs. John explained that her's was a major suit. Then she played it—and how. Not having a diamond in her hand she made the gross mistake of leaving no reentry to her husband's hand.

The result was that Mrs. John was left high and dry with a flock of low cards and the opposition set her several tricks. She meekly said that she was sorry. There is no truth to the rumor that a divorce is pending.

Also there is no truth to the rumor that the finger-prints taken at Sellas Spa will lead to the apprehension within the next 12 hours of the one that burglarized the store. The police will be unable to finger-print everyone in town in that time, so comparisons can be made.

MULDOON SORRY TONIGHT'S BOUT WAS EVER MADE

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—William Muldoon, octogenarian donor, with Gene Tunney, of the Muldoon-Tunney heavyweight championship trophy, believes that the battle for the vacant title will sift down to a contest between Jack Sharkey of Boston, Max Schmeling of Germany, and the survivor of tomorrow night's bout between Phil Scott of England and Otto Von Porat of Norway.

In the best interests of the "noble art," Muldoon, New York state boxing commissioner, thinks the throne vacated by Tunney should be filled before the end of next September.

While he was discussing the heavyweight situation, Muldoon attacked Jimmy Johnston, Scott's manager, for making the match with Von Porat.

"What we wanted was an international match between the champions of great nations," declared the veteran commissioner. "For that reason I am frank to say that I am sorry tomorrow night's match ever was made. Scott is the recognized champion of England and England ranks next to us as a great nation. I felt that Scott had qualified for the finals by his victory over Campolo.

"It was not necessary for Scott to meet anyone but Sharkey or Schmeling to win the title. The big goal for Scott was a match with our champion, Sharkey.

"It would have been a great sporting spectacle, England vs. America. It is the match that would have been on a par with the Dempsey-Carpentier bout as an international boxing event.

"However, the match is made and we must make the best of it. If Von Porat defeats Scott, the latter is eliminated. There will remain Von Porat, Schmeling and Sharkey. We will ask these men to confine themselves to two matches within the next six months. The first will be fought in Miami in February when the winner of tonight's bout will meet either Schmeling or Sharkey. The second will be fought not later than September of next year.

"The winner of the New York bout undoubtedly will be the international heavyweight champion of the world and the match will undoubtedly be recognized as the championship contest.

"In the event Schmeling refuses the issue there is only one thing left for us to do. That will be to recognize the winner of tomorrow night's fight and Jack Sharkey as the finalists and decide the tournament by a bout between them."

IOWA WILL NOT SEEK TO RE-ENTER CONFERENCE

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Dec. 8.—(AP) — Dean C. C. Williams, head of the University of Iowa athletic board today said he was convinced that the question of gate receipts was a considerable factor in the background of opposition to Iowa's petition for reinstatement. To unquestioned athletic relations with other members of the western conference, he added that until this year Iowa's stadium was unable to seat more than 30,000, which was small in comparison with stadia with other universities, but did not elaborate further on this phase of his statement.

E. H. Lauer, director of athletics, intimated today that Iowa would not seek re-admission to the conference.

WALSH TELLS OF PSYCHOLOGY USED AGAINST ARMY BY YALE LINESMEN

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Adam Walsh, Yale line coach of Notre Dame football fame, has no alibis to offer for the Bulldogs' defeat by Harvard but he thinks that "if we played them seven days in a row we would beat them five of the seven."

At the Yale barn party here Walsh also told how Yale's line stars, Captain "Firpo" Greene and Captain-elect Fay Vincent used psychology in the army game.

"After every scrimmage," he said, "they'd pull one of the Army guards to his feet and say: 'Come on, get up on your feet. We don't want them to take you out and put a good guard in here.'"

This happened to be Harvard's year but Yale men looking back on the past football season and ahead to the next are far from downhearted.

What Mal Stevens, the likeable head coach referred to as "a fine Yale team led by a really great captain," talked it all over informally last night on the famous "Yale Barn" of Nick Roberts, class of 1901. Many an interesting anecdote of the late campaign came out as the athletes, one by one, as well as coaches and alumni, had their say in one of the most colorful and interesting gatherings since Roberts, New York banker, began this lyrical Yale tradition nine years ago.

There was plenty of blue in the color scheme but none in the atmosphere. Packing the little building to its gaily decorated rafters, more than 300 Yale men, celebrated for their deeds in all athletics or in life, acclaimed the honor guests of the occasion, including two bright young men of Yale who sounded the twin keynotes of scholarship and athletics, "Bob" Hutchins, 30-year-old president of the University of Chicago, and Stevens who at about the same age is guiding the Bulldog's football destines.

Praising husky "Firpo" Greene, the leader of the 1929 Yale array, young Stevens in his Kansas brawl, declared "A captain means more to Yale than a coach and his corps of assistants."

With a twinkle in his blue eyes, Stevens went on to say, "we don't have to proselyte at Yale, we get all the football players we want if we could only get them by the admission board."

Hutchins and Stevens introduced themselves respectively as "the president of a university which this year did not lose a single intersectional game," and the coach of a team "that didn't win a single intersectional game."

In a brilliant address, Hutchins, who received the Montclair Yale Bowl awarded annually to a man who has "won his 'Y' in life," proclaimed the fallacy of assuming "that only the stupid can be stalwart and that high intelligence means low vitality."

Captain Greene a genial young giant, told how Al Booth, Hoot Ellis and Herb Miller were bombarded with fan mail throughout the season, and how E. "Bots" Martinez, a ceaseless talker when on the field, had to be asked to pipe down by the referee in the Harvard game. Booth incidentally was unable to be present because of a fraternity initiation in New Haven. Tad Jones also was absent but "Pop" Hirsch of Montclair, composer of "Boola Boola," was there to lead the songs and all the other familiar "Yale Barn" faces were in evidence.

A scholarship cup for maintaining an average of 96 1-2 went to Saunders MacLane, Yale senior from Norwalk, Conn.

COLUMBIA COACH TO BE NAMED TODAY, SAID TO BE LITTLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The identity of Columbia university's new football coach will be revealed at a meeting of the University Athletic association at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow, it was announced tonight.

Reports have been current here for some days that Lou Little, coach at Georgetown, was to get the post, and this rumor gained wider circulation when Little announced he had turned down an offer to coach Pennsylvania.

MOORE WINS NAT. A. A. U. CROSS COUNTRY RUN

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Gus Moore, Negro star of the University of Pittsburgh, won the National A. A. U., senior cross country championship over the Van Cortlandt Park course today. It was his second successive victory. Moore covered the muddy six mile course in 31 minutes, ten seconds.

Eino Heikkila of the Dorchester club, Dorchester, Mass., finished second, about 300 yards behind Moore. Another Dorchester runner, Eldridge Stevens, was third.

The team title went to the Dorchester club with a low total of 33 points. The Meadowbrook club of Philadelphia, was second with 48 points and the Millrose A. A., New York, third, with 56. Other team scores were: Naativity Catholic club, Philadelphia, 88 points and the Brooklyn Harriers A. A., 102 points.

Moore's victory was not counted in the team scoring as he was an individual entry.

1—Gus Moore, University of Pittsburgh, 31:10.
3—Eldridge Stevens, Dorchester club, 32:05.

DIEGEL, P. G. A. CHAMP, TO ENTER OTHER COAST EVENTS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Leo Diegel, who successfully defended his Professional Golfers' association title on the Hillcrest course here defeating Johnny Farrell of New York in the final match, 6 and 4, today looked to an array of open tournaments as further fields of conquest.

The pro from Agua Caliente, Mexico yesterday staged a rally on the final 18 of his championship match with the New Yorker to win after his opponent lost the nerve which saw him come back in the morning after being four down, to lead at the turn one up.

Six tournaments in southern California totaling more than $50,000 in prize money are on the list of open events in which Diegel plans to take part. The outstanding of these are the $25,000 open at his own course, Agua Caliente, January 14-17; the $10,000 Los Angeles open January 8-12, and the Catalina Island $7,500 event which starts next Friday.

Many of the professionals who appeared in the P. G. A. tourney will be campaigning in these events.

N. H. EAGLES LEAD IN C-A HOCKEY LOOP

BOSTON, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The New Haven Eagles were on top of the Canadian-American Hockey league standing today as a result of their brilliant play last week, when the champion Boston Tiger team was humbled and the Springfield club held to a 2 to 2 deadlock, the first tie game of the league's season.

The Tigers were trailing in second place, but a point behind the Eagles, and Springfield retained its hold on third place.

HAWKS TRIM AMERICANS BEFORE RECORD CROWD

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP)—With the team of Earl Miller and Tommy Cook scoring three goals, the Chicago Blackhawks defeated the New York Americans, 4 to 2, in a National league game tonight before more than 8,500 spectators, the biggest crowd in Chicago hockey history.

The game provided a brilliant exhibition of skating and stick handling with Miller taking passes from his mate, Cook, to count three times. Ty Arbour scored unassisted for the Hawks' other goal.

Normie Himes scored 33 seconds after the game started to give New York the lead which quickly collapsed before Miller-Cook drives. Himes passed to Simpson, 15 seconds after Chicago's final goal in the last period, to close the scoring.

PLAINFIELD PROS DEFEAT PLYMOUTH

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Dec. 8.—The Plainfield Pros defeated Plymouth, 29 to 23, in one of the fastest and hardest fought games ever seen on the Plymouth floor last night.

Plainfield started a passing attack in the very first minute of play and continued it throughout the remainder of the game which completely bewildered the Plymouth team.

The play of the Legion team reminded one that the only team that showed anything on a par with the Plainfield team was the Original Celtics. Kasper was the outstanding player of the evening, running wild around his opponent, which was Kiley, former Washington player.

The game was so hard and fast it was marred by three fights, the last between Kiley and Kasper nearly causing a riot between the players and spectators. Kiley and Waters were responsible for much of the rough work throughout the game. Bernot brought the crowd to their feet time and time again with several of his famous long shots.

The Plainfield team worked beautifully and the Boston Whirlwins which play at Plainfield Wednesday night will have to play championship ball to defeat the Plainfield team.

It looks as though Plainfield has hit their stride and will go out for the New England basketball championship. Jerry Conway, Plainfield center has bolstered up the weak spot which has been noticeable on the Plainfield team in previous years. With this combination the Plainfield team should be hard to beat. The summary:

Conway, c	0	3	3
Dessinger, rg	1	0	2

SHIP-TO-SHORE TELEPHONE WITH S. S. LEVIATHAN

A ship-to-shore telephone service which connects the S. S. Leviathan with the telephones of the Bell system has just been inaugurated. The transmitting station from which the message is sent out by radio to the ship is at Deal, N. J., and the receiving station is at Forked River, N. J.

The voice from the shore telephone speeds over land wires and cables to the American Telephone and Telegraph company's New York city long distance office. Passing through a special section of switchboard, it is amplified and adjusted in the control room and proceeds, still by wire, to the Bell system short-wave radio telephone transmitting station at Deal Beach, N. J. At this point it receives further amplification and is sent by radio to the Leviathan.

From the microphone transmitter aboard the liner, the answering voice goes to the ship's radio telephone transmitting set and, greatly amplified, is sent into the ether. Caught at the Bell system's Forked River, N. J., radio telephone receiving station, it travels by land lines through the New York city control room, where the volume is adjusted, and thence through the switchboard to the shore telephone.

The two parts of a conversation between the Leviathan and a land telephone will, as far as the radio link is concerned, be carried by two separate radio waves of different wave length. The radio wave from land to ship will be about 34.8 meters and that from ship to shore will be about 34.0 meters. The Deal Beach, N. J., experimental station of the Bell Telephone laboratories transmits on the wave of 34.8 meters. The Leviathan transmitter operates on the wave of 34.0 meters. Telephone circuits from Deal Beach and Forked River, at which latter place the radio receiver is located, lead to a control room of the long distance headquarters at 24 Walker street, New York, of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, from which are also operated the trans-Atlantic radio channels.

The 34.8 and 34.0 meter waves are used in the day time for distances from 250 to 500 miles. For distances in the day time of less than 250 miles, a wave of about 73.0 meters is used to carry the voice from land to sea, and a wave of about 68.3 meters to carry the voice from sea to land. At night time the two waves are effective from all distances up to 500 miles or more. It is an interesting characteristic of short waves that a particular wave may work more satisfactorily at one time of the day than at another. Likewise, a particular wave may be preferable for a given distance, and another wave for a different distance. The possibility of choice between two sets of wave lengths will add to the dependability of the circuit.

REQUIREMENTS FOR SCOUT MERIT BADGE IN PAINTING

According to Scoutmaster John Hill, merit badge counsellor in painting, there are but seven requirements for obtaining the merit badge:

1. Demonstrate how to combine pigments in order to produce paints in shades and tints of color.
2. Demonstrate how to add positive colors to a base of white lead or of white zinc.
3. Understand the mixing of oils, turpentine, etc., to the proper consistency.
4. Paint a porch floor or other surface evenly and without laps.
5. Know how and when to putty up nail holes and uneven surfaces.
6. Present for inspection a panel covered with three coats of paint, which panel must contain a border of molding, the body of the panel to be painted in one color and the molding in another.

7. Demonstrate a knowledge of the care and proper method of cleaning paint brushes.

"One of the interesting things about painting," declares Mr. Hill, "is the color language. For example, the term hue refers to peculiar or distinctive characteristic of a color, the quality which makes it different from any other color. The hue of red is as different from blue as an orange is different from an apple. Likewise, there is a quality (the hue) in blue that makes it different from yellow. Hue is the color. We have shades and tints of reds, blues and yellows which are equally light or dark, yet they are not alike, because each has a different hue. You can have a red, yellow and blue of the same degree of value as to lightness or darkness of color and yet they are not alike. The difference between them is the hue, the basic character of color."

MAGAI, STAR GUARD, JOINS ALL-EAST TEAM

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Walt Magai, guard and a star lineman at Pennsylvania for three seasons, today accepted an invitation to play with Andy err's East eleven in the San Francisco Shriners' Hospital benefit game New Year's day. Yesterday Tony Holm, first choice for full back on the Associated Press All-American team joined the East's ranks.

Kerr said today that he expected acceptances from three other outstanding eastern players. He will leave for the west Saturday to join Dick Hanley, Northwestern coach, in the job of assembling the All-Star party at Evanston.

Eagles Win Again

The Eagles now hold the league leadership.

Plane Use Inexpensive.

WIMAUMA, Fla. (AP) — Robert Elsberry of this village doesn't think that flying comes high. He flew a new plane 1,140 miles from Cleveland to Tampa, Fla., and spent only $23. That was for gasoline and oil, and food for himself and a passenger.

Tourists Head South.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio are the greatest sources of tourist revenue for Florida, the American Automobile association has established by counting cars crossing the Jacksonville bridge.

HOME HAZARDS BRING CASUALTIES FROM BURNS

The kitchen stove, the heating stove, hot water and matches—practically all of which are found in the average home—are sizeable hazards in life. They become more so when the statistician points out that burns of some sort accounted for seven per cent. of the 92,000 accidental deaths in the United States during the year 1927, and that a large percentage of fatal burns are due to these four agencies.

A study for the years 1926 to 1928, made by statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company among its more than 19,000,000 industrial policyholders, shows that two-thirds of the fatal burns occur in the home, eight per cent. of them occur in the course of occupation and five per cent. in public places.

The burns in the home take on an additional significance when this study reveals that more than two-thirds of these victims in the home were children under the age of 15; among women above 25 years of age, 38 per cent. of the deaths from burns were from stoves and grates and from scalds.

KOZIOL DID NOT LOSE ANY OF HIS BRIDGEWORK

Al Koziol, who won from Leo Ledoux on Friday evening, did not lose any teeth according to Al. The local youngster was in last night and showed us a very even row of teeth and we can swear there was not one missing. The person who said he picked up one of Al's teeth does not know his molars.

SOUND TONE SOUGHT FOR NEW ALTIMETER

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Search for the source of a sound which will filter through noises aboard an airplane is being conducted by Leo P. Delsasso, of the physics department of the University of California, in an effort to perfect a precision altimeter.

An altimeter which will accurately record the height of an airplane over the ground over which it is flying without the calibration needed in the present atmospheric altimeters, is one of the great needs of aviation.

Delsasso, working with funds made available by the Guggenheim Fund, for the promotion of aeronautics, hopes to develop an "acoustic altimeter" which will measure height by the time it takes a sound to travel to the ground and echo back to the airplane.

One of the chief difficulties Delsasso found, was the multiplicity of sounds aboard aircraft. He was faced with the necessity of finding a tone entirely different than any of those of aircraft.

This has been accomplished and now the task is to find the source of such a sound which will be of sufficient pitch and intensity to actuate the recording device.

An "acoustic altimeter" would be of inestimable value to aircraft because it would permit pilots caught in fogs over unfamiliar territory to know exactly how high they were.

CALIFORNIA LEADS NATION WITH 161 AVIATION FIELDS

Texas ranks second with 101, followed by Pennsylvania with 88, Ohio with 72, Illinois with 67 and New York with 57.

Maine and Delaware, with five each, are at the bottom of the list with the District of Columbia, according to department of commerce figures.

There are 1,509 airports and 1,278 additional are proposed or in process of construction. Eighty-six of the existing fields are government owned.

Vermont Shipping Christmas Trees.

More than 90 carloads or approximately 144,000 Christmas trees, have been shipped to all parts of the United States from towns along the Central Vermont railway during the week. Some shipments have been to dealers located as far west as Chicago while a number of cars have been destined for points in Indiana and Ohio.

Only fir-balsam and spruce are being shipped as the United States Department of Agriculture forbids the interstate trade in nine trees. It is expected that next week will see the additional shipment of between 50 and 60 carloads from Central Vermont points, with approximately 1,600 trees to a car.

Withdrawal Without Costs

Withdrawal without costs from the docket of the superior court has been filed with Clerk John H. Walker in the $10,000 damage suit brought by Jacob Jones of New Britain as administrator of the estate of James D. Jones against the Groton and Stonington Traction Co. The suit was the result of James D. Jones who died from injuries sustained when struck by a trolley of the defendant company on April 12, 1926.

DEVICE UTILIZES EXHAUST TO DISSIPATE LONDON FOG

LONDON (AP)—A fog lifter for London's pea soup fogs has been discovered, but it's all hot air.

The hot air is produced by the exhaust of an automobile and sprayed out in front of the machine instead of behind it, in order to create a rising current of warm air just ahead of the front wheels.

According to the inventor of the device, this rising current literally lifts the fog for about 10 feet ahead, and does it quickly enough to permit a forward speed of about 15 miles an hour.

The fog lifter can be attached to any car's exhaust in a few minutes, and is much simpler than the average windshield wiper. Whether it will be as effective has not been proved.

MARINE FLIERS REVIVE OLD PINPOINTING GAME

Major Rowell,

HESITANCY WAS CONSPICUOUS IN BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Hesitancy remained the most conspicuous characteristic of business and industry during the past week, but the seasonal trend at this period of the year is naturally downward, save in retail trade, where the turnover of goods was in large and generally satisfactory volume.

While business cannot be expected to lift itself by the boot straps at this time of year, a noteworthy resurgence of optimism appeared in most quarters. Constructive news from Washington continued to fortify confidence. In fact, it was greeted with such enthusiasm that warnings against excessive optimism were heard before the close of the week.

Industrial operations displayed sharp curtailment from the unusually rapid pace of a year ago, and wholesale buying continued of a cautious nature. In general, however, retail trade compared favorably with this time a year ago.

Steel mill operations averaged between 65 and 70 per cent of rated capacity, compared to about 85 per cent a year ago. The automobile industry was generally operating at about half the rate of early December, 1928. Freight car loadings as reported for the week ended Nov. 23, showed further substantial declines from the previous week and the like week a year ago, but held well about the level of 1927. Insolvency reports compared favorably with a year ago.

Price trends on the cotton markets were uncertain, pending publication of the government crop report tomorrow. Tobacco interests were but moderately concerned over renewed retail price cutting. There was no indication that the recently increased wholesale prices will again be cut.

The annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute disclosed a notable swing in favor of voluntary control of production throughout the industry. With the progress already made, this was hailed as promising fairly complete success in bringing crude and refined output into line with consumption within a reasonable period. Copper prices held at 18 cents, despite dull markets and rumors of cuts. It was noised in trade circles that large producers will curtain production rather than permit any reduction from the 18-cent level.

Credit conditions continued favorable, as was graphically illustrated by the 3 1-8 per cent rate at which the new treasury financing is being floated. It appeared, however, that the decline in credit rates had reached bottom, as a slight firming in the New York money market was noted late in the week, probably reflecting the beginning of the holiday outflow of funds from this center.

VOLUNTOWN

Saturday evening at the home of Grand Juror Thomas McDonald, George Goodrich of South Manchester, was presented before Justice of the Peace William R. Palmer of Griswold on a charge of hunting without a license. He was found guilty as charged and was fined $15 and costs, totalling $28.20 which he paid. Attorney Thomas M. Shields of Norwich represented the accused and Grand Juror McDonald prosecuted the case. Game Wardens Watson and Congdon and Fred Congdon gave evidence in the case.

Workmen in the employ of the Eastern Conn. Power Co. have been engaged during the week in setting up electric light poles in the village and have nearly completed their work.

Several more homes in the village have been wired during the week.

Personal tax payers are being reminded that after Dec. 14, $1 will be added to unpaid tax bills.

The recent severe cold wave ended in a fall Monday afternoon of several inches of snow, and brought out the shovel brigade. The state highway department cleared the Main street and made driving more agreeable for the motorists.

JEWETT CITY

SOME NAMES SUGGESTED FOR NEW HAVEN FAST TRAIN

The current issue of Along the Line published by and for the employes of the New Haven railroad system, contains several items of local interest.

There seems to be a widespread interest not only among New Haven employes but the general public, in suggesting names for the new de luxe fast train, which is to be inaugurated early in 1930, between Boston and New York.

A Jewett City native, Frank A. Barrows, now supervisor of safety for the New Haven road with offices at New Haven, has offered the following suggestions, among over 300 others: The Aristocrat, Post Road Ltd., Acme, Pinnacle, Crest, Last Word, Brilliant, Roseate, Peerless, New Glory, Conqueror, Victory, Vanquisher, Courier, Columbia, Apex, Reliance, Excelsior, Palm, Superb, Nathan Hale, Peregrine, Invader, Proud Day, Resplendent, Satellite, Zenith, Sagamore, Sachem, King Philip, Massasoit, The Mohegan, The Miantonomah, The Uncas.

Miss Margaret W. Grant, for a long time telegraph operator at the local station, offers six suggestions: The Roosevelt, Dream, Superba Limited, Indian, Red Indian, Red Man.

The local station agent, William E. Perry, also receives citations of commendation for traffic tips which he has submitted to the traffic department.

Join the 1930 Christmas club now open for membership at the Jewett City Savings bank. Interest paid on accounts which are kept up to date.—Adv.

PLANS COMMUNITY TREE FOR DAVID H. FANNING PARK

Warden E. J. Jodoin said Sunday that the borough electricians were planning to arrange for a grand community Christmas tree. One of the blue spruces on David Hale Fanning park will be lighted with more than 100 varicolored electric bulbs, while at the very top a great illuminated star will be placed, all of white bulbs.

G. A. Barber, a resident at the Masonic home, Wallingford, has sent to Jewett City friends a dandelion which he picked December 2nd, growing in the open, on the south side of one of the home's buildings.

Ydette Guillet, R. N., received her state graduation certificates, and was qualified as a registered nurse. Miss Guillet has to her credit several years in Bellevue and Fordham hospitals, New York city.

Insurance adjusters have made a satisfactory settlement with B. B. Gardner, Stanley Kurys, E. G. Lague and A. Dufresne, tenants of the Liberty hall block, who met with losses in last week's fire.

The farm bureau group is planning to make moccasins at the meeting to be held with Mrs. W. B. Montgomery of Pachaug today (Monday).

ANTHONY KOZLOSKI BEFRIENDED STRANGER

Anthony Kozloski was the Jewett City autoist who lent assistance Friday evening, to Andrew Dubertsky, of Norwich, who died shortly after being stricken with a heart attack. Noticing the man staggering on the sidewalk, Mr. Kozloski asked if he was sick. In Polish the man said it was his heart, told where he lived and asked that his family be notified. Kozloski carried him to his own automobile and rushed him to the police station, where a doctor ordered the man to the hospital. He died in Kozloski's machine before reaching the hospital. The coroner took the deceased man's coat and dinner pail to his home later.

The Christmas exercises at the Congregational church are to be held Christmas eve. Miss Virginia Goodenough's class is to present a Christmas play, and there will be exercises by the primary department. The tree will be procured by ev.R. Mr. Goodenough's class, and Mrs. E. H. Hinson's class will decorate the tree. Candy boxes will be filled by Dr. G. H. Jennings' class.

Mrs. L. G. Buckingham was a member of the committee which served a supper at the Congregational church Friday evening.

CHRISTMAS BAGS TO CHEER MEN IN TROPICAL GARRISONS

In the holds of army and navy supply ships now at sea, bound for America's outlying possessions, are stowed cases of brightly colored cretonne bags for Christmas trees in barracks and hospitals. These bags are the annual gifts of women volunteer workers of the American Red Cross to the men on duty in the isolated tropics. The call made by the National Red Cross headquarters this year was for something over 50,000 bags. Hawaii, with 19,000 men, leads in the number of bags. The Canal Zone follows with 11,500 men, and the Philippines with 9,000. Other points are Nicaragua, China, Haiti, Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the naval stations at Guam, Samoa and Guantanamo in Cuba.

The Jewett City chapter has taken an active part in the making of these bags, its quota being thirty-five, many organizations in the town contributing money for the contents.

The Christmas bag idea dates back to the Mexican border mobilization effected shortly before America's entrance in the World war. At that time, the Red Cross, then a relatively small organization, conceived the idea of brightening the Christmas of Pershing's men encamped in the bleak plains of Chihuahua. The idea was vastly expanded during the great war. Since then, the men in uniform posted in the outlying possessions of the United States have been remembered each Christmas with a bag of bright cretonne containing about a dozen articles of use and amusement. The contents include such articles as pocket knives, diaries, cards or puzzles, pencils, sewing outfits, writing materials, tobacco, shaving soap, tooth brush, tooth paste, combs and the like.

Simple as these bags are, they bring quantities of letters of appreciation from the men and from officers writing in behalf of their troops. The women and girl donors also receive letters direct, since the bags include the maker's name and address.

As expressed by a chaplain last year in a letter to the National Red Cross, "To many a lad in Uncle Sam's service out here in the Pacific, these bags bring fond memories of home and the most real Christmas joy."

DROVE OVER 200 MILES YET SAW ONLY ONE TREE

Writing from the Deacon, Pecos, Texas, Dec. 1, local motorists record:

After leaving Fort Worth we passed through a very rich farming country. Very large farms, but the houses were small—no two story homes. About 50 miles west of Fort Worth we came to very poor land, gradually rising till we reached a place called "Look off." The wind was blowing a gale. At this filling station I asked a man "if the wind blew hard there?" He said, "at times." I asked, "if this was one of the times?" "Oh no" he said. "A man can stay out of doors today." —Coming west from this point we passed through mesquite and cactus growth. We could see cattle at times through the mesquite, they were very thin. We also saw pecan. The strange thing to us was that the road was laid with vitrified brick, very smooth and even, not a brick misplaced. There was about 50 miles of this road.

Before reaching Sweetwater we saw the first oil well. The country began to flatten out and "the cattle on a thousand hills" is not in it with "the cattle on ten thousand plains."

About 20 miles apart are small towns. They are called cities here and two or three miles before reaching each is a warning to drive slow and under the warning is the name of the city.

Most of the cities have one large square, about four or five times as big as Franklin square, Norwich, and in the middle of the square is the county court house. Some of these are very ornate. Most of them are about the size of our court house in Norwich.

The road always divides at the court house and turns right and left coming into one road again after passing the house. These squares are lines with stores of all kinds. The familiar chain firms have distributing and retail stores in many Texas cities.

We came to the first "dip" in the road. A "dip" is a depression in the road to carry off the water instead of a culvert or drain pipe.

These dips are from six to twenty-feet wide—about two to three feet deep. If you do not see these dips they will give a person quite a jar especially the narrow ones. When the front wheels go down you fall forward and in trying to recover the rear wheels are coming out and this more than helps you to recover.

Today we came 202 miles and saw only one tree.

This tree was near a house and was about as large as one of Doctor Browning's peach trees.

We saw our first Indian, five or six bucks were riding in a delapitated Ford. We were surprised to find so many oil wells. Great tanks larger than the Congregational church in Jewett City, hundreds of them, with reservoirs around them built to catch the overflow, if any.

Solid trains of tank cars were moving east and the sidings near these tanks were filled with tank cars ready to be filled with oil. All the houses and hotels are heated with natural gas.

The atmosphere has been filled with dust and even the clouds appeared to be of a yellow tinge.

Camping places are very numerous. At places there is free camping where a party can put up a tent and water is also free.

Some of these camping places seem to be very comfortable and these little houses often have the name of a state over the door, New York, Iowa, etc. I did not see Connecticut.

There are hundreds and hundreds of automobiles going west over these roads and we see people cooking their dinners beside the highway.

Most of the machines are loaded with baggage and often on the rear is tied a spring mattress. Some have tent poles along the running board. Many have trailers, (two wheels), loaded high with tables, chairs, tin pans, etc., etc.

We expect to reach El Paso tomorrow.

WAUREGAN

Company hall was filled to the doors Friday evening when the Pee Wees gave a concert. Eddie Casey's Harmonica band from WJAR, Providence entertained for the evening. Thomas Egan, well known tenor, pleased in several songs. Sam Treat, colored comedian was excellent in his line. Charles Devarney danced into the hearts of the crowd. Wm. Hilt, rattled bones and tamborine, while Colleen W. Casey sang the latest hits of the stage. Jerry Doyle, manager of the Pee Wees directed and introduced as a special item, the mascot, Earl Mercier. In spite of but six years experience of life the latter is a first class artist.

Miss Bouvier, supervisor of music at the Plainfield schools received serious injury Thursday when her car skidded and ran into Chabot's field near Wauregan. Once started the car went fences away, but was able to go by its own power after being brought to the road.

LEFFINGWELL

Mr. and Mrs. John I. Ross entertained a party of 12 on the recent holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wheeler have moved to South Windham, after selling their farm and store to Saul Hartmann, of Montville Center.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Beebe had a party of 17 at their home on the holiday.

Russell Taylor, second selectman of Bozrah, and Herbert E. Beard, an assessor of Bozrah, attended a conference of assessors in Willimantic Monday.

Wednesday, at 3 p. m., the Woman's union met at the church for the December meeting. At 6:30 a supper was served with the men as guests. About 40 were present. At 7:30 a surprise feature was presented which certainly proved a very enjoyable surprise. Mr. Kendall showed slides of his trip to California, explaining each picture.

GIRL SCOUTS' REBELLION WINS CHIC NEW UNIFORM

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8—(AP)—A quiet revolt of youth has won a new chic uniform for Girl Scouts.

The old style uniforms were heavy and long and not at all pretty, the girls argued.

They believed a loose blouse and bloomers would give them freedom to knock about outdoors and look nicer.

At their recent convention here the older heads agreed and a new fashion in out doors clothes was adopted, without the slightest regard for Paris edicts.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE CHRISTMAS TABLE

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

Bits of evergreen, pine cones, tiny Christmas trees and other winter greenery and berries add Yuletide charm, of course. They are always good.

Bowls of raisins and nuts, interspersed with all tapers in low holders placed at regular intervals, increase the festive air.

Holly wreaths laid flat with candle sticks placed in their centers, make a decorative table. If the table is long, the center wreath can hold a candelabra with three or more candles, and at either end the wreaths can hold single candle sticks.

Tall ivory or white candles are suggested when used with holly decorations. A delicate shade of green also will harmonize.

The silver for at least two courses should be on the table when the Christmas dinner guests are seated. Of course, the water glasses should be in place and filled and the bread and butter on the plates. Jelly, relishes, candy and nuts may be on the table.

If cocktails are served, they should be in place before the guests are seated. If the fowl course is the first one, and its accompanying vegetables should be on the table. If there is a salad service, part or all of these can be served after the guests have been seated.

The fowl, of course, can be served in the kitchen and then brought to the table; but the family method, of having the "head" of the family sit at the head of the table and carve and serve, seems preferable and a little more hospitable and informal.

Salads may already be placed if they are served with the main course or may be served as a separate course, this latter method taking more time. Salad may be the first course, part of the main course or follow it.

VACATION CAMPS LURE FARM WOMEN IN IDAHO

BOISE, Ida., Dec. 8—(AP)—More and more western rural women are attending the vacation camps operated in various states by home demonstration agents of the United States department of agriculture.

Last year 5,000 Idaho women spent one or several days at the camps which have been increased from one to six in this state in the last four years.

Last summer 1,500 women remained the full time of five days the camps were operated. About 2,500 attended part of the time. They brought their own food and planned meals together.

BABY HELPS CO-EDS LEARN HOUSEKEEPING

Each year 20 seniors in home economics live three months in the "practice house," a two-story affair near the campus. They prepare their food, do all the work and manage the budget.

Some time ago girls then in the home adopted a baby and succeeding classes have kept it. They feed, clothe and later on, plan to send it to school. It's a boy.

LARGE FOOT IS BEST SO CHIROPODISTS SAY

The bigger the foot the better its chance of being perfect, he says. The chiropodists reason that the gal who wears a No. 8 knows she's out of bounds and won't try to force her foot into a smaller size. Hence it has an opportunity for normal development.

Berets of Ermine.

PARIS, Dec. 8—(AP)—There are regulation berets of ermine to match the usual three-quarter and finger-length jackets so many debutantes are wearing. The short ermine or ermine trimmed is the conventional debutante garb above a tulle or chiffon dance dress.

BLACK TAKES THRONE IN NEW PARIS MODES

The black is literal, for two-thirds of the new form fitting, ankle-and-heel length dresses, which are the only admissible style for evening, are solid black.

Black, the dressmakers explain, has a magic effect upon the silhouette. A good corsetier, a black dress, and long skirts hung from a normal waistline can make an old wife look like a new one. That accounts for black's popularity.

WOMEN OF IRAK FIGHT TO BETTER LOT OF SEX

BAGDAD, Dec. 8—(AP)—The women of Irak have revived their Club for the Elevation of Women in an effort to promote their own interests.

The club was formed five years ago, but languished for a long time, and the women are still veiled and largely illiterate.

The women leaders in the feminist movement have affiliated with the International Alliance of Women for Suffrage and Equal Citizenship and are seeking the help of women in other countries.

MANY STATES PASS LAWS FOR CHILDREN'S HEALTH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—(AP)—Health and safety of school children is becoming more a subject of national interest each year.

The office of education of the department of the interior finds that within the last two years half of the states enacted laws along such lines.

The statutes varied from prescribing employment of school nurses to authorizing fire drills and requiring buses to stop before crossing railroad tracks.

Blonds vs. Brunets.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Dec. —(AP)—More blonds have been selected queens of the Univeristy of Iowa, but a survey shows that more of the brunet queens have married.

HOSTESS GOWN

This hostess gown of palest beige chiffon is made with draped sleeves, which have, however, a closely fitted cuff. It is fairly short in front, but there is a train behind. The bodice section blouses softly, the skirt has a deep yoke and a front fullness which dips.

Cream of Bean Soup, Serving 4

(Using leftover beans)

2 cups cooked navy beans, 3 tablespoons bacon fat, 2 tablespoons chopped onions, 2 tablespoons finely chopped celery, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 3 cups milk.

Heat the fat in a frying pan, add the onions and celery. Cook slowly until a little brown. Add the milk. Cook for 1 minute. Pour into a stew kettle and add the rest of the ingredients. Cover with a lid and cook slowly for 25 minutes. Mash and serve in soup bowls.

The bacon fat gives an excellent flavor.

Apricot Pie

(Using soaked dried apricots)

1 baked pie shell, 1½ cups soaked, cooked apricots, 2-3 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ cup water, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons butter.

Mix the apricots, sugar and flour. Blend well and add the lemon juice, cinnamon and water. Cook slowly until a little thick. Stir constantly. Add the rest of the ingredients and cook for 1 minute. Pour into the baked shell. Chill.

Fruit Cake for Christmas

1 cup butter, 2 cups light brown sugar, 1 cup grape juice, 4 eggs, beaten, 1 tablespoon vanilla, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped raisins, 1 cup currants, 1 cup chopped fruit peel (candied), ½ cup chopped nuts, ½ cup chopped citron, 4 cups flour, ½ teaspoon soda.

Cream the fat and add the sugar. Mix until creamy. Add the rest of the ingredients and blend thoroughly. Pour into loaf pans, which have been fitted with waxed papers. Bake for 1½ hours in a slow oven.

Your Health And Brain

By Dr Leland B Alford

Epilepsy.

Epilepsy is an ancient disease.

In less enlightened times, however, there were two widely diverse views. One was that the afflicted person was divinely visited, and it was because of this that epilepsy was known to the old Greeks as "the sacred disease." The other was that epileptic seizure were manifestations of the devil, and that epileptics were to be shunned.

To be honest, we know as little about epilepsy today, as was known thousands of years ago, except that we no longer attribute to it any occult significance.

The disease remains an enigma, both as to its cause and the nature of the attacks. Once in a while someone writes a book about it, but thus far none of the literary efforts has penetrated to the core of the trouble.

Of one set of facts we may be sure. We cannot hold responsible for epilepsy any article of diet, germ infection, disturbance of activity of any bodily organ or—the influence of the moon.

Perhaps the dramatic nature of the disease, which appealed to the impressionable ancients, still so arouses man's emotions as to paralyze his thinking capacity. Certain present-day theories are often as bizarre as were those of our ancestors.

Can anything, indeed, be more striking than the epileptic convulsion? The victim is perfectly well and in a most pleasant frame of mind. Suddenly his eyes become glazed and fixed; his face is flushed, then livid.

It becomes apparent that every muscle in his body is rigid, and he falls heavily to the floor. As the face takes on a bluish cast it appears that death is imminent.

Then the muscular spasom grows less intense and soon is followed by a series of jerks which continue for about five minutes, to be followed by relaxation and sleep.

There is said to be approximately one epileptic to every 400 of the general population so here is, from many standpoints, one of the most important of diseases.

PORTUGUESE WOMEN SHUN NEW HAIR DRESSING FADS

LISBON, Dec. 8—(AP)—Mixed barber shops, which were set up during the "bob" and "shingle" boom, are disappearing fast.

Portuguese women showed from the beginning indifference and contempt for the new fashion. Both aristocratic and plebeian women stubbornly refused to sacrifice their tresses.

Barber shops which were equipped with expensive devices for automatic curling and shingling, are returning to the old standards.

OKLAHOMA'S COLLEGE TOTAL GAINS 15 SINCE WORLD WAR

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. —(AP)—The number of colleges in Oklahoma has doubled in the last 11 years.

In 1918 the state had 15 colleges with a total enrollment of 8,355. Now there are 30, with 20,072 students.

Two-year college courses have increased from two to six in that period, while four-year schools have increased from nine, with an enrollment of 5,628, to 18, with an enrollment of 18,411.

DARKER HOSE WORN WITH LONGER SKIRTS

PARIS, Dec. 8—(AP)—Longer skirts are bringing darker stockings.

Deep sunburn shades for evening and bronze and sheer black hose for afternoon wear are the smart Parisian's choice.

Wool hosiery for sport has almost replaced silk. A few women golfers wear wool socks over silk hose but the majority of European women prefer lightweight wool of sober coloring.

ELBOW LENGTH GLOVES MADE OF SHORT FUR

PARIS, Dec. 8—(AP)—A French form of originality is fur gloves which reach several inches above the elbow. They are meant to be worn with a cloth coat with fud collar to match the gloves, which are black or dark brown broadtail.

GLACE KID IN FAVOR AMONG PARISIANS

PARIS, Dec. 8—(AP)—Glove manufacturers here show many models with piercing instead of embroidered backs. They report increased sales for glace kid as opposed to washable suede.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Raisins will not sink to the bottom of a cake if they are first scalded, then floured.

Pour melted paraffin into a cracked vase. When the paraffin hardens the vase will hold water.

Paraffin makes an excellent filling for cracks in old floors. Scrape off all surplus paraffin after it has cooled.

Croutons to be served with soup may be made from small pieces of thoroughly dried bread browned in a corn-popper.

To make good uncooked icing thorough beating is necessary. Too much sugar and too little beating make a brittle, hard icing.

If four rubber-tipped door-stops are screwed into the legs of an ordinary chair, it makes an ideal high chair for kitchen work, or for a small child.

Should a cake burn while baking, lay over it a clean towel, which has been wrung out of hot water. This softens the burned part and it is then more easily removed.

Pour hot water over onions, allow them to remain for a few minutes, then drain and pour cold water over them. Then the skins can be removed easily.

Never allow empty tin cans to accumulate in rumbish heaps. Heavy rains leave stagnant water in the cans and in this water breed flies and mosquitoes.

If skins peeled from apples when making pies are boiled until soft, then strained into the pie shell before putting in the apples, the flavor of the pie is improved.

To remove soot that accumulates on a white mantel over a fireplace, dampen a clean woolen cloth with kerosene, rub the mantel with it and then polish with a dry cloth.

Black specks, which frequently appear on silver, may be removed if covered with a paste made of whiting and olive oil. Let it stand until dry, then polish the silver with a chamois cloth.

In serving a poached egg on toast, creamed chicken or fish, it is better to cut the toast in strips or tiny cubes and pile them around the egg or creamed chicken. Toast becomes a soggy mass under the egg or creamed mixture.

RUGS.

Rugs and carpets demand special attention in the fall to be sure that all of the sand and grit tracked in during the summer is removed from them. Vacuum clean the scatter rugs on both sides. Vacuum clean the large rugs, and examine them for broken edges or worn places. If these are taken in time, the colors can be matched with wool and the places mended.

FLOOR OIL.

An excellent floor oil can be made from the oil drained from your automobile. Let it settle and then strain about one cupful of oil. Mix with one-third cupful of linseed oil and a tablespoon of kerosene. Use on clean cloths to go over your floor.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

If the hands are stained with fruits at preserving time rub them with tomato juice and the stains will quickly disappear.

If you use a good quality of rouge it is not harmful to the skin but it must be removed at bedtime or the pores will become clogged and enlarged.

When a tight shoe is uncomfortable wring out a cloth in very hot water and place it over the spot where the shoe pinches. Repeat as soon as the cloth becomes cold and until the shoe feels comfortable.

To dissolve the scales that sometimes come on your eyelids from strain or weakness, use a solution of one teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda to a glass of warm water. Apply with a piece of absorbent cotton. This relieves the condition though it isn't a cure.

FOR THIN HAIR.

For thin and falling hair, brush your hair vigorously for five minutes every night and then use the following tonic on it, massaging it into the scalp with the fingertips: Resorcin, 45 grams; glycerin, 1 ounce and equal parts of water and alcohol to fill a six ounce bottle. The object is to stimulate the roots and keep the scalp from becoming tight and drawn.

CARVED WOOD.

ASH TRAYS.

Old-fashioned tiny butter dishes of flower-patterned china make decorative individual ash trays for a home where there are many smokers.

WHITE PERFUME.

Paris distills a new perfume from all white flowers that is considered smart for evening wear when one is costumed daintily in some very soft color. It should never be worn with dark clothes.

BY CANDLE-LIGHT.

A becoming and restful light is afforded by a tall standard for the table, with places for three candles. This candelabra is of heavy metal finished in a dull and rusty black.

LOVELY CRYSTAL.

One could not conceive of a more graceful way of saying thank you to one's hostess than by sending her a set of three bottles for her dressing table. These are of crystal clear glass, exquisitely etched in modern design in back.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Green is a big seller in shoes. The green suede oxford, with calfskin tip and trim, is lovely with a green tweed frock.

Evening handkerchiefs are all a glimmer when they are of chiffon trimmed with rhinestones, even to a monogram in one corner.

The gate top bag, which earlier in the season made its appearance as an accessory in the popular tweed, re-enters the scene as a leather bag this fall.

Opera pumps are tremendously popular now The old fashioned buckle advances as new and its 1929 version is dainty, often set in brilliants.

Nothing could be more stunning than a fur coat made of very supple caracul, with a huge cape-collar of kolinsky and bands of the same upon the cuffs.

SPORT CLOTHES ON NEW LINES.

Sports clothes for fall will wear a more formal air than has been seen hitherto. They will make more wide use of detail and tailoring and observe a great many of the points of the new mode.

The new wool fabrics—the light-weight tweeds, the soft jerseys and the wool crepes—foster this idea considerably. Many of these fabrics are rative weaves. Almost all of them are colorful.

Then, too, the wool frock, like its silk contemporary, will have a flared skirt or one that is given a graceful fullness by means of pleats. The waistline will be indicated in various ways, but mostly by means of the belt. Even wool coats will show the influence of the natural waistline mode.

BOUDOIR JACKET.

The newest boudoir attire for milady is a stunning eggshell satin pajama suit, with full legs and a cowl collar and over this shining surface, the neatest little rose pink velvet jacket that nips in at the waist and fits like the paper on the wall.

SMART PLAIDS.

Plaids for fall are developed in taffeta, crepe, velvets, and in tweeds, and in bright colors as well as in combination of dull tones. Plaids that give the impression of being beige or gray are very smart.

VELVET SASH.

A dainty little pink chiffon frock from Paris has three shades of pink making a smashing bow in the back, with the three ends swinging to ankle length or the floor.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

Never stretch table linen when ironing it. Iron it while damp and press until dry, to preserve its stiffness.

You can wash Oriental rugs if you use fine white soap and scrub them while they lie flat. Hang on the line and rinse with a hose.

Soak the linen in cold water if it is found to be stained with egg. Then send it to the laundry and the stains will wash out. Never try to get them out with hot water; it will only set the stains.

If you lay shields flat on the bathroom bowl and scrub them with a nail brush and soap suds, they will look like new. Put a little ammonia in the rinse water. Never ring them out.

DRY HEAT.

Dry heat of a temperature of 350 degrees C. continued for one hour will destroy most germs, but this renders most fabrics very brittle and may injure them. Most materials will bear a temperature of 110 degrees C. without damage.

OLD ENEMY IS ROUTED.

Women's old enemy, dust, is routed, in closets, if one indulges in wardrobe accessories of Argentine cloth, which is slightly transparent, delicately colored, and yet capable of keeping out the dust. Shaped hat-protectors and envelope bags of different sizes are among the many useful pieces, which can be purchased, all in one color.

FUR CARE.

Fur collars and cuffs on a coat should be given special care to preserve its beauty. Brush thoroughly with a deep bristle brush to remove all dust. Then go over the fur with a piece of velvet, dipped into cleansing fluid. When dry brush again, this time with a softer brush, following the grain of the fur.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

American women pay taxes on incomes totaling more than $3,250,000,000 annually.

Four prominent women have been appointed on an advisory committee in New York city to study crime.

American war mothers assisted 2,797 families during the last two years. They spent $107,949 in relief work.

There are eight women members of the United States congress and 13 women members of the English parliament.

Modern women of China are now placarding the country with posters that denounce men as "dominant males" and demand that both sexes be placed on an absolutely equal footing.

Because she has bought a motor car and plans to drive it herself, Miss Mae Moran, style model in Lynn, Mass., had her feet insured for $40,000 by her employers. She has a perfect 4B foot which is one of the popular and most displayed women's sizes.

WASHED WOODWORK.

Use warm suds and a soft brush to wash woodwork. Wipe it dry. When it is thoroughly dry, go over it with a damp cloth wiped out of oil. This prevents its soiling quite so easily again.

DRESSER DRAWERS.

If dresser drawers stick in hot, rainy weather, plane off the sides and bottom, but never the top. Sometimes merely rubbing soap, paraffin or tallow on the edges will suffice.

MODERN MIRRORS.

Mirror furniture is now part of the modern idea in decoration. Many lovely incidental pieces are being made. Three-fold mirror screens, too, are striking and are decidedly useful, as well as decorative, in the modern bedroom.

RECIPES.

Date-Walnut Dessert: Beat two eggs to a foam with one cup of sugar and one fourth teaspoon of salt. When very light and thick, add a teaspoon of flour mixed with half a teaspoon of baking powder, a cup of finely chopped and stoned dates and a teaspoon of lemon exerate. Mix well and pour into greased ramekins. Bake for about 15 minutes.

Bananas in Cranberry: Wash one pint of cranberries and cover them with one cupful of cold water. Cook quickly for ten minutes, then press through a sieve. Slice six large ripe bananas lengthwise and squeeze the juice of half a lemon over them. Add about one and one half cupfuls of sugar to the hot cranberry juice, stir well, then pour over the bananas. Place in a hot oven and bake until the bananas are tender. Remove to a serving dish and cool well. Usually the jelly during the cooling process.

One, Two and Three.

ORCHARD, Iowa, Dec. 8—(AP)—Fourteen years ago a baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Leon Clark. Ten years ago twins were born, and triplets recently.

CATERPILLAR CLUB LISTS 185 MEMBERS

WASHINGTON (AP)—A revised official roster of "the caterpillar club," prepared by the army air corps, list 185 members.

The mythical organization, composed of those whose lives have been saved by the parachute, has three women members. Seven of the aviators are "repeats," having jumped for their lives more than once.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

About Tommy

Tommy, aged 7, must go each day with his two small brothers and a nurse to play in the park.

Each day his nurse brings home to mother the long story of Tommy's misbehavior. Tommy fights with the little ones. Tommy won't let them play. Tommy takes their toys away. Tommy bullies them when they are perfectly peaceful and he teases them until they cry. Tommy is, in short, a perfectly horrid boy.

Tommy is "spoken to." Tommy is scolded. Tommy is punished. Nothing makes any difference. He seems possessed of the devil, and nurse is ready to throw up her job in despair unless something can be done about Tommy.

Something certainly ought to be done about Tommy, there has been more than enough done to him. To ask a big boy of 7 to play exclusively with two younger brothers is to ask the impossible.

Nurses and mothers have a way of expecting of the eldest a degree of self control and altruism, in relation to their younger brothers and sisters, far beyond what is humanly possible at any age.

Every child has a right to spend his play time with those who are congenial to him. To be foisted off on younger children is to be denied conditions under which it is possible for a child to enjoy himself or to develop those social qualities of fair play, leadership, and give and take which are so important to him.

Again and again, after we have placed children in an impossible situation, we blame them because their behavior falls short of our wishes.

It would be a queer child who could be happy playing only with those who were physically and mentally his inferiors. Such a youngster would indeed be cause for worry.

He would be one who either was himself below normal in vitality and intelligence, or who was making the adjustment in order to keep parental approval at the price of a terrific suppression of his own healthy aggressiveness.

DIPLOMATS LEND COLOR TO WASHINGTON SPORTS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—(AP)—Ole Ole!

The cry which urges on bull fighters in Spain—it means "fine"—echoes at Washington football games the gas season. The "hip hip hooray" with which Latin Americans root for the home teams is frequently heard.

Washington's foreign population, the diplomats, their families and aides, enter keenly into American pastimes. At the same time, however, they bring to the capital sports from all parts of the world.

Helen Wills has her devotees in Loranda Prochnik, young daughter of the Austrian minister, and in Mrs. Juan Ramirez, wife of the former charge d'affaires of the Paraguayan legation.

Ball games, regarded as typical American sport, are nothing new to these women of older civilizations. Soccer, a widely liked sport in Europe and South America, is particularly popular with them.

Wives and daughters of ambassadors and ministers from foreign capitals take the lead in cheering on the crimson, blue or yellow of their favorite teams.

They influence the mode of entertainment in all lines. With their love of music they have elevated the concert to a high social plane. All officialdom, including the diplomatic set and the army and navy, will be at the concert to be given December 16, at the Pan American building with Marguerite D'Alvarez, Peruvian contralto, as star soloist.

D'Alvarez is a particular pet of the South American embassies and legations. Her brother, J. Alvarez de Beunavista, is first secretary of the Peruvian embassy. Her father was ambassador from Peru to the court of St. James. She once sang for Mrs. Coolidge at the white house.

Members of the diplomatic set are fond of dancing and bridge. Mirza Davoud Khan Meftah, Persian minister, is an exceptionally good dancer. He entertains a great deal and his supper parties are noted for their originality. The dessert at a recent one was an ice cream fish stuffed with strawberries.

The four daughters of the minister from Venezuela, Don Carlos Grisanti, are also fond of dancing. They have become quite Americanized in their six years' residence here, yet still cling to the chaperone custom. Their mother accompanies them to all parties.

HOSIERY.

Avoid all extremes of heat, using lukewarm water and drying in the shade.

Do not iron but pull the stockings into shape while they are still damp.

Wash in a soapsuds solution, never rubbing the soap directly upon them. If washed after each wearing they will never require drastic treatment.

If the stockings are clocked or embroidered, it is safer to fill them carefully with crumpled tissue paper. This will absorb the dampness from the clocks and prevent their running into the stocking.

TODAY THE CHILD HAS A SEPARATE ROOM

...ping the youngster to put things away.

By Elsie Drew Kennedy

It is important that parents stress the habit of orderliness in the daily lives of their children as much as they stress obedience and the learning of A B C's.

For a small child to have a room of his own is essential for several reasons. It gives him a sense of independence which will stand him in good stead in later years. With that sense of independence comes the sense of responsibility without which none of us can get along. Again, in his own room he develops an appreciation of order and beauty.

No child, not even the most tousle-headed little termagant, could resist the lure of a beautifully arranged closet, with in-a-door mirror and racks for toys and shoes, which is a distinctly modern development and a long hue and cry from the wardrobe of grandmother's day.

Here, there is a place for everything, and everything is in its place. And the nicest part of all is that it is so much fun to keep it there. Indeed, one could not live happily in this pretty room if it were out of order.

Because it is the room of a child of two or three years, it has light pink walls, cheerful even on the dullest of days of winter, and ivory woodwork stenciled with fine blue lines. The inside of the chifforobe compartment in the wardrobe repeats the pink, as does the underside of the toy rack and the trimming of the bed and toy chest. Even the drawers in the closet are lined with pink, a clean and dainty effect which is most charming when the drawers are opened.

Breaking the expanse of wall against which the bed is placed is a shelf which serves the double purpose of adding to the coziness of the room and providing a resting place for the elephants, ducks and other animals. Their home, of course, is properly in the box below, but here are dolls, blocks and a full household of baby's personal belongings, which overflow, as one can see, into the rack on the closet door.

The floor is completely covered with a deep-piled cobalt blue rug in solid color, which adds to the warmth and hospitality of the room and harmonizes with the lighter coloring of walls and woodwork.

Seeks Cuban Suffrage.

HAVANA, Dec. 8—(AP)—Senora Amalia Mallen de Ostolaza, president of the Suffragist Society of Cuba, plans an intensive drive before Cuban congress this winter seeking ratification of the equal suffrage measure.

Only a doctor knows what a laxative should be

YOU don't want to use a laxative every day. Nor once a week. This should not be necessary. And it never would be required if all of us would learn the danger that lies in a careless selection of laxatives.

By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, nausea, biliousness, gas on stomach and bowels, poor appetite, or lack of energy warns us that our bowels are sluggish, we risk forming the laxative habit.

Rely on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one made from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach trouble. Its originator tried it in many thousands of cases. He found it safe for women, children and old folks; thoroughly effective for the most robust man. There were so many calls for this prescription and its fame spread so rapidly that druggists began to fill it in quantities; kept it ready for calls. Now Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is prepared from the freshest herbs and other pure ingredients under ideal conditions. You can get the generous bottles of it from drug stores in any part of the world.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a real corrective of constipation. Millions have proved this. That's why it is today the world's most popular laxative!

FORTY HOURS DEVOTION OPENS AT ST. MARY'S MEM. CHURCH

The Forty Hours devotion opened at St. Mary's Memorial church Sunday following the high mass at 10:30 o'clock with the usual procession of about 75 boys and girls and priests of the parish escorting the Blessed Sacrament through the church as the choir chanted. The sacrament was carried in the monstrance by Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor, who celebrated the high mass, while Rev. Frederick M. Coholan was master of ceremonies. The altar and sanctuary were beautifully decorated by the Sisters of Mercy with choice cut flowers, chrysanthemums and large spreading palms.

The Blessed Sacrament was exposed for public adoration during Sunday afternoon and evening until 9:30 o'clock. Several hundred people received holy communion at the 7:30 and 9 o'clock masses and during the afternoon and evening the church was crowded. Visiting priests of nearby parishes assisted Fathers Keefe and Coholan in hearing confessions Sunday afternoon and evening. For the accommodation of the parishioners that speak foreign languages, Father Keefe has engaged priests to hear confessions in German, French and Italian. On Monday and Tuesday mornings the masses will be at 5 and 7 o'clock with holy communion at 8. Members of the different societies of the church are keeping vigil for an hour each.

The devotions cover the period in which the Saviour's body was taken down from the cross and placed in the tomb. At all the three masses Sunday the sermons contained fitting remarks concerning the devotions.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Ludwick Kostyra

The funeral of Anna Kostyra, wife of Ludwick Kostyra, of No. 35, Alice street, was held Saturday morning from her late residence, at 8:30 o'clock, followed by a requiem mass at the Divine Providence church on Golden street at 9 o'clock which was celebrated by Rev. Guderski, the pastor. Many relatives and friends were present at the services and burial was in the family plot in the Divine Providence cemetery where Rev. Guderski conducted the committal service. The bearers were John Wlodyka, Kasimiers Suplicki, John Stankiewicz and Andrew Brodowski. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Undertaker Julian Wojtkowski had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Wednesday morning at 7:30 in St. Mary's Memorial church there will be an anniversary requiem high mass for the late John P. Sullivan, formerly of Holyoke.—adv.

Patronal Saint of St. Mary's Church

The Catholic church throughout the world celebrated one of the greatest feast days of the year Sunday, the feast of the Immaculate conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary. It is the patron saint of the church in America and is also the patronal feast day of St. Mary's parish.

Wednesday evening the first meeting of the season of K. B. Sewing class of Auxiliary No. 18, A. O. H., was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Mary D. Sullivan, at 455 North Main street. Twenty-six members enrolled in the class for the coming season and Miss Molly Carroll was appointed as teacher. Plans were made for a busy year. After the business meeting Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Catherine Lord who acted as hostess with Mrs. Sullivan, served a delicious banquet in the form of a surprise. The menu was as follows: Fruit cup, celery, olives, nuts, roast loin of pork, mashed potato, mashed turnip, dressing with gravy, cole slaw, salad, cranberry sauce, Neapolitan jello with whipped cream, assorted cakes and coffee. Mrs. Lord and Mrs. Sullivan received a hearty vote of thanks. The little waitresses who served were the Misses Marguerite Grady, Eileen and Geraldine Sullivan and Genevieve Bezenski. Next week Thursday evening the class meets for regular work at the home of Mrs. Timothy Brennan, on 466 Boswell avenue.

ARMY ENGINEER ADVISES 25 FOOT RIVER CHANNEL TO ALLYN'S POINT

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington modification of the Thames river project in Connecticut to provide a channel 25 feet deep and 250 feet wide to the upper end of Bartlett's crossover and thence 200 feet wide to Allyn's Point, has been recommended by Major General Lytle Brown, chief of the army engineers.

The recommendation for the modification, which is to cost $169,000 with $4,300 annually for maintenance, was contained in a report of the board of engineers for rivers and harbors forwarded to the house committee on rivers and harbors. The committee had asked the board to review reports on the project with a view to ascertaining if a greater depth and width of channel would be advisable in the interest of navigataion.

The existing project provides for a channel 20 feet deep and 200 feet wide to Allyn's Point and then 16 feet deep to Norwich. Interested parties expressed a desire for an additional five feet of depth below Allyn's Pont. The chief of engineers in his report stated that such an increase would enable coal which comes from Hampton Roads to be shipped in colliers and deep draft barges at a saving of 15 to 25 cents per ton and that the savings would in a great part be passed on to the consumer.

The board considers the larger channel would result in savings in the movement of coal sufficient to justify the expenditure.

GIRL SCOUT APPOINTMENT FOR MISS AGNES LEAHY

Miss Agnes Berkeley Leahy, of 35 Otis street, for seven years directing the work of the personnel research bureau of Connecticut college at New London, has been chosen executive secretary of the personnel division of the Girl Scouts, it was announced Saturday at the Girl Scout headquarters in New York.

The appointment of Miss Leahy was made in accordance with the provisions of the Girl Scout five-year development plan. Simultaneously, announcement was made that a second of the four divisions provided for under the plan would be headed by Miss Emma H. Gunther, of New York city.

The two appointments, it was stated at Girl Scout headquarters, constitute the first step taken to put the five-year development plan into operation. The plan was adopted by the unanimous vote of 400 delegates at the 15th annual convention of the Girl Scouts, held recently in New Orleans. It seeks to increase membership in the organization from 200,000 to 500,000 by 1935 and to place the national organization on a self-supporting basis.

Miss Leahy brings a rich experience to her new position. In addition to her work in the personnel bureau of the Connecticut college, Miss Leahy was instructor in psychology. She has distinguished herself as research director for the Personnel Research Federation of New York, and she was for a time training supervisor in the research and personnel departments of R. H. Macy & Co., New York city.

Under the provisions of the five-year development plan the program division which Miss Gunther heads will be entrusted with the task of maintaining and improving the program of girl scouting, preparation of the program materials and supervision of all program publications. Miss Leahy's division, that of personnel, will have for its task the maintenance of the Girl Scout membership registration system and will deal with the training problems of girl scouting, with special reference to the provision and training of volunteer leaders for Girl Scout troops.

Executive secretaries have not yet been named for the two other divisions specified under the five-year development plan.

HONORABLE MENTION FOR THE CHURCH AT STORRS

Storrs Congregational church, which was erected for inter-denominational use in connection with Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, received honorable mention in the nation-wide Church Building competition sponsored by the Christian Herald, for its excellence of architecture and completeness of plan, according to announcement made at the annual convention of the Associated Denominational Bureaus of Church Architecture, in session at Hotel Statler, St. Louis, Mo.

The Storrs church was built through the public gifts of the people of Connecticut and with the backing of the Connecticut Federation of Churches. The institution is held by the Congregational society, which abandoned its old edifice to join in the co-operative effort, so that the students at the state college might have an adequate place for religious worship.

In the national competition, the First Presbyterian church of New Rochelle, N. Y., won the $1,000 first prize; the First Presbyterian church of Clinton, Iowa, won the second prize of $300, and the First Christian church, Datsonville, Cal., won the third prize of $200.

RESCUED FROM DROWNING IN THAMES RIVER

Lawrence Prodell, son of Mrs. Regina S. Prodell, 18 Laurel Hill avenue, had a narrow escape from drowning in the Thames river Sunday when he was thrown overboard by catching his foot in a rope on a small boat from which he and his companions were fishing near the state hospital grounds.

Suffering from the shock of his fall into the icy waters and unable to swim with his heavy clothing, Larry was rescued when partly unconscious by a man named Liepold, who leaped overboard and plunged after the struggling man.

By a strange coincidence the rescue was effected by the father of a lad that Larry had saved from drowning this past summer.

After being fished out of the river the young man soon revived and was taken to the Wilcox boat at the foot of Shetucket street, where he remained warmly clad in a bunk until his mother returned from a trip to Groton, whither she had gone early in the afternoon and was not apprised of her son's rescue until she returned.

RABBI MAX STAMM RE-ELECTED ZIONIST PRES.

The Norwich Zionist district reelected Rabbi Max Stamm as president at its annual meeting Sunday night at the Hebrew institute. Other officers elected were Michael Levin, vice-president; Isaac Segal, treasurer, and M. I. Silverman, secretary.

The Hanukah celebration committee, headed by Jacob Soffer, reported its success in obtaining funds for carrying out the celebration on Dec. 29 on a large scale with very prominent speakers from New York and Hartford. A general invitation is to be extended for the celebration, there will be a fine musical programme and announcement of the speakers and the place for the observance will be made soon.

Report was made by the Jewish National fund committee of the receipt of $140 from the box collections and $20 was given by Mr. and Mrs. Israel H. Mandel for a dunam (quarter acre) to be bought in Palestine in the name of their son, Moses, whose confirmation was recently celebrated.

NORWICH ELKS BREAK EVEN AT WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 8— Norwich lodge, No. 430, and Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. E., broke even out of the twelve available points in the round robin tournament held at the Elks home this afternoon. It was the second tournament for the local Elks, who two weeks ago were defeated by the Bills from New London, 5 to 7. Norwich was participating in its first engagement.

The visitors took three points in bowling, two at cards and one on pool while the Thread Cityites took one on bowling, two at cards and three on pool, the total scores being six to six.

The tournament was one of the most enthusiastic held in some time, each match being witnessed by a large gallery of rooters.

TWO ARE FINED IN LEDYARD JUSTICE'S COURT

Found guilty on the charge of lascivious carriage when they were presented Saturday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Walter M. Buckingham, Clyde Crouch and Florence Drake, both of Ledyard, were each fined $25 and costs.

The two were arrested about 4 o'clock Saturday morning when state policemen visited the Crouch home after neighbors had complained that a "whoopee" party was in progress there. Troopers Frederick Johnson, Charles Hill and James Dygert of the Groton state police barracks were the police party.

JOHN P. CORCORAN ILL AT HIS HOME ON THE EAST SIDE

John P. Corcoran, one of the best known young men about town and one always most helpful in any public enterprise, has been ill at his home, 405 Main street, Norwich, for over a week. His illness is chiefly the result of a serious attack of intestinal grip a number of months ago. His physician has ordered complete rest, so that the patient is not permitted to see any friends, although many personal and telephone calls regarding his progress have come to his sister, Mrs. M. H. Donahue, from acquaintances anxious as to his condition.

Mr. Corcoran has been most active as welfare secretary for the Knights of Columbus, Norwich Elks and for the American Legion, in carrying comforts to ex-service men and others at the public institutions. He is head usher at St. Patrick's church, is a member of the Norwich board of water commissioners and in other ways has been brought into relation with a wide circle of acquaintances and has formed many contacts here and in surrounding towns. Consequently the matter of his speedy and complete recovery interests a large number who appreciate his always generous and public-spirited service.

New Incorporation

The Wilcox Coal company, of Stonington. Authorized capital $75,000 to consist of 750 shares of common stock of $100 par value, of which $60,000 has been paid in. The incorporators are: Frank N., Roy V., May C. and Ruth F. Wilcox, all of Westerly, R. I.

Visited In Newark With Son

Mr. and Mrs. Manuel J. King have returned to their home, 53 Ward street, Norwich, following a lengthy stay in Newark N. J. Their son, Austin Avery King, N. F. A., '15, Trinity, '19, Harvard Law school, is a member of a firm of insurance lawyers in Newark. Mr. and Mrs. King took an apartment overlooking the park and for seven months resided in Newark, that they might be near their son.

Niantic Man Beneficiary

James A. Stevens of Niantic gets $4,750 from the estate of his cousin, William G. Chave, who died in New York, Dec. 4, 1927, leaving a net estate of $531,857.47.

TAFTVILLE

The annual dinner of the Ponemah Wheel club was held Saturday evening at the clubhouse on Norwich avenue, covers being laid for 50. The menu: Celery, olives, roast chicken with dressing, cranberry sauce, mashed potato, mashed turnip, mixed pickles, rolls, apple pie, mince pie, pumpkin pie, coffee, ice cream, cigars.

After dinner William C. Kendall of Norwich gave an illustrated lecture on his recent automobile trip to California. The slides were from photographs which Mr. Kendall took en route and included interesting pictures of some of the national parks, famous mountain peaks, life among the Indians in the southwest, and interesting old Mexican towns. During his talk, Mr. Kendall told some amusing stories of road conditions and people with whom he came in contact at different points on the trip.

The committee which had charge of the affair and who served the appetizing dinner were Adolph Leupold, chairman; Lionel Blanchette, Edward Stitcht, Henry Troeger, Robert Krauss, William Smith and Fred Holdsworth.

Mrs. William Shaw and her little daughter Inez of Mystic have been spending the past few days with Mrs. Shaw's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Kinder and family of North Third avenue.

Charles Adams, Jr., of Danielson spent the week end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Adams and family of North Third avenue.

Mrs. Laura M. Weeks and Miss Bertha M. Weeks of Yantic were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wood of the Old Canterbury turnpike.

At the Taftville Congregational church Sunday morning, the preacher was Andrew L. Drummond of Edinburgh, Scotland. Mr. Drummond, who is a student at the Hartford Theological seminary preached on "The Three Fundamental Attitudes of Life." In the evening there was the usual meeting of the members of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor in the church vestry, and Mr. Drummond addressed the meeting on "The Meaning of Worship."

FUNERAL

Oscar E. Mathewson

Funeral services for Oscar Eugene Mathewson were held Sunday afternoon at his late home on Providence street, with Rev. William Penner, pastor of the Taftville Congregational church officiating. There was a large attendance and a wealth of floral tributes. The bearers were Allan Bogle, Christopher Hedler, Archibald Torrance, Joseph Dugas, Edward Tubbs and Fred Irons. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery where Rev. Mr. Penner conducted the committal service. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mr. Mathewson died at his home on Thursday after an illness of only a few hours. His sudden decease was a great shock to his family and his host of friends in the community. Since his residence for the past several years in the village, he had become well known as an industrious, upright citizen. He is survived by his wife and five sons, Oscar E. Jr., of Hopedale, Mass., Albert, Earle, Edmund and David of Taftville.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Pingree and son, Harold, Jr., of Goodyear were visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pingree and family of North C street Sunday.

Black brant, the Canadian wild geese continue to fly southward in goodly numbers. Almost every day a small flock may be seen winging its way to the lands beyond the Carribean. During the past week, one immense flock of 122 birds was seen, and this was closely followed by a flock of 30.

Santa Claus paid his annual visit to the village Saturday when on his way to a Norwich store. Advance information had stated that he would arrive by airplane at the landing field on the Old Canterbury turnpike, and several hundred children gathered there shortly after noon. However, he arrived by motor and then passed through the principal streets of the town followed by a long procession of automobiles.

The election of officers for 1930 of L'Union St. Jeane Baptiste D'Anne, Conseil Gagnon No. 208, took place last Thursday evening. Members were elected as follows: Chaplain, Rev. E. X. Dessureault; honorable president, J. C. Marson; dean, F. Mathieu; president, Edmond Proulx; vice president, Mrs. Georgianna Paquette; secretary, Mrs. Leoni Adam; assistant secretary, Mrs. Bertha Dion; treasurer, J. O. Tellier; collector, Philip Adam; master of ceremonies, J. B. Gouvin; marshals, Alphonse Provost, Edmond Bissonette.

Needless Suffering

The next time a headache makes you stay at home—

Or some other ache or pain prevents your keeping an engagement—

Remember Bayer Aspirin! For there is scarcely any pain it cannot relieve, and relieve promptly.

These tablets give real relief, or millions would not continue to take them. They are quite harmless, or the medical profession would not constantly prescribe them.

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. To colds that might so easily be checked; to neuritis, neuralgia; to those pains peculiar to women; or any suffering for which Bayer Aspirin is such an effective antidote.

For your own protection, buy the genuine. Bayer is safe. It's always the same. It never depresses the heart, so use it as often as needed; but the cause of any pain can be treated only by a doctor.

108 LIVES HAVE BEEN LOST IN EUROPEAN COAST STORM

Check Up Shows That 69 Large Ships Have Been Stranded, Sunk or Seriously Damaged—Gales Continue to Rage From the North Sea to the Northwestern Extremity of Spain.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Relief forces redoubled efforts tonight in a lull in the gales, which have subjected western Europe to perhaps the worst weather in the century, to reach water-logged and crippled derelicts on the high seas to which helpless men still clung.

One instance reported today was that of the British liner Alaunia, which arrived at Plymouth from New York. It had stood by the crippled British steamer Tynebridge for nine hours while that ship was tossed helplessly in the high seas, finding it impossible to transfer the injured men from the Tynebridge, the ship's doctor of the Alaunia prescribed treatment for them by radio. Tugs have now come to the assistance of the Tynebridge.

Check-up tonight, still incomplete, showed that 108 lives had been lost and 69 large ships had been stranded, sunk or seriously damaged. The end of the storm was not yet in sight with gales raging furiously from the mouth of the Elbe in the North sea to Cape Finisterre, the northwestern extremity of Spain.

The greatest atmospheric depression in 20 years, was recorded in this section of the Atlantic ocean. The barometer reading went down to 27.1-2 inches. The main force of the storm which reached hurricane velocity on several days since it broke last Thursday night, was felt in the English channel and the Atlantic ocean off the British Isles.

The Swedish ship Frieda was reported sinking off Deal after collision with an unidentified craft. Although many other vessels were nearby, few were able to go to her aid because of their own precarious conditions.

A radio report from the Spanish ship Mar Rojo said its engines had failed and it was drifting on the rocks five miles off Hastings. Lifeboats from Eastbourne and Hastings braved the seas to rescue the crew.

An ominous silence concealed from anxious watchers on shore the fate of the 4,000-ton West African passenger and freight steamer Aba, which last was reported on Saturday in distress with a smashed steering gear, 70 miles of Ushant lighthouse near Brest, France.

The North Foreland radio station reported a steamer Culmore in distress and in need of immediate assistance. The radio station at Land's End received a report that the Greek steamer Zachariosa was proceeding toward Falmouth with steering gear damaged and two men injured. It still was facing bad weather.

The steamer Valacia radioed that she was proceeding slowly in the gale and encountering high seas.

News from the steamship Leonardo Da Vinci, which is bringing $70,000,000 worth of paintings to a special art exhibition here, said tonight that she was meeting rough weather off Cape Finisterre but was "holding her own."

About 50 large steamers were held in the harbor of Hamburg, Germany, by the raging seas outside. Several S O S messages were received today from vessels in the North Sea, including one from the German steamship Lili Woermann, an 8,000-ton craft, which had lost its rudder. A Dutch tug took the ship in tow.

The city of Hamburg suffered considerably from the gale. There was much damage along the waterfront and two persons were killed and several were injured.

The coast of France was almost as bedraggled as British shores. At Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne much property was damaged and the lower parts of Calais were flooded. Many steamers sought shelter at Brest. On the nearby island of Ushant 100 houses were unroofed.

Floods in the upper reaches of the Thames river, which began five days ago when the effects of the great gale were first felt, grew more serious every hour. Fears were expressed that the water would reach the height of the disastrous floods of last year. There had been nearly 14 inches of rainfall in the past 10 weeks.

Maidenhead, Windsor, Eton, Chertsey and Reading already have suffered from the high water. It will be many days before the crest of the flood passes London.

Although the tempest, which the British Press is calling "the greatest England has ever known," abated somewhat today the air ministry tonight warned that more gales were on the way from mid-Atlantic. It called attention to an unbroken stream of storm centers sweeping in from the Atlantic toward Britain.

THREE ALLEGED COMMUNISTS IN JAIL AT ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Three alleged communists were ordered to jail here today by Common Pleas Judge W. W. Cowen, after they had lost a motion for a new trial on charges of syndicalism, in connection with "red" day demonstration at Martin's Ferry, Ohio, several months ago.

The alleged communists, Tom Johnson and Lil Andrews, both of Cleveland, and Charles Gwynn, Lansing, Ohio, were sent to jail by the court and sentence was deferred after they told the court that nothing he could do would change their opinion of the United States' attitude toward foreign countries.

Mrs. Yetta Land, Cleveland, attorney for the trio, in arguing the motion for new trial, claimed that the syndicalism law of Ohio was unconstitutional. She defended the literature that was being broadcast by the three persons at Martin's Ferry.

According to the state, the literature branded the United States as militaristic and claimed that this country was planning for war. In defense of this literature, Mrs. Land cited the recent notes of Secretary of State Stimson to the government of Russia as an example.

She claimed that Stimson's note was not a peace move but a gesture for imperialistic expansion.

ATTACK IN HOUSE ON POLICY TOWARD HAITI

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—While administration anxiety over disturbances in Haiti was allayed by word that quiet had been restored, the policy toward the island republic was attacked and defended today in the house.

Senate attention also was directed to the situation for the first time since the recent outbreaks. Senator Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota, approved President Hoover's special message to congress about it and expressed hope that the proposed commission of inquiry would not be appointed "for white-washing our act there."

The house debate was by way of preparing for consideration of the Porter resolution to name the commission suggested by the president to go into the Haitian question. Chairman Porter said the foreign affairs committee would meet Friday to consider his resolution, to decide whether it would recommend house adoption.

Representative Huddleston, democrat, Alabama, assailed President Hoover for not taking steps since he has been in office to prevent the recent disturbances, conceding that President Hoover inherited the situation from the last administration, Huddleston said.

RAIN AND SNOW BREAK PACIFIC COAST DROUGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Showers in the lowlands and snow in the mountains today had broken the Pacific coast's record drought.

Farmers, stockmen, power company officials, forest rangers and health officers expressed relief at the opening of the skies.

SPRINGFIELD MAN WAS STRUCK BY TAXI IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Robert Scott, 28, of 32 Donald street, Springfield, Mass., was struck by a taxicab and seriously injured tonight on the lower East Side.

HARTFORD, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A bench warrant for Henry Luff, of New Britain, charged with robbing his fellow employes at the Corbin Cabinet Lock factory of $1,093 of their Christmas club savings, will be asked by the state's attorney in criminal superior court tomorrow. Luff pleaded guilty to embezzlement in the New Britain police court and was bound over to the March term of the county court. The bench warrant will permit his case to be disposed of at the present term.

Luff was employed in the advertising department of the New Britain factory, a branch of the American Hardware corporation. Each week his fellow workers brought him small amounts for deposit in a New Britain bank. Only when the Christmas checks were mailed to the depositors late in November, was the shortage discovered. By that time Luff had disappeared. He was arrested in Washington, December 2.

JUDGE BEN B. LINDSEY HAS BEEN DISBARRED

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Ben B. Lindsey, militant exponent of companionate marriage and noted former Denver juvenile court judge, today was disbarred from the practice of law in Colorado by the state supreme court for accepting money from a prominent New York and Denver society matron for legal services while he was on the bench.

Lindsey immediately upon being apprized of the decision, issued a statement asserting he was the victim of political persecution.

He was charged specifically by the Bar association with accepting $37,500 from Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, divorced wife of W. E. D. Stokes, New York multi-millionaire for services in contesting Stokes' will which cut off his two children by the second Mrs. Stokes, James and Helen Muriel, without bequests.

TREASURER REP. SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 9—(AP)—Theodore Gary, 75 year old multi-millionaire telephone magnate, named today as treasurer of the republican senatorial committee, is one of the most successful operators of telephone properties and associated manufacturing companies in the United States.

He is chairman of the executive committee of the Theodore Gary company, heads the Automatic Electric company, of Chicago the Telephone Sales and Engineering corporation, and has many other world-wide allied interests.

As chairman of the Missouri highway commission, Mr. Gary carried out a $60,000,000 highway improvement program.

A few months ago, he accepted chairmanship of a commission which made an extensive study into the needs of state charitable and penal institutions and recommended the expenditure of $158,000,000 to bring them up to date.

SUPREME COURT HAS RECESSED UNTIL JAN. 6

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—Opinion day was anything but busy today for the supreme court, only one written decision being handed down, ten cases being disposed of verbally and consent granted to petitions for review of two labor cases.

Thereupon the court recessed until January 6. The only documentary decision refused the request of the Kansas insurance commission for a mandamus to compel Federal District Judge Pollock to call a three judge statutory court to act on a controversy with fire insurance companies over new rates.

ROME, Dec. 9—(AP)—Premier Mussolini awarded the prikes to his "victors in the battle of wheat." It has been one of the cardinal points of the fascist program to so stimulate domestic production of grain that Italy might be freed of dependence on foreign supplies.

ROME, Dec. 9—(AP)—The Italian delegation to the five-power conference in London next month, unless there are eleventh hour changes, will be composed of Foreign Minister Grandi; Admiral Sirianni, minister of the navy; Admiral Acton, who participated in the Washington naval conference, and Ambassador Bordanaro, whose post isat London.

FELTOVIC EXECUTED AT WETHERSFIELD AT 12.05.53 A. M.

STATE PRISON, Wethersfeld, Conn, Dec. 10.—(AP)—John Feltovic, 19, of Bridgeport, was hanged at 12:05:53 a. m., for the murder of Lester Jacobs, chain store manager, last March. He was pronounced dead at 12:17:30 by Dr. Edward G. Fox, prison physician.

Guided by two prison guards and consoled by a Catholic priest who walked behind him, Feltovic entered the death chamber at 12:05:16 a. m. The trap was sprung at 12:05:53, and his body was jerked upward, there to hang as life ebbed away. He was pronounced dead at 12:17:30.

He uttered no word. He did not whimper. He was more calm perhaps than the handful of witnesses who saw him come to the end of his short span of life.

The black cap was adjusted over his head, and at the same time guards buckled a strong strap around his knees. Then a signal and his body went twitching in the air.

Feltovic died in expiation of his crime of murder; in exchange of his life for the life he took last March when he, with a pal, tried to carry out their planned scheme of robbery. It was over in a short space of time that to some seemed like hours, and society's demands had been satisfied.

DETAILS OF LAST DAY OF THE CONDEMNED MAN

STATE PRISON, WETHERSFIELD, Conn., Dec. 9—(AP)—Taking farewell of his parents late this afternoon, John Feltovic, 19 year old gangster, tonight spent his last hours in his death cell with the prison chaplain, Rev. George M. Grady.

He was executed soon after midnight for the murder of Lester Jacobs, Bridgeport chain store manager, during an attempted holdup last March.

The youth called "Spirits" by his pool room pals on Bridgeport's East Side, maintained his gangster bravado, the steel nerve that sent a slug clean through the heart of Jacobs during the fleeting hours of this morning and afternoon, Warden Reed said.

He was "calm and composed," in the words of the warden whose task it was to send him to death.

Twice today Feltovic received visits from his parents, a brother, a sister and brother-in-law. The final farewells were said at 3:45 o'clock this afternoon, and a half hour later he was placed in his death cell.

About 11 o'clock this morning, the small group of relatives called at the prison office for permission to see their son and brother. They remained with him about an hour, and then left him while he ate a hearty lunch.

Again this afternoon they walked up the broad walk to the entrance to the grim building, and entered the huge, barred doors. This time they stayed for about an hour and three quarters.

Then they were gone.

None of them would be present when he died the death of a murderer.

John and Mary Feltovic, the parents, were broken in body and spirit as they departed. One of their ten children lived and died outside of the law. Comforting them as best they could were George, John's brother, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ward, the latter a sister.

At six o'clock toonight, John at a dinner he himself had ordered. He had a hamburger steak, fried potatoes, rhubarb sauce, ginger bread and coffee.

Leaving an athletic club about ten o'clock at night last March 23, John Feltovic and Michael Pavlik, also 19 years old, made their way to the grocery store which Jacobs managed. They waited outside.

Pavlik, when it seemed that Jacobs was closing up for the night, remained at the wheel of the automobile. His pal went inside. There he met Jacobs, and commanded him to hand over the store's receipts for the day.

In spite of a gun held in Feltovic's hand, Jacobs picked up a scale weight and threw it at the youth. It hit his shoulder. Then he grasped the scales in both hands and advanced on the robber, who began backing towards the door.

Feltovic had almost reached the door. There was a shot, and Jacobs fell with a bullet through his heart. The youth fled. The next night he was captured.

AMERICAN REFUGEES SEEK SAFETY IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Dec. 9—(AP)—Seeking safety because of widespread revolt against China's Nationalist government, American and other refugees began arriving here today.

Seventy-five American women and children came from Nanking with many refugees of other nationalities who fled from the menace of the rebel forces marching from Pengpu to meet the Nationalist defenders of Nanking, the capital.

HURLEY SWORN IN AS SECRETARY OF WAR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—In a room in which an American flag hung draped with mourning for his predecessor, Patrick J. Hurley of Oklahoma, was today sworn as secretary of war.

The new secretary succeeds the late James W. Good of Iowa.

The oath was administered by Justice Harlan F. Stone, of the supreme court, who, like Secretary Hurley, is a member of the president's "medicine ball cabinet" which each morning during good weather plays on the south grounds of the white house.

World Court Contest Likely In The Senate

Modification of Senate's Reservation in Revised Protocol May Not Be Acceptable.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—American adherence to the world court again hinges on the senate but President Hoover, who authorized the affixing of the signature of this nation to the revised protocol at Geneva today, is expected to give the senate some time for reconsideration.

Hoover has been informed that another stubborn senate contest is in prospect, even under the revised protocol. He is not expected by senate leaders to inject this question there before the return of Secretary Stimson from the forthcoming London naval arms conference.

The senate group which unsuccessfully opposed American adherence to the court when it was voted by 76 to 16 three years ago has given notice that the modification of the senate's reservation which is embodied in the revised protocol is not acceptable.

It was held today at the senate that a two-thirds majority would be required for approval of the revised protocol, as was the case when adherence was first voted.

Democratic leaders who have supported the world court participation from the outset voiced approval today of the modification of the senate reservation which was worked out last spring by Elihu Root with a committee of international jurists. This modified reservation, which in its original form was not accepted by the world powers, has now been approved by the other nations through the League of Nations assembly.

Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, and Senators Johnson, California, and Moses, New Hampshire, the ranking republicans on the foreign relations committee, have avowed their opposition to the modification of the senate reservation.

"I am prepared to take up the world court issue," Senator Borah commented today, "as soon as we get through with the tariff."

U. S. TAKES STEPS TO ENTER WORLD COURT

GENEVA, Dec. 9.—(AP)—To the gratification of League of Nations circles here, the United States today took an important step toward entry into the membership of the permanent court for international justice.

Jay Pierrepont Moffat, American charge d'affaires at Berne, Switzerland, signed three different documents on behalf of the American government; the court statutes, the revision adopted by the recent assembly of the League of Nations, and the protocol for the admission of the United States.

The eyes of international observers at Geneva are now turned toward Washington. Everyone is awaiting the action of the American senate when today's signatures are presented for ratification.

League authorities warmly welcomed the signature of the documents by the United States, declaring that the court's usefulness would be immeasurably increased by the support of the United States government.

The signature of Mr. Moffat to the adhesion protocol followed the signatures of almost all the members of the court. Those of Lithuania, Albania and Abyssinia were the only ones missing.

SEATTLE "MAN OF MYSTERY" HELD AT JANESVILLE, WIS.

JANESVILLE, Wis., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A man believed by police to be the "mystery man" of Seattle, Wash., wanted for 31 attacks on women and who terrorized the northwest coast for months, was held today by the sheriff for investigation. He was suffering from a gunshot wound.

The man was arrested last night by Sheriff Charles R. Garey, who saw him on the street a few days ago and said he recognized him from police pictures forwarded from Seattle.

The sheriff said the man would make no statement.

The "mystery man" sought by Seattle authorities committed a series of brutal crimes. Janesville authorities today communicated with Seattle police in an attempt to complete identification.

AMBASSADOR MORROW HOME FROM MEXICO

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow came home from Mexico City today, preparatory to his departure for London next month as American delegate to the naval conferences.

In the meantime, his time will be well occupied. There will be conferences at Washington with President Hoover over the coming naval discussions; conferences over his appointment by Gov. Morgan F Larson as the successor of U. S. Senator Walter E. Edge; and, it is believed, conferences with Mexican high officials in New York.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—Commending the view of Secretary Wilbur that restrictions on the Indian should be removed as soon as possible, Representative McKeown, democrat, Oklahoma, said in the house today that continued guardianship was sapping the initiative of the Indians.

THREE ALARM FIRE IN HARTFORD LAST NIGHT WITH $100,000 DAMAGE

HARTFORD, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Fire did more than $100,000 damage to a five-story building in Union place, opposite the station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad tonight. The blaze was brought under control at midnight by a force of more than 150 firemen of 13 fire companies, who were summoned by three alarms following in close succession.

City officials pronounced the building one of the worst fire hazards in the city and said they would order it razed.

The fire started in a pool room about 7 o'clock and swept rapidly to the upper floors. Soon it had reached proportions that made it the worst blaze the city has experienced in 12 years. Fire Chief John C. Moran ordered a second and then a third alarm and the off patoon of firemen were called back to duty.

Three other alarms in various parts of the city kept the firemen busy during the major blaze, but these were extinguished quickly.

An hour before midnight fear of its spread to the huge Professional building adjacent, in which hundreds of doctors' offices are situated, was relieved. Two companies fighting the fire were sent back to their headquarters, providing extra coverage for the outlying districts of the city.

Streams of water were swept into the blazing structure from all four sides throughout the hours of fighting, with the roofs of two adjacent buildings being used by the firemen as points from which to send direct streams into the upper portions of the building.

Fear that the walls of the structure, condemned as unsafe two years ago, might collapse was a factor confronting the firemen. After the fire had roared through the structure for more than one hour, the roof fell, thus providing an inward pressure which was instrumental in holding the weakened walls in place.

Traffic for blocks surrounding the fire was completely stopped, and trolleys and automobiles re-routed far from the scene of the blaze. A crowd of more than 10,000 watched the fire, held in check by a squad of 75 policemen who were off duty when called to the scene by a department order.

SENATORS MAY DALLY WITH THE TAX REDUCTION BILL

Finance Committee, in Reporting the Resolution, Proposed an Agreement For a Vote Upon It By 4 P. M. Today—Senator Black Blocked Immediate Consideration—Senator Couzens Will Oppose Limitation of Debate Until He Has Had an Opportunity to Consider Some Amendments—Senator Borah Would Not Permit the Tax Reduction Bill Interfere Unduly With the Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—Senate leaders determined tonight to seek consideration of the $160,000,000 tax reduction resolution before the end of the week, having been forced to lay it aside today for resumption of the tariff debate.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader was attempting to obtain an understanding whereby the resolution would be brought up on Thursday or Friday with an agreement to limit debate to two days.

If that understanding can not be reached, there were indications that on tomorrow a move would be made to displace the tariff bill for immediate consideration of the tax resolution. All factional leaders expressed hope, however, that no considerable delay in the tariff debate would be occasioned by the tax resolution.

Senators Black, democrat, Alabama, and Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, upset the program of their party leaders in blocking immediate consideration today of the tax resolution. Black insisted that any agreement on program include a stipulation for consideration of the old Muscle Shoals dispute. Blaine said he was opposed to giving the "financial thieves of the stock market an opportunity to be rewarded by a reduction in their taxes." He demanded that the senate first dispose of the tariff.

Signs of trouble also were seen in a statement by Senator Couzens, of Michigan, a republican member of the finance committee, that he would oppose a limitation of debate until he had an opportunity to consider some amendments. He did not indicate the amendments he had in mind, nor was there any indication whether he would finally offer them.

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, in reporting the tax resolution to the senate, proposed its immediate consideration with an agreement for a vote upon it by tomorrow at 4 p. m. Senator Black blocked this.

Senators Simmons, of North Carolina, and Harrison, of Mississippi, the ranking democrats on the finance committee, joined in the demand for immediate disposition of the tax resolution. They expressed fear that the psychological benefit created in the country by announcement of the tax reduction would be destroyed by indefinite delay.

Senators Hawes, Missouri, and Copeland, New York, both democrats, also supported this view and Hawes gave notice that tomorrow he would move for immediate consideration of the tax resolution.

Senator Watson urged early adoption of the resolution as a spur to business. Senator Borah, of Idaho, a leader of the republican independents said he would not object to immediate disposition of the tax resolution if there were assurance that it would not interfere unduly with the tariff.

"If you want to create a favorable psychological condition," exclaimed Borah, "let's get rid of the tariff."

The motion to take up the tax resolution was not in order until tomorrow because the report on it by the finance committe, was just submitted today.

Demanding action on the tax cut, Senator Harrison said "the American people are interested in tax reduction."

"Two years ago we proposed to cut the corporation tax to ten per cent," he continued, "and now they are coming to our view. The recent business conferences have stimulated confidence and not with my vote or with my voice will anything be done to hamper the president in his effort to create a psychological situation which will prevent any panic."

GARMENT WORKERS TO HAVE $600,000 STRIKE FUND

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 9—(AP)—A strike fund of $600,000 for a two year period was authorized by delegates to the annual convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers union in session here today.

By unanimous vote the convention went on record as authorizing the union to collect $5 a year for two years from the 65,000 members of the organization. A small part of the fund which will run slightly more than $500,000, will be used to clear indebtedness of the union.

The action today follows on the heels of the convention's approval of three strikes in New York and one each in Cleveland, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, which will involve nearly 100,000 workers in the garment industry.

Resolutions adopted called on President Hoover to institute a five day week among government employes; asked freedom for Thomas Mooney and Warren K. Billings and requested Union Counsel Morris Hillquit to drop action against communists ousted from the union.

EIGHT DEPUTY SHERIFFS TO GO ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

BURNSVILLE, N. C., Dec. 9—(AP)—This little farming town, high up in the mountains of western North Carolina, tonight was prepared for the opening tomorrow of the trial of eight McDowell county deputy sheriffs charged with the death of six textile mill workers killed during a riot at Marion October 2.

The case involving a brush between sheriff's forces and a group of striking mill workers, was transferred on a change of venue from Marion, in the textile mill section of the state, to this quiet mountain town, which is without a single factory.

One hundred Yancey county residents have been summoned as a special venire from which to select a jury.

WOULD HAVE COOLIDGE SETTLE BOUNDARY DISPUTE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—The states of New Jersey and Delaware would like to have Calvin Coolidge settle their boundary dispute.

Counsel for New Jersey suggested to the supreme court today that the former president be named special master to hear testimony in the case whereby New Jersey seeks to gain possession of about 30,000 acres of land in Delaware bay.

Some members of the court smiled when Assistant Attorney General Duane E. Minard stated that the dispute involved a tedious study of historical records as far back as 1661, and added that both states thought the "scholarly ability and patience" of former President Coolidge qualified him for the work.

Chief Justice Taft said the suggestion would be taken under consideration.

WOULD PROVIDE $15,000,000 FOR FRUIT FLY ERADICATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—A special budget estimate providing $15,000,000 for fruit fly eradication work in Florida has been prepared by Secretary Hyde.

The estimate has been approved by President Hoover and will be sent to congress shortly.

FORMER SENATOR M'LEAN VISITOR IN WASHINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—Former Senator McLean of Connecticut is a visitor here. Today he was the guest at a luncheon given at the capitol in his honor, where a number of his former and distinguished colleagues were present. The senator has enjoyed a hunting trip that brought considerable success.

THREE BANK ROBBERS SHOT FROM AMBUSH

SHAKOPEE, Minn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Acting on a "tip" from the underworld, a posse, ambushed in village shops, shot down three robbers as they sought to escape after looting the First National bank of $1,500 here today after a gun fight in Main street in which nearly 100 shots were fired.

One of the robber trio, his body wounded with machine gun and pistol bullets, and buckshot from a duck gun, was identified as William "Bud" Mcinerny of St. Paul. He is not expected to live. The others, Frank Morris of Chicago, and George Larkin, St. Paul, both seriously wounded, are expected to recover.

Reminiscent of the historic repulse of Jesse James and his band at Northfield, 30 miles southeast of here 55 years ago, the gunfight which shattered this village's quiet, was short but furious.

While McInerny and Larkin were inside the bank raiding its safe, Morris sat at the driver's wheel of a large sedan outside. He stepped out of the car. Then Charles D. Brown, veteran special agent for the Minnesota Bankers Associated, who had received the "tip" at 2 a. m. today, from sources he would not reveal, opened fire with a shoulder machine gun and Morris dropped, wounded in both legs.

As he fell, his companions rushed from the bank to the street with the loot prepared to speed away and Brown's staccato fire was joined by pistol fire from John Ring, chief of police; Sheriff Weckman and several deputy sheriffs. They had remained hidden in establishments opposite the bank.

From an upstairs window of a store opposite the bank additional lead shot at the robbers for G. A. Hartman, a butcher, without advance information of the robbery, had become suspicious and opened fire with a rifle. Larkin dropped also severely wounded by bullets from several guns, while McInerny, with the loot, ran back into the bank and sought escape through its rear door, but was shot down in an alley by Al Tiedt, proprietor of a restaurant.

WALL STREET BOOZE PARTY CASE DISMISSED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The District of Columbia grand jury dismissed with two short paragraphs today a subject that had occupied thousands of words in the newspapers—the famous Wall street booze party brought to the attention of the senate by Senator Brookhart of Iowa.

Reporting that it had insufficient evidence to indict, the jury said it had heard various witnesses, but had deemed that the lack of evidence "together with the extraordinary lapse of time between the alleged violations and the revelation of facts relating to this affair, make it impracticable for the grand jury to consider the matter further."

The grand jury instituted an investigation after Senator Brookhart had related to the senate that he had attended a dinner at the Willard hotel on December 10, 1926. It was given, he said, by Walter J. Fahy, a Wall street broker and the Iowan charged that liquor had been presented to the guests.

AIR MAIL FROM URUGUAY HAS ARRIVED AT MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 9—(AP)—Inaugural air mail from Uruguay arrived at the International Airport of Pan-American Airways Inc., here at 5:14 p. m. today. The mail, which came from Montevideo, consisted of 69 pounds, 11 ounces, to be distributed throughout the United States.

New York mail, arriving there tomorrow, will have made the trip in ten days, one half the time required by steamer, officials of the flying company said. The mail left Montevideo at 8:30 a. m. Saturday November 30.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL TO JOHN E. SHEA

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 9.— John E. Shea, aged 30, of 42 Jackson street, died in St. Joseph's hospital at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon following an operation for a ruptured intestine sustained in an automobile accident at Colchester Friday afternoon. The young man had been a patient in the hospital since Friday night and the operation was performed as a last hope of saving his life. The accident in which he sustained his injuries occurred on John Wade hill on the Colchester-Norwich turnpike, about 2 miles from Colchester center, at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. The cars involved were a Pontiac coach, operated by Andrew Link of this city and bearing Shea as a passenger and a new Ford roadster, owned by the Southern New England Telephone company. The telephone company car was operated by a division engineer from the Hartford office. The name of this driver was not secured but it was understood today that he is in serious condition in the Hartford hospital. State Policeman Roy E. Pettingill of the Hartford barracks is conducting the investigation.

Besides the internal injuries, Shea had received lacerations and a severe injury to his hip. The body was removed to the Kilbourey Brothers parlors where it was viewed this evening by Medical Examiner Dr. Louis L. Mason. Dr. Mason in turn notified County Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson, who will conduct an inquest into the death of the young man.

The deceased was well known here and was considered an expert electrician. For some time past he had been engaged in the electrical business with Samuel Guilford as a partner. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Shea, one brother, Cornelius Shea, Jr., and two sisters, Miss Mary Shea and Mrs. G. Donald Bartlett, all of this city. He was a member of Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks.

MAYOR KING NAMES HIS COMMITTEES FOR YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 9.—The new republican administration of the city went into office tonight at the first meeting of the new common council held in the council chambers of the town building. Corporation Counsel William A. King administered the oath of office to Mayor Walter R. King and the following aldermen: Cyril A. Lamoureux, William E. Webber, Herbert I. Sanderson, aldermen-at-large; Robert A. Hanna, first ward; John P. Carlsen, second ward; Louis C. Vegiard, third ward; Eugene B. Lewis, fourth ward. The minutes were read by City Clerk and Treasurer Arthur L. Clark, re-elected for the ensuing two years.

Mayor King is a former alderman. Alderman Lamoureux served as alderman-at-large during the last term and Alderman Webber was alderman of the second ward. Alderman Sanderson and Third Ward Alderman Louis C. Vegiard are newcomers on the council. Both are democrats. Alderman Hanna of the first is also a newcomer while Alderman Carlsen of the second previously served on the board. Alderman Lewis represented the fourth ward during the past two years.

ROTARIANS HOLD ENJOYABLE LADIES' NIGHT ENTERTAINMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC Dec. 9.—The Willimantic Rotarians entertained at the annual Ladies' night held with a dinner in the Nathan Hale hotel this evening. The dinner in which chicken pattie croquettes were the feature, was a most excellent one. President Louis H. Arnold opened the meeting, and then called on Justice George E. Hinman, chairman of the committee, to preside as toastmaster for the postprandial exercises. A delightful concert was given by the Peerless orchestra, Rotarian Ralph H. Gibson, leader. Leader Gibson at intervals called on five double quartets respectively led by John F. Ahern, John Reilly, Walter S. Barnes, John C. Frazier and Nelson A. Daniels. A group of seven modern songs were sung by the entire gathering.

Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, club parson, was heard in an inspiring address, The Influence of Home. Professional entertainment was had in the form of character impersonation sketches by "Art" Howell, introduced as hailing from Seth Parker's native Maine. Dancing and bridge followed until midnight.

A continuance until next Thursday morning was ordered in the non-support case of Ovila Martin which was heard in police court this morning. Mrs. Martin and the accused were the only two witnesses. The plaintiff testified that she had been receiving $12 a week until two weeks ago for the support of herself and two boys, one aged 13 and the other 11 years. She said that of late the town had been assisting in the support of the family. She asked for $20 a week, claiming that while she did not know how much her husband earned she thought it to be considerable. In his defense, Martin said that his average weekly wages from driving a taxicab were about $22. When asked by Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher if he ever gambled he stoutly denied this. An order of $300 for the payment of $12 a week to the family of the accused expired September 28, it was stated. At the request of Attorney Kelley for the accused, the continuance was granted for final disposition next Thursday.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mattie B. Hobby

Mrs. Mattie Bessie Hobby, wife of Charles L. Hobby, died at her home in Mansfield this morning. She was born in Mansfield, December 20, 1870, a daughter of Henry and Martha Parkhurst Dunham. She leaves her husband; one son, Wilbur D. Hobby, of Windham; and a daughter, Miss Viola Hobby of Mansfield.

Mrs. Olive M. Alexander

Mrs. Olive M. Alexander, widow of Nell Alexander, died at the Card Home for the Aged on Pleasant street, Sunday night. She was born in Mansfield, May 17, 1840, a daughter of William B. and Anne Baldwin Johnson. Surviving her are one son, Walter J. Alexander, of Los Angeles, Calif.; a brother, Richard Johnson, of Mansfield Hollow, and several nieces and nephews.

Eugene O'Neil

Eugene O'Neil, husband of Mrs. Mary Jane Calnen O'Neil, formerly of this city, died at his home in New York city, Saturday evening, after a five days' illness. Besides his wife he leaves one son, James O'Neil, of Hartsdale, N. Y.; two daughters, Mrs. Frank Campbell of Bellaire Park, L. I., and Miss Muriel O'Neil, of New York city; and a brother, Henry O'Neil, of New York city.

The Lions' club of this city was royally entertained at a meeting with the Andover Men's club held in the Andover town hall tonight. President John H. Wilcox of the Lions responded to the address of welcome by President Howard Stanley of the Men's club. An excellent supper was served under arrangement of the host club and the program was furnished by the local organization. The speaker of the evening was John R. McCarthy of this city who spoke on Work Among the Blind. This type of work is one of the primary objectives of the Lions' organization. Musical and singing entertainment was in charge of George H. Millerd, Jr., of the Lions.

Electricians began the work of wiring the 15-foot fir trees that have been attached to the standards of the "white way" on Union, Main, Church and North streets as part of the Christmas decorations that will make Willimantic's business district one of the most festive in this section of the state. There are two trees to each standard and each tree will carry 48 multi-colored lights which will be turned on Wednesday night. The four large trees erected at the main entrances to the city are also to be wired. The matter of following a past custom in placing a large tree at Lincoln square, fronting on Main street, has been left with the common council. Objections to this tree are based on the belief that the tree may prove hazardous in obstructing the view of automobile drivers.

The three-tenement house at the southeast corner of Soldiers' Memorial park on Main street is now being torn down by the owner, "Jack" Siegelbaum. The house, which was formerly part of the Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing company holdings was purchased last September by the city from Michael Mazzola for $9,000. The city desired the land to complete the lay-out of the park. Siegelbaum bought the building for $51. The landscaping of the park will be started next spring.

C. A. LAMOUREUX ELECTED PRESIDENT OF COUNCIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 9.— At the common council meeting held tonight, the first of the new municipal administration, Alderman Cyril A. Lamoureux was elected president of the board, defeating Alderman William E. Webber by a vote of four to three. Lamoureux was placed in nomination by Alderman Robert A. Hanna and Webber by Alderman Eugene B. Lewis. Corporation Counsel William A. King administered the oath of office. Mayor King congratulated the aldermen on their election and asked for their cooperation during the term. On the rostrum of Mayor King was a basket of flowers, the gift of the state treasurer's office at Hartford, with which he was at one time associated. The following resolutions were adopted, confirming the budget, $24,185; appropriating $166.67 to Visiting Nurse association; to borrow $25,000 for city expenses; authorizing the installation of municipal Christmas tree at Lincoln square; authorizing the purchase of a five-ton truck for the street and sewer departments; that the mayor be requested to appoint a committee of four, consisting of the sewer superintendent, the inspector of plumbing, a master plumber and a journeyman plumber, to examine new applicants for plumber's licenses; empowering the city clerk to purchase stationery and folders for the use of the city officials.

A petition for permission to erect two swinging signs at the Leander Wright garage at the corner of Bank and Valley streets was referred to the street committee and the corporation counsel. A claim from Elmer M. Ladd for damages when he burned an overcoat at the Four ward voting booth on election day, was referred to the claims committee

Adjournment was taken at 8:55.

The North Windham fire department was called out early this afternoon for a chimney fire in the residence owned by J. J. Butler and occupied by his family and that of Clarence Palmer. Chemicals were used.

A five-ton Mack truck owned by the Thames River Line company and driven by Franklin Hoxie of 20 Hamilton avenue, Norwich, and a G. M. C. light truck driven by Stanley Forostosky of Eagleville, collided at the junction of Broad and Union streets about 11 o'clock this forenoon. The big truck was being backed out of Broad street and struck the lighter vehicle that was parked on the south side of Union. An investigation was conducted by Officer William Hurley.

Past Grand Master Workman John C. Trant, of Hartford, has been appointed as deputy for Willimantic lodge, No. 11, by Grandmaster Workman Frank H. Wheeler, of the Connecticut division of the Ancient Order of United Workmen.

CHESTER

UTILIZE NEW DAY HALL FOR ACADEMY DANCE

An entertainment and dance was held in the new Day hall Saturday evening under the auspices of the senior class of Bacon academy. Among the features of the evening was the presentation of two one-act plays, the academy students taking part. The first of these plays entitled "Classmates" was very effectively presented. The actors who were effectively attired were Samuel Strick, Samuel Malofes, Gladys Kalmanowitz, Sarah Lieberman, Oscar Horwitz, Frances Hatt, Samuel Jaffe and Vivian Cohen all members of the senior class. The second play, entitled "Moonshine," was presented with Samuel Horwitz and Peter Hominick as the leading actors. Violin selections were played at intervals by Principal Goodrich with Fred Kopp, Jr., as accompanist. Following the entertainment program, dancing was enjoyed with music by the academy orchestra, Fred Kopp, Jr., at the piano, Principal Goodrich and Edwin H. Stebbins, violinists, and Joseph Prokop, drummer. A large number was in attendance, including people from Moodus, Essex, Salem, Hartford, Lebanon, Colchester and surrounding towns. The event proved so successful that plans are being made to hold socials and entertainments in the new hall every Saturday evening during the winter months.

Friends of Miss Evelyn R. Strong were encouraged to see her on the street for a short while Monday after several weeks' convalescence at her home on South Main street following a recent surgical operation at Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London.

Assessors Robert S. Brown, Albert Harrison Foote and John Nelkin have been revaluing the business and residential property about the village the past few days.

I. Cohen has returned from several days' visit with friends and relatives in New York.

Girls' Basketball Team

Under the supervision of the French, history and Latin instructor, Miss Margaret E. Donovan, a Bacon academy girls' basketball team has been organized. A large number from each class were out to make the team and an unusually strong group of players was selected. The girls are having daily practice and negotiations are being entered into for a game with the girls' team of Woodstock academy. Games with other high school teams in this vicinity are to be played during the coming weeks. Miss Anna Surwill has been elected captain and Miss Dorothea Gersten is manager of the Bacon girls' team.

Clarence R. Hoxie, well-known former local resident, was recently sworn in as a member of the state police force after a period of training at the Ridgefield barracks. He is now stationed at Beacon Falls, Conn., and was a visitor Sunday with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Rathbun on South Main street.

STATE POLICE DESTROY LARGE QUANTITY OF LIQUOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 9.—Though the sun was shining brightly, this was a wet afternoon around the state police barracks on North Main street. Under the supervision of Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer, the contents of the store room where intoxicants seized in raids are kept under lock and key were dumped out to give the earth an alcoholic bath. In this manner 400 gallons of wine were disposed of, and likewise 30 cases of beer and about 50 gallons of alcohol and liquors. This represents accumulations of many weeks. The alcohol and liquors were of very doubtful quality, yet of the grades now being sold at speakeasies in the territory where the officers of the barracks operate.

Earlier this fall the borough, in conjunction with adjoining property owners, constructed a fine concrete walk along the easterly side of Mechanic street from Academy to near North, and it had become within a short time a much appreciated improvement by those living or working in that section. Now with the coming of the first snow and ice one hears the criticism that long stretches of this walk are left uncleaned and that walking over these sections is both dangerous and difficult and that much of the value of the improvement is lost for the time being. It was said today that the condition of the walk will formally be called to the attention of the warden and court of burgesses with a view to having some arrangement made for cleaning it regularly after each storm at points where abutting property owners fail to do the work themselves.

The attention of the public is directed to the fact that the inhalator purchased through the efforts of the Danielson Rotary club is being kept at the state police barracks and is available for use in any emergency for which it is suited. The state officers have been carefully instructed in the use of it and handle it with a high degree of efficiency. Its use can be requested any time in efforts to restore those who have been near to drowning, for cases of near-suffocation and for gas-poisoning cases. There is no charge for the use of it, the state officers gladly rendering their services in the interest of the unfortunate who may have need of it.

Because he could not pay a fine of $1 and costs imposed upon him in the town court this morning, Ernest F. Passmore of East Killingly was taken to the county jail at Brooklyn. On Saturday Passmore borrowed the car of Henry Maheu, resident here, to go to East Killingly for an hour to see his mother, represented as being ill. He kept the car many hours and drove it many miles before he was arrested by a state officer.

The November report detailing the activities of the visiting nurse, Miss Miriam Boomhower, shows that she made 125 nursing visits and spent three half-days in schools. Nineteen cases were carried over from the preceding month. During November there were seven new cases. Eight patients were discharged. At the end of the month 18 remained under care. There were 20 medical and two each of obstetrical, surgical and tubercular cases during the month. There were no deaths. Fourteen attended the clinic held here on Nov. 19 by Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich. Relief given during the month included 68 garments, seven pairs of shoes, four hats, food for nine families, dishes, books, games and toys and magazines. Contributions were received from the American Legion auxiliary (food); from Mrs. Fred Wood, Mrs. J. C. Williams (clothing); Mrs. Joseph Chadbourne, Mrs. A. P. Burns, Mrs. Oliver A. Downs, Mrs. A. J. Tillinghast, Miss Frances W. Danielson.

Postoffices here and all through this section will begin handling Christmas club checks released by Danielson banks on Tuesday. This afternoon the checks were being made ready for distribution to the hundreds of people who are to receive them. The total amount is believed to be well in excess of $10,000, though exact figures were not given out today. The majority of the checks are for $50 or $100 though there are some larger checks and some smaller. Some people who have been very thrifty as to Christmas club savings will get three checks, one from each of the banks. Others will get checks from two banks.

McGregor W. R. C. has set Dec. 18 as the date for its annual Christmas party, at which department officers and members of McGregor corps, W. R. C., will be guests. A supper is to be served at 6 o'clock. During the course of the evening gifts made by members to be sent to the Newington Home for Crippled Children will be collected.

State officers investigated a report that a young man resident here was accosted in the business section by two strangers who represented themselves as being plain clothes men and insisted on searching him, as a suspected burglar, for firearms. According to the story, they took him down the areaway at the south side of the town hall building and went through his pockets while the trio stood in the rear of the comfort station. Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart says that no state officers in plain clothes have been operating here, and Chief John McFarland is also without information as to who the supposed officers may have been, or what was really back of their game.

Announcement in this morning's bulletin of the death of Mrs. Rosanna Reeves Fontaine, wife of Louis Fontaine of Baltic, came as a great shock to her many friends here, where Mrs. Fontaine was resident for a number of years prior to her marriage. Abel L. Reeves of Danielson is a brother of Mrs. Fontaine.

Full information is available at the postoffice relative to positions as stenographers or typists in branches of the federal service in New England and in Montreal. Applications for appointment may be filed between now and Jan. 6. The places to be filled pay yearly entrance salaries ranging from $1,260 to $1,620.

Tuesday afternoon of this week at the regular time a Well Child clinic is to be held at the Health Station in the Town hall building.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard S. Danielson are to leave on Tuesday for Florida, where they will spend the winter, as they did last year.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Heselton of Colton, N. Y., for several years residents on the West Side, are visiting here with friends.

With many attractive window displays and with the decorative street lights turned on Wednesday evening Danielson will be in holiday dress. This week stores are keeping open only the usual evenings—Monday and Saturday.

Well on the road to recovery from a recent illness, First Selectman Charles A. Tillinghast was able to be downtown this morning for the first time in several days.

Mrs. Herbert H. Pepler will be hostess to the members of the Fortnightly club at Paco lodge, Morin avenue, Tuesday evening.

Sales of Christmas seals in Danielson are increasing, attesting the interest of many in the welfare of others who are in poor health as Yuletide draws near.

TWO MEN BEAT AND ROB JOHN OLDERSHAW MONDAY P. M.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 9.—In mid-afternoon Monday, two men, thought to be about 30 years of age, entered John Oldershaw's small store on the Beach Pond road near Voluntown. They beat and overpowered the owner, stole $36 from his money box and left in their car, going in the direction of Jewett City. The Danielson barracks and Officer Henry Veigiard of Jewett City were notified by telephone. The local officer stopped a number of cars at Slater's bridge and held up two men, whom Mr. Oldershaw said were not his assailants. The state troopers went to Voluntown, but with the meagre information they were able to get could not establish a clue. In the early evening Danielson officers were in Jewett City in conference with Officer Veigiard.

OBITUARY

John Foren

John Foren, 55, of Lisbon, died suddenly at the Soldiers' Home at Noroton Heights, Dec. 6. His funeral was held Monday at the Soldiers' Home at 2 o'clock, burial being in the soldiers' lot in Noroton. Mr. Foren was born in Providence and came to the farm of Cornelius Murphy in Lisbon when he was ten years old. He had been employed as a farmhand by a number of farmers, both in Lisbon and Griswold. He was a Spanish war veteran and a year ago went from the farm of Clarence Mills in Lisbon, where he was then employed, to the Soldiers' Home. Mr. and Mrs. George Kennedy, Mrs. Clarence Mills, Frank A. Mills and Harold G. Mills, all of Lisbon, attended the funeral at Noroton Monday. Mr. Foren had no relatives.

FOUR NEW LONDON MEN GO OVER ICY BANK TO TRACKS

Tunnel hill raised its wreck record to an even half dozen when, at 10:15 Sunday evening, a Graham-Paige roadster tore away three sections of the guard fence and pitched down the steep bank 100 feet, turned over four times and landed within a few feet of the railroad tracks that run through the curve. The machine was being driven by Sam Corwin; with him were riding George Hart, B. Garcilli and brother, John Garcilli, all of New London. They were bound from that city to Worcester, where they are employed. According to the statement of one of the men, the machine skidded on the ice in the road and became unmanageable. Right behind the Paige machine, Officer William Blake, Joe Barber and Clifford Bugbee, all of Jewett City, were north-bound in a big Buick, coming to the borough. The local men stopped and climbed down the snow-covered fall-off to find all four occupants of the wrecked machine more or less injured. All but Hart were able to stand. The men were helped and carried up the hill to the road and Officer Blake carried all four in his car to the Backus hospital, Norwich. There it was found that Hart had probably sustained internal injuries. The driver, Corwin, and the Garcilli brothers, after hospital treatment for cuts and bruises, were taken to their homes in New London. The machine was hauled up the bank by a wrecking crew Monday forenoon. Officer Carmody of the Danielson barracks and Constable Aubrey Potter of Lisbon checked up on the wreck.

Five Handsome Foxes

Fur buyers visiting this section have called at the Tadpole filling station to see the five handsome red foxes which belong to Al Rundell. Early last spring the baby foxes were dug from a burrow and are now about three-quarters grown. Their fur is nearly prime and, together with the bounty paid by the town, Mr. Rundell expects to realize a good figure.

The Ladies' society of the Congregational church holds its meeting in the church parlor Wednesday evening. After the meeting there is to be a Christmas party, each member bringing an inexpensive gift to be hung on the tree.

Mrs. Fred Maynard and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Boule were at the private hospital in New London Monday, where they called to see Mr. Maynard, who has been operated upon for stomach ulcers. The patient was found to be making a good recovery.

Mrs. Joseph Dimmock, of West Willington, has been the guest of Miss S. Nettie Johnson.

Mrs. Carrie Brown, of Boston, arrived Monday to visit her sister, Mrs. Frank Stetson, on North Main street.

Surprise Birthday Party

Many friends of Miss Doris Fecteau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fecteau of 11 Carely avenue, gathered at her home to celebrate her eighteenth birthday Sunday evening. There were vocal selections by Miss Diana Roy, Miss Cecile Landry and Erphram Sylvester, a violin selection by Emile Hamil, of Willimantic, and an accordion solo by Peter Guillotte of Jewett City.

The evening was spent in playing games. The dining room was prettily decorated in red and green. In the center of the table was a huge birthday cake with eighteen lighted candles. Miss Fecteau received many beautiful gifts. Miss Yvonne Sylvester, Cecile Sylvester and Mrs. Thomas Fecteau served sandwiches, olives, cake, fancy cookies, ice cream, soda and coffee.

Those attending were Miss Diana Roy, Miss Cecile Landry, Oscar Roy, Eugene Labbee and Eugene Roy, of Willimantic, Miss Beatrice Roy and Alice Roy, Manchester, Cecile and Yvonne Sylvester, Anita LaPerle, Aldea Chretien, Eva Brisson, Beatrice LePage, Florida Pergeron, Omer Frecteau, Adelard Proux, Lionel Sylvester, Roual Moreau, Lucien Despres, Adchej Desrosier, Emile Hamil, Alphonse Lessee, Robert Lessee, Wilfred Proux, Charles Maynard, Peter Guilotte, Joseph Cyr, Homer Fontaine, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester, Mrs. Marie Boisvert, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fecteau of Jewett City and Larry Heroux of Taftville.

SEVERAL VIOLATORS OF PARKING RULES WARNED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 9—The arm of law and order went forth this morning in the personages of Captain of Police William J. Jarvis and Officer Benoni Durand to oblige the common council, members of which desire that city traffic ordinances be enforced.

Besides possessing an order from the governing body of the city, the police were armed with a promise from Judge M. H. Geissler of the police court that the city's judiciary department will aid the crusade by pressing charges in the event officers find it necessary to issue court summons to second or third offenders. Following the Monday morning session of police court, Judge Geissler held a brief conference with Prosecuting Attorney Eric H. Johnson, Police Captain Jarvis and Deputy Judge A. Macdonald, Jr., during which conditions of enforcement were made plain to all officials concerned. Judge Geissler said he will uphold the police on condition, that all violators of the parking regulations be arrested on second offenses, under no circumstances whatever, shall any exception be made. Attorney Johnson and Captain Jarvis promised full cooperation in the attempt to eliminate the parking menaces.

It was evident this morning that the motoring public had adhered to the warnings published last week for no violations were noted until noon. However police issued the little green tickets to a few drivers this afternoon whose cars were found to be irregularly parked in the shopping district. A check-up at police headquarters tonight revealed all violators to be first offenders.

All parking tags issued by the police are numbered and sections are retained by the officers together with information concerning the vehicle causing infractions of the law. The system has been concocted in such a manner that the driver is required to report to the police station to account for his violation. Failure to comply with this regulation will result in serious consequence, police said.

Captain Jarvis said tonight that the general public has come to regard the parking enforcement edict of the council with a decree of seriousness, which in his opinion will bring about the desired improvement without court actions.

Edward Lovely, alias Edward Lamcareaux, genial member of the Brooklyn club, a fraternal organization comprised of Windham county Knights of the Road who sojourn at the county jail in Brooklyn during the winter months, was granted a new lease of life in the exclusive fraternity this morning by Judge M. H. Geissler who sentenced Lovely to jail for three days. Lovely holds one of the longest court records in city court history. A few months ago his recent "stretch" at Brooklyn terminated. With a hard winter before him and no ambition within him, Lovely told Judge Geissler that he was determined to find a method of becoming a winter guest of the county. A ten-cent bottle of shaving lotion failed to bring results, Lovely said, so his last resort was a theft of two bottles of milk, valued at thirty cents. "I was passing a store on Killingly avenue, Sunday morning, and I saw the milk. I didn't steal it 'cuz I was a thief," Lovelysaid, "but because I knew it was a good excuse to get arrested and get back my old place at the jail." Lovely smiled as he saw himself slipping into the clutches of the law which meant that his dreams of wintering at the exclusive cold weather resort in Brooklyn would soon materialize. Smiles appeared on the faces of the group of court officials and spectators as Lovely depicted his plans for the winter time. The same smiles developed into bursts of laughter as Judge Geissler hooked Lovely and exclaimed, "Three days, Lovely." Lovely's hopes of getting a coat of tan in the sunny south (of Windham county) and a turkey dinner on Christmas day at the expense of the county vanished like fog in the sunshine, for his sojourn will be concluded Thursday morning.

"Get out and stay out of Putnam," ordered Judge Geissler in city court this morning to a Worcester man, former resident of this city who was found guilty on a breach of peace and intoxication charge. The defendant when asked for an explanation of his boisterous antics of Sunday evening said he came to Putnam to "make-up" with his wife, who had divorced him. The magistrate inquired for his reason for intoxication and the estranged husband replied, "Well, just to stiffen my nerves." Officer Joseph Page of the local police arrested the downcast husband following the entrance of a complaint by his wife.

Mrs. Mary W. Irving

From her late home on Church street, this morning the funeral of Mrs. Mary W Irving who died suddenly Friday afternoon was held with services at St Mary's church at 9 o'clock. A large number of friends and relatives attended the solemn high mass at which Rev. U. O. Bellerose, was celebrant. Rev. Father Auger, former Putnam boy, now assigned to a Massachusetts diocese and Rev. Joseph D. Casey assisted as deacon and sub-deacon, respectively. Rev. Ernest J. Boileau was master of ceremonies. The choir sang the Gregorian chant accompanied by Miss Rose Metras at the organ. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery where a committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Bellerose. The bearers were William Murray, Joseph Igo, John Duffy, John Whalen, William Reardon, Michael Hanberry.

A scout leaders training course is to be conducted by Scout Executive John L. Sullman, executive for the Eastern Connecicut council, beginning Tuesday evening at St. Theresa's hall located in the rear of St. Mary's church, this being realized through the efforts of the Boy Scout district committee representing Putnam, East Woodstock and Pomfret composed of well known local men. A carefully planned programme has been prepared which will include novel observation, patrol yells, knot tying, requirements for the tenderfoot scout, etc. As a special feature of the programme Reginald Laubin of Norwich, Eagle Scout and Indian performer, will teach the men the Indian language. About 25 men are planning to enroll in the course, which is called the elementary course in scout leadership and covers a period of from ten to 12 weeks with meetings held weekly.

A list of cases for trial in this city Thursday, Dec. 12, at a session of superior court has been assigned by Judge Edward M. Yeomans of Danbury, presiding over the December session of court. Important among the six cases appearing on the trial list is a divorce action of Daisy G. Bosworth of Pomfret vs. Burton D. Bosworth who is contesting the plaintiff's charges.

Both the plaintiff and the defendant are widely known in this city. Mrs. Bosworth petitions the court for an alimony settlement. Other cases are: Wilfred Viens vs. Clotilde Filteau; Ernest E. Dupius vs. Albert Deforge; Amelia Farron vs. Everett Hyde, Camille LaFlamme vs. Cleophus LaFlamme and Adelard LaFlamme vs. Cleophus LaFlamme.

The shopping district will not be illuminated as was planned by the chamber of commerce for the Christmas season, it was announced today by Frank N. Lucier, chairman of a committee on estimates. Mr. Lucier explained that the individual cost of the Christmas illuminating project was far in excess of the committee's expectations and in view of this fact the matter has been disregarded. While the cooperative scheme has been dropped, a few merchants along Main street have gone to the expense of providing their own Yuletide decorations.

Employes of the state highway department were out at an early hour this morning sprinkling sand on dangerous curves and inclines of state roads in this vicinity which were ice covered. The over-night lowering temperature of Sunday made sidewalks hazardous and necessitated the sanding of sidewalks in the thickly populated sections. Supt. of Streets Frederick Dumas feels that the street department has efficiently coped with the heavy snow storm of last week. The city escaped without a casualty to person or automobile.

A coincidence is the fact that the republicans of the city of Willimantic at the recent biennial city elections placed a Walter King in office, while the party in this city defeated the Willimantic mayor elect's namesake for the same office. It will remembered that Mr. King of Putnam was narrowly defeated for the mayoralty nomination by Charles A. Richard, the new Willimantic chief executive and the Putnam publisher are not relatives.

A badly battered automobile owned by a Danielson taxi company was towed through this city today by a local garage wrecker. The sedan, it was said, figured in a collision on the Danielson-Providence road Sunday evening, when it encountered an ice-coated patch of macadam. The top was crushed in, all windows were smashed and numerous dents decorated the body. Details of the crash were not available here today but if occupants escaped without injury the feat was miraculous.

A sign bearing the inscription, "Accidents in this plant during the past week——" is displayed on the lawn surrounding the Grosvernordale company's plant in Grosvernordale. In the event personal injury comes to any employe during working hours the incident is recorded on the board outside the mill. It has been free from chalk marks for many weeks it was learned today through the protective code in effect throughout the large textile plant.

Several local railroad officials and employes will be in New London Tuesday to attend the funeral service for Homer Marvin, freight conductor, who died in that city Saturday following a railroad accident in which he suffered the loss of his arm. Mr. Marvin was well known to railroad men in the city. During his years of service on the New Haven he has conducted freight runs over the Norwich branch through this city to Worcester.

Coach L. F. Noyes of Putnam high school announced today that a shipment of bleachers for use in the gymnasium and on the football and baseball fields arrived from the manufacturers this morning. The bleachers will be arranged about the balcony of the high school gymnasium and will be in use during the basketball season to open shortly. The seats are of the latest type "knock-down" construction and may be used indoors or out.

PLAINFIELD

It was announced Monday that 22 football candidates will receive letters for their work on the gridiron this fall. This is the largest number of football letters ever awarded in the history of the school.

The Plainfield boys certainly showed their love for P. H. S. The new athletic field was the backbone of the season. The warriors practiced daily and proved very successful. Out of the 39 candidates that reported for the first practice 35 anxious players survived. From the large number of candiates 25 are underclassmen and the prospects for next fall are bright.

The schedule, which consisted of seven games, was a very successful one. Plainfield opened the first game with a scoreless tie. Then a victory over Killingly, an exciting victory over Pomfret. Plainfield kept up to standard by taking this game. Due to having two games last week Plainfield lost to Chapman Tech by a small margin. Then the local team met Putnam. They were far superior to the Putnam team. They also defeated N. F. A. Seconds by 12 points. The last game was with Warwick and the local team lost this contest by 7 points.

Plainfield has the honor of claiming the Class B championship, which was won from Killingly and Putnam.

Mrs. Everett Dawley and Mrs. George Babcock were in Norwich at the week end.

The calendar was given Sunday at the First Congregational church by Mrs. Phebe D. Edwards, in memory of her family. The C. E. service was held in the vestry; subject, What is Back of Our Christian Giving? Leader, William Hall. Pianist, Ernest Plassman. At the motion picture service in the church, the six-reel film was A Maker of Men by James K. Shields. It was the dramatic story of Bruce Douglas, a militant champion of Christianity. There was a solo by Mrs. Cecil Butler. The organist was Mrs. Henry Leach.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Phillips and daughter are spending a month in Florida.

THE POSTAL DEFICIT

It is an old story, the annual deficit in the postoffice department. It happens so often that the surprise comes only when the department breaks even or there is a surplus. It is so because this represents a service to the people and it is to be expected that when the revenue fails to meet the disbursements the difference will be made up out of the treasury funds.

But with all the talk about the deficit it is a good thing to know what causes them. Postmaster General Brown is extremely anxious to change the situation and a study is being made with the expectation that changes can be made, but it helps some by knowing what is responsible for the conditions. The postmaster general undertakes to throw some light on this by showing that there is second class matter handled free within counties which costs the government more than $8,700,000. Because ships of American registry are favored for handling the mail the department is taxed an additional $3,300,000, while other differentials add nearly $2,500,000. Penalty matter sent free for other branches of the government beside the postoffice cost nearly $3,300,000 while the department would have received $417,000 had the franked documents sent by the members of congress been paid for. It cost the department $7,000,000 in addition to the receipts to send mail matter by airplane, the free registry services for federal agencies outside the postoffice department entailed another $237,000 and mail forwarded free for the blind amounted to almost $55,000. Thus there is a total of more than $31,000,000 in the way of a deficit for which the department is in no way responsible. It is obliged to carry out the services imposed upon it and while it bears the burden of the deficit its hands are tied.

This year the deficit has been piled up along regular lines because of the increased award that was made to the railroads by the interstate commerce commission and also by the increased pay to the postal employes. Under such conditions the chances of the department breaking even without a boost in the rates is out of the question. And when it comes to the thought of raising postal rates every move made in that direction means a loss of business. A deficit is always more popular than higher rates.

TARIFF REVISION

With congress getting down to business it was inevitable that there would be those among the coalition who would make the claim that the president in his address to congress had failed to tell them what tariff changes to make. They are the same ones who were continually raising the claim during the special session that the president's position on the tariff was not known, and the only reason for it was that he had not come out and told them where the changes should be made and what they should be in every instance.

That is not the business of the president and if he had attempted to do anything of the kind he would have been subjected to the worst sort of criticism. He didn't undertake to usurp the work of congress in the special session and he certainly has not had such a thought in the present one. He has, nevertheless, done his duty in pointing out what he believed should be done and when he says "economic changes have taken place which have placed certain domestic products at a disadvantage and new industries have come into being, all of which create the necessity for some limited changes in the schedules" and that "the test of necessity for revision is, in the main, whether there has been a substantial slackening of activity in an industry during the past few years, and a consequent decrease in employment due to insurmountable competition in the products of that industry" there ought to be gumption enough in congress, including the senate, to meet the requirements.

It accomplishes nothing to stand in their places and say that the president hasn't told them what to do. He has given the signal, snapped the ball and told them where to go but they stand in their tracks or try to run in the other direction. Tariff revision can and should go ahead rapidly with the right kind of teamwork.

SPANISH-SPEAKING MINISTERS

President Hoover has sent to the senate the names of several candidates for ministers to Central and South American countries, and in making these selections he has been guided not only by merit but by the fact that they can speak the Spanish language, the language most used in those countries.

This is in keeping with what he had to say in his recent message and there can be no question but what it is a step in the right direction. It hasn't always been so and it isn't always possible to get men who can speak the official language of the country to which they are going to be sent, but knowledge of the language puts them much closer in touch with the country and the conditions.

In this connection it has been pointed out recently that Senator Edge, who has just been named ambassador to France, does not speak French. But that is no different than was the case when Myron T. Herrick was named to the same post and there can be no question of his successful administration of that office. He picked up the language in time, even as will Ambassador Edge, but in the meanwhile the importance of good interpreters will be apparent.

It is highly desirable that our representatives to countries in this hemisphere should be as close to the conditions in those countries as possible. It is important that they should be able to diagnose conditions first handed. It is desirable that they should be in as close touch as the interpreter and that they can do by knowing the language and being able to make contacts with the government to which they are assigned in a common language. Experience has shown that it is not absolutely necessary, and it can be appreciated that there might be considerable difficulty experienced in getting Americans who can speak the language of every country to fill such posts. Nevertheless, where it is possible to combine fitness and linguistic ability there should be an advantage for all concerned and so convinced is the president of its importance that he has quickly put his promise into action and a test of its value depends now upon the time required by the senate to take action on the nominations.

SAFE DRIVING COMMANDMENTS

No one would have to study long to come to the conclusion that there is great and growing need of increased safety in auto driving. It is shown in the accident and fatality figures and it is displayed in the daily reports. It is being urged from many sources and while it might seem that the appalling loss of life would be enough to bring about a reduction of the carelessness each year shows an increase instead of a decrease.

As the result of traffic studies ten commandments for safe auto driving have been compiled by Dr. Miller McClintock in the hope that they will give encouragement to a much needed reform, and inasmuch as the greater publicity the more hopeful the results they are presented for such good as they may do:

1—Keep your car in sound condition.

2—Keep your car under control. It is dangerous if you cannot stop in the assured clear distance ahead.

3—Keep your eye on the road; one second's inattention may mean an accident.

5—Go ahead with the procession. You have no more right to "drag" traffic than you have to jeopardize yourself and others by unnecessary "cutting in."

6—Be as courteous on the road as you are in your own home. Give other drivers and especially pedestrians a fair chance.

7—Know your local traffic rules and obey them exactly. They are the motorist's safety code and book of etiquette combined.

8—Take pride in your driving skill. If normal people are nervous to ride with you, something is wrong with your driving.

9—Don't mix liquor, worry or anger with gasoline.

10—Study local maps and experiment for shorter and less congested routes. You may be surprised at the time you will save.

The importance of safety is something which all drivers should bear in mind at all times, and it is made apparent by many accidents that if the commandments for safety had been followed there would have been no trouble and no regrets.

GORGAS MEMORIAL SERVICE

Fighting disease means a constant battle, a long, hard and persistent struggle to protect and cure humanity. It was a great work that General Gorgas did during his lifetime in this direction and it is gratifying to note that the Gorgas Memorial Institute of Tropical and Preventive Medicine is carrying on the good work.

This institute is doing a most valuable work in the way of health education through health talks, lectures and articles which reach many thousand people and serve to clear their minds and give them worth-while advice looking to the prevention of disease.

In addition to that there is the work of mosquito control carried on in cooperation with cities and smaller communities in various parts of the country for the elimination of a particularly objectionable pest and the creation of mosquitoless localities.

Through the Gorgas Memorial laboratory in Panama the foundation has been laid for a service that is bound to enlarge as the years go on. It is located in a field where there is opportunity for plenty of service, where there are at present inadequate facilities but where there is promise of fruitful cooperation with the Panama authorities. The beginning has been made by the establishment of the laboratory this year and its development and its needed staff will come with time to study the health conditions there and determine the means of properly handling them.

Here is a service that is being rendered for the relief of humanity as a memorial to one who was committed to such service during his lifetime and certainly nothing would have pleased him more than to know that that work was the inspiration for the creation of an organization to see that it goes on down the ages in ever-increasing vigor.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: We are expecting any time to hear the agitator call for a 50-minute hour.

Crime is costing the nation $500,000,000 a year. And in addition there are demands for many more millions to build newer and better prisons.

We haven't heard much for several Christmases about that society for the prevention of useless giving.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin).

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—With the convening of the regular session of congress this week, Connecticut has again come into her own. Floor Leader Tilson is in command of the house programme and predicts a strenuous and successful session. No one yet dares to predict the attitude of congress on the tariff bill, and what effect the return of Watson of Indiana to the senate leadership will have on a get-together of warring factions over at the senate end of the capitol. Watson had been ill, and spent three weeks resting in Florida. He has now returned and will resume the floor leadership. To say there is rejoicing in the ranks of the regulars would be to put it mildly, for the anticipated scramble for Watson's place, is now averted. Beyond that no "guesses" can be safely made until after the committee on committees has reported to the senate and vacancies on important committees filled.

Senators Bingham and Walcott have been here through the extra session, and the members of the house were all in their accustomed seats with the invoking of the congress this week.

The national council of the woman's party, met here this week, with Elsie Hill of Connecticut chairman of the Connecticut branch, heading a large delegation of the militant branch of suffragists. Although married and with children, she refuses to be known officially by other than her maiden name. She is the daughter of the late Representative Hill of Connecticut.

The convention was especially to advocate what is known as the "equal rights constitutional amendment," through which the ladies aspire to gain the right to refuse to assume the name of their husband, if married, or to give their children the name of the father. They bluntly and forcibly state that it is not equality so to do, as the husband and father retains his own name and is in no wise dependent on the name of his wife.

Fighting against the amendment are women who are ardent suffragists, but who believe "complete freedom" may be carried too far for the good of the country and preservation of American home life. Before the amendment is refused passage or is passed by congress, a merry war is certain to be on the carpet.

It was a mighty interesting 15 minutes in the press gallery the other day when Democratic Chairman Raskob dropped in to make a friendly call and submit to wholesale questioning from the 100 or more correspondents who chanced to be present at the moment. His coming was unannounced. He sat down in a swivel chair at the long table, in the middle of the room. The table was all cluttered up with half finished copy, for it was the busy hour for afternoon papers; the click of scores of typewriters came from the adjoining room; the sound of telegraph tickers, was partly shut off by closed doors, for in the adjoining room are the big group of operators kept there for the exclusive use of the correspondents. Raskob tilted back in his chair; and either frankly answered the questions rapidly fired at him, or else "pretended" he had not heard them and made some comments of his own, on other topics than the one suggested by the questions. He made it quite clear that a large part of his interest in good government and safe and sane laws, was because he has 11 children and wants them to find the United States the right sort of a world to live in. He said regarding prohibition, that he did not believe in "extremists" of any sort; to the surprise of many democrats he sounded the praises of several Hoover policies; Mr. Raskob made an excellent personal impression on those who had not seen him before, and when he left the gallery nodded many friendly good byes, to those who had been with him during the last campaign. That Raskob is a mixer to the "tenth degree was evident in every comment he made.

People here are all agog over the "first woman to be elected to the senate" race taking place in several states.

Mrs. McCormick is thus far the only announced candidate, but gossip has it that Mrs. Ross, the recent woman governor of Wyoming, is sitting tight in her position of the woman's clan of the far west, and has her eyes out for the senate seat. Although Wyoming is a republican state, Senator Kendricks, democrat, has a firm hold on his senatorial chair, and the democrats have a lingering hope that Mrs. Ross may share his prestige, as she made good as governor and has a strong pull with the farmers, so it is said. In the meantime Mrs. Ross is taking the lead as a high member of the democratic national committee, in its woman's branch. Others say Wyoming "is fed up" on Mrs. Ross and that she hasn't a ghost of a chance.

Mrs. McCormick is waging a stiff fight in Illinois, but no one yet has the courage to predict the outcome, although Senator Dineen is said to be very strong, and holding his organization strictly in line.

They are talking of Mrs. Pratt, member of congress from New York, as a possible future senatorial candidate and it is no secret that Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owens, has inherited her distinguished father's ambition to sit in the senate. She is pretty sure to make a try-out for the senate when the term of Senator Fletcher expires in 1932.

Some of her admirers are dangling tempting senatorial bait before the sparkling dark eyes of Representative Edith N. Rogers of Massachusetts, but she declines to nibble, at least at this stage of the game.

That suggests to my mind, that the "silence is the best policy" seems to shroud the minds of the entire Massachusetts congressional delegation, whenever the topic of senatorial candidates from the Bay State is mentioned, since Mr. Gillett's regretted retirement announcement was made public. They shun it as they would the measles, whooping cough or other contagious and unpleasant diseases, known to be "catching" by grown-ups as well as by children.

Congress has been polite to the "lady members" and given them good committee assignments, some of which they had either broadly hinted, or boldly expressed desire to obtain. Mrs. Rogers hold fast to her veterans committee assignment, although offered and even urged to take places on some one of the great major committees, where her prestige could not fail to be enhanced. But she holds firm that the veterans committee suits her best, and that she will not leave it for any other, no matter of what degree.

Mrs. McCormick selected naval affairs, and got it and the other women members were treated with great consideration by the committee on committees.

Attorney General Mitchell states that Connecticut's additional federal judge will be used not only for clearing the Connecticut docket but also in southern and eastern New York districts.

Mr. and Mrs. Adrien Allix, of Greenville, are said to hold the New Hampshire championship for numerous nieces and nephews. Mr. Allix was one of a family of nine children, and so also was his wife, who was Angeline Thibeault. Mr. Allix is uncle to 43 children, and his wife is aunt to 23. The couple themselves are the parents of five children.

MARY JANE BREAKS THE ICE.

"I Wonder," remarked Jim Miller to his wife as they hurried about the house, making their last preparations for the guest who was soon to arrive, "I wonder if Uncle Albert can still wiggle his ears. It used to fascinate me when I was Tom's age. I was always watching his ears, waiting for them to move unexpectedly. But Uncle Albert was always such a solemn old duck I could never find enough courage to ask him to perform for me."

Mary Jane, in her brand-new little frock and socks, stood with her patent leather slippers in her hands, waiting for her father to find time to put them on her. She was gazing up at him with cherry mouth wide open and eyes that fairly sparkled with interest.

"Daddy!" she said. "Can he, really?"

"Why, of course," laughed her father.

"Can you wiggle your ears Daddy?" Jim Miller thoughtfully put a hand to his ear and moved it up and down.

"Not automatically," he said. "As yet I have not found my ears to be adjustable."

"Oh," returned Mary Jane, as though she really understood.

It had been a hard day for Betty Miller, who, having all the responsibilities of the hostess, had awakened that morning with the thought hanging heavy that this was the day at last and Uncle Albert was to arrive some time just before supper.

Jim's Uncle Albert lived in Boston, had a Ph. D tacked to his name, was fabulously wealthy, and from what Jim could remember about him must have always been a solemn, taciturn old fellow. He was a bachelor and consequently knew nothing about all the tragedies connected with the raising of a family on a salary basis.

It had been a hard day for Betty. Wilma had stopped to play a game of jacks instead of hurrying right home from school to tackle the dishes that had been saved for her. Tom had forgotten to stop at the store on his way home and had had to be sent back again.

Mary Jane had decorated the house with dandelions; had bathed her dolls and washed their clothes in the freshly cleaned bathroom to prepare them for their coming visitor; and, as a fitting climax to a perfect day, had found a can of red paint in the basement and with all the nonchalance of inexperience had proceeded to give the gas stove a fresh coat of paint.

By the time evening came and Tom had been sent back twice to wash behind his ears and Wilma had been ordered to the basement to polish her shoes, Betty had reached the point where she was simply existing on her nerves and was waiting tensely for the appearance of her formidable guest.

At last, when Uncle Albert came and the family had to gaze up 6 feet 2 inches to find his face, and when they found there one of such solemn, unsociable features that they just stood in awe and stared upward, Betty decided that it was no wonder Jim had always been afraid of him.

The supper table was like a formal reception. The conversation was guarded—words carefully chosen—all the important issues of the day discussed with meticulous care. They cussed with meticulous care. The children had been warned against entering into the conversation and the great Uncle Albert himself seemed to have little to say.

Betty stopped coldly in the midst of a rather one-sided argument. There was complete silence in the Miller dining room. Betty's mind felt paralyzed, numbed, as though it had reached the limit of endurance and refused to move another inch.

In the midst of this tense silence Mary Jane, who had been sitting with spoon poised in midair contemplating this newly acquired Uncle Albert, finally spoke: "Daddy says you can wiggle your ears," she announced. "Can you really, Uncle Albert?"

Every one turned toward Mary Jane, who, with the innocence of a 4-year-old, had spoken words to desecrate a solemn occasion. She looked so much in earnest that Wilma began to laugh. Then Tom laughed, then Tim, then Betty, herself. It was like the opening of a safety valve.

Uncle Albert looked about the little group as though perplexed and uncertain what to do or say. But finally he spoke:

"Folks!" he said, "I am overwhelmed with happiness. For a while I was beginning to think I was attending a conference for the political uplift of the world. But now I find that you are not only human, but that you can laugh. Ladies and gentlemen, let me congratulate you!"

And calmly, deliberately, solemnly, Uncle Albert wiggled his ears!—Exchange.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—When word got about that Labor Secretary Jimmie Davis was going "on the air" again Thanksgiving day with a surprise stunt, most folks expected to hear his dulcet tenor again.

Or perhaps they thought the singing cabineteer would yield this time to his admitted longing to toot a clarinet in the ears of the fans.

He did sing, but since he did it in his native Welsh tongue, not many of the listening millions could have known what he was singing about.

Even to his non-Welsh hearers, however, and in the spoken part of his radio piece you might say that Secretary Jimmie qualified this time for membership in that special group of stage and radio entertainers, the mammy singers.

For what he had to say certainly would cover all the mammy song ideas thus far contributed, and leave a lot over for new ones.

Mr. Davis devoted his radio piece entirely to a glowingly eulogistic picture of American housewifery. And he did a good job of it, showing an intimate knowledge of household economy and routine, doubtless derived from his own experience as one of a Welsh family of six children which emigrated to this country nearly 50 years ago, and also as father of the five J's—Jimmie, Jr., Jane Elizabeth, Jean Allys, Joan and Jewel.

He Really Knows

With that family background, it is not surprising that Secretary Jimmie knew just what days in the week were set aside for washing, cleaning, darning, cooking, marketing and so on, down the whole seven-days-and-repeat list for "the greatest, busiest business executive in the world, the wife of the working man."

He's been through it twice.

Nobody will challenge Secretary Davis' demand for a two-week annual holiday for housewives. If he could work out an effective scheme it would become operative by universal consent.

The name of Davis would be blessed in the land. And what a political future might not be his when he leaves cabinet office, presumably next year? He could not, of course, rival President Hoover's political career, which many folks hold was born in American kitchens back in his food administrator days. Secretary Jimmie is of Welsh birth and not presidential timber.

The Future?

Possibly political ideas were not wholly absent from the secretarial mind when he prepared his mammy talk for the radio. The Bystander has never heard what his plans are, once he winds up his decade or so of cabinet service.

It is possible that a Pennsylvania senatorship or the governor's berth will be open to capture about that time, it is to be recalled. Many Washington observers have had the idea that Henry Fletcher, Davis' fellow Pennsylvanian, resigned as ambassador to Italy and terminated a long and successful bit of mixed career diplomacy and politics with that in mind.

And why should he not have senatorial or gubernatorial aspirations, this ex-steel puddler of Pittsburgh, who still has his union card, who still is director general, Loyal Order of Moose, who is a member of many other fraternal orders who has sat in the cabinet of three successive presidents and now is the avowed foremost friend of the housewife?

YOUR HEALTH

Fat Makes Fat

By Lewellyn T. Barker, M. D.
Baltimore
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

You often hear a fat person claim that he is a small eater. But investigations of cases of obesity have led to the conclusion that, regardless of total amount of food, people often grow fat because they eat more fattening foods than they need, use a little of it, and store up the surplus as fat. And the fatter they get, the less food it takes to make them still fatter, for they become progressively less capable of burning up their fat and of radiating heat from their bodies as the weight increases.

Some people can eat much more fattening food than others without becoming fat, for there are great differences in constitutions and in inherited tendencies. Probably the activity of the glands of internal secretion has much to do with this. Persons in whom the internal secretion of the thyroid gland or the pituitary gland or the generative glands is deficient are particularly prone to become fat. In serious diseases of these glands, the obesity may become extreme and require very careful study to ascertain the cause in order that special glandular treatment may be applied. But the great majority of persons who are too heavy are so because they eat too much of certain kinds of food or because they lead too sedentary a life.

Fat people often say that they eat very little, but a study of what they eat nearly always proves that they are eating too much of certain kinds of food and lose weight readily. One difficulty is that persons who are too fat often have a strong liking for the kinds of food that increase their weight—fats, sugars, starches and feel unhappy if they are required to eat the kinds of food that will lead to a reduction of weight—fruits, fresh vegetables, greens. Many doctors have been told by fat patients that they would rather eat what they like and die happy than to eat what they should eat and live miserably. But these patients do not realize that they are not likely to die happy; before death comes they may have great misery because of the results of their over-indulgence. Nor do they realize that growing thin is a process that need not make men or women miserable or unhappy if they but go the right way about it.

Same fat people object to reducing their weight because they think they will look old or haggard if they grow thinner. This, too, is a fallacy. Properly managed getting rid of the fat will make them look and feel younger than before, will protect them from many maladies to which obesity predisposes, and may give them many more years of happy and useful life than would be theirs if they continued to live unhygienically.

If you find yourself growing too heavy, and do not want to class yourself as a coward or a hog, don't try dieting yourself, but let your family doctor look you over regularly, direct your diet, keep you healthy, and make life more worth while than it is to most human monuments of obesity.

Reddy Goes to Mrs. Reddy's Help

The simplest way may prove to be
The one most difficult to see.
—Old Mother Nature.

Reddy Fox had succeeded in catching a turkey and in a way he had caught a little more than he had bargained for. Almost at once he knew that that turkey would have to be eaten very near where it was killed. Therefore, it was necessary that it should be hidden close by for a while. Now, Reddy and Mrs. Reddy had planned all this out beforehand. They had suspected that they might have to hide the turkey if they got one, so they had agreed on a hiding place. Where do you think that place was? It was under the barn. It was under the barn on the very farm where the turkeys lived. You could have thrown a stone from where Reddy caught the turkey to the place where he dragged it under the barn. He remained there with it until it was so dark that he was sure he could slip out without being seen.

For two or three minutes he stood listening. Far, far away he could hear the baying of the hound. He knew that that hound was chasing Mrs. Reddy. That hound was the dog who lived on this very farm where Reddy then was. It was the dog on whom the farmer depended somewhat to keep his turkeys safe.

"Mrs. Reddy seems to be having some trouble in getting rid of that dog," thought Reddy. "I'll go over and help her out of it. We'll lose him somewhere and then we'll come back and feast on this turkey. No one will think to look for it so near home."

Reddy started off, running swiftly. It was quite evident to him that that dog was wise in the ways of foxes and to their tricks. So far, Mrs. Reddy had not been able to break her trail. Reddy could tell by the sound of the dog that Mrs. Reddy was running in a big circle. He knew the ground perfectly. He knew just where Mrs. Reddy would be likely to run, and so he headed her off. As she passed a big rock, Reddy jumped lightly down behind her. "Jump up on that log ahead of you, my dear, and go back to that rock I have just jumped from," he barked. "I'll take care of that fellow."

Mrs. Reddy did as Reddy told her to. She was glad to do it, for by this time she was getting tired. She had tried many tricks to fool that dog, but he had been too smart to be fooled.

Reddy started off, running swiftly

She sprang lightly up on the log, which was off to one side, sprang from the farther end of it and ran around up on the big rock. She was lying down there grinning when the dog went past just beneath it. He went on straight past the log to which Mrs. Reddy had jumped. You see, there was the fresh smell of Fox in his nose all the time, for his nose was in Reddy's tracks now and he didn't know the difference.

"I wonder if Reddy got that turkey," said Mrs. Reddy to herself. "There wasn't time for him to tell me. I wish I knew. I have half a mind to go back to that farm and look for that turkey now. However, that wouldn't be fair to Reddy. He came over here to help me and now the thing for me to do is to get rested and remain over here to help him if he needs any help."

But Reddy didn't need any help. Not for nothing had he learned how to fool Bowser the Hound over at Farmer Brown's. There was no better fox dog in all the country round than Bowser the Hound. Yet Reddy had fooled him many times. If he could fool Bowser he could fool this dog. But he wasn't ready to fool him yet. He wanted him to become thoroughly tired out first, and when he did lose him he wanted to lose him somewhere so far away that it would take him a long time to get home.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Drifting

Mr. Editor: Many moons have passed and gone since I started to try and bring back recollections of some of the many incidents and some of the things that could be listed as vanishing. I might be likened to a dreamer who, as he stands on the shores of the ocean and looking across its broad expanse, sees the tide going out and bye and bye he sees it drifting back, even as we gaze across the great sea of memory and we see the many events that have taken place and left a pleasant impression upon the sands of time. I, in fancy, can see myself in the mirror of life as I walk down the streets of the city of Norwich. Many things have changed, for in fancy I see the old liberty pole in the center of Franklin square, and across the way where are now located many stores, we see a livery stable—Holt's—on the opposite corner we can recall is Young's block and here the bloods of those early days would walk in and get a drink of red liquor and not as they do today, go into some speakeasy and get a drink of varnish or "block and fall."

On the opposite corner we see an old cigar store with an original American standing, before the door, with outstretched hand holding a bunch of cheroots. Next to this we find an old harness shop with the name in large gilt letters above the door, J. B. Shaw, (no relation). All these drift rapidly by but somehow we think of what is one of the burning questions of the day and a question we dismiss and still it drifts back and confronts us in every conceivable form. That is the question as to whether prohibition is a good thing, has it brought happiness or prosperity to this country. Go into some of these night clubs for the answer and here it can be said that none are so blind they cannot see, for you can see the young people who have brought on the hip," stuff that would be better adapted as "bar polish" than as a beverage. It certainly was not as good as the stuff that Rawson and Whipple or J. B. Shannon or John P. Murphy or any of the others sold when they were in a legitimate business that was sanctioned by the laws of the state and was considered good business. Think back to those times and they, of course, took a nip now and then for the juice of the grape was a good servant, but a bad enemy. Many a big business contract was put through by a bottle of whiskey and made binding by a bottle of ink. Many of the leading families of today laid the foundation of their wealth to the sale of "demon rum." Many of our colleges were founded by men who had made a fortune through the sale of beverages that are taboo today. Page Vassar college on the Hudson. Before prohibition was in flower we didn't have hi-jackers, bootleggers, rum runners and the many other law breakers, nor men who were under the influence and were driving cars, a menace to lives of innocent people. Now they take a competitor out for a ride or line him up against a wall. All this has come to pass since the day of the so-called Volstead act. Only the other day we read of an enforcement officer whose attention was called to the fact his suit-case was leaking, and a quiet scrutiny disclosed six bottles of liquor concealed therein and this, a man who talked prohibition, voted as a member of congress that spelled prohibition, but wasn't enforced. The law as it is today is not effective for the people are making it in their homes, and many a quiet drinking party is going on in the sanctity of the home.

I saw in The Bulletin as of Monday, Nov. 25, an item of interest, where two lawyers are going to discuss the good and bad points of this so-called Volstead act. Something tells me that the one who is opposed to this act will, no matter what his opponent may say, be the one who will come under the wire a winner, for as a matter of fact the only ones who I find are in favor of its continuance are the very ones who are breaking the law. They are the bootleggers. The real lover of their country and the ones who observe and obey its laws wish that it may be modified in such a way that these undesirables may be put out of business. Perhaps the truth hurts but such is a fact. Today some poor person, who may be sick and in need of a stimulant, must get an M. D. to give him a prescription and for this he pays a couple of dollars. Then he goes to a drug store and lays down five or six dollars more and then he gets something that has been "cut" so it isn't any good, not even good enough to wash fleas out of a dog.

I don't want the reader to get the impression that I want the stuff for I have no use for it in any way but my thought on the subject is that the principle of the thing is all wrong. From the very time of the enactment of such a drastic law everything has been upside down. At least that is my opinion. Speaking about "cutting", a certain firm of wet goods dealers in Norwich when they received four barrels of rum would always be able to show five by the judicious use of water for as it was explained "when a man had a drink he would put a little water in it so I will put it in myself." Not so dumb? I do not know and little care if the average reader has his thoughts regarding this question but I am sure anyone who loves his country does not care to see it turned over into the hands of those who defy its laws and break them every day. With all its lawlessness we seem to be drifting along, but where?

IN DAY'S NEWS

Tsitsihar

"The airplane put another little-known town on the world map when Costes and Bellonte, the French long distance flyers, landed near Tsitsihar, Manchuria, about 160 miles northwest of Harbin," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Tsitsihar was built in 1682 to overawe marauding tribes in the neighborhood. Since then it has been famous for three things—fighting, cattle sales and, more recently, as the terminus of the new China-owned railroad which approaches the town from the south.

"The native tribesmen were none too peaceful in the early days of Tsitsihar's life. Then China sent many of her bandits into exile in Manchuria, which made matters worse. The mixture of the groups forced the construction of barracks and the detail of military units to the town so that it took on the aspect of a fortress.

"When the Chinese Eastern Railway was built as a short cut between Chita and Vladivostok, Tsitsihar was a settlement of ramshackle buildings. For some reason the railroad builders missed the town by laying the line a few miles to the south. Later, however, a spur was built so that Tsitsihar now can claim a right to be implicated in another battle—the present 'misunderstanding' between Soviet Russia and China over the Chinese Eastern.

"Few travelers visited isolated Tsitsihar before the railroad came. For a time those who did passed by coffins before the railroad came. For a time those who did passed by coffins strewn outside the town walls—coffins of natives whose families were unable to pay burial expenses. Inside the walls the travelers saw a dingy panorama of shacks lining dirty streets.

"Today Tsitsihar is a busy town, interested in modern development. The recently completed China-owned railroad which meets the east-west Chinese Eastern near Tsitsihar will add prestige to the community. Mills are grinding out meal as fast as soy beans can be brought from the Manchurian fields. Tile-roofed houses, with coats of paint, are rising where old shacks once stood. And the population of the town is holding its own.

"Manchus, Mongols, Koreans, and Yakuts number about 30,000 in Tsitsihar and there is always a handful of Europeans in the town. During fairs, however, Mongol cattle lovers flock to Tsitsihar, nearly doubling the population. The Mongolian border is about 325 miles to the southwest of the town.

"Tsitsihar is nearly on the same latitude as Seattle, Washington, but the thermometers of the two places diverge. In the summer, the hot sun scorches Tsitsihar, the thermometer rising above 95 degrees. In the winter, however, the mercury backtracks until it reaches 40 degrees below zero."

No More Piles

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe, and lasting relief to Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists anywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.

Tells Overweight Men How To Lose Fat

Gained In Health and Vitality At Same Time

Nine times in ten obesity means inactivity—it means that your blood is starving for the six vital salts your internal organs need to keep you youthful, active, ambitious and keen in mind.

When you take one-half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning you get these six vital salts which modern foods and cooking do not supply.

Taken every morning, Kruschen Salts supply the liver, kidneys and bowels with an invigorating conditioner and after you have tried this simple plan for two weeks the rejuvenating effect will delight you.

The urge for activity will be so marked that even at the end of a hard day's work you'll feel ready for any special activity or recreation — you can play as hard as you work.

You'll have that "Kruschen feeling."

And after two weeks the fat you don't want and don't need starts to go—you'll know it—feel it—see it—the scales will tell the story.

One jar of Kruschen Salts that will last 4 weeks costs but 85c at Lee & Osgood's or any drugstore in the world—an inexpensive way to take off fat. It's the little daily dose that does it.

Sore Throats and Coughs

Quickly Relieved by this Safe Prescription

Here's a doctor's prescription that is really throat insurance. Sore or irritated throats are relieved and soothed almost instantly with the very first swallow. About 90% of all coughs are caused by an irritated throat; consequently for most coughs too there is nothing better than this famous prescription—it goes direct to the internal cause. It is put up under the name Thoxine and is guaranteed to stop coughs and relieve sore throats in 15 minutes or your money will be refunded. Singers and speakers find Thoxine very valuable.

The remarkable thing about Thoxine is that while it relieves almost instantly, it contains nothing harmful, is pleasant tasting and safe for the whole family. Ask for Thoxine 35c, 60c, and $1.00 bottles. Sold by all druggists.

OBITUARY

George H. Stanton

Following an illness of about two weeks, George H. Stanton, 73, for 15 years a deputy sheriff of New London county, and a prominent citizen of the city, died Monday afternoon at 12:10 o'clock at his home, No. 37 Hamilton avenue. Sheriff Stanton was seized with a shock Nov. 23 while in a Franklin street store and failed to rally.

The son of George H. and Helen S. Sparks Stanton, Sheriff Stanton was born in Willimantic June 5, 1856. The following year the family came to Norwich and Sheriff Stanton had since made his home here. He attended the local schools and for a number of years was employed in the pistol business, later entering the employ of the C. B. Rogers machine shop.

In 1897 Sheriff Stanton was elected a town constable and held that office up to the time of his appointment, April 28, 1915, as a deputy sheriff of New London county. In 1905 Mr. Stanton was appointed an agent of the humane society and in 1911 served as a doorkeeper in the house of representatives at Hartford. Mr. Stanton was a member of the old volunteer fire department, serving for a number of years with the West Side company, and later as stoker on Engine Co., No. 1. While a member of the latter company he was severely burned in a bad fire at the old Troy laundry located on what was then known as Little Water street.

In fraternal circles Mr. Stanton was a member of Ionic camp, No. 7694, M. W. A., being one of the charter members of the organization. He served as assistant deputy for some years and organized a number of camps in New London and Windham counties. In 1908 Mr. Stanton was elected a delegate, representing eastern Connecticut, to the head camp convention at Peoria, Ill.

Mr. Stanton was twice married. His first wife was Ella Archer and they were married in this city in 1876. By this union there were six children, all now living. They are Mrs. Frances Stager of Niantic, George W., and Flora I. Stanton and Mrs. Ludwick Krumhols of Norwich, Tyler S. Stanton of New Jersey, and Mrs. Julia Hotchkiss of New London.

Following the death of his first wife he was married, in March, 1912, at Willimantic to Elizabeth James. She survives him with a daughter, Wilma Stanton. There is also surviving, a brother, Howard L. Stanton, retired chief of the Norwich fire department.

Sheriff Stanton was widely known throughout the eastern part of the state and his pleasing and genial personality gained him many warm friends. He was ever interested in the welfare of the community and always ready to lend a helping hand to those in need. He was a loving husband and father and took great pride in his home and family. His numerous friends extend deep sympathy to the surviving members of the family in their great loss.

Mrs. Joseph F. Tighe

Mrs. Marie Elizabeth St. Martin Tighe, wife of Joseph F. Tighe, died at her home, No. 414 Main street, Monday morning about 12:30 o'clock, following an illness of four years. Mrs. Tighe was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Levi St. Martin and was born in Lebanon Nov. 23, 1908. At St. Mary's Memorial church, Jan. 30, 1928, she was united in marriage with Joseph F. Tighe.

William E. Tyler

William E. Tyler died at his home in Montville Sunday morning, following an illness from pneumonia. Mr. Tyler was born in Exeter, R. I., but had been a resident of Montville several years.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Mrs. Katherine Maloy Tyler, and five children, ages 3, 5, 9, 10 and 12 years; five brothers, Henry A. of Oakdale; Thomas O., North Attleboro, Mass.; Charles E., Providence, R. I.; James A., Saunderstown, R. I.; John V. Tyler, formerly of Kingston, N. Y.

Miss Hattie S. Johnson

NEW LONDON, Dec. 9.—Miss Hattie S. Johnson, colored, 67, died Saturday at her home, 55 Hempstead street. She was a member of Shiloh Baptist church. Miss Johnson was employed for 30 years by Dr. and Mrs. Leonard B. Almy, of Washington street, Norwich, as nurse for their two daughters, now Mrs. Wilson Brown, wife of the commander at the Submarine Base, and Mrs. W. Ellery Allen, of Waterford. She remained in the Almy family until after the marriage of the two daughters and until the death of Dr. Almy and his wife. She was a woman of exceptional ability, whose devoted service was appreciated to the full by her employers. She had all the southern faithfulness and pride in her duties and was a really remarkable woman.

SCOUT COUNCIL HEARS REPORT ON PROGRESS IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT

The regular monthly session of the executive board of the Eastern Connecticut Council of Boy Scouts was held in the conference room of the chamber of commerce at 7:30 Monday evening. Following a welcome given by President Charles Colt to the deputy commissioners and Cub Scouters, guests at the meeting, Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale introduced the commissioners and spoke briefly of their duties. The president read Article V, Sec. 1 of the constitution which calls for the appointment of a nominating committee and the matter was left in the hands of Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale, who acting as chairman will choose a nominating committee of three to five men. The names of this committee will be published and all members of the local council will be privileged to write to this committee and make recommendations for council officers for the ensuing year.

C. V. James reporting for the troop organization committee said that an American Legion troop was now being organized, that Dr. Soloman was still working on the organization of a Jewish troop, and that with the return of J. B. Stanton, principal of the Elizabeth street school, steps would be taken to organize a troop there.

H. E. Robbins, reporting for the training committee, told of the last meeting of that committee, of its success in enrolling over 20 men for the training course and of the success of the course.

H. D. Larrabee, reporting for the committee on territory, read a letter from Stafford Springs describing the completion of district committee organization there; a letter from Willimantic describing effort there to get the right man as district chairman; and newspaper articles from Putnam which indicate that when the training course there starts, there will be an enrollment of 25 men.

Dr. R. R. Agnew, reporting for the camping committee, told of two camp sites visited, reported the attendance of the all-city hikes, and gave the details of the offer of the Hartford council for our scouts to spend the week of December 26 to January 1 there, under the leadership of Scout Executive Sellman.

James Pedace, reporting for the educational publicity committee, praised the talks of the Jamboree scouts who appeared both at Rotary and Lions clubs this month; thanked the chamber of commerce for the article in its monthly paper, The Month's Work, entitled "The Boy Scout Movement—A Sound Investment." Mr. Pedace described the cooperation the local papers were giving the organization by publishing news articles in the daily columns. He outlined the contacts to be made with organizations for the finance campaign; told of two moving pictures to be shown in Norwich on Boy Scout work in the near future.

Scout Commissioner Peale reported on the general success of the training course and of troop activities. Mr. Peale declared that the all-city hikes and other council activities had been well liked by the scouts and men.

In the absence of Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, Mr. Sellman told of the book shelf placed in the Otis library for the direction of the reading of the scouts. In the absence of Ex-mayor H. M Lerou, Mr. Sellman listed the many items of civic service the boys have engaged in during the past month. Some of them have been: Collecting funny papers for hospitals, distributing posters for Red Cross, distributing posters for Christmas tuberculosis seals, serving as ushers at Armistice day meeting, all scouts in uniform Armistice day, eighteen scouts reported to escort Santa Claus to Porteous & Mitchell, 500 different toys collected by the scouts for poor kids, served as door men at Slater Memorial. Mr. Sellman told of plans for the coming court of honor to be held Wednesday and of court of honor to be held the last week in January. According to present plans, the January court will be an International Jamboree court with moving pictures, Jamboree talks, and sixty-five different flags on display. In the absence of E. J. Graham, Mr. Sellman reported on the efforts being made by the schools to organize new school troops.

Max Hanover, chairman of the finance campaign to be held during the second week in February, outlined his campaign organizations and gave an inspiring and straight from the shoulder talk on the co-operation needed to put the campaign across. According to Mr. Hanover, a report will be sent at the close of the year to all scout subscribers showing some of the big things scouting has accomplished during the past year. Several campaign committees were appointed. According to Mr. Hanover no stone will be left unturned to bring to the attention of the citizens of Norwich what the Boy Scout program is doing and can do and why it merits unstinted support. "Every public spirited believer in the youth of Norwich will be approached for support of the Boy Scout movement" and will be given the privilege of doing a 'good turn' for the boys who are always doing others good turns.

The executive board acting for the local council voted in favor of holding a winter camp providing there should be an enrollment of from twelve to fifteen boys and authorized the scout executive to accompany the scouts to camp should that number enroll.

Deputy Scout Commissioners F. H. Wyant, Walter Casey and William M. Wyman were present to become more familiar with council affairs. Mr. Casey and Mr. Wyman were voted to go over the books of the council and constitute an auditing committee to make an official audit. A. Silverberg was present at the meeting representing Cub Scouting interests. The executive board voted that Rev. George Warren Potter, pioneer in cub scouting in Norwich, A. Silverberg and Mr. Burdick of Ailing Rubber company constitute a committee to promote the establishment of cub scouting in Norwich.

The date of the annual council meeting was set for the third week in January. The meeting adjourned at 9:30.

STATE POULTRY RAISERS REPORT EXCELLENT YEAR

The Connecticut Poultry Producers' association has sold for its members during the past year more than 930,000 dozen eggs, according to Dr. E. A. Perregaux, marketing specialist at the Connecticut Agricultural college, in a radio talk from station WCAC.

Reports from officials of the organization show steady progress of the association since it was organized in 1924. Dr. Perregaux said. Gross sales have increased from $214,317 in 1924-25 to $449,254 for the past fiscal year, and this past year the earnings of the association were approximately $7,000 compared to a deficit of more than $3,000 during the first year.

The association, which maintains receiving and selling stations at New Haven, Hartford and Torrington, has accumulated a small surplus and from past years' earnings has declared a one per cent patronage dividend which will be paid to the members on the basis of the amount of business done through the association during the last fiscal year, Dr. Perregaux declared.

The association realizes that the quality of an egg cannot be improved after it is laid, and is endeavoring to collect eggs as often as feasible, grading and candling them for quality and size, and making payment to the producer on that basis. The eggs are then sold either in bulk or cartons, with the high quality eggs stamped in order that they may be identified by the consumer. The association uses the Connecticut New Laid Fancy and the New England Quality labels, as a further guarantee of quality, Dr. Perregaux said.

TAFTVILLE MAN LISTENS TO SHIP-TO-SHORE TALKS

Terrence J. Buckley of No. 2 South C street, Taftville, whose hobby is constructing radio sets, each to outdo its predecessor in receiving, was one of the interested listeners to the inauguration programme of ship-to-shore telephonic communication, which took place Sunday and was continued Monday. With his small but unusually proficient home-made set, built by himself, he intercepted both programmes, the conversation being heard without interference or distortion through his loud speaker.

The conversation that was broadcast Monday evening from the S. S. Leviathan, which was in the neighborhood of 1,000 miles from New York on its way to England, came through the ether on a 66 meter wave length to the radio listeners. The transmitting station from which the message is sent out by radio is at Deal, N. J., and the receiving station is at Forked River, N. J.

Mr. Buckley has had certified reception from short wave radio stations in Australia, Holland, England and many other distant points in the universe.

Perkins, Wellesley, Mass., assignor to Powdrell & Alexander, Boston, with plant at Danielson, Conn., for several ornamental designs for textile fabrics, viz.: Filed May 15, 1929, term 3 1-2 years; filed May 16, 1929, term 3 1-2 years; filed Aug. 17, 1929, term 3 1-2 years; filed Aug. 22, 1929, term 3 1-2 years.

Broke Store Window

The Metropolitan Chain store at 206 Main street had one of its plate glass windows smashed Saturday night in an unusual way. It was reported that two men supposed to be drunk stumbled up against the penny-in-the-slot scales that stood in the doorway of the store, knocking the scales over into the window and smashing the glass. The men got away without anyone finding out who they were.

INSPECTORS WILL WATCH FOR POOR AUTO EQUIPMENT

Stormy weather, poor automobile equipment and the carelessness of operators and pedestrians have resulted recently in a large number of accidents, many of which caused serious injury or death, according to reports to the state motor vehicle department. Rain, snow, ice and slush have contributed to the making of dangerous road surface conditions which scores of cars, apparently, were unable to offset because of bad brakes, smooth tires and other defective equipment.

The situation is considered so serious that the department has issued instructions to inspectors to keep special watch on highways for cars with equipment which will not meet conditions. Particular attention will be paid to tires on which the shoes are worn smooth and are thus without traction and unable to grip the road. The inspectors will instruct such drivers to use chains or tires not likely to skid or slide so that the vehicle may not become a menace in traffic. Brakes in poor condition will be ordered repaired. Windshield wipers and lights must also be kept in good condition.

Pedestrians have been direct contributors to accidents through carelessness, the inspectors report. Many approached too closely to vehicles, when crossing streets, although it was obvious, apparently, that the vehicles were liable to skid at any time. Reports show, too, that the fact that vehicles are unable to stop quickly under bad road conditions was not considered. Misjudgment of distance has been common on the part of both operator and pedestrian.

That many motorists are lax in keeping equipment up to the standard required for safety, and by law, is indicated in a report by the inspection section of the department on 888 cars which were taken from active participation in traffic for examination. Of this number, only 322 cars were found properly equipped. About two-thirds, actually 566, had defective equipment and many were without articles required by safety laws and regulations. The defects in a large number of cases were of a serious nature.

One hundred and sixty-three vehicles had foot brakes unfit for use, in every case the brakes being found incapable of stopping the car quickly or within a safe distance. The emergency, or hand brake, was found defective on 331 cars. In many instances the hand brake was out of order on the same cars which had bad foot and service brakes.

Eight cars were found to be without headlights. The lights on 110 cars were defective and on 28 were not properly placed or equipped with illegal lens. There were no tail lights on 57, and defective rear lights on 149. Markers were missing or broken in many cases, as were also mirrors, windshield wipers and horns. Eighteen steering gears were in poor condition.

The inspectors discovered many commercial motor vehicles which were not equipped with reflectors. These are required on the rear of all commercial vehicles by a law which became effective Sept. 1. Broken reflectors were also numerous. Drivers were instructed that the reflectors must be maintained in good condition, the same as any other article of safety equipment.

GOVERNMENT SUIT AGAINST GROTON TO BE HEARD

A hearing in the $45,000 suit of the United States against the town and borough of Groton will be held this (Tuesday) afternoon before the United States shipping board at Washington, D. C., and four persons from Groton will represent the town and borough.

These are Selectman Clark B. Whaley, representing the town; Borough and Town Attorney Harry C. Brogan and Warden George R. Hempstead and Borough Clerk Leo W. Brogan as representatives of the borough.

The suit came subsequent to an agreement made in 1918 in which the town and borough contracted to reimburse the Emergency Fleet Corp. for improvements made at Groton park. The improvements included sewers, sidewalks, streets, water mains, etc. The amount involved was $50,000 plus interest. Twenty-nine thousand dollars has been paid.

SECRETARY HILL SPEAKS BEFORE CONTACT CLUB

There was a very large attendance at the weekly meeting of the Contact club Monday noon at the Wauregan hotel with President Ernest O. Rodier presiding. Edwin Hill, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., addressed the club on "Vision." Mr. Hill told of the vision which Robert Fulton had of a steamboat and how Fulton steadfastly followed his vision until it became a realization. The speaker alluded to Thomas Edison, the modern wizard, who, he said, had a vision and pushed it to glorious victory, for which all of us are blessed. Visions of other great men were also mentioned by the speaker, who included Abraham Lincoln and Fr. Daimeau, a Roman Catholic priest, who went to the leper colony.

He said that life insurance companies of America, during the last 85 years, have written 100 billion dollars in policies. They have a vision of writing 100 billion more in the next ten years. The speaker said that vision is a basic factor in growth. Lack of vision means not only stagnation but deterioration. Cooperation is necessary, and he pointed out what President Hoover is doing. Every man, he said, is growing or deteriorating, as no man is stationary. He referred to an old saying, "Unless I am a better and more useful man today than yesterday there is something wrong with me."

PARK CHURCH MEN CONDUCT LADIES' NIGHT

The annual ladies' night of the Men's Club of Park Congregational church was observed Monday evening at the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial parish house with a supper and entertainment, about 100 members and their wives attending the delightful event, one of the big social affairs of the club. The supper was serve dat 6:30 o'clock by the committee in charge at prettily decorated tables, which were trimmed with Christmas colors including red and green streamers, lighted red candles and plants.

The appetizing menu comprised fruit cup, chicken patties, mashed potato and turnip, cranberry sauce, olives, celery, rolls, ice cream, wafers and coffee. Following supper an unusually entertaining programme was carried out after the address of welcome, which was given by Lyle H. Fillmore, president of the club. The programme was received with enthusiasm by the gathering, who frequently applauded the efforts of the entertainers.

The programme was as follows: Address of welcome, the president; piano solo, Miss Ruth Dreschler; vocal solo, Mrs. Aurin O. Payson, accompanist, Mrs. Arthur Payson; talk, Dr. Theodore M. Shipherd, pastor; violin solo, George Guile; piano solo, Miss Dreschler; saxophone solo, Bruce Rogers, accompanist, Mrs. Charles A. Saxton; vocal solo, Mrs. Charles E. Schwenck, accompanist, Miss Annie L. Taft; talk, James M. Morton; vocal duet, Mrs. Aurin Payson and Mrs. Schwenck, accompanist, Miss Taft. Each entertainer responded with an encore, so insistent was the applause.

The committee in charge of the supper included Mrs. William A. Lund, chairman, who had the assistance of Mrs. H. I. Peckham, Mrs. Henry Sebastian, Misses Elinor Howard, Dorothy Concklin and Doris Lund and Henry Sebastian, Harold Kinney and Clarence Parkhurst.

Those who had the general charge of the affair comprised Clinton Atterbury, chairman, Charles A. Saxton, Ebenezer Learned, Ebenezer Learned, Jr., Samuel E. Smiley, Russell Worth and Raymond B. Sherman.

FORECLOSURE AND OTHER JUDGMENTS ARE GRANTED

Sitting in the motion list session of the common pleas court here Monday morning, Judge C. B. Waller granted several judgments.

Eleanor Murphy of New London and Hartford was given judgment for $213.30 against Kendal A. Crossfield and others.

Foreclosure judgment in the amount of $466.02 was granted to Arthur Elgart of New London against Fritz Remik, with the second Monday in February set as the limit of redemption. The property is located in New London.

Judge Waller granted the plea of Attorney Foster Sistare as counsel for Mrs. Julia Nason of New London to give her more time to redeem her property from a mortgage foreclosure. He reserved decision to re-open a previous judgment and counsel entered into an agreement to give Mrs. Nason until Dec. 23 to raise the money to pay a mortgage to the Morris Plan Co. of Rhode Island. If the foreclosure decree had been enforced Mrs. Nason would have had to vacate the premises at once.

The court ordered a more particular statement to be filed within ten days in the case of G. Clarence Bliven against Anthony Ward and others.

A motion for hearing in damages on default entered in the case of Harry M. Shallett against Louis J. Naval was continued as was a motion for default for failure to plead in the case of Coffey and Co., Inc., against Thomas J. Enright and others.

The American Confectionery Co., of this city was given judgment by default against Jacob Turetzky. There was no hearing in damages.

Judgment in accordance with a sworn bill of particulars to be filed was given in favor of Elmer Bentley of this city against Timothy Savaluk and others.

The American Multigraph Sales Co. was given judgment to recover one Multigraph machine from the Gardner Storage Co. of New London. The Multigraph company sold the machine to one C. A. Carrier of parts unknown, formerly of New London, on a conditional bill of sale. Carrier placed the machine in storage with the result that this replevin suit was brought to recover the property.

LARGE ATTENDANCE FOR SCOUT COURT OF HONOR

According to the court of honor committee composed of H. A. Tirrell, F. H. Cranston and E. G. McKay, a very large attendance is expected at the Wednesday evening court of honor. Many awards will be granted and an interesting program of moving pictures, ceremonies, and speeches has been arranged. Principal H. A. Tirrell will give an address appropriate for scouts, in content similar to the talk given at the community meeting Armistice day, and which was so greatly appreciated by all who heard him.

The court of honor is open to the public.

NORTH GROSVENORDALE MAN COMING TO BALTIC MILL

JUDGE ADVISES ATTEMPT TO REACH SETTLEMENT

Judge C. B. Waller in the common pleas court here Monday heard the trial of the suit of Mikolaz Zieziulewicz of Roosevelt avenue against his neighbor, Josef Danilowicz, in a dispute over a boundary line between their properties and where the division fence should be erected.

Attorney Tolley E. Babcock represented the plaintiff and Attorney Charles L. Stewart was counsel for the defendant. After the evidence was all in, Judge Waller advised the litigants that they try to get together on an agreement in the next three days. Those testifying in the trial were George D. Phillips, George E. Pitcher, Joseph J. Danilowicz, Nicholas Tymcheck, Joseph Danilowicz, Sr., Mikolaj Zieziulewicz and Walter J. Zieziulewicz.

Court adjourned to next Saturday morning.

AMERICAN LEGION POST SPONSORING SCOUT TROOP

Warren Wilcox, Carl Johnson, Dr. Thomas O'Neil and Carl Brend are the committee of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, appointed to arrange for the formation of a troop of Boy Scouts of which Mr. Brend is to be scoutmaster. The committee is to meet with Scout Executive John H. Sellman during the week to complete arrangements for the organization of the troop.

Charles B. Gilbert, chairman of the committee which recently had charge of the sale of Lost Battalion literature, reported to the post meeting a fairly good-sized sum of money realized through the sale of the books.

According to proposed plans, a portion of the legion service work for ex-service men in the city and vicinity will be done through the local chapter of the American Red Cross in the future.

NORWICH DOG FANCIERS TAKE BOSTON PRIZES

Two Norwich dog fanciers, Leon DeCelles and Frank R. Murdy, showing their English bulldogs at the New England dog show held Saturday at Boston, won several prizes. The dog placed on exhibition by Mr. DeCelles was awarded first honors in the novice and limit classes under 40 pounds; also won three honorable mentions. Mr. Murdy's dog won third prize in the limit class over 45 pounds. Dogs of the English bulldog class were on the bench from all parts of New England.

ALBERT A. GUILE ELECTED LETTER CARRIERS' PRESIDENT

Albert A. Guile, senior in point of active service among the letter carriers of the Norwich postoffice force, was elected president of the local branch at a recent meeting.

Other officers elected were: Vice-president, Edward L. Walsh; financial secretary, John P. Edwards; recording secretary, M. J. Murphy, and sergeant-at-arms, P. J. McNerney.

James T. Carey, J. P. Edwards and John J. Burns will represent the Norwich carriers at the next state convention to be held on Washington's birthday, at Hartford. After the meeting those present accepted an invitation to be guests of M. J. Murphy, J. J. Burns and P. J. McNerney. Entertainment was furnished and refreshments served.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALES PROVE LIFE SAVER

The annual sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals has proved to be a life saver and a blessing in many ways, say those who have witnessed what is done with the money. It demonstrates how by organized effort the penny can be made to accumulate into dollars, the dollars into hundreds, the hundreds into thousands, the thousands into millions for the betterment of every man, woman and child in this country. Health is the greatest national asset, more valuable than all else combined. Without health everything else is in vain.

Mrs. Charles S. Fairclough

The funeral of Mrs. Charles S. Fairclough was held at her home, No. 10 Rock street, Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and the service was conducted by Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church. The burial was in Maplewood cemetery and the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Brown. The bearers were friends and there was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes. Many relatives and friends attended the funeral, the arrangements for which were in charge of Undertakers Church and Allen.

Mrs. John J. Donohue

With a very large attendance of relatives and friends the funeral of Mrs. John J. Donohue, wife of Dr. Donohue, was held Monday morning at 8:20 o'clock at her home in Uncasville. There was a solemn requiem mass at St. John's church at 9 o'clock. The celebrant was Rev. James A. O'Meara, Rev. Michael Regan was the deacon and Rev. James Timmin of Hartford, was the sub-deacon. Miss Helen Gainey presided at the organ and at the offertory the choir sang Pie Jesu. The waiting hymn was, When Evening Comes, and the recessional hymn, Lead, Kindly Light. The burial was in St Patrick's cemetery, Uncasville, and Rev. Father O'Meara conducted the committal service.

The bearers were Dr. John D. Donohue, James Donohue, William Donohue, Charles Donohue, sons; John McNevin and Peter Reilly of Providence. The large attendance included mourners from New York city, Syracuse, Boston, Providence, New London and other places and there was a wealth of beautiful flowers and many spiritual bouquets. A delegation from the Rosary and Scapula society attended. Hourigan Bros. had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Miss Hattie E. Lyon

The funeral of Miss Hattie E. Lyon was held Sunday afternoon at undertaking parlors in Providence and burial was in Swan Point cemetery. Miss Lyon, who was a native of East Woodstock, this state, the daughter of Elisha L. and Rebecca Peters Lyon, died Friday at the home of her nephew, Sumner E. Lyon, at 166 Wheeler avenue, Edgewood, Providence.

Passed Dentistry Examination

Benjamin Sachner of this city was one of 15 applicants for dentistry licenses who were passed by the state commission Monday. Herman L. Weisler of Uncasville also passed.

Ruth K. O'Brien, Groton; Lillian Rich and Beatrice A. Ockooneff, both of New London, were among 13 who qualified as licensed hygienists.

"Round Hill Farm" the Title

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Palmer, who reside on the well known Round Hill farm in the town of Lisbon, experienced a thrill of pleasure recently when visiting Mrs. Annette Stillman Miner of Westerly, when she presented them a book of which she is the author and which she had named "Round Hill Farm." It is an entertaining story of New England farm life, with an element of mystery that is well worked out.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Miss Alif Stephens, of Pinehurst, has returned after a weekend visit in Hartford.

The meeting of the Monday Sewing club was held with Miss Isabel H. Mitchell, of Broad street.

The Monday Auction club deferred its meeting and will be entertained this (Tuesday) afternoon by Miss Louise P. Bailey, of Elm avenue.

Friends from Norwich will go to New London Thursday afternoon, when Mrs. Jensen, wife of Dr. Gerard E. Jensen, of Connecticut college, is giving a

NEW LONDON Y. M. C. A. DECIDES TO DROP FOUR MEN HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 9.—As a result of a long endeavor to reduce the operating expenses of the Y. M. C. A., the directorate has decided to dispense with the service of four heads of departments within the next six months. This decision has been reached following a survey last summer by J. W. McCandless, secretary for administrative service of the national council of the Y. M. C. A. The heads of the four departments who will be relieved of duty are: Physical director, A. B. Dawson; financial and recording secretary, Joseph A. Dalton; boys' secretary, Herbert Hicks, and army and navy secretary, Harry W. Rafferty.

Case Continued Again

In the Groton town court this morning, Mrs. Florence Frankhouse, Poquonoc Bridge, was presented on a charge of reckless driving. The case was continued until Monday next. An automobile Mrs. Frankhouse was driving Aug. 19 last, struck Mrs. Mary Floyd, Brandegee avenue. Partial testimony has already been taken and the remainder of the witnesses will be examined next week.

John Murray, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was charged with failing to grant right of way. A nolle was ordered when Murray paid the costs of court, $2.55. The nolle was made possible by Charles Wichett, New Haven, having notified the court that the damage to his automobile, which was the result of the car Murray was driving colliding with it, was to be defrayed by the Brooklyn man.

Let Their $50 Bonds Go

Henry Howard, New York, and Edward Baro, Somerville, Mass., were charged with reckless driving. Neither driver appeared in court so both bonds of $50 were declared forfeited.

LORETTA BEEBE THE CAUSE OF THREE MEN'S FINES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 9. — Frank Strickland, Quaker Hill, and Arthur Camp, Stephen Tracy and John Moore, United States Coast Guard, were in Waterford town court this afternoon, charged with breach of the peace and all were fined. The men were arrested Sunday afternoon by State Police Officers Donald Brown and John Wallin upon complaint of Loretta Beebe, who has been in the spotlight twice recently and who has been housekeeper for Strickland. Camp, Tracy and Moore went to the Quaker Hill house Sunday and after the men had drank freely of liquor a row started, during which, Miss Beebe claimed, she had been abused. She made complaint at the state police barracks and the quartet was arrested. Miss Beebe first appeared before the spotlight about a month ago when Charles Gore, a coast guarder, committed suicide by swallowing a bichloride tablet because the woman spurned his attentions. Ten days later, she and Carl Trump, a sailor, were arrested at a local hotel where they were occupying a room as man and wife. Trump and the Beebe woman were fined $10 and costs in the police court.

LETTER CARRIER BLAKE IS CRITICALLY ILL

John Blake, of Tilley street, one of the oldest letter carriers in term of service in the local department, is critically ill at Lawrence Memorial hospital, having suffered a shock Sunday. His condition was serious from the start and it did not improve within the subsequent 24 hours. Mr. Blake had performed daily duty until the time of being stricken and his entire right side is affected.

Driver Alfred Harvey Ill

Alfred Harvey, driver of the Ponemoc Hose company aerial truck, was stricken with appendicitis Sunday and is now a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital, where his condition is reported as critical. Mr. Harvey was taken to the hospital immediately after his case was diagnosed, but the appendix broke before he could be operated upon.

The recently elected officers of Ohave Sholem were installed at the Bilman street synagogue Sunday night and were: President, Julius Dareb; vice president, Abraham Shapiro; secretary, Samuel Shifreen; treasurer, Morris Federman; recording secretary, Joseph Shepstein. Following the installation ceremony, a banquet was served.

Company Not To Move

A persistent report that the plant of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries, Groton, was shortly to be removed to either New Haven or Bridgeport, is denied by L. F. Kedzie, manager of the Groton plant. Not only does Manager Kedzie stamp the report as untrue, but he said that the company was contemplating making alterations that would result in an increase of the product of the company. The report of the transfer of location of plant, it is believed, originated when the Shell Petroleum company purchased a section of the land owned by the fisheries company. The land acquired by the petroleum company is well to the east of the fisheries, where a spur track from Midway enters the yard, an adjunct essential to the successful conduct of the petroleum company's business.

Frederick King, of Fog Plain road, Waterford, was arrested Sunday by State Police Officer Frederick Johnson in Montville, on a charge of speeding. Today King was presented in a justice court and fined $10 and costs.

John W. Burrell, of Westerly, was arrested in Stonington Sunday by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh, charged with improper use of automobile registration markers. He will explain in Stonington town court Tuesday.

Borlick Pavelski, of Old Mystic, was arrested in Stonington Sunday by State Police Officer Arthur Kathe, charged with reckless driving and will be in Stonington town court tomorrow.

LEBANON MAN'S CASE IS CONSIDERED HOPELESS

The condition of Fernando Santuri, of Palmer, Mass., employed by the Central Vermont railroad at Lebanon, who was seized by illness while attending a motion picture performance in New London Saturday evening, is now critical at Lawrence Memorial hospital. Santuri is suffering from shock and internal hemorrhages. So far as is known Santuri has no relatives in this country.

IODINE DOSE HARMLESS TO DESTROYER'S FIREMAN

P. M. Cassidy, fireman, third class, a member of the crew of the United States Coast Guard destroyer Shaw, will not die as a result of having swallowed a quantity of iodine Sunday afternoon. His condition at Lawrence Memorial hospital tonight was said to be favorable and to all appearance the sailor was out of danger.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Dwyer, 139 Crystal avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Viola Catherine Dwyer, to Emil W. Charette, of Cambridge, Mass. The wedding will be solemnized next month.

Mrs. D. J. Daly, Dow court, has gone to her former home in Wauregan, because of the death of her mother, Mrs. Paul Chagnon.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Arthur M. Beebe

Mrs. Edith G. Beebe, wife of Arthur M. Beebe, died Sunday at her home, 5 Brooks street. Besides her husband, Mrs. Beebe is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Henry Wright, of this city. Mrs. Beebe was born in Niantic but had resided in New London many years. She was a member of New London Methodist Episcopal church.

Mrs. Edward Habenstein

Mrs. Adelia T. Habenstein, 83, widow of Edward Habenstein, died Sunday at her home on Thames street, Groton, after a lingering illness due to infirmities attending her advanced years. Mrs. Habenstein was born in New York, Jan. 1, 1846. Prior to taking up her residence in New London she resided in Hartford.

Perigine Panceira, of Old Mystic; Edward Ross, U. S. Coast Guard; Mrs. Benjamin Cullen, 578 Thames street, Groton; Mrs. John Rynoszko and infant daughter, 144 Connecticut avenue; Mrs. Sarah Wentworth, 568 Montauk avenue; Mrs. DeWitt Sizer and infant daughter, 202 Ocean avenue; Mrs. Henry Sparks, 275 Huntington street; Mrs. Paul Mallach, 17 Grand street; Mrs. William Chico and infant daughter, 105 Bank street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were dismissed Sunday and today.

Mrs. George R. Morris

The funeral of Mrs. Lillian C. Morris, wife of George R. Morris, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from her residence, 143 Ocean avenue, and was attended by a large number of mourners, among whom were delegations of the several organizations of which Mrs. Morris was a member. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. The bearers were Henry R. Tisdale, Colin S. Buell, Alfred Coit, Henry Wagner, J. Warren Gay and Dr. Hill F. Warren. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. John Piotrowski

The funeral of Mary, wife of John Piotrowski, of Oakdale, was held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. John's church, Uncasville, the mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. Walter Kenney, of Hartford. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery, Uncasville.

Yolanda Orizetti

The funeral of Yolanda Orizetti, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlo Orizetti, of Uncasville, was held at 10:45 o'clock this morning at St. John's church, Montville. The mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Michael Regan, of this city. The bearers were Gordon Eldridge, Harold Martin, Paul Scagnon, Frank Morosky, John Paganoni and Frederick Eldridge. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery, Uncasville.

Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell, in passing through Pequot avenue Sunday night, discovered a fire in the rear of the Eastern Dairies, Inc., Pequot avenue. On investigation he found a gang of youths amusing themselves with a bonfire. The material for the fire was new shingles which the youths stole from a nearby house under construction. The youths were brought to police headquarters and delivered into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Meyer Boyer

Mrs. Fannie Boyer, about 72, widow of Meyer Boyer and mother of Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer, died Sunday at her home on Prospect street. She had been in feeble health for a long time. The funeral was held at 11 o'clock this morning at the Hebrew synagogue, Federal street, and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. Burial was in the Hebrew cemetery, Jordan.

CHRISTMAS RUM-RUNNERS BROUGHT IN FROM PLUM GUT

United States Coast Guard patrol boats, which are active in Long Island, Fishers Island and Block Island sounds for rum-runners because of the approach of Christmas, were rewarded Saturday night by the capture of two fishing boats, the Constance and Estelle in Plum Gut, the entrance to Gardner's bay. The two boats and their cargoes and crews were brought into port and within a day or two will be taken to New York and delivered to the customs authorities. The capture of the rum-runners was made by the crew of the patrol boat, 283, in command of chief boatswain's mate, Frederick Edgecomb. Only a small quantity of liquor was found on either boat. It is the theory of the crew of the rum-chaser that the boats had unloaded the major portion of their cargoes and were seeking another port to unload the remainder when sighted and captured by the patrol boat.

Tars Pay For Being Fresh

Three members of the United States Coast Guard, who participated in a peculiar form of amusement Sunday night, also today realized that it was a costly diversion. The sailors, Harry O. Schmoor, Wilfred E. Benson and Kenneth Smith, state pier, were fined $25 and costs in the police court today on a charge of breach of the peace. The blue-jackets were on Main street about midnight and had been drinking. When near Douglass street, the sailors took delight in hurling several parking signs that stood beside the curb, into the highway. Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin, Patrolmen Arthur Feeley and Michael Dorsey arrested the sailors.

David A. McDonald and Robert J. Gildea, strangers, were in court on a charge of train riding. Neither was over 23, so Deputy Judge John McGarry ordered the young men delivered into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. They were provided with partial means by which they could return to their home.

Fadey Rotsko, 76 John street, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in passing an automatic danger signal at Crystal avenue and Main street. The driver failed to appear in court, so forfeited his bond of $10.

Frank Reese, submarine base, charged with driving without a license, failed to present himself in court and forfeited his bond of $5.

George King, U. S. Coast Guard, was charged with evasion of responsibility, but the complaint was nolled. King was arrested several days ago upon complaint of Russell H. Beckwith, Meridian street garage proprietor. Beckwith's auto was parked on Main street and it was struck by King's machine. Instead of stopping to determine the damage caused by the collision, King was not interested in the damage, but wanted to engage Beckwith in a fist fight.

Part With Their $2

Mary R. Leonard, River road, Mystic; J. A. Johnson, Essex street, Deep River; Antone Chabot, 50 Chicago avenue, Groton; Philip F. Miller, Waterford; John L. Buzby, were charged with violation of the parking laws. None of them appeared in court so their respective bonds of $2 were declared forfeited.

Ernest Coe, truck driver, residing on Huntington street, was charged with fraud. His case was continued to Jan. 9 and in the meantime the accused has promised to pay for his fraudulent act. Coe purchased a suit of clothes on the installment plan and then sold them to a friend.

Three cases of intoxication were tried. Two of the men were discharged and the third was fined $10 and costs.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Beginning tomorrow the Palace theatre leads the way to bigger and better screen entertainment in Norwich by presenting another first-class double feature bill. The program starting Wednesday includes two first-run, all-talking hits, either one of which would be a big program in itself, and each of which has played alone to packed houses in the larger metropolitan centers.

She was just a clerk in the five-and-ten and he was a subway guard. Yet when they met at a party he succeeded in kidding her into thinking that he was a "traveling man," while she has him believing that she is on the stage.

Alice White in The Girl From Woolworth's

That is the opening situation of "The Girl From Woolworth's" which is one of the features on the coming Palace program. Alice White, pretty and alluring, is the star, and supporting her are Charles Delaney and Wheeler Oakman.

The other big feature on the bill is "Big News," a thundering story of murder in a metropolitan newspaper office, starring Robert Armstrong, Carol Lombard, Tom Kennedy and others. Here is vitality and excitement which you do not generally get in a motion picture. The breeziness, the spirit of the news rooms, is faithfully caught in this film and transferred to the audience, which cannot help getting into the spirit which animates the men and women who gather and write news for a great daily.

Today for the last time the Palace presents that graphic story of the secret loves, passions and lusts of an English household, "The Sacred Flame," an all-talking Warner Bros. classic from the pen of Somerset Maugham. Featured in the cast are Pauline Frederick, of Norwich; Conrad Nagle, Lila Lee and other stars. It is a memorable and unforgettable piece, a slice of high society life with all the frills ruthlessly stripped away.

May Reach Senate

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former Democratic governor of Wyoming, is being discussed as a candidate for the senate seat left vacant by the death of Senator Francis Warren. If elected, she would be the first woman to sit in the senate. In 1922, Mrs. Rebecca Felton, of Georgia, served for one day by special recognition.

Walworth county, South Dakota, shows an increase of 30,000 acres in farm land this year over last year.

POETRY

A Star In Flight

The darkling sky turned indigo;
A watcher of the night,
I noted countless stars appear;
It was a lovely sight!

Capella, Saturn, Sirius—
Too many far to name—
More, and yet more, flashed out and burned
Like bits of golden flame!

Then from that shining host it seemed
A star took sudden flight,
And singing on its way it went
A-winging through the night!

An airship, bearing mail, you say?
Ah, true it was—quite true,
Although it looked a star with wings
That flew across the blue.

—Louella C. Poole, in Boston Transcript.

Which Way Did Summer Go?

Which way did Summer go?
But yesterday I called her mine,
I felt her breath, like odorous wine
Full soft upon my waiting lips.
She pledged her faith and yet she slips
Away from me, leaving no sign.
O, winds that blow,
Which way did Summer go?

Which way did Summer go?
O, warm, brown hills, you saw her pass,
Her footsteps bent your dreaming grass
That lay, half-shadowed, half in light;
(I clasped her close but yesternight).
O, half-stilled brooks, you saw her pass,
O, birds, you know,
Which way did Summer go?

—Florence Jones Hadley, in The Pathfinder.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

FIRE AT WHITE ROCK INN EARLY MONDAY EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 9.—A fire, starting from unknown cause in a coal shed at the rear of Armour's inn, Mrs. Nonie Armour, proprietress, threatened with destruction the large frame building formerly the White Rock boarding house on Main street, White Rock, Monday night. A boarder, Claude Madren, looking from his upstairs bedroom window, saw the blaze and notified Mrs. Armour. She telephoned the Westerly fire station and the Ahrens-Fox pumper, with Engineer McKenzie and men, responded. When they reached White Rock the blaze looked threatening and one of the firemen pulled in the fire box, No. 77, at the White Rock mill office at 8:21 p. m. The Seagraves, with Engineer Pasetti, responded. At the inn, boarders with a garden hose kept the flames down until a line of fire hose from a street hydrant put out the blaze. The chef had left the coal-house at 6 p. m. and there was no indication of a fire at that time. So rapidly did the blaze spread that paint on the kitchen ell of the house, six feet distant, was badly scorched. The inn boarders were of great help in keeping down the blaze. The damage is covered by insurance. The recall sounded at 9:12 p. m.

WIFE IS GIVEN ONLY $100 IN ALIENATION SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 9.—In the superior court for Washington county, before Justice Charles A. Walsh today in opening the case, Attorney McKenna for the plaintiff, stated that suit was brought for $5,000 by Mrs. Bertha A. Jencks, wife of Samuel Jencks, residents of Hopkinton, against Mrs. Rosie Gardiner, of Hope Valley, R. I. The defendant was housekeeper for Mr. Jencks, since Nov. 16, 1927, also drove the mail auto for Mr. Jencks, mail carrier from Rockville, R. I., to Hope Valley.

The plaintiff, Mrs. Jencks, testified that she married Mr. Jencks in December, 1897, and outside of several misunderstandings they had purchased property and got along together fairly well until about two years ago when she was taken ill and Mrs. Rosie Gardiner was brought into the house hold as nurse and housekeeper. The latter had a room upstairs in the house on which floor her husband had his room, while witness slept on the first floor. She saw her husband and Rosie in bed and when she had remonstrated with him he stated that it would not happen again. Not only again did this happen, but she saw them hug and kiss each other. She testified that she had been a steady worker in the mill and later had helped her husband in carrying the mail. Following her last quarrel with her husband she had been taken to the home of her son, Frederick E. Jencks of Hopkinton, in an auto by Mrs. Rosie Gardiner and her husband, and left by the roadside. She returned once to her former home to secure her clothes. She said at the Hope Valley carnival held by the grange she had seen her husband and Rosie walking arm and arm and enjoying the music and refreshments. On cross examination by Mr. Davis it developed that she had left her husband on four or five occasions and that he had gone and brought her back, except after the last quarrel. Her son, Frederick E. Jencks, and his wife, Mrs. Della May Jencks, testified that they had seen the car driven by Mrs. Rosie Gardiner parked on a shady street in Hope Valley and when lights of their car were turned on the defendants had come over a stone wall by the roadside, arranging their clothes. She had also seen them at the United theatre in Westerly with their arms around each other. Nellie F. Gardiner, sister of Mrs. Jencks, testified that she had seen "Sam and Rosie" at Kingston fair, walking arm in arm and Catherine M. Burdick of Centerville, near Rockville, R. I., a neighbor, had seen them together about the house "actin' like a couple a courtin'."

Defense witnesses were Mrs. Rosie E. Gardiner, respondent; Mrs. Delia Reynolds, a neighbor; Mrs. Harriet Tourtelotte, aunt of Sam, who had been ordered from the home by Mrs. Jencks; Samuel Jencks, husband of plaintiff, all with general denials, the last named admitting the loss of operator's license from drunken driving and inability to read or write except to sign his own name.

Following pleas by Attorneys Davis and McKenna, the jury retired and at 6:20 p. m. returned to the court room with the announcement by Foreman Pierce that they had agreed — Mrs. Rosie Gardiner had stolen Samuel Jencks' affections from his wife, whom he claimed he had not loved for 30 years) and damages were set at $100 and costs.

Macomber—Huter

Frank N. Macomber, of 45 Highland avenue, was united in marriage Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Miss Emily Huter of Westerly, by Rev. Byron Dirk Hatfield, pastor of the First Baptist church. The ceremony took place at 11 Summer street, the newly-furnished home of Mr. and Mrs. Macomber, the house being decorated with chrysanthemums, palms and laurel. The bride was attired in a brown traveling costume and carried bronze chrysanthemums. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Adolph Schmidt, who was also in brown, carrying pink chrysanthemums. The bridegroom's brother, Stephen W. Macomber, was best man. About 25 relatives and friends were present. The bride received many gifts. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Macomber left on a wedding trip to Boston.

MISS MARY E. STUCKEY DIES SUDDENLY MONDAY

Monday, in Westerly, Miss Mary E. Stuckey, 68, died suddenly. She was a resident of Shelter Harbor, formerly Misquamicut. She was the daughter of the late Dr. Charles F. and Barbara Stuckey. Miss Stuckey was at Shelter Harbor with her nieces, Misses Marie and Bertha Miller. They have an apartment in New York also. Miss Stuckey has been ill for two weeks and Sunday night was removed to an apartment on Chestnut street where she died unexpectedly Monday morning.

School Contest In Seals Sales

A tuberculosis stamp sale contest has been inaugurated in the public and parochial schools of Westerly in the sale of Christmas seals for the support of the local Visiting Nurse association. Miss Augusta Stanton was selected chairman of the campaign by a committee of which Supt. W. H. Bacon of the public schools is chairman. At the beginning of the campaign Miss Stanton distributed 80,000 seals among the school children. At the close of the first week the children of the Elm street school were leading in the contest with the sale of 15,000 seals. West Broad street school is second, having disposed of 12,000.

Reports from the other schools are: Park avenue, 6000; High street, 3500; Quarry Hill, 2500; Beach street, 2200; Parochial, 2000; Pleasant street, 1500; Dunn's Corners, 1300; White Rock, 800. Two schools, Chestnut street and Bradford school, have not yet sent in reports.

In addition to sale of seals by the children, health bonds are being sold throughout the business section of the town by Miss Stanton, assisted by a committee, Esther Sherman, Katherine Perry, Anne Carr, Kate Virginia Cottrell, Alden Stanton and Harry Bairs.

FALL RIVER STRIKEBREAKERS COMING TO BRADFORD

The meeting of Bradford strikers did not adjourn until 4:30 p. m. Monday. Before the adjournment the Westerly police car with force of policemen and a riot gun passed Burdick's hall, where the strikers gathered, on its way to the plant. It was reported that some 50 strikebreakers from Fall River are to be brought to Bradford this (Tuesday) morning to take the places of the strikers. Notice to vacate the tenement houses belonging to the Bradford Dyeing association has been prepared and will be served probably Wednesday. The house it is said, will be needed by workers, who are coming into the plant to take the places of the strikers. The present occupants of the houses would be given the usual legal time in which to vacate the property.

Monday night it was current talk that strikebreakers were taken by bus Monday morning from the Hotel Martin in Westerly to the B. D. A. plant at Bradford and returned to Westerly by bus at closing time Monday night. This (Tuesday) morning more strikebreakers are expected to go to Bradford where the striking employes, in double picket duty, bearing white cloth signs, announce to all observers that a strike is in progress.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Smith have returned to Hartford.

Francis P. O'Brien returned Sunday to his duties with the Travelers' Insurance Co., Hartford, after the week end spent with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. O'Brien.

The pastor's report was followed by reports from officers of the Epworth League church school, Ladies' Aid society and Woman's Home Missionary society, with statements from the treasurer and connectional steward.

It was voted to make the goal for World Service the same as last year, also the salary of the pastor to remain the same.

R. I. Hurlbutt was elected trier of appeals.

A report on the new parsonage was given by the treasurer, Mrs. D. C. Perkins and was accepted for record. The minutes of the session were read by the recording steward and the meeting adjourned subject to call.

Several members of the Roller club were entertained for the day last week by Mrs. Emil A. Gunuskey at her home in the Long Cove district. The members present, Mrs. Avery W. Main and Mrs. Joseph H. Davidson of the Stoddard district and Miss Mabel Smith of the village, were occupied tying quilts.

Mrs. Charles H. Winchester and Mrs. J. Otis Winchester of Norwich, summer residents of the village, visited Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins Friday.

Able to Leave Hospital

Frank A. Davis, who has been a patient for two weeks at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, has returned to his home in the village.

Cecil Womack, who with Mrs. Womack has resided in the village for a few years while stationed at the Submarine base, has been advanced recently to chief electrician and transferred to Annapolis. The Blythe family has moved from the Prentice apartments to the Moxley cottage on the Military highway vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Womack.

Mrs. William B. L. Cranston, of Norwich, has been spending some time with Mrs. James A. Stoddard at Long Cove.

Miss Stratton at Meeting

Miss Gladys E. Stratton, of the Connecticut Agricultural college extension service, was present at a meeting of the local farm bureau group Thursday at the home of Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, and gave an interesting talk on kitchen equipment and its arrangements. Luncheon was served during the noon intermission. Others present included Mrs. Jerome Greer, Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt, Mrs. Joseph P. DeRusha, Mrs. Everett Noyes, Mrs. Chester E. Dimick and Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins.

Tax Collector John W. Finegan, clerk of Ledyard and Mrs. Finegan, were at the store of Norman and Povey, the past week, to receive personal taxes from the residents in this vicinity. A penalty of $1 will be added to each account if not paid by December 15th.

Larsen-Goodell

Mr. and Mrs. Trenor Franklin Goodell, of Dighton, Mass., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Starr, and Dr. Carl Christian Larsen, of Boston, Wednesday, Nov. 27, 1929. The bride is a niece of Mrs. Jerome Greer and has visited at the parsonage. Dr. Larsen also has relatives here, being a nephew of Mrs. Andrew P. Miller.

W. R. Earp, chief electrician on the Submarine O-7, who has been transferred recently to Portsmouth, N. H., for six weeks, motored here Saturday to pass the week end with his family.

Activities at the local church for the week include a meeting and social of the Epworth League chapter Wednesday evening at the church and an all day session of the Ladies' Aid society Thursday at the vestry. Seven quilts are to be tied.

L. F. Doyle of Mystic was a caller on local relatives Sunday.

LIFE ON A LIGHTSHIP HARD BUT HAS ITS THRILLS

The crew of cornfield lightship has it hard during the winter months and see some of the worst storms of the seven seas. One day, recently, the waves were coming in fast and like a roaring lion. Half of the crew were seasick and one fellow, Fred Philips who has played in a row boat or a rain hole since he was 6 years old, was some sick and wished he was home. The cook, Dale Aldrick, was giving them the old salt water laugh, and said " do you fellows want a fat pork sandwich??"

As the day was getting dark, Seaman Bernard Carson, on watch, saw a monster fish coming along with the water blowing high in the air. It was rough and the ship sure was tossing. He made out a monster whale coming for the lightship. So Watchman Carson rang the signal and all hands were soon on deck. The whale was long, about 95 to 100 feet for a guess. With a swing of its tail it hit the ship and almost tipped it over. The crew was scared and when the whale got out of sight Assistant Cook Lawrence Gildersleeve said, "what else it this lightship going to see, and make us swim? How did that whale get in so close to our ship and shore?" "Well," Oller Phillips said, "I have seen sharks and monster swordfish but this is the first time I ever saw such a monster whale! Must be enough of rubber in that whale to make a 1,000 pairs of rubber boots!"

Every day they get a Bulletin to read Stretch Morrison's stories and Cook Aldrich said, "that is better than going to a show, for we all get a good kick out of them stories and pass away over an hour to read the Bulletin. Some days we don't go ashore on account of the high seas, but no matter how old a Bulletin is it sure has the good news from everywhere."

There is a radio on board to tell what the outside world is doing. The life of a sailor on a lightship is no easy job—on watch, with snow storms and waves breaking over the boat. An orchestra of five fellows has been formed, under the leadership of Lawrence Gildersleeve, who led an orchestra for over fifteen years in Chicago and traveled all over the world, taking many first prizes in their yellow Japan suits. Bernard Carson, with a strong pair of lungs plays a saxophone, and Fred Philips, who is good with a pair of chop sticks that can swing the rice in his wast paper basket, is the drummer. Dale Aldrich, who has long fingers at mixing cornbread, is the man at the piano and sure can make it talk, and Mike Oldring, a young fellow that has let his hair grow long, is a violin player, and the blonde-haired leader, Lawrence Gildersleeve, is good on the cornet and has more wind than an underwater swimmer. In the summer time and during the summer the Lightship Big Five orchestra is playing on deck and those big steam yachts stopped and listened to the orchestra, for the music is sweet and they will dance on deck of the yachts and long after the moon goes to bed the Big Five is still playing. The fish are played to sleep and the lightship is not lonesome while Leader Gildersleeve can get his orchestra in shape. Bernard Carson and Cook Aldrich are champion bridge players and will take on any best players. The Aunt Sarah Peabody club have been taken on for Christmas day, the losers paying for the Leyyard goose raised by Austin Lamb. Eddie Burns and O Foote will take that bet, and will play at the lightship or at the Aunt Sarah Peabody club any time those two sailors can get their liberty from Uncle Sam. It will be known next week. Manager Lawrence Sullivan is looking out for O. Foote and Eddie Burns, while Fred Philips is backing his men up to win. There will be a big time when those four bridge players meet and a lightship haddock chowder will be served by Steward E Hiscock of the Aunt Sarah Peabody club.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

Kindness to Animals.

There is a lesson all should learn:
'Tis one that is of great concern
To all God's other creatures round;
In simple kindness it is found:
To guard them all with gentle heart,
Thus helping them to play their part
Until they're all our grateful friends;
'Tis sweetest grace that heaven sends.

God places these creatures in our care
That in earth's blessings they may share;
They are our servants, to be sure,
If that relation long endure.
'Twill be because we rule to bless
And serve each other's happiness,
For they have rights as well as we
That we must keep clear eyes to see.

Our serving beasts and birds respond;
If we are kind they all grow fond,
It is from us they take their cue
'Tis just the same with me, with you.
Our daily actions they will note,
Will follow us as if by rote.
The spirit which we daily live
Will dictate service they will give.
I quite agree with Rowland Hill—
A man's religion counts but nill
Whose beasts and fowls will run with fear,
For if our lives are ruled by love,
We draw from God's great heart above:
There's in us naught to give alarm,
And birds and beasts display their charm.

—Louis Albert Banks, LL. D.

Cruelty.

She crouched outside my door at break of dawn,
A half-starved cat so very gaunt and thin;
Her eyes were piteous and her strength was gone—
A snow-storm raged, and so I took her in.

I fed her—kept her till the storm had ceased,
Then turned her out, but she was loath to go;
I'm wondering now if pity and a feast
Were better friends than hunger and the snow.

—Margaret E. Bruner.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE WAKES

Now that Thanksgiving has come and gone, all children are looking forward to the arrival of Christmas, with its beautifully decorated Christmas trees and gifts. The German children were the first to behold the Christmas tree. At first, way up in the north, the land of the reindeer, ice and snow, the pine tree was used by the people of that region to hang gifts upon for their gods. When the Christian missionaries visited this land of myth and drove the old gods out for a time, the tree of presents was lost sight of.

The gifts made on the birthday of the Christ were at first for the priests of the church, for whom Christmas boxes were made up. Then the Christmas box became a family affair and gifts were exchanged in this way in the middle ages. The Germans discovered Santa Claus for the children and used the pine tree to hang presents upon hundreds of years ago, and still on Christmas eve there is a Christmas tree in every house in Germany.

Most of you probably do not know that it was a little girl who inspired the Christmas song, Christians Awake! Salute the Happy Morn. It was 247 years ago that John Byron of Manchester, England, was playing with his little daughter, Dolly, and he promised to write her something pretty for Christmas morning, and she found this old popllar song in an envelope on her plate Christmas morning and this Christmas carol has been sung since 1682.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY THE WIDE AWAKES.

Rover Saved the Chicks.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide Awake circle will enjoy my story. I am going to tell you about my dog and chickies.

I had a dog named Rover and three baby chickies. Every day I gave food to them. One day the chickies were tied up together, and a man was carrying them. I told the man to give them to me but he said he was going to sell them. I called my dog Rover and told him to bite the man. Rover bit the man's arm and the man let the string go. I caught the string and began running. I told my mother and she said that I did well.

A Flock of Bluebirds.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am going to tell you how a flock of bluebirds said good-bye to me.

About two weeks ago as I was coming down the road not far from my school I saw a flock of bluebirds sitting on a tree.

They were singing with all their might. It seemed as if they were saying good bye to me. As I came nearer they all flew away. I was very sorry, as I was about to sit down on a rock and watch them. I hope you and the "Wide Awakes" will enjoy reading my story about: "The Bluebird's Good-Bye to Me."

Whenever we get the Norwich Bulletin I always look to see if the "Wide Awake Circle" is in it, because I always enjoy reading it.

Coal.

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to the Wide Awake circle for a long time so I thought I would write. I am going to tell you and the Wide Awakes about coal. Coal is one of the most valuable products of our mines. It is used for heating houses and for cooking, and also in the furnaces of steam engines and in making of iron and steel. It is a mineral which is dug out of deep, dark mines far below the surface of the ground.

Coal is made of parts of plants which ages ago grew on the surface of low swampy ground. As these plants died and fell, they soon covered the ground with thick layers of vegetable matter. After a while these layers were covered with water which washed mud and sand over them until they were deeply buried. In time the buried vegetable layers were pressed into coal.

A Thanksgiving Play.

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to you for a long time. But I enjoyed reading letters from other children. So I am writing one now.

Wednesday morning we went in the auditorium to have a program. Every room took part. Our room had a play, the name of it being "The Landing of the Pilgrims". The fifth grade had the first part. Our room had the second part. One boy was Governor Bradford and some girls and boys were Indians. Some other girls including myself were Pilgrim ladies. We had to set the table. The Indians were smoking a peace pipe. All the children liked the play.

The Sick Chicken.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about a sick chicken. She had weak legs and could hardly walk. The other chickens picked her head till it bled. When it was better the chickens picked it some more till it got so bad that my brother put some salve on it and tied a rag on it. She looked like she had a sunbonnet on. It got well quite quick. After we took the rag off the chickens picked it some more. Then we had to shut her up in a coop so the chickens couldn't pick her any more. We kept her under there quite a long time. Sometimes the horses would come and tip the coop over and the chickens would pick her again. After a while she could walk pretty good. One night my mother smelled a skunk and the next day the chicken was gone.

Then my mother thought the skunk caught her. She was gone for about three days. We never expected to see her again. Then I saw her out by the door. She was almost starved. My mother gave her some corn and she couldn't see to pick it up very good. I guess the eye that was picked so much is almost blind. We thought she went off to find something to eat and couldn't find the way home.

A Conversation.

Dear Uncle Jed: One night I went to the library to get a good book. I usually went up the second floor and here I would pore over books until my heart's content. I was making my selection when I heard a conversation in a room beyond. I got behind the door, not intending to eavesdrop but anxious to know who it was. Peering through the door I saw seven books seated at a table conversing in angry tones. "I don't see why you should have been mad," Mr. History was saying to Miss Reading Book, a pretty, delicate being who was proud and fussy. "Don't insult me sa" exclaimed Miss Reading Book, getting purple in the face with rage and almost falling out of her chair in excitement. "Oh! my patience", groaned Mr. Geography, who had the gout, "why are you quarreling? I used to be good when I was young but now I'm so old, but I'm not saying I'm no good because I am," and he subsided into a series of groans. There was silence and Miss English, a cross old spinster, spoke: "I should think someone would put in a good word about me, I use such good English," who was provoked at the silence. Mr. Arithmetic, smiling wisely, during the conversation, arose and taking Miss Reading's arm, they left, walking daintily away. So the company paired off, Mr. Geography taking Miss English, etc. As their voices grew faint and I was still behind the door. I soon tiptoed back to the reading room. Quickly selecting a book I walked slowly homeward still thinking of what I had overheard.

Cotton.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time that I have written to you. I am going to tell you about cotton. The greatest cotton-producing region in the world is located in the southern states, where the climate is warm.

The cotton crop requires the help of thousands of people. In the fields there is the work of planting, cultivating, and harvesting. The cotton fiber must be picked from the bolls by hand and carried to the cotton gins, where the lint cotton is separated from the seeds and baled. It is then ready for market.

The seeds of the cotton are sold to the oil mills. In the mills the seeds are first put through a process by which all the short lint left on them by the gin is removed. This is called linters and is used for making mattresses and guncotton, and for other purposes. The hulls are then removed from the seed. The cotton seed hulls make excellent feed for cattle and are nearly as valuable for this purpose as hay. The oil is then pressed out of the seed. Cottonseed oil is used as a substitute for olive oil and lard and for other purposes.

The residue of the seed, after the oil has been extracted, is called cottonseed oil cake; this cake is ground into meal, and cottonseed meal is used for cattle feed and for fertilizer. It is very rich in nitrogen and is largely used in commercial fertilizers for furnishing this element. The southern cotton plantations have a dangerous enemy in the cotton boll weevil, an insect which attacks the cotton plant and destroys the fibers in the boll. The United States government is making a great effort to kill off these insects in the areas where they have established themselves, and to prevent their causing further damage by spreading to other cotton-growing districts.

More and more of the cotton grown in the southern states is now being manufactured into cloth in the south. The cotton mills are operated by water power, steam and hydro-electric power.

The Pilgrims.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you the imaginative picture in my mind about "The Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers".

It is a cold December day in 1620. A boat by the name of the Mayflower has landed on the stern and rock-bound coast of New England. As the small rought-built boat, touched the shore the people inside came out and knelt on the sand. They are praising God for bringing them over safely across the deep gray sea. They have not come to conquer or to gain pride but to live in peace and worship as they please.

The only greeting they received was the bowing of massive oak trees and eagles soaring overhead. Thus far they got what they wanted, "freedom to worship God".

Going to Hartford.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I wrote to you. My sister wrote and won a book. So I am trying my best to get one.

One Sunday afternoon we started for Hartford. The time passed very quickly and we were there in no time. We had a very hard time to find the street we were looking for. We had passed the street but did not know it. We could not find it so we had to inquire. We soon found it and went to see a lady. When we got to her house it began to snow and we were delighted. But when we started for home it began to rain. Then to our amazement the sun came out. You can imagine our disappointment. But we had gotten to Hartford in safety and back home again.

PROFIT-TAKING AND BEAR PRESSURE MADE MARKET CLOSE REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The recovery of stock prices received a set-back today. Last week's bull movement was carried over into the early hours of the session, but profit taking, combined with bear pressure, poured into the market in increasing volume as the day wore on, and turned the trend distinctly downward before the close.

The cross currents of activity swelled the day's turnover to the comparatively large volume of 5,018,050 shares, as compared to 4,714,800 on Friday. Gains of 2 to 8 points among leading shares, conspicuous during the morning, were largely replaced by net losses of similar extent at the close. The utilities and high priced industrials were emphatically heavy.

The reaction was received calmly in Wall street, as the market had grown ripe for a drop after last week's unexpectedly brisk upturn. Despite the revival of optimism regarding business prospects, current operations remain comparatively slack, and since their recent trying experiences, speculators have grown exceedingly wary about discounting the future very far in advance.

U. S. Steel was rushed up about 6 points during the early hours of the session to a new high for the recovery at 189, to the accompaniment of rumors of a special meeting of directors tomorrow to consider a splitup. It was learned, however, that only the regular meeting of the finance committee will be held tomorrow, and no directors' meeting is scheduled until late in January. The stock reacted and closed with a net loss of nearly 3 points.

Motors were given one of the most effective bullish whirls in months, in what appeared to be a pre-automobile show demonstration. Coppers also were put forward at the expense of a large short interest. Gains in these groups, however, were moderate, and were reduced by the late reaction.

Firming tendencies were again notable in the money market, and sterling exchange rose to the highest level in the past two years, with $4.88 1-8 quoted for cables. The beginnings of a gold movement to London appeared only to await advantageous steamer sailings, with the delays involved by the storms over the Atlantic apparently causing some hesitancy in completing transactions. Time money was firmer, with funds moving at 4 3-4 to 5 per cent., against a flat rate of 4 3-4 late last week. Call money held at 4 1-2 per cent.

Among stocks displaying pronounced heaviness included Allied Chemical, American Can, American and Foreign Power, American Telephone, American Water Works, A. M. Byers, Columbian Carbon, Eastman Kodak, General Electric, International Telephone, Simmons, Standard Gas, Timken Roller Bearing, U. S. Freight, Western Union, and Westinghouse Electric, closing with losses of 4 to nearly 9 points.

Rails were largely steady to firm. Delaware and Hudson and Chesapeake and Ohio closed 4 and 3 points higher. Similar gains were scored by Atchison and New York Central, but were lost before the close. General Motors and Anaconda gained about 4 points each, only to lose much of their advance. Chrysler was heavily bought on reports that negotiations were under way for the private placing of a large block of the stock which has been hanging over the market, but it closed unchanged after moving up a couple of points. Auburn shot up 31 points and closed 8 from the top.

Commodities were inclined to sag with stocks. Wheat futures slumped about 3 cents, influenced by bearish Argentine estimates and a disappointingly small decrease in the visible supply. Corn lost nearly a cent. The government cotton crop report was closely in line with expectations and inspired considerable profit taking. Closing prices were 40 cents to $1 a bale lower.

Outside of the further firmness of sterling, there were few developments of significance in the foreign exchange market. French francs and German marks were slightly easier, but still close to the outgoing gold points.

ONLY TWO BUILDING PERMITS WERE GRANTED IN NORWICH DURING PAST WEEK

During the past week there was a noticeable decrease in building in Norwich and vicinity. The snowfall of last week hampered outside work to a considerable extent but did not halt projects which had reached the interior stage.

At the office of Fire Marshal Henry E. Taft only two permits were granted and one application for a frame garage were received. December which is always a slack month as regards to building is showing a marked decrease when compared to other years. However, there has been a large amount of building done in Norwich during the past year and the number of permits will probably set a new high record for number if not for cost of building.

In the outskirts of the city considerable building has been done during the seven months of the year. This is especially noted in certain sections of the town. One of the sections that has been built up during the past year is the Harland road section. Here numerous houses have been erected and a number of others have been planned and will be started soon.

The permits granted by Fire Marshal Taft are as follows:

To Joseph J. Tomaino to build an addition to the present frame shed at the rear of 85 School street. The addition will be of frame construction with stone and cement foundation. When completed the shed will be 9x13 feet. The estimated cost is $25.

To A. N. Alexander to alter the present frame veranda on the house at 8 Swan avenue. The alterations included the housing in of the veranda and the setting of windows to make a sunparlor. The estimated cost is $200.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were five sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week, the same number as for the corresponding week in 1928. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $34,336 and $25,456.

In New London, during the past week, there were eight sales of real estate, two more sales than during the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $39,480 and $3,400.

New London

That the winter has not served to retard building operations in this city was further demonstrated this week when 24 more building permits were granted. These included five for new single family dwellings and two for two-family houses. The others were for garages, additions, alterations, etc.

Nearly every section of the city is represented in the sites for the seven new houses to be built. One is to be built in Ocean avenue, near Gardner avenue, another in Ocean avenue, near Hillside road, a third in St. Germain road, which runs between Montauk avenue and Pequot avenue, the fourth in Norwood avenue, the fifth in Blackhall street, the sixth in Ann street and the seventh in Oneco avenue.

Ground has been broken for a two-family house which is to be erected in Oneco avenue for Mrs. Jessie W. Monty. The new structure is to be 33 by 52 feet in dimension and of frame construction. Each floor is to contain six rooms and bath. Work is to be done by the day from private plans which specify all improvements and conveniences including steam heat, brass piping, hardwood floors throughout, automatic hot water and built in fixtures.

The steel for the new children's hospital annex to the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospital in Montauk avenue was delivered to the job early this week, bringing to an end some delay which had been encountered by the failure of the steel to arrive sooner. The foundations for the new addition have been completed and work is well under way on the erection of the first floor walls which are of brick construction. The addition will be four stories in height, of the same architectural design as prevailed in the construction of the main hospital building and the maternity building.

Taking advantage of all the good weather which has prevailed, the H. Valentine Lines company has made fine progress on the construction of the new administration building being erected for the Connecticut college. The first floor walls were practically up this week and the window frames were being set. The new structure is to be four stories high, of native granite and steel construction and class rooms. It is to be completed equipped to provide office space and for the opening of the college next fall. Several sub-contracts have been awarded to out-of-town concerns.

Building Permits

J. A. St. Germain, frame dwelling, St. Germain rd., $6,000.

Mrs. Jessie W. Monty, frame dwelling, 5 and 7 Oneco av., $8,000.

Thos. Moran, frame dwelling, Shirley park (Ocean nav.), $3,000.

Fred L. Watrous, frame dwelling, 114-116 Blackhall st., $10,000.

Thos. F. Moran, garage, Ocean av., $600.

Omer Payette, et al., garage, Rogers st., $500.

J. A. St. Germain, garage, St. Germain rd., $360.

Clarence W. Thompson, addition on dock, $300.

John Delbruno, concrete addition, 19 Hebron st., $3,000.

B. H. Bidwell, addition to garage, 35 Evergreen av., $400.

Maud M. Palmer, frame garage addition, 33 Pacific st., $300.

Total number of permits for the week, 15; estimated cost of buildings, $38,010.

Groton

Work is expected to start soon on the construction of an addition and alterations to the Groton police station. The garage on the north side of the building is to be reconstructed on a level with the ground floor of the station office is to be converted into a storeroom.

Stonington

Work on the new office building addition to the plant of the Atwood Machine company at Stonington, had progressed this week to the extent of starting the plastering. Work has already been completed on the construction of a new pattern shop for the plant. When the present office addition is completed, extensive alterations and remodeling of the old office space is planned. When all of the work is completed both the present office, which is to be renovated, and the new addition will be utilized for office space.

Westerly

Westerly Building Inspector Thomas Wills and Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi have issued the following building and zoning permits for the first of December:

Dec. 4. Vars Bros., Clarence A., and Raymond C., Bradford, R. I. Reshingle roof of barn of Mrs. Ruth Vars, near Bradford station of the New Haven railroad. Nu Art Tile Roofing Co. Norwich, contractors.

Dec. 6. John Cowle, Bradford, R. I. Reshingle roofs of buildings near Bradford, R. I., station of New Haven railroad. By owners. Both there properties sustained damages in the recent firing of the plant of the Bradford Box and Shook Co.

In reference to zoning matters a peculiar condition confronted Zoning Inspector Rossi the past week. He had received application from a Westerly building concern for a permit to build a house at Weekapaug but was unable to give the contractor the building line on which the house was to face. Reference to town council proceedings showed that last summer an application was received for the changing of the building line at the beach and a notice of a council hearing on the matter was given. There the records stopped and so far as could be learned no action was taken by the councilmen, or any record that the hearing was held. In the meantime several buildings have been erected on the new building line sought on which the question was not raised. On a very unpleasant day members of the council recalled that they visited the beach and looked over the proposed change and there further proceedings appeared to be entirely lost. It was to complete the town and zoning records that the council at its last regular December meeting, voted the establishment of the new building line at the beach.

BOND MARKET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The bond market held irregular today in a dull, thin session. Buying orders from important sources had dried up temporarily, for time money rates, which had been at 4 1-2 to 4 3-4, rose to 4 3-4 to 5 per cent., with most of the business at the latter level.

In the absence of demand, prices drifted lower in all groups and for the first time since the liquidation that accompanied the break in stocks The Associated Press combined average showed a decline. Losses, however, were minute in most instances.

United States government liberties and treasury notes, which had been climbing for a fortnight, sagged in response to the stiffer money rates. Declines in most of the listed issues were exceptionally small.

Rails lost a little ground, but supply and demand in this pivotal group seemed about equalized. Small declines in Atchison general 4s, Chesapeake & Ohio refunding 4 1-2s, Rock Island 4 1-2s, New York Central 5s and the St. Louis & San Francisco obligations were offset by advances in Atlantic Coast Line first 4s, New Haven debenture 4s, Nickel Plate 5s, Pennsylvania gold 5s, Northern Pacific general 3s and Reading general 4 1-2s. Some of the speculative and semi-speculative rails were fairly strong. Adjustment income bonds advanced.

The liberal mixture of gains and losses was just as apparent in the industrials and utilities. New York Telephone general 4 1-2s, Niagara Falls Power 6s, General Steel Castings 5s, 1929, and Allis Chalmers 5s lost about a point each, but numerous secondary issues in both groups made small gains.

Convertibles showed erratic fluctuations on the movement of stocks. Choice quotations were irregular with American Telephone 4 1-2s off 2 3-4, International Telephone 4 1-2s off 2 1-4, and Atchison 4 1-2s off 3-4, while American I. G. Chemical 5 1-2s, Chicago & Northwestern 4 3-4s, Reading Coal & Iron 6s and the two Allegheny 5s moved up fractionally.

Trading in the foreign group was small volume. Leading European government issues ruled steady, and some of the South Americans advanced.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Cheaper money after the first of the new year is believed in Wall street to be contingent on the amount of gold exported in the meantime. One banker was quoted today as predicting the call money would be down to 3 1-2 per cent. early next year unless substantial amounts of gold were sent abroad.

The Public Service Electric and Gas Co., an operating subsidiary of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, will reduce its electric rates about $1,200,000.

Sale of a membership in the New York stock exchange has been arranged at a price of $425,000, an increase of $12,000 over the previously reported sale.

HOME OF PHILIP CARDIN IN BALTIC

There are eight rooms and bath together with a sunporch. The interior is in hard finish plaster and hardwood trim. The floors throughout are of oak. In the kitchen there are a number of built-in fixtures, including ironing-board, cabinet and china closets. The bathroom has a built-in tub and other fixtures. The plumbing is of brass throughout the house, the water being supplied by a Burke automatic system.

There is a heated garage in the cellar. The heating system is one of the new type square boilers which take up very little room in a cellar.

WINDOW BOXES FOR WINTER DECORATION

Winter window boxes once were a rarity; now they are coming to be regarded as the proper thing for relieving the severity of a home's exterior during winter months. Moreover, they remove that empty feeling which comes when one removes window or veranda flower boxes in late fall and stows them in the basement to await the coming of spring. A group of small spruces, for example, lends a cozy, friendly touch to a window or veranda, and can be enjoyed fully as much by those within the house as by those who pass outside. There is something friendly in the delicate tracery of the foliage, the changing of lights and shadows, and particularly in the frosting of snow.

Looking out of the window one sees these little winter friends peering in and the expression is distinctly friendly. They appear to "belong" in the real sense, while to the outsider, or the friend who approaches your home for a call, they lend an air of attraction and good taste.

It should be borne in mind, however, that evergreens for window or veranda boxes must be selected with care. They cannot, as some believe, be dug up anywhere and casually transplanted. When the latter is done, nine times out of ten the trees fail to survive. Success in making such little trees grow lies in frequent transplanting and trimming of roots in the nursery which permits an increase in the number of small "feelers". Nurserymen know about this and they are the ones from whom these little trees should be procured. By securing a supply from a reliable firm or individual one knows that they must be in proper condition to fit the particular purpose for which they are intended. The percentage of loss invariably is small, whereas the practice of selecting anything in the line of evergreens is one to invite failure.

FIREPLACE SETS AS CHRISTMAS GIFTS

It is quite common in these days for Christmas shoppers to have on their lists certain young married couples who are rejoicing in the recent acquisition of a new cottage home. And whenever one comes upon the names of these in one's Christmas shopping list a problem always exists as to what this young couple could use to greatest advantage. Why not consider a "tailor-made" pair of andirons and a set of fireplace utensils in perfect conformity?

They are neither expensive nor hard to find, especially the attractive wrought iron types which now are so popular. Most of the department stores and specialty shops carry them, while several firms engaged in manufacturing wrought iron products turn them out in any design at reasonable costs. Many home owners find themselves with andirons and fireplace sets which are not at all in artistic conformity to be used. A little care in selection, with the fireplaces in which they are and a word of advice from someone who actually knows about such things, will eliminate all this. There is something appropriate for every situation, and there are scores of people who can and will give the needed advice.

It also is possible to obtain smoking stands, window curtain rods, portiere rods, quaint wrought iron candle holders, wall light brackets and numerous other articles and fixtures which will conform to one general design. When this is done, and care is taken in making certain that all are in perfect conformity, the results usually make the effort well worth one's while.

MAPLE FLOOR STAINS

After much research, non-fading transparent acid stains have been developed, which greatly enhance the natural beauty of maple flooring. Penetration is sufficiently deep to give life to the finish when it is properly applied and protected with a coat of color developer and several coats of a clear bodies varnish. These stains are available in early American, Spanish or autumn brown, royal blue, green and other shades of brown and grey

HUMIDIFIED AIR IS ESSENTIAL TO HOME

The amount of water necessary to properly humidify the air in our homes during the season of artificial heat is amazing. Perhaps no better demonstration is needed than the illustration taken from the Farmers Bulletin No. 1,194, of the U. S. department of agriculture and which reads as follows:

"Consider an average sized house containing a family of five persons. Each person requires 1,800 feet of air per hour; so 9,000 cubic feet (5x1,800) must be provided for the occupants every hour.

"Assume that the temperature is to be maintained at 70 degrees F., and the relative humidity at 40 degrees which is not too high. In order that those values be kept for 9,000 cubic feet per hour there would be required an evaporation every hour of roughly one-half gallon of water.

"If we consider the outside air at 40 degrees F., and a relative humidity of 70 per cent. when raised to 70 degrees by heating in our homes, the humidity is reduced to 20 per cent. which is much too dry for health and comfort. The relative humidity of the dryest part of this continent is seldom less than 30 per cent.

"One-half gallon of water per hour means 12 gallons every 24 hours in the average home, and this means only 40 per cent. relative humidity. This per centage of humidity is not yet an ideal condition.

"The value of humidity in the air for all of us is very important, but particularly for children who are playing on the floor and are thus brought into more direct contact with the dust and dirt. Humidity reduces the amount of dust floating through the air by allowing everything in the home to absorb its normal moisture content, thus inevitably reducing the amount of dust liberated."

NEW FLOORING ADDS DISTINCTIVE TOUCH

A beautiful floor is a distinctive touch in any home. Visitors entering your home almost immediately will make note of beautiful new hall or living room flooring. Such floors stand out and "fit" even when they are laid in obviously old homes. It never is poor taste to install a new floor where one is needed. New floors never cause other interior finish to suffer by comparison, and they always add a "tone" which other new features cannot give.

The same is true of stairway treads, where the wood surface is not covered with carpeting. A substantial series of new, perfectly laid stair treads lends a note which cannot be mistaken, while a worn and scarred stairway always is an embarrassment.

It is far better to sacrifice some of the spare funds one puts aside for new furniture or other cherished articles and apply them to the cost of a new floor or set of stair treads. The others can wait, but these actually should not be neglected if one has a proper regard for appearances.

METAL CASEMENT WINDOWS

If one insists upon casement windows the best method to pursue is to secure metal sashes, which architects and engineers quite generally pronounce more completely weatherproof than any other kind. If purchased from a reputable manufacturer or dealer they give excellent service for many years.

Church Folk Sued

Trial has been under way at Rockford, Ill., in suit of John A. Logan Warren, above, unfrocked Methodist Episcopal minister, against six members of his former church at Durand, Ill., for $50,000. Warren, alleging the six members were active in the movement leading to his unfrocking, brought slander action.

charges for installation, preparation for the surface decoration and the cost of applying it. The purchase price, then, is merely part of the cost and is not the entire basis of value.

With first-class factory-made woodwork everything possible is done at the factory to prevent unnecessary cost between the purchase price and final installed cost. The total cost on such woodwork often demands a smaller final expenditure than millwork available at a cheaper purchase price and hence of inferior value.

BLIND AREAS MAKE USEFUL CLOSETS

A common tendency among speculative builders is to neglect numerous opportunities for utilizing waste spaces for small closets, linen cupboards and the like. This is particularly true in certain types of cottage houses in which the chimney is located in the center of the house. Some months ago a local man made the discovery that a considerable space adjoining the chimney on the second floor had been closed in which might otherwise have been devoted to closet space. The chimney was located in the wall directly opposite the upper stair landing and on one side of the door entering the side bedroom. The space between the chimney and the rear bedroom—a distance of about six feet—was shut in by double partitions, one in the hallway and the other in the bedroom. This left a space about two feet wide and six feet long which was lying absolutely idle. By climbing into the "blind attic" through the small scuttle he found that there were no obstructions in the shut-in area, and forthwith he made plans for utilizing the space.

A competent carpenter was called in to cut an opening into the partition, following which three wide drawers were installed in the lower portion, while shelves were erected above them, giving the owners an extremely useful and conveniently located linen cabinet and cupboard. The drawers had to be made to order, but the trim was not expensive, nor were the shelves or the short cupboard doors enclosing them, the whole work representing an extremely modest cost.

Within the next few weeks several neighbors living in houses of similar construction found that they, too, had just such blind areas. As a result the carpenter was occupied for several weeks, building similar cupboards. Without doubt there are scores of houses in Norwich where this could be done, for the type of house is one which was quite popular 8 or 10 years ago.

GOOD HARDWARE A NECESSITY

Home owners, generally, wish the details of their homes to express their individual ideas of convenience and decoration. Many have been convinced of the importance of hardware by experiences with bothersome locks that do not work smoothly and with rust-streaked woodwork. They are determined most to have their new home whether they buy it or build it, equipped throughout with the best hardware.

CARE OF FLOWER BOXES

Wooden flower boxes are awkward things to house during winter months. For one thing, they are heavy and carrying them down cellar is a tough assignment. Nevertheless, they should be moved down cellar just the same—if one plans to make effective use of them the following year. Such things weather rapidly—and by weather is meant that they show signs of rotting and pulling apart. Place two pieces of narrow boarding on the cellar floor, lay the boxes on them, then forget them until it is time to repaint them, fertilize the loam, and carry them out of doors again.

CHECK UP ON THE BOILER

Before approaching cold weather makes it necessary to operate boilers or furnaces to maximum or near-maximum capacity it would be wise for one to check up on a few essential points. Has the smoke pipe rusted out during the summer? Is the first box surface coated with carbon? And has the water been drawn off to remove the rust from the pipes? It might be wise, too, to one should pay a bit of attention to the grate. These cast iron essentials sometimes are known to burn out, and the time to replace one is prior to the winter season—not in midwinter, when it is disagreeable and even dangerous to shut down a heater, even for a few hours.

FACTORY FINISH A REAL SAVING

Flimsy construction or ugliness whether in your front entrance or your medicine cabinet—is expensive at any price.

The cost of woodwork includes more than the purchase price. It is particularly true of woodwork that a considerable part of its cost is made of

'KITCHEN "REMINDER" CLOCKS

Things are looking up for the housewife who does her own work. Now it is a "reminder" clock for the kitchen. It not only is operated by electricity to eliminate daily or weekly windings, but may be set to give notice that it is time to put in or take out the family roast. It also may be used to indicate the baby's feeding hour, or any number of essential other things.

Is It Your Problem —or Ours?

Suppose the Stock Fire Insurance companies had not fostered fire prevention.

What then would have been America's record of loss by fire? Frightful enough it is—in spite of the efforts of the Stock Fire Insurance companies, working through the National Board of Fire Underwriters and its departments of Building Construction, Public Fire Protection, Engineering, the Arson Bureau, Underwriters' Laboratories, and other sources and avenues of activity.

The reduction of the fire waste or the loss of life by fire was not primarily an insurance problem. Insurance companies must charge for insurance on a basis sufficient to cover losses and operating expenses, regardless of how great the losses may be.

Therefore—viewing the situation from their selfish interests only—they need be no more concerned than are other industries in working toward a reduction of the fire waste.

For the Public Welfare

However, for the welfare of the country, as a whole the 239 Stock Fire Insurance companies, members of the National Board, voluntarily undertook the task of heading up the forces opposed to the destruction of life and property by fire.

The results have been encouraging. People are building better. Obvious hazards are being removed. But there is pressing need for further improvement.

Future progress in this work depends largely upon the degree of co-operation extended by you and others in the use of available safety devices and measures, and in the elimination of the many known hazards which continue to threaten life and property.

Inquiries relating to this movement and to the various services provided for its extension are invited.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Where the late Harry Houdini left off in his campaign to expose the quackery and faking in the practice of spiritualism, Evelyn Brent begins and carries on in her first starring picture, "Darkened Rooms," the all-talking drama which heads the bill at the Broadway, beginning tomorrow. In "Darkened Rooms," which is adapted from Sir Philip Gibbs' amazing novel, Miss Brent is a homeless, jobless chorus girl, who meets Neil Hamilton, a small-time beach photographer, who gives her a job. Always a dabbler in spiritualism, Hamilton foresees a fortune in mulling the wealthy vacationists who fall easy prey to the "mysteries" of the occult. "Spirit" photographs lead to seances, and in turn to big fees, and the small-timer branches out after big game. With Miss Brent as his fake medium and control, everything looks rosy, but the "game" gets beyond him and trouble starts a-plenty. Mystery, comedy and stark drama are cleverly interwoven into a plot teeming with thrills. Doris Hill, David Newell, Gale Henry and E. H. Calvert are valued additions to the cast of "Darkened Rooms." The surrounding bill is packed with entertainment, including the Fox movietone news, a popular "bouncing ball" novelty, Solly Ward, in "His Wife's Birthday," a featured comedy, and three selected vitaphone specialties, including Guy Robertson, in "High Rivers," Hallinan & Mulhern in "Somewhere in Jersey," and Ben Pollack and his Park Central orchestra, a well known Victor recording team. Much interest centers about the Goelet radio, fully equipped, which Hanover-Curland is soon to present to some Broadway patron. Today, for the last times, Erich von Stroheim's first talking picture, "The Great Gabbo," a spectacular musical drama, will be shown.

EVELYN BRENT IN PARAMOUNT PICTURES

Lotus Quartet

The concert sponsored by Southern chapter, O. E. S., and Somerset lodge, F. & A. M., given by the Lotus Male quartet, of Boston, is being eagerly anticipated by those who have enjoyed their very fine productions of the past. With them, on this evening, at the Masonic temple, comes a talented dramatic reader who will make the occasion more enjoyable, if possible. Eugene Cowles will sing "Forgotten," his own composition, which has been especially requested.

Breed Theatre

"Hot Stuff," new First National Vitaphone talking collegiate picture starring Alice White and featuring Louise Fazenda, now playing at the Breed theatre, is taken from the novel "The Bluffers" by Robert S. Carr and deals with life in a junior college.
"Hot Stuff" is a picture of youth and by youth. It was written by Robert S. Carr while he was still in college; the leading role is played by Alice White, youngest of screen stars, and directed by Mervyn LeRoy, Hollywood's youngest director. It's a First National Vitaphone picture.
Louise Fazenda, Doris Dawson, William Bakewell, Ben Hall, Buddy Messinger, Charles Sellon and half a dozen other well-known players appear in the racy comedy-drama.

Theft of tombstones from the old cemetery of Virginia City, Nev., by souvenir hunters has led to the posting of rewards to stop the vandalism.

IOWA ALUMNI MAY REVOLT AGAINST PRESENT ADMINISTRATION

By PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Dec. 9—(AP)—Rumblings of an alumni revolt against the present administration of the University of Iowa, because of conditions in its athletic department, which resulted in the ouster from the western conference grew louder and more ominous today.

Superior Court Judge M. L. McKinley, of Chicago, former head of the Iowa Alumni association, touched off a bombshell by openly attacking President Walter Jessup and requesting the Iowa state board of education to investigate not only the athletic department, but also the "cause of dissension and discord that has existed in departments of the university other than athletics."

Ever since the western conference faculty committee voted last May to sever athletic relations with the Hawkeyes, effective January 1, many Iowa alumni have been condemning the action of President Jessup, whom they charged with "bungling" the matter. But until today, none of Judge McKinley's power in alumni matters has come forth publicly with a statement to that effect.

Judge McKinley said he did not intend to go before the meeting of the Iowa state board of education at Council Bluffs, Iowa, tomorrow or any other time or place to explain his charges.

George T. Baker, chairman of the board, said Judge McKinley's statement would be considered if presented and that the board would cooperate "to clean up the situation."

Judge McKinley explained he had no brief with Dr. Paul Belting, former Iowa athletic director, but insisted "that all ills that have flowed from the athletic department during the past ten years cannot justly be charged either to Dr. Belting or 'hard boiled alumni' as referred to by President Jessup."

"Three years ago a majority of the alumni chapters in Iowa, the Chicago chapter and others throughout the United States joined in a request to President Jessup to select some one of his choosing to replace Belting as director of athletics and a meeting of representatives of the various chapters of alumni was called at Des Moines—to which the president and athletic board were invited to discuss the muddled athletic situation. But to the surprise and affront of the alumni, instead of accepting the invitation, the authorities at Iowa city called a hurried meeting two days before our meeting and reengaged Dr. Belting, thus defeating the purpose of the alumni whose only desire was to offer assistance in a matter that was then breeding discord and dissension and that today has resulted in the ouster of Iowa from the western conference."

President Jessup had one ardent and powerful supporter among the Chicago alumni ranks, however, in Rush Butler, former president of the Chicago alumni chapter and attorney. Butler said President Jessup was without censure in the entire affair and said he was one of the outstanding university presidents of the country.

LOU LITTLE ENGAGED AS COACH AT COLUMBIA

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Columbia university's football prospects for future seasons brightened today with the announcement that Lou Little, successful coach at Georgetown for the last five years, had been engaged to take over the head coaching reins recently relinquished by Charley Crowley.

The length of the contract or the salary was not divulged but it is understood Little is assured the position for the next three years and will be one of the highest paid coaches in the country.

With a five year record at Georgetown of 27 games won, 5 lost and 2 tied, Little brings a tradition of victory to Columbia, where football fortunes have been at a low ebb since the death of Percy Haughton in 1924.

Little's football career began at Leominster, Mass., high school after which he played at Worcester, Mass., academy. Entering Pennsylvania, he made the 1914 freshman team and after starring as a sophomore tackle in 1916, joined the A. E. F. in which he served as lieutenant and captain. Returning to Pennsylvania, Little again played football in 1919.

Little will make his bow to Columbia men at the annual dinner of the varsity "C" club here tomorrow night.

THREE MORE STARS JOIN ALL-EAST TEAM

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 9—(AP)—Three more crack eastern college football players today joined the east squad being organized by Andy Kerr, Colgate coach. They are Captain Bud Edwards, triple threat halfback of Rutgers; Captain Mooney of Georgetown, tackle, and J. Neil Stahley, Penn State end.

With the addition of these men, Kerr said his east squad was virtually complete. Players will be assembled at Evanston, Ill., at the end of the week and joined by a group selected from middle western schools by Dick Hanley, Northwestern coach.

SHIRES KAYOES DALY IN JUST 21 SECONDS

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.— (AP)—The bell rang for the start of a fight and exactly 21 seconds later, Charles Arthur "The Great" Shires, belligerent first sacker for the White Sox, stood in the center of the ring, victorious in the first fight he ever was paid for. Dangerous Dan Daly was stretched out on the floor of the ring, flat on his face, completely knocked out.

Shires made his debut as a professional fist fighter, knocked out Daly, a blonde-haired youth from Cleveland, so quickly and convincingly, that the crowd which jammed the little White City arena was standing on its feet, screaming with the excitement of the spectacular knockout.

The fight, comical though it was, was fought with the savageness of a couple of longshoremen. The great Shires, his body trim and lean, began throwing punches as soon as the bell rang, with Daly doing the same thing. They stood in mid-ring, hammering each other about the head, until Shires cut loose with a short right cross to the chin that knocked Daly silly. Daly's knees sagged, he turned halfway around, then fell flat on his face, while Eddie Purdy began the fatal ten-count. As seven was tolled off, Daly attempted to get up, but after raising himself on his hands, fell back on his face.

Daly is a Cleveland youngster who never before had a professional fight until tonight. He came into the ring accompanied by Eddie Meade, a veteran manager, who once handled the affairs of Joe Lynch when the latter was bantamweight champion.

Shires, surprised at the sudden knockout, stood bewildered, then picked up his fallen foe and lugged him to his corner, where he was revived. Shires and his opponent, fought like a couple of amateurs, showing no boxing skill: no preliminary training or other tricks of the trade. They just stood and slugged, and neither stopped throwing punches until Daly landed on his face.

Shires came into the ring as confident as a champion. He wore a gaudy bathrobe and gaudier black tights with a red silk sash. Shires spotted his opponent 27 pounds, scaling 185 to 212 for Daly.

The battle drew a capacity crowd of 5000 who paid $13,000 to see baseball's loud-speaker make his professional ring debut. The throng included several baseball players and followers, including Lou Barbor, traveling secretary of the White Sox, who went to Lena Blackburne's aid when Blackburne was manager of the Sox was attempting to subdue Shires in a fight in a Philadelphia hotel room last summer.

Barbor, in the role of a peacemaker, nearly had a finger bitten off, but he does not know whether Blackburne or Shires did the biting.

RISKO WINS FROM SCHAAF IN LAST ROUNDS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, staged a comeback in the last three rounds of his battle with Ernie Schaaf of Boston here tonight and won Referee Kid McPartland's decision at the end of the 12 rounds.

They battled evenly until the ninth round when Schaaf suddenly cut loose with a two-fisted offensive that sent Risko to the ropes and had him hanging on grimly at the bell.

In the tenth Risko came out fighting and won the round in a decisive fashion. He pelted Schaaf's jaw with lefts and rights and sank several hard blows in the Boston boy's stomach.

The Cleveland baker boy piled up a lead in the eleventh and twelfth rounds and there was no doubt as to what the New York referee's decision would be.

The atendance at the annual Christmas charity show was officially set at 11,197. The gross receipts were $37,113, a profit for the toy fund of approximately $16,000, including the patrons' contributions.

YALE TO CONSTRUCT 12 MORE TENNIS COURTS

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 9—(AP)—The Yale Athletic association tonight announced the completion of plans for the construction of 12 additional tennis courts near the bowl. Work on the proposed courts, which will bring the total number to 40, will be started early next spring.

During the winter, the tennis squad under Coach William E. Hinchcliff, will practice on Yale's two indoor courts in Coxe memorial gymnasium.

Sekyra Wins

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Joe Sekyra, Dayton light heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Art Weigand here tonight when the referee halted the bout at the end of the sixth round with Weigand suffering from an ugly cut over the eye. Sekyra weighed 179 1-2; Weigand 180.

Talk about party lines being a source of entertainment for the neighborhood.

Last night we had an opportunity to listen in on a short wave set to the conversation between the Leviathan and the shore stations and although we could only hear one side of the conversation it was a real kick.

We heard a man talking to his wife from the boat and from what we could gather friend wife was very skeptical about her hubby being on the ship. She probably knows her husband.

Then we heard another man talking to a woman and from what we could gather of the one-sided conversation it was one of those conversations between sweeties.

You know those kind where he says "Is that you, honey?" And she says "Uh huh." Then he says "Do you miss me?" and she says "Uh huh." Then he says "Are you all right?" and she says "Uh huh." Then he closes by saying "Do you still love me?" and she says "Uh huh." And this edifying conversation ends with each saying "goo bye honey."

But just imagine getting away out to sea and then calling up the wife to tell her not to forget to pay your insurance or not to feed the dog any chicken bones, and not to run the car if it's icy. And then have the world listening in on the talk.

Or imagine being on your way to some vacation spot for a little winter golf and having the storm and strife call you on the phone. "That you, John?" you hear over the ether. You say, "Yes, this is me, whadda you want?" just like you do when you're at the club at home.

"Now, John," says the wife, "You better take the next boat right home, baby's cutting a tooth and she's so peevish I hate to leave her and I got to go to a bridge party next week." You say, "Oh. Hell" under your breath but she hears it, don't doubt it.

No man ever said those words without his wife hearing them, believe me. You can holler at her till your lungs bust wide open if you want her to sew on a button, but just say one little cuss word to yourself and she wants to know what it's all about.

"John, I heard you say that and I'm ashamed of you. I think you've been drinking again and you know you promised you wouldn't" wails the wife into the phone. And you hear her give a little "Boo Hoo" into the phone as she hangs up.

No, she don't wait for your answer, she knows you'll take the next boat home. And you do.

And then you realize that the whole world could hear that conversation.

And you say in good healthy English "DAMN."

STEVENS CHOSEN CAPTAIN OF N. F. A. FOOTBALL

Ernest (Fat) Stevens, guard, was chosen captain of the 1930 Academy football team at a meeting of the lettermen held Monday after school. Stevens played right guard on the Wildcat array the past season and was given honorable mention in The Bulletin's All-Conference selections. Stevens received a letter last season in basketball, playing in the backcourt. He is a junior and a member of Phi Alpha Mu Sigma fraternity.

The following are the lettermen: Capt. Chester Berghinzo, Michael Abugle, Fred Armstrong, Frank Barber, William Brewer, Lester Crowell, Gordon Cruickshank, Edward Flather, Armand Fontaine, Robert Geer, Arthur Golembeskie, Orrin Hertz, Harry Shereshevsky, Capt.-elect Ernest Stevens, Joseph Wojstasiak and Manager Robert Agnew.

Berghinzo, Armstrong, Barber, Brewer, Cruickshank, Flather, Fontaine, Hertz, Wojstasiak and Shereshevsky will graduate this year. Abugle, Armstrong, Brewer, Flather, Geer, Golembeskie, Wojstasiak and Manager Agnew received their first letters this season.

FIREMEN TROUNCE EMPS IN INDOOR BASEBALL GAME

The members of Platoon Two of the local fire department went after the Employed Boys indoor baseball team last night like they answer a general alarm. They took no time at all in making connections and getting right down to business. No reference to the Plaut-Cadden clock is meant when it is said, "they took no time." The result of their night's labor was an overwhelming 19 to 5 victory. Bill Burns was the pitching star for the firemen and his form was almost perfect having the opposing batsmen at his mercy.

Long practice at swinging axes stood the firemen in good stead when it came to batting. They went after that old ball like they go after a plate glass window and smashed it all corners of the lot. The only thing lacking was a fire net or two for the fielders. The lineups:

Firemen—Gale c; Burns p; M. Hanna 1b; Lewis rss; Houston 2b; Ulrich lss; Falvey 3b; T. Kearney rf; G. Driscoll cf; H. Blackburn lf.

CELTICS LOSE FRANCHISE IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Dec. 9. — (AP) — The franchise of the New York Celtics in the American Professional Basketball league was declared forfeited by officials of the circuit tonight.

The announcement was made by J. J. O'Brien, president of the league. Mr. O'Brien said the league had under consideration applications from two cities, one in the west and one in the east, for the New York franchise. He declined to state what cities were seeking membership but said definite action would be taken within a few days. In the event neither application is granted the league will operate as a seven-club circuit with franchises held in Paterson, N. J., Syracuse and Rochester, N. Y., Brooklyn, Cleveland, Chicago and Fort Wayne, Ind.

SCOTT WINS FROM VON PORAT ON A FOUL IN THE SECOND ROUND

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Just as a jolly bit of action crept into the situation, Phil Scott, the long, languid heavyweight pride of Great Britain, collapsed tonight from a low blow at the start of the second round and won his much bally-hooed match from the fierce punching Otto Von Porat, of Norway and Chicago, on a foul.

Almost 17,000 of the faithful, drawn to the big cattle palace to see a fight and simultaneously come to the aid of a sweet charity, the Christmas fund, looked on in amazement as the sad-faced Norwegian opened the second round of a 12-round encounter with a sweeping left hook that topped the tall Briton to the canvass in agony.

The blow apparently was very low. But not the least amazed of all the onlookers was Jack Dempsey, once the king of the heavyweights, tonight refereeing his first major bout. While Scott, his face contorted in pain, toppled slowly, and Von Porat stood around looking very much dismayed, Dempsey made a confused effort to bring order out of chaos.

The old man mauler, once the master of every situation in there where the going is rough and tough, and judgement must be swift, seemed hopelessly at sea. Dempsey first motioned Von Porat to continue, then rushed over to help the fallen Briton. Then with Von Porat's aid he carried Scott to his corner while the packed house, still stunned and unaware of the significance of it all, looked on in astonished silence.

The decision was not announced until Dempsey had consulted with a half dozen official looking persons who crowded into the ring while the handlers of Scott grouped on one side of the former champion shouted "foul" and Von Porat's handlers shrieked "knockout" from the other. The round itself lasted only 25 seconds but the confusion that followed left the decision in doubt for minutes.

It was a most disappointing ending to a match that promised something in the way of fighting at the start but succeeded finally in proving only that as far as troubles are concerned all referees are brothers under the skin. Tonight Dempsey found himself in just as troublesome and startling a situation as faced Dave Barry, another famous referee that exciting night in Chicago when the old mauler fought Gene Tunney for the heavyweight crown.

From the ringside it appeared that Dempsey had no desire to award the bout to Scott on a foul but the actions of the Englishman, a picture of agony couchant, left nothing else for him to do. Scott went down easily, but apparently a progressive foul had been inflicted for his pain increased steadily. He had to be half carried from the ring.

After examining the Briton in the dressing room later, Dr. Walker, of the New York athletic commission, said there were 'no objective signs of a foul," also he was careful to explain that such signs might develop later. Up to the second round the bout seemed promising with little to choose between the men, Von Porat opened the fray with a rush that seemed to promise an early ending as he banged a husky left hook to the tall, blonde, sad faced Englishman's body. Phil fought off Otto's rushes, however, and was boxing superbly and in fine command of the situation when the first round ended.

The first punch of the second round did little to relieve the congestion among the entrants in the race for Gene Tunney's vacant heavyweight throne seat. The possibility appeared that Von Porat and Scott would be matched to start their part of the eliminations all over again before a rival is chosen for Jack Sharkey in the second annual battle of the palms at Miami, Florida, next February. There seemed also the chance that this pair might stage their return engagement at the southern winter playground.

Official attendance at the match was announced at 16,912 and the total receipts $92,705. At least half of this sum will be devoted to the Christmas fund, of which Mrs. William R. Hearst is chairman.

In a 12 round semi-final staged after the main bout, Maxie Rosenbloom won the decision over Yale Okun in a fast, rough go. Both are among the four original nominees of the New York state athletic commission, named to battle for recognition here as the new light heavyweight champion. Rosenbloom weighed 172 1-2, Okum 170 3-4.

ARMORY TEAM CLASHES WITH HELLERS TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 9—The Armory A. A. opens its season Tuesday night at the Danielson Armory against the Heller Bros. Five of Willimantic, one of the few brother teams playing in America today. The Heller boys are all men with college basketball experience, three of them playing with the Brown varsity, one with the Boston university team and the fifth brother with Columbia.

The Armory five will be composed of former Danielson Town team players, including Godreau, Armington, Burke and Pop Williams. Mondi Normandin will also be in the Armory lineup. The Danielson team has signed Johnson of Boston as the pivot man for the five.

There will be a fast preliminary game at 7:30 with the main game starting at 8:15.

TAYLOR-MASTRO BOUT OFF WHEN TAYLOR BREAKS BONE

CHICAGO, Dec. 9—(AP)—The ten round bout between Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., featherweight, and Earl Mastro, of Chicago, scheduled for the Chicago stadium Friday night, was postponed today because of an injury to Taylor's ankle.

Taylor twisted his right ankle doing road work, cracking the end of the fibular bone, x-ray examination disclosed.

The match may be decided December 27 provided Taylor's condition permits.

Souza Loses

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Irish Bobby Brady, Jersey City junior lightweight, won the referee's decision over Joe Souza of New York tonight. Brady weighed 131, Souza 129.

SOIL SURVEY INCLUDES HALF OF TILLABLE LAND

During the last 25 years more than half of the tillable land in the United States has been surveyed and mapped by the United States department of agriculture, according to A. G. McCall, of the bureau of chemistry and soils.

"The finished work of the soil survey consists of a soil map showing in colors the location and extent of each type or kind of soil within the area, and a report which describes the soils and discusses briefly their suitability for particular crops. The reports also give a brief review of the economic and agricultural conditions within the area and furnish a foundation of facts upon which to develop a rational permanent agriculture.

"Experiment-station and agricultural-college workers use the reports and maps as a basis for the location of outlying experimental fields and in the application of these results to other areas of similar soils in other localities, thus giving a wide range of adaptation of their results to the soils of the county and state.

"Another phase of this work concerns the relation of soil types to the development and the spread of plant diseases. During the past field season, a limited amount of work was undertaken for the purpose of studying the relationship of soil types to the root rot of cotton. As a result of this preliminary survey it seems certain that there is a very definite relation existing between certain soil types and the development and spread of this disease. It is hoped that a continuation of this line of soil study will be of material aid in indicating the soils in which the disease will develop and also indicate the characteristics of types and the particular field conditions which favor the spread of the organism responsible for this disease."

The Man With the Hoe.

Give the asparagus bed a good dressing of fertilizer. Then mulch it from the compost heap.

Sow mustard greens late this fall. It will come up and function in a hurry next spring.

Dig French endive and get it into the cellar as soon as a good freeze threatens.

You can start using your parsnips this fall after the first frost.

Save autumn leaves for the compost. It is a waste of good fertilizing material to burn them.

Clean up all old vegetable tops and destroy them. They too often harbor insect pests.

Get the cold frame going. Transplant parsley, pansies and viola into it. You can have fresh mint for the lamb till late into the winter if you transplant a piece of mint into the frame.

Wins Qualifier

With a par-wrecking total of 65 in his last round, Fred Morrison, above, of the Midwick Country club, came off with first honors in the qualifying round of the National P. G. A. tournament at Los Angeles. His total for the day was 136.

PHONY DISESEE OF PEACH CAUSES DAMAGE IN GEORGIA

Recent investigations of phony peach, a disease which threatens to do great damage to the peach industry of Georgia, show that this trouble is caused by a virus that resides in the roots of the trees. The virus does not enter the branches, buds, scions, or seeds and the disease is communicable only by grafting roots from diseased trees to roots of healthy trees, or by making piece-root grafts in which phony roots are used.

The first symptoms of phony disease do not appear in commercial plantings until the latter part of the second growing season, according to the specialists of the United States department of agriculture who are conducting the investigations. From this time on the trees may come down with the disease at any age.

When attacked by this disease a tree develops shortened internodes, a large number of lateral twigs, and large, flattened dark-green leaves, giving the appearance of dense growth with healthy foliage. Especially in young trees, a decided dwarfing results. The number of fruits and their size is greatly reduced. Fruit from phony trees is apt to be distinctly poorer in flavor than normal fruit, though slightly better in color.

This disease was first observed about 30 years ago by Samuel H. Rumph, a peach grower of Marshallville, Ga. He called the affected trees "ponies" because of their smaller size. Various causes were assigned to this behavior, and finally it came to be regarded as a disease. The term "phony disease" is now generally used to describe this condition.

A vigorous campaign is now being conducted for the eradication of the phony trees. This is regarded as the only sure method of controlling the disease in the territory where it has already spread. In the meantime numerous experiments are under way at present in an effort to find a stock that is resistant to the disease.

WIREWORMS CAUSE BIG LOSS TO FARMERS IN NORTHWEST

Wireworms annually inflict an estimated loss of between 10 and 15 million dollars to the five major crops of Washington, Oregon and Idaho, according to the United States department of agriculture. These worms are especially injurious on irrigated lands. All crops grown are subject to attack.

Damage caused by wireworms is of two distinct types. First, newly planted seed is destroyed and tender stems of young plants are cut off early in the growing season. The second and most evident type of damage is caused by the worms burrowing into the underground portion of root crops and feeding upon them during late summer. In many cases this latter type of damage renders the product unfit for sale or for use in any way except possibly as stock feed.

Owing to the high cost of farming in the irrigated lands it is necessary to follow a rotation system that includes a yearly cash crop. Potatoes and onions are the crops generally grown for this purpose. Since these crops must be graded according to the United States standard grades, it is very common to find lots which fail to measure up to the standard for No. 1 because of injury from wireworms. There is little sale for products which fail to meet the United States grades.

Direct-control measures for wireworms are few and expensive. On very small tracts of high-priced vegetables, bulbs, or nursery stock, wireworms can be practically eradicated by fumigating the soil with carbon risulphide between crops. This material is placed in holes 4 inches deep and 18 inches apart each way, using 1 liquid ounce for each hole. This method of control is too expensive for use with ordinary crops.

Control measures based on cultural practices that are applicable to the Pacific northwest are also relatively few. A rotation of six years in which four years of alfalfa is followed by the cash crop seems to be the logical practice to follow at present. Four years of alfalfa reduces the infestation to a point where it is sometimes possible to produce two cash crops without serious loss.

Experiments are now under way looking to the development of other and more satisfactory control measures, according to specialists of the department.

CONNECTICUT IS PREPARED TO FACE HER PROBLEMS

"Connecticut and all New England have no intention of letting their markets go by default," said Sidney A. Edwards, director of the Connecticut bureau of markets, in part, in an address at the opening of the eleventh annual meeting of national marketing officials in Chicago. "The New England farmer," he continued, "is naturally thrifty, intelligent and accustomed to hard work, but he is human and has been a victim of circumstances.

"Living in a region which produces far less than it consumes, he has been slow to realize that this is not a perpetual land of milk and honey so far as he is concerned. Until the advent of the refrigerator car and the recent development of motor transportation lines he has been able to hold the fort against all comers, but today the situation is rapidly changing.

"The men of the south and west have brought about this change. They have appreciated our markets more than we have, or at least have taken more pains to find out what the New England consumer wants. In fact they have done such a good job of it that we are beginning to appreciate these markets ourselves, now that there is a possibility of losing them. For this they are to be thanked. They have made New England farmers sit up and take notice. We are beginning to realize that we have a problem.

"We have many peculiarities in New England. We are often accused of being ultra-conservative. We take pride in the fact that we are strong believers in states-rights. We are apt to be individualists to a certain extent and in so far as possible depend upon ourselves for the solution of our problems.

"Since many of these same men from the south and west are descendants of good, old New England stock they can probably realize that we are not going to let our markets go by default. We realize the futility of attempting to supply all the needs of our local markets. We are specializing in those products where nearness to markets is an important factor. In this respect as well as many others, New England is rapidly overcoming her conservatism She is fast becoming a community of people instead of several individuals.

"This is all having an invigorating effect upon New England as a whole which is exemplified in many and diverse ways—not the least of which is the New England farm marketing program adopted by the six New England states and supported by industry as well as agriculture. The program, a means to a more fruitful end, is making every effort to have our farmers specialize and concentrate on producing those products that the consumer wants, prepare them for market so that they pass a most rigid quality test and identify them properly so that there can be no possibility of misrepresentation."

SPREAD OF CORN BORER NORMAL SAYS LARRIMER

Advance of the corn borer in the infested region near the Great Lakes was about what was expected this year, and may be considered normal, Dr. W. H. Larriner, of the bureau of entomology, announced today in summarizing the results of the annual survey of corn borer infestation conducted by the United States department of agriculture.

"For the Great Lakes area, taken as a whole," said Doctor Larrimer, "the past season was generally unfavorble to the corn borer As a result, there was only a slight increase in the average abundance of the borer for the entire area. In Michigan there was an actual decrease. The situation is roughly similar to that in 1926—the year immediately preceding the big clean-up campaign in the spring of 1927. Given a favorable season, enough borers are present in the older infested section to cause a serious infestation in 1930 unless farmers apply control measures on an adequate scale. This is particularly true of the Maumee valley, in northwestern Ohio, an area we will watch with intense interest next season.

"The outlook," Dr. Larrimer continued, "is dark to those who are just becoming acquainted with the corn borer, or who are hearing of it for the first time. Those familiar with developments, however, find considerable reason for encouragement. To stop the spread of the borer would require extermination. To exterminate the borer we would have to make a desert of all the infested territory. It is safe to conclude that the borer eventually will spread through the entire corn belt. Considerable damage will result, some of it unavoidable. But this does not imply the complete ruin of the corn crop."

EXCELLENT PASTURE GRASS IS NOW BEING RECOGNIZED

Plants, like people, often require many years to live down a bad reputation. Reed canary grass illustrates the point. Because early growers did not know how to handle the grass properly, they decided it was not a good hay crop. With better knowledge of the plant it is now regarded as excellent for pasture and for hay.

Considerable areas of reed canary grass are found in various sections of the northern Rocky Mountain States and in southern Canada, but the grass deserves wider use throughout the northern half of the United States, in the opinion of specialists of the United States department of agriculture. It does best where the climate is moist and cool and is especially suited to swampy or overflowed lands.

The grass is primarily a pasture grass. It furnishes grazing for nine months a year on reasonably well-drained land along the Pacific Coast. On higher, drier land the pasturing season is not so long. For the best quality of pasture the grass should not be allowed to make excessive growth nor to get old and tough. Pastures on the Pacific coast have furnished grazing for four dairy cows per acre for seven months a year.

The use of reed canary grass for hay is increasing The best quality of hay is obtained from thick stands pastured early in the season to retard the hay-making period and to produce leafier crowns and stems. Yields of 4 to 9 tons per acre are not unusual. This grass does not make the finest quality hay, but its suitability to low, wet lands and the large yields of hay make it a profitable crop for such areas.

Largely because of harvesting expense and rather limited markets, the seed is expensive, present prices ranging from $1 to $1.50 a pound. There are apparently several strains of the ordinary reed canary grass. A number of experiment stations are working on the problem of obtaining non-shattering types. If this work is successful it should result in lower prices for the seed and a more general use of the grass.

RED SPIDER BECOMING ABUNDANT

The minute red spider, really grayish or yellowish, is mightily favored by the prolonged dry weather and has developed in enormous numbers upon various plants, such as garden phlox, apple trees and oak leaves, producing in each case a somewhat characteristic yellowish or grayish, usually minutely spotted discoloration. A continuance of dry weather means more red spiders with possibly serious injury to the foliage, since badly discolored leaves are incapable of functioning properly. The evergreens, such as red cedars, are also very likely to be affected by red spider.

Experiments in progress at the Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories show that atomic sulfur used at the rate of five pounds to 50 gallons of water is a very satisfactory spray, provided all of the leaf surfaces are covered. In the case of phlox, it means spraying the underside of the leaves.

MANY RUMORS OF TRADES AS OWNERS AND MANAGERS GATHER FOR MEETING

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Some major league baseball players may have suffered from certain shortcomings during the last playing season, but they are quite all right now. Club owners of the National and American leagues came to New York today for the annual league meetings tomorrow and most of them would like to do some baseball trading if it could be arranged to their advantage. Every player offered on the auction block is good. For three days there will be no poor players in either league.

The National and American leagues will meet tomorrow and Wednesday with a joint meeting of the two majors Thursday.

There were indications that the major league season would be curtailed by a week and radio broadcasters may be asked not to bring their microphones with them when they attend the baseball games.

The possible trades to be developed at the meetings were only in the conversational stage tonight as the magnates and managers talked in hotel lobbies.

Pitchers, always in demand, were sought by many of the major league clubs and the market for catchers promised to be almost as active.

Big Ed Morris, the ace of the Boston Red Sox pitching staff, was reported about to move to the New York Yankees, but Bob Quinn, president of the Boston club, declared he had not approved the transfer.

Dazzy Vance, who had an unsuccessful season last year and was bothered by ill health just as his $25,000 contract expired, was mentioned in connection with half a dozen clubs, including the Chicago Cubs, who were said to be willing to pay a large sum for the release of Burleigh Grimes by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Cincinnati was understood to be willing to offer attractive playing talent for Larry Benton, Giant pitcher, who slumped last season after a great campaign in 1928. Cincinnati also made an offer to St. Louis for Frankie Frisch and Washington may be asked about the possibility of a trade for Goslin.

There were stories as the meetings were about to open that Bill Carrigan was tired of managing the Boston Red Sox and might retire.

The Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia Nationals were also open to any major league club having catchers to sell or trade.

Wilbert Robinson, storm center of Brooklyn's civil war, arrived from the hunting fields of Georgia but no meeting of the Brooklyn directors was held today. The big manager's contract has expired but it was understood that he would remain as president since a deadlock between the Robinson and anti-Robinson forces in the board of directors probably would preclude any possibility of another executive being named.

PLAINFIELD TO PLAY WHIRLWINDS

The Plainfield Pros renew their feud with the Boston Whirlwinds Wednesday night at the Plainfield Community house in what is anticipated as a real game. Those who have seen the Plainfield-Boston games in previous years know that whenever these clubs meet there is a basketball battle well worth going miles to see.

The Whirlwinds have the same lineup as last season which means that the Pros have their work cut out for them if they would emerge a winner. This Boston team is one of the leading semi-pro organizations in the New England states and a victory in tomorrow night's contest will give the Plainfield club an edge for the New England title. Boston will put the following team in the field: Morley and Kiley, guards; Waters, center; Riordan and Crotty, forwards; Barry, utility.

The Pros will use the regular team that has been going so well during the early part of the season. Last Saturday the Pros took over the Plymouth team which is composed largely of the Whirlwind players and feel confident that they can take the measure of the visitors tomorrow night.

A fast preliminary game for the Buddies has also been arranged. Basketball in Plainfield has not been going good this season and the crowds have not been turning out very heavy. Unless the attendance is better there is a possibility that basketball in Plainfield will be discontinued or the team taken on the road. Plainfield has always put on as good basketball as any city in the state and only the best teams have been played regardless of expense. It would be a sad blow to the basketball lovers of eastern Connecticut to have the games discontinued.

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS SALE AND SUPPER SUCCESSFUL

The Ladies' Aid and Luther league societies of the Swedish Lutheran church of Hickory street held their annual Christmas sale and variety supper Saturday evening with nearly 200 people attending. The supper committee was Mrs. Charles W. Pearson, Mrs. Carl Johnson, Miss Hannah Johnson, Mrs. Rudolf Johnson, Mrs. Antone Ellison and Mrs. Henry Wise. The waitresses were Miss Edna Hanson, Miss Dorothy Pearson, Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. Alrick Johnson and Mrs. Rudolf Johnson. In charge of the Ladies' Aid fancy table were Mrs. Victor Tongren and Mrs. George Benson. At the Luther league fancy work table were Mrs. Axel Bjork and Mrs. Anna Johnson; at the candy table, Miss Irene Ellison was in charge. Miss Hildegarde Johnson had charge of tickets. The assembly room was prettily decorated for the occasion with the color scheme of red and green, the Christmas colors, being used. Potted plants and choice flowers were also used, the flowers being donated by Carl O. Johnson. The sale and supper proved to be very successful.

FUNERAL

Andrew Dubenetsky

The funeral of Andrew Dubenetsky, of 191 West Main street, was held from his late residence Monday morning at 9:15 o'clock, followed by a high mass of requiem at 10 o'clock at St. Nicholas Orthodox church, Convent avenue, with a large attendance of mourners at the services. Rev. Mark Demitrieff was celebrant of the mass. Burial was in the family lot in St. Nicholas Orthodox cemetery where Rev. Demitrieff conducted the committal service. The bearers were Samuel Hooka, Samuel Rusck, Michael Ladigo, Harry Pobel, Walter Samokas and Michael Laput. Mourners were present from Bridgeport, Meriden, New Britain and other places. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful, speaking a mute testimony of the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

George Swanton has returned to his home at Providence, after spending the week end with his parents on North Main street.

LARGE NUMBER PRESENT AT FORTY HOURS DEVOTION

The three masses Monday morning at St. Mary's Memorial church were offered at 5, 7 and 8 o'clock. The 5 o'clock mass for the early workers was offered by Rev. Fr. Coholan, the 7 o'clock mass by Rev. John D. Carey, of Yantic, and the last mass at 8 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. William A. Keefe. Hundreds went to the altar railing at each mass. Visiting priests are aiding the local priests in hearing confessions and all in the parish have the opportunity of making their confessions in their native tongue. The church had many visitations during Monday, remaining open until 8:30 p. m. Monday evening for the benefit of the day workers. The masses this morning (Tuesday) are announced for 5, 7 and 8 o'clock, the same as Monday. The Forty Hours Devotion will be brought to an end following the last mass today.

LAFAYETTE MAIN AS COUNSEL LOSES CASE IN PRESTON JUSTICE'S COURT

Lafayette Main of the Swantown Hill section of the town of North Stonington, who has gone to the mat with the law more than once, engaged in another legal bout Monday, this time in the Preston court presided over by Justice of the Peace Walter Tarbox. The decision was against the North Stonington man, who was before the court as adviser to his son-in-law, Harold D. Bliven, a Rhode Island resident, who was charged with violation of the game law.

Court was held at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the office of the Hall Bros. woolen mill at Hallville in the town of Preston, which was crowded nearly to the suffocation point, while many could not even get inside during the half hour while the court session lasted.

Arthur Smith, grand juror, prosecuted the case and Mr. Main sat next to his son-in-law as counsel, tipping him off to the moves to make to break the holds which the law seemed to be clamping onto him, through County Game Warden Watson and his two deputies, Orrin Swain and Mr. Lillibridge.

The groundwork for the bout was laid on Nov. 19 when, according to the deputy game wardens, they caught Mr. Bliven setting two traps in a runway on Mr. Main's farm. Although Bliven had the requisite permission from his father-in-law, the deputy game wardens charged that he was outside the law and Bliven was summoned to appear before the Hallville justice last Wednesday.

At that hearing Mr. Main claimed the Hallville justice had no jurisdiction because the offense against the law, if there had been any, had been in the town of North Stonington. Justice Tarbox thereupon adjourned court to the following Monday to give the game wardens time to find out exactly where the town line between North Stonington and Preston ran on the Lafayette Main farm.

When court came in Monday, the game wardens were prepared to show that the Preston court had jurisdiction. As to one of the traps, they said it was at least 260 yards inside the Preston town line, but the other was so near to the line that it might be in either town. There was therefore but one count against Mr. Bliven, who readily admitted setting the traps. He was accordingly found guilty and fined $2 and costs.

Lafayette gave notice that he would appeal to the common pleas court, declaring that he felt confident he would get more justice in Norwich before the higher court than he felt he had obtained at the hearing in Hallville.

COUNTY PROGRAMME FOR HOME DEMONSTRATION AGENT

Miss Ruth Russell, home demonstration agent of the New London County Farm Bureau, has arranged for several meetings to be held in the county this week. In addition to two meetings to be conducted by Miss Russell Miss Lisbeth MacDonald, health specialist at Connecticut Agricultural college, will give a series of demonstrations.

During the week the Christmas box, containing 50 suggestions for Christmas gifts, which is being circulated about the state by the extension department of the Connecticut Agricultural college, will be in this county. The box will be at the home of Mrs. Hugh MacKenzie, Waterford, Tuesday, and at Cider Hill and Lebanon Wednesday. At the latter place it will be left at the post office and at Cider Hill it will be at the home of Mrs. William Loftus. Thursday the box will be at the home of Mrs. C. L. Gray, North Stonington and on Friday it will be at Bozrah, at the home of Mrs. Jabez Bailey. The girls of 4-H clubs in Franklin will have an opportunity to study the box at the home of Mrs. George Brush Saturday.

Below is this week's schedule of meetings:

Tuesday—Home of Mrs. Ernest Smith, Franklin, discussion of protective measures available on care of young children, with Miss MacDonald.

Thursday—Demonstration on first aid by Miss MacDonald at the home of Mrs. A. H. Beebe, Lebanon.

Thursday—Millinery meeting at the home of Mrs. Milton Beckwith, Franklin. Miss Russell demonstrating. Demonstrations on the making of sheepskin moccasins by Mrs. Austin H. Rathbun and Mrs. Thomas Murphy.

Friday—Millinery meeting at the home of Mrs. Clifton Dawley of Preston. Miss Russell demonstrating.

On Friday and Saturday Miss MacDonald will meet with 4-H club girls in Franklin and Preston.

INSPECTOR GAVE HEARINGS IN AUTOMOBILE CASES

Inspector Philip Devnew of the motor vehicle department held hearings here Monday morning in the common council chamber on several cases in which summons had been issued to appear before him.

They were disposed of as follows:

Armand Forand, 26 Sixth street, Norwich, operating under influence; will consider issuance of license if applicant gets letter from employer.

Lewis Butts, Moosup, operating under influence; no appearance.

Raymond V. Chism, Westford, overloading; allowed to keep license.

Julius Carlson, Putnam, conference; no appearance.

Anna O. Cohn, 20 Vineland Terrace, Hartford, to determine if she was responsible for an accident; testimony of officer taken only.

C. L. CLASS MEETING HELD WITH MISS ISABEL RODIER

Fourteen members of the C. L. class of Trinity Methodist church attended the meeting held Monday evening with Miss Isabel M. Rodier, of the Joseph Perkins road. Hostess with Miss Rodier was Miss Florence V. Edwards, the class president. Each member brought some gift or toy and these were boxed to be forwarded to the Silver Lake Home for Christmas. During the brief business meeting, when Miss Edwards presided, it was voted to put on a play in February.

In the social hour which followed, refreshments were served by Miss Rodier and Miss Edwards. The usual Christmas party of the class will be held later in the month.

TAFTVILLE

The purple altar hangings of Advent were replaced by white on Sunday at Sacred Heart church, in observance of the Feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary. This is a holy day of obligation for Roman Catholics throughout the world and has been designated by the pope as patronal festival for the United States.

A pleasant birthday party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Tetreault of North Third avenue on Sunday in honor of George Tetreault. The host received many gifts, games were played and refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake and candy were served. Those attending included Rita Tetreault, Norman Pelletier, Omer Gladue, Ernest Pepin, Margaret Duff, Leon Pepin and Thomas Duff.

The new year book of the Textile Group associations published in Boston, shows a list of the local members of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association and has a cut of Alfred Linderson of North Third avenue, the newly-elected president of the organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laramie of Plainfield have been recent guests of the former's brother-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith and Miss Lillian Laramie, of North B street.

Among those attending the meeting and luncheon of the presidents and secretaries of the American Legion auxiliary held Saturday at the Hotel Garde, New Haven, were Mrs. Patrick J. Fogarty of South Second avenue, Miss Aurette Fournier of Providence street and Mrs. Thomas Perkins Sears of North Fifth avenue.

SPANISH WAR AUXILIARY ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

Major L. B. Almy auxiliary, No. 15, United Spanish War Veterans, held its regular meeting in the Buckingham Memorial, Friday evening, with the President Jennie C. Randall, in the chair.

Mrs. Mary Stewart, department inspector, of Wallingford was present to inspect the auxiliary and found it in fine working condition.

The following were elected as officers for 1930:

President, Maude A. Moody; senior vice president, Rachel Bogue; junior vice president, Ella E. Smith; chaplain, Annie B. Turner; historian, Minnie A. Johnson; patriotic instructor, Pauline H. Budzeck; conductor, Annie L. Wilson; assistant conductor, May E. Grover; guard, Sarah Ramage; assistant guard, Muriel S. Greene; delegate to national convention, Annie B. Turner; alternate, May E. Grover; delegates to department convention, 1. Sarah Ramage, 2. Minnie Johnson; alternates, 1. Ellen G. Rathbun, 2. Marion Kane.

Following election, plans were made for the annual Christmas tree to be held in two weeks. This annual party includes members of auxiliary, and R. S. Griswold camp No. 6, with their families.

Reports were received from committee which visited the state hospital at Thanksgiving, giving each Spanish war veteran there a basket of fruit and smokes. Past Presidents Mira A. Waters and Elizabeth Murray distributed the baskets.

The meeting closed with prayer by chaplain, stacking of colors and salute to flag.

After the meeting, sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the executive committee, Hattie Woodmansee, chairman.

ORGANIZATION EFFECTED BY SYNAGOGUE SISTERHOOD

A most interesting meeting of the Sisterhood of the Norwich Community synagogue was held Saturday evening, at the home of Mrs. William Israelite on Joseph Perkins road. Rabbi Bernard H. Ziskind of New York city, the officiating rabbi of the week-end, contributed much in helping the Sisterhood to become organized by his inspiring informal talk to the women present. Rabbi Ziskind explained the real function of a Sisterhood of this kind, the main purpose of which is in upholding Judaism in a modern and orthodox manner.

The newly-elected officers of the organization are as follows: President, Mrs. Samuel Rosoff; vice-presidents, Mrs. Charles M. Gordon and Miss Augusta Shereshevsky; treasurer, Mrs. Louis Pollock; recording secretary, Miss Frances Dembo; financial secretary, Miss Miriam Goldberg.

The next meeting will be next Saturday evening at the B'nai Brith rooms where the services of the Norwich Community synagogue are being conducted. Refreshments were served by the hostess after the epoch-making meeting, which no doubt will be a historical event with the Norwich Community synagogue.

DEVELOPING PERSONALITY IN SCHOOL CHILDREN

How the present-day school aims to develop personality and make the proper social adjustments for all its pupils was pointedly brought out in a paper presented by Miss Esther Kimball of the Gayhead school in Canterbury for the teachers' institute at Lisbon central school last week.

Those at the institute commended the paper as having significant value for teachers and parents of school children.

Miss Kimball's paper was as follows:

School practice has always recognized that differences exist among children. The earliest and most fundamental recognition of individual differences was in the grading of school children. In these graded schools children were grouped according to their educational progress and average abilities. It was thought that all children could be made alike by uniform methods of instruction and through pursuit of identical courses of study.

One of the tremendously significant results of our present-day increased knowledge of children is the realization that the average child does not exist.

Our educational philosophy of today contemplates the school and classroom as places for development of the child whatever his mental and physical condition. The school should be a place where he can develop those talents or gifts with which he has been endowed by Nature, whether they be many or few, mental or physical, and whether they are of comparatively low or high order.

The present-day school must provide an environment in which each child can learn to live with others and yet retain his personal identity. He must live with them and adjust himself to the social group and yet he must grow with the confident knowledge that he like each of the others is a unique individuality, that he is distinctive in some trait and that he has something unique to contribute to the group in which he lives.

The one thing we want to produce in each child is a firm belief that he is a superior child, a unique entity, contributing to society.

The "new school" encourages the child to be a distinct personality, an individualist, to believe in his ability. It encourages activities in which he can make a personal contribution to group enterprises—in which he feels himself an accepted and respected member of a society of which he himself approves. The true development of the individual and fulfillment of personality are best attained as one expresses himself most successfully and adequately with others and toward others.

The new method makes it possible to keep bright pupils from marking time and saves dull ones from useless failure and discouragement. The unit of work stimulates many kinds of activities and provides for individual differences. Each child need not engage in each kind of activity but must feel that his individual activity is contributing to the unit as a whole.

Education of personality of each and very individual is the aim rather than the development of a few stellar performers with the mass remaining passive. Originality grows out of experience. The child does not become warped and individual growth is provided for.

The new school has no extra-curricular activities. All these group activities are a regular and important part of school life—through which we develop in each individual child his hidden personality and adjustment to his own social environment through experience.

CONNECTICUT JEWISH FARMERS PRIZE WINNERS

More than a score of Connecticut farmers will be honored when the prizes offered in a nation wide contest conducted by the Jewish agricultural society will be presented to the winners at the Bond hotel in Hartford next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

This is the second year of this unique contest, the purpose of which is to discover and honor those farmers of the Jewish faith who have made outstanding contributions to the agricultural and rural interests of the country and nearly one third of the prize winners are Connecticut farmers or their wives or children.

The occasion will be marked by the address of Dr. George Alan Works the newly inaugurated president of Connecticut Agricultural college, and Gabriel Davidson, general manager of the Jewish Agricultural Society, Inc., under whose auspices the meeting is being conducted and by whose extension agent, Samuel Kostolefsky of Rockville, the details of the affair are being arranged.

Herman P. Koppelman, newly appointed member of the district commission, recently created by Governor Trumbull, will act as chairman of the meeting and will be introduced by Benjamin C Stone, extension director of the Jewish Agricultural society

Invitations are being sent out to several hundred farmers in the state and it is expected that some of the leading Jewish farmers in the state will be present at this meeting to help honor those of their neighbors who have won prizes.

UNCONTESTED DIVORCES ON LIST FOR TRIAL

FORMER PUTNAM WOMAN SECURES WORCESTER DIVORCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Dec. 9—A mother and son both sought divorces in probate court here today. Addie Beron of Auburn was granted a decree from Adolphe Beron of Putnam, Conn., for alleged desertion. After a hearing the court continued for further evidence the libel brought by her son, Ernest Beron of Auburn, against Leona Beron of Spencer.

The marriage of the older couple was at Fiskdale, Jan. 2, 1922, and they lived together in Putnam. The desertion was at Fiskdale April 28, 1922.

Ernest Beron and his wife were married at Sturbridge April 1, 1927. The husband charges cruelty and misconduct. He claims his wife struck him and spent much of her time with another man.

STATE ARMORY HERE TO HAVE NEEDED REPAIRS

During the winter extensive repairs will be made to the state armory on McKinley avenue as the result of a recent inspection of the building by Major General M. B. Payne, chairman of the state armory board. The improvements are in line with the request of President Herbert Hoover to the governors of all states that they order necessary repairs to any public properties in their respective states.

The roof on the drill shed has already been repaired and other improvements are to be made in the near future. It is planned to re-paint the brick work on the building, re-floor the company parlors and halls, install new plumbing and repair the brick work at the garage. A new cement sidewalk is to be laid in front of the building.

CONGRESSMAN ONE OF SEVEN INDICTED BY A GRAND JURY

Representative Zihlman, Daniel R. Crissinger and Four Other Officials of a Brokerage House Were Indicted—They Are Charged With Use of the Mails to Defraud—Fraudulent Representation of Values of Stocks is Alleged.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Indictments charging use of the mails to defraud were returned by the District of Columbia grand jury today against Representative Zihlman of Maryland, Daniel R. Crissinger, former comptroller of currency, and five other officials of the F. H. Smith Co., a brokerage house.

Zihlman, who as chairman of the District of Columbia committee of the house directs the group which controls all legislation affecting the capital in that branch of congress, said that he was confident of vindication.

"I have not thought of evading through process of law by claiming immunity as a member of congress," he said. "I was conscious of no wrongdoing on the part of the company and did not knowingly lend myself to any complicity in wrong-doing. When I hear the charges I will be prepared to answer them, and until such time I prefer not to discuss them."

In its report after a lengthy inquiry, the grand jury said the defendants "placed letters, circulars and other advertising matter in the United States mails and did publish therein, among other things, false and fraudulent articles and representations concerning the value of the Hamilton hotel and value of the capital stock of the Properties Investment Corp. and other bonds of like nature as secure investments to persons to be defrauded."

Other officials of the company indicted were G. Bryan Pitts, chairman of the board; Samuel J. Henry, president; C. Elbert Anadale, secretary; John H. Edwards, Jr., vice-president; and Henry C. Madux of the Hamilton Hotel Co.

The grand jury outlined the manner in which it said bonds were issued by the company, and brought Zihlman's name in as a member of the board of directors which authorized the actions.

The Smith company recently removed its headquarters from Washington to New York where Crissinger was notified today of the indictment. He declined to comment.

GALES IN THE ATLANTIC DELAY PASSENGER LINERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Terrific gales which have caused heavy loss of life and property along the English coast have extended far out into the Atlantic and delayed from one to three days the arrival of passenger liners in New York, reports to ships' owners tonight showed.

The North German Lloyd liner Bremen, which holds the record for trans-Atlantic crossings, today was three days late. Radio advices from the ship today said she did not expect to reach Ambrose lightship, the entrance to New York harbor, until Friday morning, reported heavy seas and storms were being encountered.

French line officials here received a radio from the France stating the ship will arrive here Thursday, about thirty-six hours behind schedule. The message said that the liner had gone to the assistance of the British freighter Volumnia, but had proceeded to New York as two other vessels were standing by the distressed ship.

Other liners delayed by adverse weather are the Cunarder Berengaria, which will arrive Thursday, two days late; the Hamburg-American liner Reliance, which will arrive tomorrow, one day late; the Ausonia of the Cunard line, which will arrive Thursday, two days late, and the American Merchant liner American Banker, which will arrive tomorrow, one day late.

The Caledonia, Laconia, Minnekahda, Stuttgart, and the Baltic, arrived today. All were one day behind schedule.

REVIEW OF POLICY OF NATIONAL WATERWAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The national waterway policy, both in general scope and local phases, was reviewed today before the twenty-fifth rivers and harbors congress.

Representative Wilson of Louisiana, president, praised President Hoover's Louisville announcement of a definite policy to develop a complete and continuous inland system and advocated its endorsement by the congress.

Patrick J. Hurley, in his first address as secretary of war, urged completion of the Mississippi system within five years, completion of the intercoastal system within ten years, speedy development of lower Mississippi flood control, and continued development of harbors and shoreline waterways. He enumerated conditions to be met before the government turns over its barge lines to private capital.

Senator Brookhart of Iowa, said "our Canadian brothers are stalling," with regard to the Great Lakes waterway development.

This statement, made in an address before the congress, was challenged at a subsequent luncheon of the Michigan delegation, where representatives of both the United States and Canada predicted "a definite step forward by Canada within sixty days."

N. F. FISHERMEN LOST EVERYTHING BUT LIVES

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Taciturn and miserable, homesick yet dreading the moment when they must face empty-handed their wives and children in their tiny fishing village up on the Newfoundland coast, the captain and the crew of the schooner "Gander Deal" sat in the British consulate today while arrangements were made to start them on their long journey home.

They arrived early today on the United States liner Republic, which had picked them up before dawn last Friday after they had been blown 540 miles out to sea.

Back there in the battered, waterlogged "Gander Deal" they had left all for which they had toiled an entire season off the Labrador coast—food and fuel and clothing for their families, toys and trinkets to brighten their Christmas holidays.

"The food and coal—everything. It's all gone," the mate, Lewis Berry, muttered disconsolately. "We got nothing to take to them."

ALCOHOLISM CAUSED DEATH OF NOVELIST JAMES FARRELL

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—An autopsy performed today by Dr. Charles Norris, medical examiner, established alcoholism as the cause of the death on Sunday of James Farrell, 27-year-old novelist and son of John D. Farrell, president of the Union Pacific railroad.

An artist friend, Leslie Thomas, who took Farrell to Flower hospital two hours before the young man died, said Farrell had been suffering from heart trouble and was overworking. He said the two of them had been working on a serial.

Thomas claimed the body for shipment to the home of the father in Beverly Hills, Calif.

Farrell was educated at Cambridge university. His novel, "The Girl Everybody Knows," was published two years ago.

$100,000,000 CONSTRUCTION WORK IN GREAT BRITAIN

LONDON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Construction work in Great Britain to cost more than $100,000,000 has been approved by the government in connection with its plans to alleviate unemployment. The government will make a total contribution to this work of about $45,000,000. This was revealed in a statement tonight by J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal and minister of employment.

The work involves municipalities, railway companies, gas companies and water supply companies. "It is generally required that all materials needed for the state-assisted works shall, so far as is practicable, be of United Kingdom manufacture," the statement said.

The government has further approved road schemes costing another $45,000,000. Under the whole five-year program of road work, the schemes approved total $75,000,000. The road fund liability is estimated at $80,000,000, and employment will be afforded equivalent to 100,000 men for one year.

CENSORSHIP CONCEALS HAPPENINGS IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, Dec. 10—(AP)—The Nationalist government today concealed with a wall of censorship the activities of rebels in several provinces of the Yangtze valley, but British and Japanese warships steamed up the river to protect their nationals, and an American flotilla is expected here Thursday with like intent.

As is usual in China when important events impend, censorship was clamped on tightly. No news came through concerning the rebels who for several days have threatened Nanking and against whom the government has been concentrating 75,000 men; there was silence regarding the mutiny of fourth division troops who defeated loyal forces at Chang Chow, 100 miles from Shanghai Sunday, and nothing was divulged of the activities of Tang Seng Chi, Nationalist general who revolted and was reported yesterday to be mobilizing 50,000 men in Honan province against the government.

SEES BRIGHTER FUTURE FOR DEMOCRATIC PARTY

CHICAGO, Dec. 10—(AP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, visioned a brighter future today for the democratic party in 1930 and left with party leaders in Chicago and Illinois renewed hopes of success in the coming congressional elections.

The smiling New York governor, who bobbled from one group of leaders to another with the aid of a New York state trooper, addressed a luncheon assemblage of several thousand democrats, called by Thomas F. Donovan, Illinois national committeeman, to hear Governor Roosevelt as a presidential possibility in 1932.

The governor sailed through several subjects in his address and dwelt upon public utility and the water power fight in New York, the farm problem, the Pennsylvania senatorial situation and ended in an appeal to democratic organizations in every state to work continually, from now until November next for the success of their party.

WOULD HOLD HOUSE MEMBERS RESPONSIBLE FOR UTTERANCES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—The prospect of holding members of congress accountable for utterances on the floor of the house of representatives was set forth today in a resolution introduced by Representative Fort, republican, New Jersey.

Under the resolution, a committee of five would be authorized to recommend censure or discipline for a member whose words on the floor were found slanderous.

Fort said his resolution was not occasioned by the belief that members of the house alone were at fault in the house of congressional immunity, but that in his opinion every legislative group should have rules to curb "assassination of reputations" under the protection of the constitution. He explained that the measure applied to no specific case but was offered simply with a view to the future.

FAVORABLE REPORT FOR FRENCH DEBT SETTLEMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—A favorable report on the Hawley bill to provide settlement of the French debt as requested by President Hoover in his annual message, was recommended today by the house ways and means committee.

The senate finance committee has before it a companion measure introduced by Chairman Smoot.

Chairman Hawley, of the house group, said he would seek early action there and Smoot has said he would call the measure up in the senate as soon as possible.

The house committee vote followed quickly the testimony of Under-Secretary Mills of the treasury, who explained details of the settlement providing payment of $4,025,000,000 over a period of sixty-two years.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Disarmament was the subject of discussion at a dinner of the English speaking union at which United States Ambassador Charles G. Dawes was the guest of honor. Lord Reading presided.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 10—(AP)—The U. S. S. Galveston, which reached Jacmel several days ago with a small body of reinforcements will leave that port tomorrow for Port-Au-Prince stopping at Aux Cayes, Jeremie and Miragoane en route.

LONDON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Laborites in the late "tay pay" O'Connor's constituency of Liverpool have selected Alderman Logan as their candidate in the by-election caused by the death of the "father of the house." The date of the by-election has not yet been set.

MAGDEBURG, Germany, Dec. 10—(AP)—The Magdeburg Zeitung says the Junkers airplane works at Dessau has decided to start legal action against the Ford Airplane company for alleged infringement of Junkers patents taken out in most of the principal countries for construction of all-metal airplanes.

SAYS MURDER SUSPECT WILL ESTABLISH COMPLETE ALIBI

NEW HAVEN Dec. 10.—(AP)—Dominic Prete, whom Connecticut authorities are anxious to question about a number of things in general and the murder of Dominick Zito in particular, will be able to establish a complete alibi as to his whereabouts when the latter met death, Alphonse C. Fasano, Prete's counsel, said today.

Fasano went to Brooklyn today where the young bricklayer is under arrest to make "every effort to have things brought to a head."

He intends to institute habeas corpus proceedings if specific charges are not immediately brought either by the state or by the federal government. Prete is wanted in connection with passing spurious money, according to the police.

Zito's body was found in a field nearly two weeks ago in the town of Orange. Police think he was killed because he "squealed" on a counterfeiting ring.

PLAN TO CALL UP TAX REDUCTION IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Confidence of the adoption of the $160,000,000 income tax reduction resolution by Saturday was expressed today by senate leaders as they determined definitely to call up the measure on Friday.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, expressed that view after a series of conferences, and plans it propose that the senate enter an agreement for the purpose.

Leaders of the democratic and republican independent coalition, which has a majority in the tariff contest, gave reassurances that they would approve consideration of the tax cut on Friday, providing the agreement is reached for a vote by Saturday night.

Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, who blocked consideration of the resolution yesterday, announced he had not changed his opinion that the tariff bill should be disposed of before the tax proposal is debated. He indicated, however, that he was ready to listen to the arguments of those demanding immediate action on taxes.

TEN INJURED IN CITY HALL ELEVATOR IN BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Dec. 10.—(AP)— Mayor William F. Broening and nine other persons, some of them city officials, were slightly injured when an elevator in the city hall fell three stories late today as the city employes were leaving their offices. The extent of the injuries were not known, but were believed not to be serious.

The mayor was the most seriously injured of the ten persons in the elevator, which was stuck in the shaft at the first floor. When the doors finally were forced open, the mayor was carried to his office, after others in the car had supported him.

He was understood to have suffered injuries to his head, ankles and stomach. Physicians were called to his office to render assistance.

PLAN ESTABLISHMENT OF COTTON MARKETING AGENCY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Preliminary steps or establishment of a centralized cotton marketing agency, under government control, were taken here today at a cotton congress attended by three members of the federal farm board and 150 leading representatives of the cotton industry.

The sessions were executive and the only official word concerning the deliberations was the announcement by Alexander Legge, chairman of the farm board, that "it seems our program will go through right away, little or no opposition has been manifest so far."

MAY APPOINT JOSEPH R. GRUNDY AS SENATOR TODAY

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 10.—(AP)—It appeared certain tonight that announcement of the appointment of Joseph R. Grundy as junior senator from Pennsylvania would be made tomorrow morning by Governor John S. Fisher.

Mr. Fisher attended the funeral this afternoon at Lancaster for the late Representative W. W. Griest. Maintaining his reticence on the selection the governor did not confer with William S. Vare, who since his rejection by the senate has said he would be a candidate for re-election next May, at Lancaster or any other person, the executives offices announced here.

PLEADED NOT GUILTY TO MURDER OF HER WARDS

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 10—(AP)—Gladys May Parks pleaded not guilty in Camden county court to two indictments charging he rwith the murder of her two child wards, Dorothy and Timothy Rogers, 4 and 2 years old respectively, last August. January 13, was set as the date for her trial.

CONSTRUCTION OF TWO PRISONS RECOMMENDED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Reorganization of the federal prison system and construction of two new prisons, recommended by President Hoover and Attorney General Mitchell, were asked in bills introduced today by Chairman Norris of the state judiciary committee.

Miners Threaten To Extend Coal Strike

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Dec. 10.—(AP)—The National Miners' union held control in the Taylorville district tonight coal strike over the state and possibly the nation.

The last of four units in this field, that of the Tovey Mine No. 8, went over to the National union late today. Immediately afterward a caravan of 100 autos, each bearing four to five miners, departed for Springfield.

Sheriff T. D. Dunbar of Christian county said he understood the strikers were to make a bid for recruits in the Springfield district before proceeding 60 miles south of here to picket Peabody Mine No. 10 in the Nokomis field.

The National Miners' union is a new organization springing from factional strife within the United Mine Workers of America. With acquisition of the Tovey unit today a report came also that the Pittsburgh, Pa., local of the union would strike if the Illinois movement spread. Approximately 3,000 men were on strike in the Taylorville district.

Andy Keirs, president of the United Mine Workers' local at Kincaid, was ejected from a hall by a thousand men and women when he attended to hold them under the United banners. Other officials of the United Mine Workers absented themselves from the meetings.

Approximately 700 of the strikers were listed as still loyal to the United Mine Workers, but refusing to work under National Guard protection.

Freeman Thompson of Springfield, who organized the National Miners' union, was under military arrest for disturbing the peace. Two others were arrested on similar charges yesterday.

A six-hour day and a five-day week, minimum wage of $35 a week and abolition of the check-off system, by which operators pay the dues of miners direct to the union, compose the strikers' demands.

Major C. J. McMackin of Salem, Ill., in command of the National Guard troops here, said he anticipated no trouble in the Taylorville district.

Sheriff Dispersed Crowd

ENTON, Ill., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Armed only with the butts of billiard cues, Sheriff James S. Pritchard and a lone deputy dispersed a crowd of some 50 National Miners' union strikers who had congregated at the Old Ben Mine No. 14, at Buckner today, to prevent loyal miners from going to work.

RE-HEARING AS TO SANITY OF HARTFORD MAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—George S. Worth, 26, of 48 Lenox street, Hartford, Conn., today won a court order for a re-hearing as to his sanity and the propriety of holding him in Dannemora state hospital for the insane, where he was sent after serving part of a prison term for throwing acid in his wife's face.

Worth was convicted of throwing the acid Oct. 22, 1927, when he met his wife in the reception room of a New York hotel to attempt a reconciliation.

The jury convicted Worth of second degree assault, recommending "extreme mercy." He was sentenced to 1 1-2 to 3 years in Sing Sing prison, but was transferred to the hospital last Jan. 20.

GOVT. RESTS CASE AGAINST PAN-AMERICAN PETROLEUM CO.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10.—(AP)— The government rested its case against the Pan-American Petroleum company today with the testimony of Lieut. Commander I. F. Landis, inspector of naval oil reserves.

The government's suit was brought to cancel leases on 660 acres of land comprising a naval reserve in Kern county, California.

The defense began its case by calling T. E. Klipstein, Bakersfield, Cal., oil man, in an effort to prove leases granted the company were obtained legally and not, as the prosecution charges, through fraud engaged in by E. L. Doheny and Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior during the Harding administration.

HALF OF $10,500 STOLEN FROM BANKS RECOVERED

YORK, Pa., Dec. 10—(AP)—More than half of the $10,500 stolen from the Seven Valleys National bank today was recovered tonight by a detail of state police.

The money was found under the floor in the garage of John Messersmith, near Stovertown. Two men found hiding in the cellar of the Messersmith farmhouse were taken into custody as suspects.

The men gave their names and addresses as Harry M. Sprague, and William Ralph Ward, both of Baltimore. Messersmith is being held as an accomplice.

The robbery occurred at 12:20 p. m. Assistant Cashier Walter Rudisill was forced into a vault, by two bandits.

RESUME INVESTIGATION OF ALBANY BASEBALL POOL

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Resuming its investigation of the Albany baseball and stock market pool, the federal grand jury devoted its afternoon session to hearing Joseph L. Delaney, Albany attorney.

Neither the United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle nor his assistant, Thomas T. Cooke, would disclose the nature of Delaney's testimony.

Three Albany police officials Frank Lasch, commissioner of public safety; David Smuri, chief of police, and John J. Peacock, assistant chief of police—appeared at the federal building this afternoon in answer to subpoenas, but none of them was called.

PROHIBITION AGENT WAS SHOT DEAD IN CUSHING, OKLA.

CUSHING, Okla., Dec. 10—(AP)—Otto Butler, of Enid, a federal prohibition agent, and once secretary to W. H. Sproul, former representative in congress from Kansas, was shot and killed here today when he attempted to serve a warrant on a Negro charged with selling whiskey. Butler's companion George Danhour, also a prohibition agent, was dangerously wounded. John Young, the Negro, and his wife, both of whom, Danhour said, participated in the shooting, were arrested and placed in jail here.

Bill Would Abolish Fed. Farm Board Loan

Cong. Dickinson Favors Transfer of Its Functions to the Federal Farm Board.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.— (AP) — Abolition of the federal farm loan board and transfer of its function to the federal farm board was proposed in a bill tiday by Representative Dickinson, republican, Iowa.

The measure was similar to one introduced in the senate last week by Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa. The farm board would be given full authority to administer the federal farm loan act, and officers and employes of the loan board would be transferred to the newer organization, along with funds not provided for administration for the farm loan act.

NO PROTEST AGAINST FARM BOARD POLICIES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—It was said at the white house today that Julius Barnes, chairman of the board of the United States chamber of commerce, had made no protest to President Hoover against the policies of the farm board.

The white house has received no complaints, it was said, over the farm board policy in urging the sale of grain by the Farmers' National Grain Marketing Corp. through cooperatives.

The inference was strongly left that the white house continuously had supported the policies of the farm board and could be expected to do so in the future. While it was said specifically that Julius Barnes had made no protest to President Hoover, it was divulged that the subject had been talked over in a general way with Mr. Hoover by Frank G. Crowell, a Kansas City grain man.

MERGER OF PROVIDENCE NEWSPAPERS ANNOUNCED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Announcement was made today of the purchase of the Providence Evening Tribune and the Sunday Tribune by the Providence News, owned by Peter G. Gerry, former U. S. senator. The two papers will be merged and will appear tomorrow as the News-Tribune.

The News-Tribune tomorrow will publish messages of congratulation to Senator Gerry from former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, John J. Raskob, several U. S. senators and several prominent Rhode Islanders, including Gov. Case.

DOUBTS CONFESSION OF MURDER BY CIGARMAKER

ATLANTA, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Doubt of the story of Elwell L. Hardegree, 38-year-old cigarmaker, that he killed her brother, Professor A. S. Johnston of Hartwell, Ga., here last June, was expressed today by Mrs. J. R. Wakefield, after she had confronted the self-accused slayer at police headquarters.

Mrs. Wakefield expressed disbelief of Hardegree's story after she had talked to him and after two witnesses who had described the slain man's companion on the night of the killing as a person "with a black eye" had failed to identify him.

TO INCREASE IMPORTANT DUTIES ON WOOL WASTES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Aided by the widest split in the ranks of democrats and republican independents since these two groups combined in the senate to rewrite the house version of tariff revision, the republicans on the senate finance committee today succeeded in a program to increase several important duties on wool wastes used in the manufacture of cheap clothing and blankets.

DECREASE IN REVENUE FREIGHT LOADING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.— (AP) — Revenue freight loadings for the week ended November 30 were reported today by the American Railway association to have totaled 837,107 cars.

This was a reduction of 113,173 cars under the preceding week, attributed to the Thanksgiving holiday, and a reduction of 63,449 cars under loadings for the corresponding week a year ago.

JURY COMPLETE FOR MURDER TRIAL OF DEPUTY SHERIFFS

TEN LIVES LOST IN FIRE IN A MOVIE STUDIO IN HARLEM

More Than 20 of the 100 Persons in the Building Were Injured, Some of Them Seriously—Four of the Dead Were Chorus Girls From Broadway, Who Were "Doubling" —Gay Cabaret Scene Was Being Enacted When the Fire Broke Out Without Warning—50 Scantily Clad Girls Escaped and Shivered in the Street as They Watched the Flames Gain Headway—Were Filming "Black and White Revue."

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Overcome by smoke and the terrific heat just before they could reach their way to safety, ten persons perished in a fire which today destroyed the old Manhattan movie studio in Harlem.

More than 20 others of the 100 persons who were in the building at the time the fire occurred, were injured, some of them seriously.

The dead were found by firemen just inside of the main studio entrance, not more than 30 feet from the doorway through which most of the survivors poured in their frantic dash to the street.

Four of the dead were young women, chorus girls from Broadway musical shows who were "doubling" at the studio during the day time in order to make extra money for Christmas.

Building a Roaring Furnace

The building was a roaring furnace by the time firemen arrived. With streams of water played on them, two firemen made their way through the entrance and carried out ten bodies heaped in the hallway, in the hope that not all were dead.

Life still lingered in but one of them, a pretty blonde dancing girl, who was carried to a waiting ambulance and rushed to the hospital. She was Edna Burford, 20 year old show girl. She died from burns a few hours later.

The fire broke out without warning upon a gay little cabaret scene which had been set upon the studio's stage. Make believe "butter and egg men" sat laughing at the tables, a few chorus girls danced in the background. Electricians were focusing the lights. The orchestra tuned up.

Upstairs in the balcony that ran around the walls of the second story, the actors were putting on their finishing touches of makeup. The call, "five minutes" had been sent up. The filming of the big scene of the "Black and White Revue," was soon to start.

Suddenly there came a shout of "fire." A velvet curtain was smoldering. Someone jerked it down. Its descent revealed a wall of fire blazing in a pile of scenery in the rear of the studio, which had been concealed by the black drops.

Stage hands and prop boys grabbed fire extinguishers. Others attempted to unreel a roll of fire hose, but their efforts were futile toward heading off the tongues of flame that licked greedily at the flimsy curtains and paper-mache of the studio furnishings. Black clouds of smoke rolled up. The heat soon became unbearable.

Realized Their Danger

All seemed to realize that their chance to save their lives remained in flight. As one the ystarted for the main entrance in the front of the building.

There were other exits, more handy, but terror-stricken, they failed to realize this. In a mass they poured from the doorway. Those on the balcony made for the front stairs and added to the rush. Many were swept off their feet and trampled, but the hands of the more clearly headed enabled them to reach the air.

Scantily clad chorus girls—50 of them—stood shivering in the cold street, hysterical as they gazed at the flames leaping from every window of the two story building that only a few minutes before had been bustling with so much activity.

All of the survivors were pathetic in their appearance. Clutched in their hands were a few of their belongings which they had picked up just before they dashed from the studio. Odd shoes, garments, ties and makeup boxes. Silently they gazed at the burning building until herded into the sheltering warmth of nearby stores and manufacturing plants.

Richard Stradline, an electrician, said he believed the fire started from a sun-arc light. He saw the light sputter, he said, and a glowing carbon dropped into a velvet drape. There was a tiny flash, and the curtain blazed up.

Studio officials said that if all inside had started for the exits at the first cry of fire there would have been no casualties. Some of them might have mistaken the cry of "Get out" for the last call to their places for the show, officials believed, and through a few moments of delay lost in their dash for life to the exits.

The disaster had its heroes. Harold Bischoff, a makeup man and one of the victims, carried two girls outside and dashed back into the building in an unsuccessful attempt to bring out a friend whom he thought was missing.

All did not leave by the main exit. Finding the hallway crowded for the moment, some took to the windows and dropped to the sidewalk below, beating the flames and roll of smoke only by seconds.

Firemen raised ladders and carried a few down from where they clung to the upper window ledges.

Joseph E. Flynn an official of Pathe Pictures, Inc., was in his offices on the balcony when the fire broke out. With his secretary, Miss Frances Walsh, he was forced by flames and smoke to retreat from the stairway and they were among those rescued by ladders.

Most of Dead Suffocated

Most of the dead had ben suffocated before the flames reached them and their bodies were burned only slightly. Only four could be identified immediately, however, and a crowd of frantic relatives and friends of studio employes visited the morgue in an attempt to name the others.

Standing on the corner of 134th street and Park avenue, the Manhattan studio has been used by motion picture concerns for 15 years. Twenty years ago, it was a dance hall and later a skating rink. Jack Johnson, the heavyweight Negro boxer, once used it for a training gymnasium.

The old Pearl White thrillers were made there. Marion Davies made some of her earlier pictures in the studio. Parts of "Annapolis," "The Letter Lock," "Show Boat," "Syncopation," and "Mother's Boy," were among the more recent productions. The studio was equipped for sound.

Filming of the "Black and White Revue," had started only yesterday for the Pathe exchange. It was directed by Harry Delmar. It was to be a musical bit, and had no famous principals in its cast. Eddie Elkins and his orchestra were featured. The leader and his 20 musicians all escaped, but they lost most of their instruments.

List of Identified Dead

Porter, Catharine, 16, dancer.
Bischoff, Harold, makeup man.
Wilson, Ernest, bookkeeper.
Kramer, Al, handyman.
Quinn, Jack, actor.
Mussman, Robert, hanyman.
Buford, Edna, 20, show girl, (died in hospital).
Sparks, Jola, 16, dancer.
Byrne, Betty, 18, dancer.
Koerble, Charles, 35, Leonia, N. J.

BETTER WEATHER PROMISED FOR NORTHWESTERN EUROPE

LONDON, Dec. 10—(AP)—While a rising barometer tonight promised better weather for northwestern Europe, experts set to work to compute the loss of human life and of property caused by the gale that has lashed Great Britain and the coast of the continent for more than a week.

Revised figures show that at least 134 persons perished. Most of them died at sea, more than 60 ships having sunk, been wrecked or badly damaged.

Incomplete figures in Paris showed that 52 lives have been lost on the French coast or in the interior.

The stormy waters of the channel and the ocean lost some of their fury this afternoon, but still another ship sent an SOS. This was the British steamer Londonderry, in danger ten miles northeast of Calais, France.

Crippled vessels still were creeping slowly into port. The British liner Ada was one that limped into Cobh today with a makeshift steering arrangement.

Floods in the valley of the Thames have caused a serious situation. The river still was rising with its flow already twice the normal rate. The discharging capacity of the Thames when flowing bank full is 4,500,000,000 gallons daily whereas today at Teddington the flow was 9,000,000,000 gallons. In some places the Thames is two miles wide where in normal days the river resembles only a good sized creek in the United States.

PRESIDENT-ELECT RUBIO OF MEXICO IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—President-elect Pascual Ortis Rubio, of Mexico came to New York today with the assertion that although he expected to confer with American bankers during his week in the city, he did not believe a new loan to Mexico or any changes in the present plan of payment would be necessary.

There are only two purposes to his visit, he said. First, to weld even more closely the friendly relations between his country and the United States, and second, to rest up from his political campaign. He came here from Hot Springs, Ark.

He denied any political significance in his visit and the presence of the Mexican delegation here to welcome former President Plutarco Elias Calles, who will arrive from Europe on the Liner Bremen.

When he leaves New York, Senor Ortiz Rubio said he will go to Washington, where he will be the guest of President Hoover.

LATE SENATOR WARREN LEFT $6,742,449 ESTATE

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Dec. 10—(AP)—The will of the late United States Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, in which the senator estimated the total value of the estate at $6,742,449 at the time it was drawn, March 4, last, was filed for probate here today.

The widow, Mrs. Clara A. Warren, and a son, Frederick E. Warren are the principal beneficiaries and are named as executors.

General John J. Pershing, a son-in-law, was left $30,000 in stock of the Warren Livestock company and the F. E. Warren Mercantile company.

Francis E. Warren II, a grandson, and a granddaughter, Mary Helen Warren, were among relatives receiving substantial bequests. Several employes received $1,000 each.

MAYOR "BOSSY GILLIS" ASSURED OF VICTORY

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Dec. 10—(AP)—Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis, "bad boy" mayor of this city, today was assured a victory over his arch rival, former Mayor Michael Cashman, at the end of a recount of the ballots cast in the recent municipal election. Mayor Gillis, who one time served a jail sentence for engaging in fisticuffs with Cashman, had a margin of 40 votes over his rival.

The "bad boy" mayor, whose controversies with this city's socially conservative elements, have attracted country-wide attention and have caused him alternate periods of triumph and grief, lost six votes during the recount, having had a lead of 46 at the end of the first count. Cashman said, however, that he would not further contest the count.

COL. MILLER CONVICTED OF OPERATING "DIPLOMA MILL"

J. D. PRINCE IS AWARDED $450 DAMAGES AND COSTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 10—Following a hearing on damages in the Windham county superior court today, Judge Edward M. Yeomans gave judgment for damages of $450 plus the costs, in favor of John D. Prince of this city, plaintiff in the case of Prince vs. George L. Shepaum, also of this city. A default to non-appearance had been entered in the case last June by Attorney John H. King. The suit had been brought against Shepaum and his wife, Mrs. Margaret M. Shepaum, to whom he deeded his property shortly after the basis of the suit. In making known his decision, Judge Yeomans set aside the deed and found against Shepaum only.

The action followed an accident on Windham road, this city, early in the morning of October 10, 1928, when an automobile driven by Shepaum struck and knocked down the plaintiff who was walking along the highway. Prince, an employe of the Smith-Winchester plant in South Windham, was treated at St. Joseph's hospital by Dr. Charles A. Jenkins for lacerations of the face and head, abrasions on the face and contusions of the chest.

Shepaum was not arrested at the scene but was subsequently charged with evading responsibility. After two continuances of the case in police court, Shepaum was acquitted of the charge by Judge Frank H. Foss.

Prince, the plaintiff, testified that he has not worked steadily since the accident owing to an injury to his shoulder. Dr. Jenkins described the injuries to Prince, stating that he did not consider them permanent in nature. The physician said that he was in conversation with Captain Frank W. McLean at police headquarters when a telephone report of the accident came in. He immediately drove to the scene and gave Prince first aid treatment at the home of Daniel A. Maine. The man was conscious at the time, but in pain and the witness drove him to the hospital where Prince remained for three days. Dr. Jenkins said that his bill for services was $30 and the hospital account $10.

Cecelia A. Barstow, secretary and bookkeeper for the Smith-Winchester company testified that Prince had lost wages to the amount of $77.88, an aggregate of 237 hours, as a result of the accident. He also said that Prince has time lost time owing to lameness in his shoulder. Herbert A. Card, timekeeper at the same plant, corroborated this testimony.

George Shepaum, the defendant, testified that he had paid the hospital and physician's accounts. He then told of a release, or settlement of the case, signed by the interested parties at the office of Attorney Frank H. Foss in the presence of the latter and Miss Elizabeth Anderson, welfare bureau secretary. Attorney King was not present at this conference, however. An effort on the part of Attorney Howard C. Bradford to have this document entered into the records of the case on behalf of the defendant, met with opposition from the plaintiff counsel, the objection being sustained by the court. The court did allow, however, that the agreement be permitted to be entered as an opinion on the amount of damages, inasmuch as it stated that Prince would drop the matter in the event that Shepaum would meet payment of the hospital and physician's bill. Shepaum stated that Prince voluntarily suggested drawing the agreement which was dated October 30, 1923. Witness said he transferred his property to his wife October 27 of that year.

Judge Frank H. Foss told of preparing the so-called release and of its being signed by Prince and Shepaum in the presence of himself and Miss Anderson. John N. Gilman, employer of the defendant, corroborated testimony given by Shepaum as to the terms of the release.

Mr. Maine told of being informed of the agreement by the plaintiff. Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton testified that the Shepaum property had been transferred in the name of Mrs. Shepaum in October 24. Attorney John H. King then took the stand to undergo examination by Attorney John B. Harvey, associated with him in the case.

In his argument Attorney King claimed damages of from $750 to $1,000.

Court recessed for luncheon at this point, the case scheduled for the afternoon session being that of George J. Rood of Windham, a general contractor, against Jacob Starr, North Windham storekeeper. Rood claims damages of $2,750 for moving a grocery store and residence owned by Starr. Rood claims to have been engaged in the work between March 20 and July 24, 1928, moving the building a distance of 57 feet to a new foundation in the rear of the original location. He claims that other than receiving certain groceries and other merchandise he has not been paid for the work. A counter claim has been entered against Rood's allegations.

Rood and his son, George W. Rood, testified to moving the building. Rood said that he was fully experienced in moving buildings and that he had taken every precaution against damaging the structure in this instance.

The defense witnesses testified that the building had cracked in several places as a result of not having been properly shored during the moving. Jacob Starr and Fannie Starr were the first witnesses for the defense. They were followed by George N. Drake of South Chaplin, who said he had been a carpenter for over 50 years and had done considerable house-moving. He estimated the damage to the Starr building, as a result of faulty work in moving it, at $1,500, replacement value. He told of the cracks in the walls, the poor condition of doors, the cellar and back porch. He claimed that the house settled because it was not properly timbered during the moving process. He had made a bid of $1,300 to move the house. Fred L. Maynard of North Windham, a painter and Gene Denanno of Storrs, stonemason, both testified to defects found in the house, which they attributed to faulty moving work. Court adjourned at this juncture until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock when the case will be continued.

A trio of cases having to do with automobile law violations were heard by Justice of the Peace Mrs. Fannie Rissen Welch of the Columbia town court Saturday night with State Policemen Henry Heinold of the Stafford Springs barracks as chief witness in the cases. Miss Jane Ninde of Boston, Mass., was fined $25 and costs for reckless driving and acquitted of a charge of evading responsibility. She was driving toward Hartford Saturday night when she pulled her car to the left side of the road to invite a girl pedestrian to ride with her. As she slowed her car down, two trucks approached down the grade. One was owned by Augustus Lindholm of Andover and driven by Hall Manesa of that place and the other was owned by the General Motors company, driver unknown. Upon seeing the trucks the woman started up her car and pulled over to the right side of the road. The General Motors truck collided with that owned by Lindholm, doing some damage. While State Officer Heinold was investigating this accident, Russell Bull of Bridgeport came along and in passing the damaged vehicles caused another machine to sideswipe one of the trucks. Bull was charged with failure to give right of way and fined five dollars and costs. Manesa was charged with not having a driver's license in his possession and fined three dollars and costs. Fines were remitted in all three cases, each accused paying the costs of $9.10.

A branch of the Loyal Temperance Legion has been organized here with the following officers to hold office for three months: President, Winifred Brehant; secretary, Beatrice Kerwin; treasurer, Angela Zagara and librarian, Edison Lyman. The branch was organized after a conference between members of the Woman's Christian Temperance union and Mrs. Marguerite Goodale of Durham, state director and organizer of Loyal Temperance Legion work in Connecticut, held in the Salvation Army citadel this week.

Andrew Link of 1120 West Main street, this city, remains a patient at St. Joseph's hospital with injuries sustained in an accident in Colchester last Friday. His companion in the car, John E. Shea, also of this city, died at the hospital Monday afternoon as a result of injuries sustained in the accident. Henry LaBarr of Hartford, a division engineer of the Southern New England Telephone company and driver of the car which figured in a collision with one owned by Link, is quite seriously hurt and it is said he will remain a patient in the Hartford hospital for some time. It is believed that the inquest to be conducted into the death of Shea by Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson will be postponed pending the recovery of these men.

DANIELSON

LOCAL BUILDING AND LOAN TO HELP HOUSING PROBLEM

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 10.—This afternoon a representative group of citizens, members of the Danielson Building and Loan association, and including some of the officers of the organization, met at the Danielson Trust Co. to take up in a formal way the matter of providing the additional housing facilities that Danielson needs so badly.

The outcome of the conference was a proposal that a drive be made to sell 5,000 shares of the Danielson Building and Loan association be launched right after the holiday season to the public at large, making them stockholders and giving them for their investment the same security and assured earnings that stockholders of the Danielson Building and Loan association have enjoyed for well over a decade.

The plan is to organize and conduct an intensive campaign to the end that at least 50 new homes be built here during the coming year. J. W. Powdrell of Powdrell & Alexander has said recently that at least that many houses are needed for employes of his concern alone, who are now living outside of Danielson, though wishing to live here. The benefit of this in a business way is immediately apparent.

The sale of 5,000 shares of the association would produce an income of $5,000 a month, $60,000 a year for a few months over 12 years. The proposal will be placed before a meeting of the stockholders of the Danielson Building and Loan association next Tuesday evening. There is already strong support for the project, which carried to success, would mean a great deal to Danielson in various valuable ways.

The Danielson Building and Loan association has been successful in its operations from the first, has paid dividends unfailingly and has had satisfactory earnings every year since it was organized.

Beautiful holiday lines of linens—Madeira, Spanish, Italian, Swedish, hand-embroidered and hand-drawn, pillowcases, lunch cloths, doilies, etc.; also handsome Deruta lace, leather bags, hosiery, silk underwear, negligee and bath robes and many other things for Christmas gifts at the Alice-Eleanor shop.—adv.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill was in Willimantic this morning investigating as to circumstances surrounding the accident in which John E. Shea, 30, of Jackson street, Willimantic, was so badly hurt in an accident on the Norwich-Colchester state highway last Friday afternoon that he died Monday afternoon at St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic. Coroner Bill will hold the inquest at a later date.

As a result of an accident in which a Ford truck figured yesterday at the foot of Hampton hill, Charles Chesters of Hampton was before Justice Oliver in that town this afternoon and was fined $5 and costs, the fine being remitted. Chesters was driving his truck out of a dirt road onto the state highway when it crashed with a machine being operated by Louis Haines of Providence, bound in the direction of Willimantic. Both machines were considerably damaged, but neither Chesters nor Haines was injured. A state officer from the Danielson barracks who checked up the accident ordered Chesters into court for failure to grant the right of way.

Fred Corwin, New London, whose car crashed through the state highway fence at Tunnel hill in Lisbon Sunday night and rolled down the steep embankment with Corwin and three other men who were riding with him, has been ordered to make a court appearance. Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart of the state police said today Corwin will face a charge of operating his car while his license was under suspension. He had left the scene of the accident before the investigating officer from the Danielson barracks arrived to check it up.

George W. Butts and Hiram Warner, both residents of the East Killingly section of the town, were before Judge W. Penner Woodward in the town court this morning to answer to charges of breach of the peace, and were in each instance fined $2. Butts also faced the additional charge of driving an automobile without having an operator's license and was fined $1 and costs.

As the result of an accident in which his car figured, on the state highway near Elmville Saturday afternoon, Henry A. Potter of Putnam was presented in the town court to answer to a charge of reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs, $15 of the one being remitted. Potter's car collided with a parked machine owned by Alfred Weeks of Poquonoc Bridge while Weeks was aiding a state officer who had just shot an injured deer to drag the carcass out to the highway from a nearby field.

From an official quarter today the finger of reproach was pointed at parents who allow children apparently no more than five years of age to coast on busy streets where automobiles are constantly passing. This official pointed out the responsibility that parents have for the safety of their children and of the gross negligence some of them are now displaying by allowing little tots to daily risk being killed on the streets.

Killingly high school's basketball squad has started practice for the season's schedule of games. The team is being coached by Evan Richardson of the faculty. The first game will be played at the end of the month, probably on New Year's eve. All the home games will be played in the gymnasium at the high school.

George Poirier, 16, of Grosvenordale was charged by state officers here with throwing a stone through the window of the home of Napoleon Lafonte in that community. He explained that he did it because he "wanted to be mean." Investigation to establish who had been breaking windows in the Grosvenordales the past fortnight led to Poirier's arrest.

This afternoon, Coroner Arthur G. Bill began his inquest relative to the death of Charles Webb, who died the past week of meningitis, which developed after he had been injured when knocked off his bicycle when it was struck on Thanksgiving eve by an automobile operated by Herbert Parker of Brooklyn.

For the first time, a meeting of the Woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital of Putnam will be held here Thursday afternoon at the Community room of the Connecticut Light and Power Co. building. The meeting here is arranged for the convenience of members of the board resident in Danielson and vicinity.

Today's business had been underway less than two hours when what in some instances was proclaimed as Christmas club money began to come over the counters to pay for holiday purchases. The club checks were obtained in this morning's mail.

Miss Emma F. Pilling said that she had received today another gift of $50 to be added to the Killingly Woman's club scholarship fund, the income used each year in aiding some selected graduate of Killingly high school to obtain a college course. Incident to this fund Miss Pilling said that a rummage sale is to be held about mid-January to further increase it and thereby make more income available.

In addition to the surviving children of Mrs. Hermanie Chagnon, dead at her home in Wauregan, as listed in this column Monday, there is another son, Joseph, of Waterbury, formerly of Wauregan.

Time dwindles rapidly for those who plan to send gifts from here to relatives abroad in time for delivery at Christmas. Each year a considerable number of gifts go to European countries from this territory.

Taxi drivers here have added a new feature of usefulness to the service they ordinarily perform by agreeing to bring automobile registration plates from Hartford for those who wish to have this done for them.

Herbert C. Desjardins of Taunton is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

PUTNAM

SCHOOL BUS OVERTURNS BUT NONE IS INJURED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 10.—The lives of six school children and a driver were miraculously spared Monday afternoon when a Hudson sedan skidded on a patch of ice-covered macadam on the Providence road, turned over on its side and was churned into a mass of wreckage.

Delmer E. Hazen of Bridge street was operating the car. The accident was without forewarning and came upon the student party so suddenly that no occupant is able to explain causes for the crash. Hazen, who is an experienced driver, told of a horse-drawn vehicle proceeding along the narrow stretch of road. Another car was following the team and while attempting to pass struck glare ice on the shoulder of the road and nearly met the same fate. Hazen slackened his speed, almost coming to a stop, when he drew to the shoulder to pass. A left wheel struck ice and later a small wall near the road. When the wheels returned to the bare surface of the highway, the car in some unexplainable manner left the road and tilted on its side. It is impossible to account for the escape of driver and passengers. No injuries of any nature befell any occupant, despite the fact that the sedan is damaged almost beyond repair.

The scene of the mishap was on the narrow stretch where the Providence-Putnam pike road passes through a notch a short distance beyond Burrills corners. About a year ago two women residents of North Grosvenordale, met their deaths at this point when an automobile in which they were riding skidded and overturned in the same manner as did the school cab, snuffing out the lives of two mothers and seriously injuring an infant child.

Almost the same place on the Putnam-Providence pike road again proved to be a Waterloo for another autoist early this morning, when a truck owned by a Providence baking concern, laden with bread for delivery in Putnam and vicinity skidded and turned on its side. The vehicle was badly damaged and before the cargo could be removed to another truck the ruins of the disabled commercial wagon had to be returned to an upright position. The driver escaped uninjured. This is the second automobile mishap to take place in the vicinity of Burrills four corners, adjudged to be one of the most hazardous spots on the Providence-Putnam avenue of travel in the winter months.

The Masons, who have been humbled by the Elks in winter indoor sports tournaments for the past three years got away to a flying start Monday evening by taking the first round of play of the 1929-30 engagement held at the Masonic club rooms on South Main street. The Masons clinched nine of the 14 bridge games. The cribbage encounters resulted in a tie score. Following is the result of the summary (Masonic players first): Holden and Miron defeated Miller and Brousseau; DeCoudres and Marcy defeated Gallant and Campbell; Dow and R. Diamond defeated Chadwick and Mansfield; Minor and Merriam defeated Cavanaugh and Berth; Dean and Wheaton defeated Gagne and Milot; Sherman and Stanton defeated Cotter and Murray; Chase and E. Johnson defeated H. Benoit and McIntyre; Duffey and Myers defeated Champlain and Averill; Moss and Wolozin defeated Wheatley and Loomis; Geissler and Morse lost to Charron and Hannifan; Gifford and Tourtellotte lost to Keroack and Gregoire; S. Diamond and Warren lost to N. Dupre and Larose; R. Baker and G. Baker lost to Berthiaume and Tetreault; Hawkins and Seward lost to King and Shaw. At cribbage Potter and Medbury defeated Girard and Wheelock and LePire and Wheeler lost to Raffery and Wheaton.

With the last block of granite set into position a few days ago and the spattering of plaster washed from the walls, exterior staging were removed today from the new banking house of the Cargill Trust Co., on Main street. The structure, unique in its design commended much attention from passersby as it took its place among the city's business houses today. The building is one of the most beautiful in the downtown section. It is fireproof and modernistic in architecture. Workmen are now engaged in the completion of the interior of the building.

A meeting of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter of D. A. R., was held Monday afternoon at the Odd Fellows hall on Pomfret street with a large percentage of the membership in attendance. Mrs. Mary Hopkins and Miss Gertrude Perry were hostesses. The programme of entertainment was furnished by Mrs. R. K. Chase of the Leland Powers school in Boston, who gave a number of readings. Miss Helen Varbedian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Varbedian of Walnut street, rendered a number of piano selections.

A decree was entered in superior court in Providence Monday, authorizing Lewis A. Waterman, receiver of the National Rhea Co. of Rhode Island which has a large plant in this city, to sell the property at auction at a figure not less than $147,500. Judge William Tanner presided at the session of court. Since the bulk of the corporation's property is situated in this city a similar hearing is to be held in superior court in this county on Tuesday, Dec. 17, in Providence, the court authorized the receiver to expend $750 in advertising terms of the sale.

The police continued the enforcement of traffic and parking regulations today, but at a late hour tonight had not been forced to resort to drastic action as was expected would be necessary before the crusade against violators would attain any height. Captain of Police William J. Jarvis said this afternoon that the public cooperation will see the so-called "hazardous" situation in the shopping district work out its own salvation.

Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett, prominent Putnam business woman, has returned to her home on Main street following a long sojourn at her summer home at Crescent Beach, where she was convalescent from an illness contracted here several months ago.

Maurice Miour, an official of the Church Clothing Co., is seriously ill of pneumonia at his home on Church street. A report from the sick room today was to the effect that a slight improvement was noted in his condition. Mr. Miour was confined to his home for several weeks with a similar illness a year ago.

Annual Christmas sale under the auspices of the Parish guild of St. Philip's Episcopal church, will be held in the Community room of the Putnam Savings bank on Friday, Dec. 13 beginning at 10 a. m. Your patronage is invited.—adv.

Attorney Irving H. Miron of Main street was in Hartford today.

Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin announced today that schools in the town and city will suspend sessions on Friday, Dec. 20, for the Christmas recess. They will reopen again on Dec. 30 for the winter semester.

The pupils of Miss Strahan's room in the Israel Putnam school have been making waste bags for the Red Cross.

Members of the executive committee of the Putnam chapter of Red Cross in charge of the sale of Christmas health seals have reported that a large financial response has been made by the public.

The second regular meeting of the class in public speaking was held tonight at the Israel Putnam school at 7:30. Thirty-six members have been enrolled in the class to date, Superintendent Farrin said today.

Frederick S. Camp, state director of urban education, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Putnam Public School Teachers' club to be held on Wednesday afternoon at Putnam high school.

JEWETT CITY

ALFRED HEBERT DEAD—MEMBER NORWICH ELKS' LODGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 10.—Alfred Hebert died at his home in Fanning court at 7:30, Tuesday evening. His ill health had lasted over a period of eight months, following a paralytic stroke which came upon him while he was at his employment with the Western Grain Co. The young man has lived in Jewett City 17 years and his many friends have been very loyal to him during his illness. He was a member of the local Knights of Columbus and of B. P. O. E. No. 430 of Norwich. He is survived by his wife and a son, Alfred, Jr.

Special meeting tonight, 7:30, K. of C., to take action on the death of our late brother, Alfred Hebert.—adv.

The fact that Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former democratic governor of Wyoming, may be the first woman U. S. senator is of interest to Jewett City friends. Mrs. Ross, a speaker on the Chautauqua circuit came here during the summer of 1927. While here, she was taken seriously ill and was cared for at the home of Dr. G. H. Jennings where he, as well as Mrs. Elizabeth Chase, R. N., ministered to her comfort and welfare. Very thankful when she went away for the many kindnesses shown her here during her illness, she was far from forgetting when she reached her western home. Mrs. Chase was asked to accept, with cordial greeting, a beautiful pearl necklace. And for the doctor, when Mrs. Ross wrote recently for the Cosmopolitan she called direct attention, and paid a fine tribute to the New England doctor.

A party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gill, 2 Aspinook street, Saturday afternoon, for their granddaughter, Shirley V. Peterson, on her fifth birthday. The decorations were Christmas trimmings and the favors were red baskets and red paper hats were given the guests, the baskets being filled with fancy Christmas candies. Games were played, also there was a peanut hunt, Miss Phyllis Campbell and Bobby Stafford receiving the prizes. Lunch of sandwiches, fancy cookies, cake, fruit, candy and cocoa was served by Mrs. Gill. In the center of the table there was a large birthday cake, with five lighted candles. Among those present were the two grandmothers, Mrs. Charles Peterson and Mrs. Joseph Gill; also Phyllis and Dwight Campbell, J. Chester, Jr., and Bobby Stafford, Mary and Mildred Ferguson, Francis and Herbert Sharkey, H. Gordon Willis, Jr., Arvine Gray, Verne Thornton, George and Richard L'homme, Little Miss Peterson received many beautiful gifts.

Postmaster William T. Crumb announces that in connection with the city carrier service to be established at the Jewett City postoffice effective Jan. 2, 1930, there is to be a check made Dec. 14 of all slots and boxes at homes of patrons. All who wish to receive their mail must have slots in door or boxes properly placed at their homes on said date. Also they must have all mail addressed to street and house number. It would help a great deal if this practice was started at once. Also, the public is informed that after Dec. 31, 1929, there will be no more 1 cent rate on local drop letters all local letters requiring a 2 cent stamp.

Mrs. E. E. Scates is to entertain the Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church Thursday afternoon at the parsonage in Sylvandale.

Mrs Philip Herard is a patient in a private hospital in New London.

Representative Lionel E. Boucher is securing a set of photographs of the construction work connected with the big 1,200-foot Quinebaug viaduct, the size of which is to be seen no where else. These pictures will include various phases of the outstanding features of the unfinished contract, which are being secured as the structures appear. Many of them will be impossible of duplication, notably and perhaps the best of all, will be the river, with one bare pier rising from its bed, then the river with two piers standing alone and finally a view will be secured showing the river with four piers and the two great cement abutments, before the 75-foot steel girders are swung into place. The Northwest Co., who manufactured the giant cranes, shovels and mixers, as well as the M. A. Gammino Construction Co., are to benefit by these fine and altogether unusual photographs.

The Sewing club from Room Three at Riverside grammar school, held a business meeting Tuesday afternoon. The following officers were elected: President, Rita McKenna; vice-president, Agnes Connelly; secretary, Mary Parzyck; directress, Mrs. Remick; assistant directress, Sophie Gunner; decorators, Etta Shea, Julia Stadnicki. The club voted to make a Christmas basket to be given to a needy family.

The Town Nurse committee held its December meeting Monday evening and re-elected Dr. G. H. Jennings, chairman; Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, secretary, and J. H. McCarthy, treasurer. Miss Alice Brennan, R. N., was reappointed district nurse.

Father McCabe in Accident

Rev. J. J. McCabe was delayed Saturday in his trip to Washington, D. C., where he assisted at the investiture of Rt. Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick, of Norwich, professor of education at the Catholic university and recently appointed a monsignor by Pope Pius XI. Father McCabe went to New London to visit Fred Maynard, who is in a hospital there, and on his return his car skidded on ice near the Richmond Radiator foundry on the West Side, Norwich. The machine turned around and struck a pole, damaging the car somewhat. In some way his knee was injured, but it is not thought the injury is serious. He was able to go to Washington later at night.

The Latest Five club met at Josephine Sellas' home Monday evening and enjoyed games and refreshments. The hostess is the president and Arlene Symington is secretary of the club. Other members are Anna Brodacka, Stella Sellas and Anita Vegiard.

SIGHTS IN LONE STAR STATE DESCRIBED BY TOURIST

Writing from the Hotel Paso Del Norte, El Paso, Texas., under date of Dec. 2, the tourists say we left Pecas this morning at 9 and reached here this afternoon at 4 o'clock. 225 miles. Until we reached Sem Blanco it was a mountainous country, with open valleys, through which the road and the railroad passed. The land did not appear as if it were worth anything as far as vegetables were concerned, sage brush, cactus and yucca.

In the wide valleys, stretching for miles, we could see cattle grazing but that they got to eat was beyond me. There must have been thousands of cows and one and two-year-olds, and calves. One ranch we passed had over the gate to the adobe as a brand for their cattle, a square and circle. For more than two hundred miles the railroad and the highway ran together, sometimes the railroad took one side of the mountain and the highway the other, meeting again on the other side.

Some of the mountains rose almost perpendicular out of the valley and it would be impossible for anyone to climb them. For about two-thirds of the way up was at an angle of 45 degrees, the last third was perpendicular. The mountains to the east were near the top, a red purple, at the foot a blue purple. These mountains were the Davis range. We did not get within 15 miles of them. The tops of this range were in the clouds, until the sun burned the clouds away and then they came out in all their splendor.

To the west were mountains not so high and these were of a soft pink.

No vegetation on these whatever. The Davis range was so far away we could not tell, but think there was no shrubs or bushes on them.

Coming down from Sierra Blanca, we came to irrigated land watered from the Rio Grande. What a change! Here were trees and cotton fields. I am told there are thousands of acres of cotton not picked yet in Texas. There were hundreds of Mexicans, men, women and children, at work in the cotton fields. They tie a long bag (6 ft. long) around their necks and drag the bag along behind them picking with both hands. Mule teams were in the fields (no Negroes) and I think one family picked for certain wagons. There were piles of cotton between the row that belonged to certain others.

Then came hay-fields, and they were being mowed. This was a mixture of alfalfa. It was cured by raking into windrows and then put in heaps about as large as a two-bushel basket.

There are no wooden houses, all adobe. The native Mexican houses were small, one or two rooms, flat roof, a door and a window.

The ranch house was adobe also, but some were very elaborate, white washed and had the mission architecture. The walls were two or three feet thick. There were very few windows.

These houses were all of one story. For five miles before reaching this city the road was lined on both sides by trees in full leaf. The leaves were of a bright yellow and were beginning to fall.

We have very good rooms here, overlooking the pincipal street of the city. We are on the top, 7 stories. We will stay here a day or two. I think we may run over into Mexico tomorrow.

I will send you two bolts of cotton I picked on the way today.

A family doctor's laxative is the sensible choice!

YOUR health is too important! You can't afford experiments with your delicate bowels when a coated tongue, bad breath, gas, headaches, nausea, feverishness, biliousness, lack of appetite, and no energy, warn of constipation. This applies not only to grown people; it is particularly the case where young children are concerned.

That's why a family doctor's laxative is always the safe choice! Only a doctor knows just what will cleanse the system of men, women or children without harm.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is prepared today under strict supervision from freshest herbs and other pure ingredients, and exactly according to Dr. Caldwell's original prescription.

He was a family doctor for more than forty-seven years. He specialized in the disorders of the digestive tract. He tested this prescription in thousands of cases. Men liked its quick and thorough action; the children liked its pleasant taste; old people praised it because it never gripes.

Today, millions of families rely on Dr. Caldwell's judgment in the selection of their laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is now sold in all drug stores. It is the world's largest selling laxative.

REGISTERING LOBBYISTS

Opinions will vary greatly as to the results of the lobby investigation that has been conducted by the senate committee, quite the same as they do relative to the goodness or badness of lobbying. It is perfectly apparent that those working for or against legislation can be sincerely and legitimately engaged and nothing that the lobbying committee has brought out has upset such a view. That there are those who make a nuisance of themselves is no revelation. They make a living out of such activities and they are at the beck and call of anyone who can furnish the money with which to keep them going.

Out of the feeling that has existed over the lobbyist and the hearings that have been held in regard to only a few angles of the matter there has sprung up a feeling on the part of some that there should be a law requiring all lobbyists to register, whether they are individuals, firms or associations. The idea would be to provide each registered lobbyist with a card of identification and all who engage in lobbying would be subject to a fine of $500 or a year in jail if they could not show that they were registered. The cards would admit the lobbyists to all hearings in which they would be interested and would give them a standing before the entire congressional body. They would also be required to file a certified account showing their receipts and expenditures within a period of 30 days following the adjournment of a session. Thus it would be possible to keep tabs on their operations as well as keep their identity.

What the outcome will be is not included just because the bill has been introduced. For the most part those who go to Washington in behalf of any particular measure or against it do not engage in what can be regarded as objectionable lobbying. They are presenting views upon matters which should be possessed by those who must act upon them. Congressmen may have those facts and they may not. It is the professional lobbyist to whom the chief objection is raised, he who is representing special interests and whose activities are considered to be for the special interests regardless of public welfare. And yet public welfare isn't always represented by the attitude or action of members of congress.

CHRISTMAS TREES

This is the time of the year when we do a lot of thinking about Christmas trees. We have to think about getting them, we notice them in the stores and figuring conspicuously in the decorations and we see them by the carload in most every long line of freight cars and there are those who call attention to the great waste that is entailed in the cutting of the trees for such a purpose.

Providing the Christmas trees for the market is a well-established business. It means that acres and acres of land are cut over every year to obtain these trees, but it also means that those who use their land for the growing of these trees and those who market them take good care to see that enough new trees are set out each year to provide for the future demands. Thus the Christmas tree growers are giving the necessary attention to their enterprise and not making raids upon the available supply without thought of replacement.

But it is well to bear in mind in this connection that conservationists do not regard the Christmas tree business as something that ought to be stopped. They understand that it is conducted on rational lines and that it is quite as legitimate a use of the little trees as some of the uses to which the larger ones might be put. Many of these trees would not be fit for much else and, taken as a whole, the Christmas tree trade represents only a very small part of the work of reforestation that ought to be undertaken in this country.

There is always talk about the production of a substitute for the Christmas tree and the passing of the custom of having them, but it is difficult to see that there is any evidence of a deterioration of interest or any decrease in the number of homes where the custom is observed.

It would unquestionably be a fine thing if there could be a substantial increase in the acreage of new trees in every state each year, but that opportunity exists regardless of Christmas trees. There is a large acreage waiting for just such treatment in addition to that which is employed for the growing of the trees for Christmas but it continues to go to waste year in and year out.

TALKING WITH THOSE AT SEA

By means of the radio, distance has been annihilated. We can communicate quickly around the world and with either pole. Those a long distance off can be brought into communication on short notice.

This week there has been a demonstration of the new progress that has been made in this direction by the test of a telephonic communication between a group of men in an office in New York and the commander of the Leviathan, 200 miles off shore. Not only was it shown that it could be done but there was perfect transmission, every word being distinctly heard, and it was possible for the ship's commander to recognize the voice of the person speaking.

Now that it has been shown what can be done at that distance it will mean that steps will be taken to have other large ocean liners equipped so that similar communication can be carried on with them and so that it will be possible for a person ashore to obtain a telephonic connection with any particular room aboard the ship. That will mean that it will not only be possible for messages to be exchanged between those ashore and those at sea, which is now possible by wireless, but it will be possible to carry on a private conversation, which is necessary and much more important in certain instances.

While the test as made covered only 200 miles it is believed that it will be possible to extend such service so that such communication can be carried on for a distance of 1,500 miles, or half way across the ocean, and thus get in touch with travelers two to three days before they are due to land.

In many ways we have seen the remarkable developments that have been going on in wireless, radio and telephony. None of them has reached the point where we cannot expect more from them. In all probability only the surface has been scratched and yet we have gotten to the point where it is possible to obtain desirable advantages from combining them and putting the combination to practical use. It simply gives us a vision of some of the future possibilities which may be discovered any time by the experts.

PHILIPPINE INDEPENDENCE

From the efforts that are being made there appears to be a revival of interest in giving independence to the Philippines. Perhaps more serious consideration might be given to it if it came at a different time and was urged by different persons.

This is a question which is always bobbing up but it is advanced at this time more out of regard for certain interests in this country than to satisfy the desires of the Filipinos.

In connection with the tariff revision it has been shown that there is a strong desire on the part of sugar growers in this country that there should be a tariff placed upon the sugar that is sent to this country from the Philippines. They want this done as a protection to American-raised sugar and yet it is to be realized that the Philippines are a part of our insular possessions, quite the same as Porto Rico, and we haven't as yet resorted to the practice of placing a tariff on goods that are produced in one part of the country to the exclusion of the same goods coming from another section.

When it was apparent that such a proposal would not carry, there was a demand that the Philippines be placed under the coastwise regulations of this country. That was a move in the same direction. The purpose was to exclude foreign ships from carrying sugar from the islands and boost the price of the island sugar laid down in the country by having it carried in American bottoms. Even that idea of discriminating against the Filipinos didn't work, so now the effort is directed toward casting them loose so that as a foreign country they will come under tariff regulations the same as other countries.

The move for Philippine independence at this time is simply an effort to exclude Philippine sugar and other products. It disregards entirely the question of the fitness of the islanders to govern themselves or the responsibility involved on the part of this government in discharging its duty to the islands.

LOCK YOUR CAR

Looting automobiles is getting to be a profitable business for a certain number in Boston, so much so that it has given the police force in the Back Bay section a bigger task than it can cope with and do it successfully.

Plain clothes men have been assigned to the work of protecting such property and running down the thieves. From such a study as they have made of the situation they are disposed to feel that no small degree of responsibility rests upon the owners of the automobiles who leave valuable property therein as a temptation to the light fingered and fail to lock the machines. All that is necessary is to open the door and walk away with the goods. The thieves take a chance of being caught but they know that even the plain clothes men are unable to tell whether they are stealing the goods or whether they are the owners of autos.

The upshot of it is that the head of the police force in that section has ordered his men to remove articles from any car that is found to be unlocked and place a tag on the car ordering the driver to report at headquarters. There may be double indignation to think that the goods have been stolen and that the car has also been tagged but the tension is lessened when the situation is explained and we doubt if such a car owner will leave his machine unlocked in the future. It may mean some annoyance for the car owner but he must appreciate the value of the reminder. At least, it is preferable to having the goods stolen and it relieves the police of trying to do the impossible in guarding unlocked cars. Others can profit from that practice.

DANCING SHEEP

Nancy Telford watched the little green dining room gradually fill with people. Pretty women's faces against her wall of black dancing sheep, against the thin figures chasing goats over crags. It was a picture in the candle light. Nancy squinted in order to dim the picture, so that she might see her daily visitors through a blurry, imaginative lens. Then she smiled contentedly.

Nancy Telford owned the Green Pigeon teahouse that stood on a narrow street, and, although it wasn't large it was sufficient to provide a fair income for a girl of 26 without a relative in the world. Uncle Caleb had left her some money. And the money went into the Green Pigeon, more as an experiment than anything else. An experiment with walls, floors, ceilings and tall windows. Nancy was having a chance to prove that she was an interior decorator by choice.

That evening passing among the tables and nodding here and there to friends, as was her custom, Nancy paused a moment and then smiled. She was returning the smile of Brian Miles, a young man who frequently dined at the Green Pigeon, now sitting in a far corner of the room. He was alone, as he always seemed to be, with the exception of several bright-colored magazines which he always managed to be fingering but never quite reading. Nancy wondered.

She didn't know Brian Miles; that is, they had never been introduced. But, of course, coming as he did, and staring at her dancing sheep each evening, Nancy felt the warmth of a silent friendship. She almost looked forward to seeing him among her guests, his eyes shining boyishly in the candlelight, fingering a little foolishly, perhaps, those gay colored magazines.

Tonight she moved toward his table and inquired whether he liked the cranberry cauce and was his coffee strong enough?"

"Everything's fine, Miss Telford. I think the Green Pigeon's quite an asset to the suburb. I really feel so strongly for it that I'd make a good press agent." He looked straight into her gray eyes.

"I'm happy, Mr. Miles, to have you speak so kindly. We're grateful for our splendid patronage. I hope some day to have more chances with thin figures, goats with funny ears—and, of course, dancing sheep!" She raised her eyes to the walls with a little pride, and then back to the young man.

"I like them, too," he said enthusiastically, "I understand you are an artist and designed the entire place." Nancy's heart thumped.

"I studied a little interior decoration, Mr. Miles, and this is my first attempt. I guess that's why I love the sheep so!" she laughed over her shoulder as she turned to go.

"I thinc I come there—just to see the sheep," he added quickly. And they both smiled.

"He's a writer, without a doubt," said Nancy that night to Irene Putnam, at whose home she lived. "He always carries several magazines, but he never reads them."

"Hmm—sounds like a fairy story," Irene said dryly.

"He's probably a poet. And yesterday he came in with riding clothes on, so that means he's a sportsman!" Nancy continued, quite convinced.

"Poets never get on horses, Nance. Only monthly," Irene added. But Nancy wasn't moved. Why all the magazines—so many of them? Even if he didn't read them, maybe at least he was intending to.

The next evening Brian Miles remained in his corner at the Green Pigeon until most of the guests had gone. He was intent upon a printed page and scarcely noticed the passing time. Nancy Telford waited until time to close the shop. Then she stepped down from her desk on the balcony, and quickly strode across to his table.

Brian Miles looked up; then he hurried to his feet and stammered:

"I'm sorry to remain so late. I—I wanted to talk to you, you see." Nancy didn't see, but she was willing to talk if he didn't keep her too long. She was expected at Mrs. Chauncey Trent's. So they sat down. Nancy let him begin.

"I'm interested in your work as a decorator, Miss Telford," he said. Nancy raised her eyes. What could a writer care to know about her hobby?

"You see, I wanted to talk to you before you called on Mrs. Trent this evening—in fact, I wish to accompany you. She's my aunt. Her club wishes to invite you to take over the plans for their new summer home at Gull lake. I—er—"

"How won-derful," Nancy exclaimed.

"I was called out from the city to design the plans, but I—er—want you to join me if you will."

"So you are a decorator yourself, Mr. Miles? But the magazines! I thought all the time you were a writer—studying people!"

"Oh, the magazines?" Brian chuckled. "They served as a much-needed means to keep me from staring too obviously at a charming young lady who paints dancing sheep!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—Arrival of Dwight Morrow in the senate, even temporarily, as a senator from New Jersey will produce something of a novelty in American politics.

The Bystander can not recall that a man so recently identified with a great New York financial firm ever sat in either house of congress.

To have an ex-partner in Morgan and company on the senate floor can conceivably produce situations that look interesting even this far ahead.

It seems a little surprising that Morrow, who is generally credited with having refused a state portfolio tender by President Hoover, should in less than a year determine to leap directly into the New Jersey political frying pan.

As secretary of state he could have been sure of a four-year opportunity for high public service.

As senator by appointment, facing the immediate necessity of campaigning, first for the republican nominations for a short and a long term to succeed himself, and then for election, he will be in New Jersey politics up to his ears from the start.

And that, too, in what same political prophets proclaim as an "off year."

Job in Future

Mexico City dispatches indicate Morrow will not actually relieve Senator Baird of the vacated Edge post in the senate until along in June or July. That would not put him on the senate rolls, perhaps, during the present regular session.

Also, it places his appointment at a time beyond the republican primary date in New Jersey where he must lock horns with the former Senator Joe Frelinghuysen.

And ex-Senator Joe has been trying continuously to get back into the senate ever since he was eased out in 1922. He was the fourth member of his family to hold the job and wants it again, against Morrow, Edge or anybody else.

As a matter of fact, many Washington observers ascribed Edge's acceptance of the Paris embassy as due in part, at least, to his desire to steer clear of the republican political row New Jersey that has been long brewing.

To these commentators, the Morrow senatorial appointment looms as more of a move in that intricate game than anything else. They look on it as an anti-Frelinghuysen maneuver.

A Hard Fight

In Alexander Simpson, a Hudson county democrat who seems to have more or less solidified democratic support for the senate job, either Frelinghuysen or Morrow will face a real fight for election, particularly in a by-election year, with democrats predicting a wide backswing of the vote pendulum that carried President Hoover into office.

Among the numerous names mentioned for Morrow's successor in Mexico City, that of Reuben Clark, of Utah, seems to come nearest to the Hoover formula for picking out diplomats for Latin America, enunciated in his message to congress.

As former under-secretary of state particularly charged with Mexican affairs, former American-Mexican commission member, present private aide to Morrow in those claims matters, and a long time student of Spanish, Clark would seem to have the inside track.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Good Things to Eat.

Mr. Editor: Strange that when we get on a certain tangent we keep to it and do not change, and just recently I have spoken about good things to eat. And it is a truism that we eat to live, not live to eat. No doubt we all have the same feeling. We do love the things that appeal and tickle the palate. And as I muse and give a thought to all this I find that there are some women who excel in the making of some one thing that is superior to what may be made by another who may have the same ingredients and still not reach that point of perfection that is acquired by another for there is a something missing. Something you cannot quite define you know but if your life depended on an explanation you could not give one. Of course somewhere you have a hazy recollection of taking dinner with some friend and you perhaps recall something in particular that was just a little different from what you had tasted before. It may have been one of those glorious, yellow, gold, pumpkin pies with that flaky crust such as only an expert could make. This is impressed on your mind and you love to recal this fact in days to come.

Just recently I read in the papers of a case of a woman whose bread winner had passed on and she was left with two small children, and of course, it was necessary to do something to make a living. She started making good old fashion doughnuts and with these she went to the business offices at the noon hour and they were so wonderfully good that after once tried they looked for them again and in a very short time she received orders from many of them for a dozen or two to take home. Soon the business grew so that she was compelled to get bigger quarters and more help, as the business had grown out of her hands.

Some may excel in making cake or perhaps biscuits and when these are fresh and hot and made right they are good, but they, I may say, when warm are like a caterpillar for they both make the butter fly, my apology for that one, but I had to work it in somewhere.

During the days that are gone there were church festivals and many other things gotten up to help out the finances of the churches that were struggling for an existence. The women are the ones who make the good things to eat, each one donates something, and at the corner of Boswell avenue and 12th, there is a little old mother who was always asked to donate biscuits, for she could always make them just a little bit better than some one else. I asked her at one time what is the secret to this, and the answer, "Well I have no regular stated rule, but I put in a little bit of this and a little of that and there it is. No regular formula."

Here is another one who could excel in some one thing. Just recently I took dinner with some very dear friends of mine in Case street in Norwich Town, and the daughter made some of the most wonderful bran muffins. These were so exceptionally good, they could melt in your mouth. Here is another who had the talent to create something that was of a superior quality, and on this much could be said for the daughters of New England are not only expert at cooking things that appeal to mere man, but are gifted in other ways, for within the nine mile square there are those who have made their mark in the fields of literature. We recall Lydia Huntley Sigourney, Frances Manwaring Caulkins, Mrs. W. Tyler Browne with her wonderful stories of the Indians and also the wonder books of Margaret Fuller with her life like description of childhood days, all so true to life for as I read one of her latest books it is so truly descriptive that we can almost see the living person, well told, well written and full of human interest. How true to life it all is, of the troubles real or imaginary of childhood. There are two books that appeal to me as studies of childhood. One of which is "Her Son," by Margaret Fuller, and the other of a very lovable little boy "Just David," by Elinor Porter, both to be read to be appreciated, for as I read them they seem to bring back to me thoughts of a long and forgotten past with its memories soft, soothing, and gentle as the whisperings of a child murmuring its happiness in its sleep, in a voice as sweet as an old melody.

YOUR HEALTH

"Ringworms of The Toes

New York

By Charles M. Williams, M. D.,
From Gorgas Memorial Institute

One of the so-called "new" diseases which is attracting a good deal of attention in the medical world is known commonly as "ringworm of the toes." It does not look like a ring, it is not caused by a worm, and it is not new, but only newly recognized. These cases used to be called eczema. The commonest sympton is a superficial crack at the bottom of the fold between the toes, with soft sodden skin in the same region. Very often there are little blisters here, and blisters may come on the sole also—sometimes very small, sometimes up to a quarter of an inch across; and in bad cases there is so much swelling and pain that the patient can hardly walk. The disease is caused by a fungus, a parasite, and is therefore contagious; and one of the commonest agents in spreading the infection is the bathhouse.

Picture to yourself a young man with this disease on his feet—quite unaware of it—only conscious of a little itching. After getting warmed up by an hour's exercise, his skin soft and moist, he walks barefoot from the dressing room to the shower bath or the pool, and at every step he leaves on the floor a fragment or so of skin, microscopic in size perhaps, but loaded with disease producing fungi, all ready to stick to the foot of some one going from bath to dressing room. At one university 2 per cent. of the freshman had the disease at the beginning of the year and 78 per cent. at the end of it. The gymnasium was antiquated, had inferior sanitary facilities, and the boys did not use bathing shoes. The girls at the same institution began the year 1 1-3 per sent infected and ended at 17.3 per cent. infected—they had a modern gymnasium, and wore bathing shoes. Very similar statistics have been obtained from other colleges.

Think what must happen at summer bathing resorts, public or private, where the floor are never disinfected. With the increasing interest in athletics, with the crowds thronging the bathing beaches, there are more and more people exposed to this disease, and it seems to be growing more common every year.

The symptoms are usually easily controlled by proper treatment, but the spread of the disease will not be checked until all cases are recognized and properly treated, and what is perhps more important, until the authorities at all bathing places undertake proper measures of control.

You can help by making sure that you are free, and if you are not, by getting your doctor to cure you and then keep you free.

Little Talks on Thrift

Earning, Saving and Spending

So much is said about thrift from the standpoint only of saving money, that many are led to believe that the two words "thrift" and "saving" are synonymous.

Manifestly the mere process of saving is not thrift. It is thrifty to save, it is thrifty also to fit oneself for greater earning capacity. It is thrifty to become efficient in the matter of spending and investing.

Thousands of persons throughout the United States have in recent years been earning ample amounts and have been saving a fair portion of their earnings. But, lured by the hope of inordinate profits, they lost their savings in the stock market crash. They were thrifty in two essentials but decidedly thriftless in the third.

One of the best illustrations of the point under discussion was furnished by the late Andrew Carnegie. He was asked which he considered the most important—earning, saving or spending. He replied by asking this simple question: "Which of the three legs of a stool is the most important?"

This is a particularly timely topic just now when the ill-effects of the unwise employment of funds is causing so much distress.

Countless numbers have lost their savings. The earning power of many has been curtailed. It is a good time, therefore, for all of us to keep in mind the thought that the prudent administration of one's accumulations is every bit as important as one's capacity to earn and to save.

With the vast majority of people, saving is a slow, patient process. The margin between income and the necessities of life is not wide. Hence it is all the more necessary that greater attention be given to the problems involved in the proper use of savings.

Every saved dollar represents hard work and self-denial. Just as much thought and care should be used, therefore, in handling these funds as was employed in acquiring and saving them. If this rule were applied by every one, there would be a tremendous elimination of lost or wasted money.—By S. W. Straus, president American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Described.

At a farm products show recently a little boy with chin quivering and tears showing, went up to a booth and inquired:

"Say, have you seen a man pass this way?"

Having seen several hundred of them the woman asked: "What did he look like, honey?"

"Well—" he answered, puzzled, "he had on a coat."

No Hill.

On the north side, next door to where little Virginia lives, a plaster of paris dog sits guard over his master's front lawn. Recently, Virginia and her mother were much amused when a kitten, running across the lawn, came suddenly on the dog, stopped, arched its back and spat viciously.

The next day Virginia, looking out the kitchen window, said: "Mother, there's a kittty out in the back yard."

"The same one we say yesterday?" asked the mother.

"I dont think so. This one hasn't got a hill on it's back."

IN DAY'S NEWS

Why Venice For Venezia or Leghorn For Livorno?

Are you familiar with Sardegna, Kariovy, Ankara, or Thessalonike?

Probably not, though you readily reconize the Anglicized names of those places which are, respectively, Sardinia, Karlsbad, Angora and Saloniki.

The question of how, then, did English-speaking people come to adopt these and other appellations for European places is discussed in the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

The society compiled a list of official spellings of European place names in the preparation of its new map for its membership, which map follows the rule of national autonomy in the spelling of foreign place names. For easy identification the customary English spellings are given in parentheses, and a glance at the map shows how far English usage has departed, in many cases, from the native nomenclature of many familiar places.

"Some of the strange names are results of changes since the World war," the bulletin says. "Others diverge because of long usage; in some cases the divergece is due to sheer error perpetuated from medieval times.

"Such seems to be the case with Livorno. Because English sailors who put in at the famous Italian hat port centuries ago did not pronounce the name properly, the city won the unsolicited title of Leghorr. And, to this day, English and Americans have perpetuated what traditionally was merely a seaman's error.

"In north Italy especially place name inconsistencies thrive in startling abundance, as every traveler knows. Many an American tourist has puzzled an inexperienced Italian ticket agent by asking for a ticket to Venice.

"Venice, Milan, Padua, Geona, Florence, Turin; none of these is to be found in an Italian railway schedule, or on the letterhead of a resident in any of those cities.

"The history of the 'Angelicization' of Florence illustrates how these spellings have wandered so far from the home language.

"Romans christened the town Florentia, meaning 'flourishing' or 'blooming.' The French converted this spelling into Florence, which England, and later America, accepted. But meanwhile the Latin of the Romans dissolved into modern Italian which spells it Firenze. The new Geographic society's map spells it Firenze, with (Florence) below. Venice, Milan, Padua Genoa and Turin in native dres are Venezia, Milano, Padova, Genova and Torino.

"Misnaming of foreign places has persisted under the principle of Anglicization; the necessity of giving the 'English of it.' Such a principle recognizes the right of Spaniards to use Nuevo York and Germans, Neus York.

"Examination of maps reveals that Anglicization is a misnomer itself. Actually English and American map makers have often accepted French or German spellings.

"A spelling which translates the name of the German city, Koln, for the English tongue and palate might be Koeln. Instead, English-speaking people have accepted the French Cologne.

"Germans have been famous as explorers and map makers so the German spelling for place names in parts of Europe and other continents has often become the 'English' spelling. German penetration of Russia, coupled with the difficulties of the Russian alphabet, resulted in the extensive use of German names for Russian places. The Russians countenanced the English world's use of St. Petersburg until Russia went to war with Germany. Then the name was altered to Petrograd. Later it was renamed Leningrad, the 'grad,' Slavic for city, persisting instead of the German 'burg.'

"Introduction of native local names, the official post office names, for individual European states is relatively easy when the nation uses the Latin alphabet. Difficulties arise in countries such as the U. S. S. R., where the alphabet differs. However, national and international geographic boards have worked out rules of transliteration by which the equivalents of letters unknown to the English alphabet can be written in Latin letters.

"The result may be breath-taking, as in Poluostrov Kolskii for the region formerly known as Kola Peninsula, but it is accurate."

Went To See Santa Claus

A six-year old girl from a family living on Boswell avenue, near the corner of North Main street, caused considerable anxiety at her home Tuesday afternoon when she had not returned from school by 5 o'clock.

An appeal to help find her was telephoned to police headquarters, but the search had hardly begun when the child came home herself. She had been to see Santa Claus, going directly from the Greeneville school without telling anyone what she was going to do.

Mrs. Charles L. Backus

The death of Marion E. Jacobs, 79, wife of Charles L. Backus of Andover and mother of Charles R. Backus of No. 162 West Town street, Norwich Town, occurred Tuesday morning at Hartford following a long illness. She was born in Columbia, June 1, 1850, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Jacobs, but for many years resided in Andover. Her husband, who is leading a retired life at present, but was general agent of the Sanderson Fertilizer company at New Haven for about 50 years, is well known throughout eastern Connecticut.

Besides her husband and son in Norwich Town, Mrs. Backus is survived by two other sons, Dr. Harold S. Backus of Hartford and Edmund S. Backus of Thompson, a daughter, Mrs. C. G. Bostwick of Hartford and a sister, Mrs. J. A. Isham of Columbia.

Mrs. N. Hosea Whittemore

(Contributed)

In the passing of Mrs. Nathaniel Hosea Whittemore friends in Boston and in her home on the western coast have lost a responsive and sympathetic spirit, a courageous and radiant comrade, an honest and helpful critic and a gifted friend. Her attainments in language and music and handicraft were of the first rank. There was no flower in wildwood or garden that was not her friend and in her later years these spirits of loveliness all poured into her life their returns, in loving interest of friends who made up to her her loss of husband and daughter. Surviving her are her son, Murray Whittemore of San Francisco and a grandson, Robert Winthrop Storer, of Boston.

Mrs. Whittemore died Monday night at San Francisco, where she had joined her son, following a summer spent at Ocean Point, Maine and with friends in Massachusetts. During her stay in Maine she was accompanied by her sister-in-law, Mrs. M. M. Whittemore, of Elm avenue, Norwich Town. She was Ida Iantha Bullard and before her marriage with N. Hosea Whittemore, a former principal of Broadway school, Norwich, she was a greatly beloved teacher in the senior room of High street school, Norwich. Of rare personal beauty and charm, she left an ineffaceable impression upon her pupils and the announcement of her death, following several weeks of illness, will cause deep sorrow.

Mrs. Edward E. Spicer

Mrs. Sarah A. Spicer, 72, wife of Edward E. Spicer of Thames street, Groton, died Tuesday morning at the Waterbury hospital, where she had been a patient for the last three weeks, going there to be under the care of her son, a doctor.

Mrs. Spicer was born at Ledyard, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Griswold. She had long been a resident of Groton, the family formerly residing at Eastern Point. She was a member of the Groton Congregational church.

Besides her husband, she is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Claire Eldred of California, Mrs. Bessie Brown of Mystic and Mrs. Sarah Shute, two sons, Dr. Edmund Spicer of Waterbury and Roger Spicer of Gomez, Fla.; and a sister, Mrs. George Spicer of Deep River. Twelve grandchildren and two great-grandchildren also survive.

BELIEVE SWEENEY CARPENTER SHOP FIRE WAS OF INCENDIARY ORIGIN

Fire, which heads of the fire department believe was deliberately set, threatened, late Tuesday afternoon, the two-story building at No. 25 Chestnut street, occupied as a carpenter shop by Contractor Patrick F. Sweeney. The fire, which originated in a pile of lumber in the rear of the two-story building, was discovered by an employe of Ring Bros. automobile dealers, who occupy the adjoining premises. The employe, a mechanic, ran to the Central fire station, opposite the building, and notified the fire department. This was at 5:44 o'clock.

Engine No. 1, Squad A, and Chief Henry R. Taft responded to the call and the flames gave the firemen a good 45 minute fight. Two lines of hose were laid from a hydrant on Chestnut street, one line being laid by each of the companies.

The fire was in a pile of lumber close to, and in the rear of the building. There was considerable lumber and lathing piled in the rear of the building, but the flames were confined to the relatively small pile in which they originated. The fire was going strong when the firemen appeared on the scene and the flames were shooting high in the air. Well directed streams of water squelched the blaze, but not before the flames had charred the outside wall of an ell on the building and started to creep inside the structure.

Despite the fact that the lumber, which has laid in the open for sometime, was damp, it was burning readily when the fire was discovered. There was no sign of fire at 5:30 o'clock when a local man passed the lumber pile, but ten minutes later the pile was in flames. It is understood that one of Mr. Sweeney's employes, who was laid off Tuesday, and who was the last man to leave the premises, was questioned by fire department officials as to any knowledge he might have of the origin of the fire.

CLEVER MOCK TRIAL BY ART ASSOCIATION

The monthly meeting of the Norwich Art association held Monday evening in Slater hall annex was a combination of fun and serious discussion. The subject was a mock trial and open debate, Indifference was brought to trial on the charge of harming the Art association.

The vice-president, Mrs. Richard B. Snow, opened the meeting by announcing that the Art association is working under difficulties at present owing to the lack of a president and of the chairman of the program committee. The program of the evening was arranged by the executive committee. The mock trial might seem like fun only, but underneath was the purpose to bring the present situation forcibly before the association.

The actors in appropriate costumes then marched in to spirited music played by Henry J. LaFontaine. The Judge, Joseph Hall, Jr., seated himself in the judicial chair and the fun began. The counsel for the prosecution was Rev. A. H. Abbott, while the accused, an art student dressed to represent Indifference, was ably defended by Edmund W. Perkins. Two sturdy sheriffs brought in the accused. The victim, the Art association, represented by Miss Blanche Wilbur, was brought in in a wheel chair carefully attended by a nurse. The medical examiner was on hand ready when his services were needed. Each witness was dressed in the costume of the period when she joined the association.

The trial was one of the wittiest representations ever given by the association. All joined with spirit in the fun.

A scathing indictment against the accused was read by the clerk of the court. The trial began and many were the disputes between the learned counsel. Each witness in turn took the witness chair, and answered the spirited questions of the attorneys with equal wit and spirit. The judge often rapped for order.

After the fun was over, serious discussion followed. The judge announced that the case would go to the jury, the audience, to decide whether the present condition of the Art association is due to Indifference.

Miss Nancy Lucas gave a brief history of the early days of the Art association, founded 35 years ago by a group of art students, and she was followed by Miss Ina Ufford, a former secretary, who gave the history of a later period. Miss Rose Trumbull, Mrs. Frank Hempstead, Mrs. Robert W. Perkins, Miss Blanche Wilbur, Joseph Hall, Jr., Mrs. Abbott, Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins and others spoke of possible reasons for the present difficulties and also of different plans for the future.

The addition of ten new members at the meeting was an encouraging feature.

The meeting itself, with its combination of hearty good-natured fun and serious thought, was a hopeful sign for the future of the association.

Those members who took part in the mock trial were Joseph Hall, Jr., Rev. A. H. Abbott, Edmund W. Perkins, Mrs. Austin B. Goodyear, Miss Audrey Gernon, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Mrs. Hugh B. Campbell, Mrs. A. H. Abbott, Miss Blanche Wilbur, Miss Elsie Church, Mrs. Ozias Dodge, Miss Sarah Leavens, Mrs. Claude Wilson, Mrs. Richard B. Snow, Mrs. Fred Sudlow, Miss Nancy E. Lucas, Miss Ina Ufford, Miss Faith Leavens, Miss Annie L. Ruggles, Miss Amanda Fisher and Miss Amy L. Cogswell.

Attractive refreshments were served by the social committee: Mrs. Hugh B. Campbell, Miss Miriam Campbell, Miss Margaret Leith, Miss Eshbaugh, Miss Hamilton and Miss Hempstead.

TAFTVILLE RIGHT OF WAY CASE TO BE SETTLED

The Taftville right of way case in which Mr. and Mrs. Romain Beauregard were the plaintiffs against Mr. Beauregard's aunt, Mrs. Clarinda Goyette, was before the common pleas court here again Monday, when Charles L. Stewart, counsel for the Beauregards, wished to withdraw the suit, stating to Judge C. B. Waller that he was convinced his clients had no case. At the last previous hearing there was a divergence disclosed between plans drawn by the office of Chandler & Palmer for the Beauregards and plans drawn by George E. Pitcher for Mrs. Goyette. It was left to a New London surveyor to run the lines in order to settle the question and when Attorney Stewart saw what the New London man's plan was, he was willing to withdraw the suit.

Attorney C. Hadlai Hull, who, with V. P. A. Quinn, is counsel for Mrs. Goyette, would not agree to withdrawal but wanted the case to go to judgment so that the right of way might be determined.

The case was postponed to Dec. 21, and there was a conference between counsel and clients, as a result of which there will be a stipulation for settlement to be presented to the court. By this stipulation it was said that a new right of way is to be established and that Beauregard will have to surrender some of his land. The right of way will be five feet away from the garage and will only exist for a certain distance.

Mrs. Goyette, it was understood, by the terms of the settlement, will now be able to build a garage, the foundation for which had already been laid when the suit was brought. The Beauregards claimed at the time the action was brought that the garage being erected by Mrs. Goyette was on the right of way in which they, the Beauregards, had an interest.

WOMAN GIVEN JUDGMENT FOR $50 FOR ASSAULT

In a suit brought for $1,000 damages, which was heard before Judge C. B. Waller of the common pleas court, the judge gives judgment for $50 for Mrs. Annie Malitich of Colchester against her neighbor, Mrs. Ida Betroff. The plaintiff claimed that she had been struck with a stick by the defendant who came into the plaintiff's yard. The decision was rendered Tuesday.

POINTS OUT RESPONSIBILITIES THAT CITIZENS FACE

"I believe that the worst difficulty of a democracy is increasing size," said Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman of this city in an address delivered Tuesday evening, at Slater hall annex at a meeting of the Norwich League of Women Voters, upon the subject, "Our Responsibilities," in which she interestingly pointed out the major and smaller responsibilities that are facing us. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Thomas M. Shields, the president, who read a letter from Miss Betsy Mitchell in which she extended her resignation as a member of the league. Miss Mitchell had been an active worker on the executive board of the league for six years. Her resignation came as the result of change of residence to Hartford.

After giving the definition of the word politics and mentioning the two kinds of people interested in politics, Mrs. Gilman said that with this country started the largest democracy, but it is not the oldest, as that honor is held by the small country of Switzerland. She said that she had been told that Canadian politics were nearly as bad as our politics and that French politics were worse than ours. That isn't anything to be proud of, she said.

We always think of the government above us and working down on us, she stated. We don't realize it, but it is us. Our attitude of mind is hundreds of thousands of years old. We have to train consciously the minds of people into the recognition of responsibility, which goes with a democracy. We are all of us in a position of responsibility. She spoke of a woman who went into the Palisade park and picked everything in sight in spite of warning signs. That is lack of responsibility, she said. If we temporarily recognize absolutely universal responsibility and then realize that only 50 per cent of the vote comes out we must definitely educate ourselves for this recognition of responsibility.

We should begin with our children, she said, and definitely and continuously educate them in the civic consciousness of their common possession of this city. You can show them what undertakings are carried on in the city and why. After a time they will begin to ask why the city doesn't do this and doesn't do that. Through this they should gather a sense of responsibility.

How much time in a week do any of us give to the consideration of our common interests, she continued. Most of us have our family interests, which take up practically all of the time, others have social interests, that consume a good deal of the time, and we have our church interests. But the interests of the state, county and city and our share of changing, we don't think of them unless there is something to be done. What our nation does depends upon all of us. It is not practical in the present form of government for individuals to produce any national act, but it is possible for us to give a concerted push if they have it in mind to do it. I believe that the worst difficulty of a democracy is increasing size.

Continuing on this subject, she said that Switzerland has a good democracy because it is little. The people are more or less homogenous. They can inform the whole nation and it can act in a reasonable time. Now, we have this straggling country with millions of people to inform. You have to persuade the majority of the people if you want anything done. Every new language makes more difficult to raise the whole to any action. That's why it stands as a measure of bad government.

An immense amount of good, intelligent, conscientious work is being done, she said. She cited the work of the forest park department, which she classed as a good work. We have also many valuable social services. She spoke of the difficult problem it is to get things through congress, saying that it was very slow and difficult business, and went on to speak of the Boulder Dam proposition in the arid western country. For all this we need the training of a prince, to be taught early and steadily, learn to see the whole of it, know of it and learn to know the needs.

If we are not responsible for this, she said, who is? We make complaints of laws that are passed and then refuse to obey it (meaning the prohibition law). Don't we know we are the laughing stock of the world? Haven't we social consciousness of the people who violate the laws made by themselves. It's childish and ignorant the way we talk about prohibition. Now that we have prohibition we should either repeal it or obey it.

A major responsibility, which is a most pressing danger, is the rapid superceding of American people by other people, the way we have given America to people without a struggle. Can you imagine letting in of 50, 60, 70 per cent and more of someone else into the country? You can not. Can you imagine Italy or Germany or any other country doing that? No. It needs more and more steady, continous action to regulation immigration.

The speaker was given a rising vote of thanks for her address.

G. & E. DEPT. TO GIVE CITY HOLIDAY AIR

Announcement was made Tuesday that the Norwich gas and electric department will within a few days string colored electric lights about the main section of the city for the Christmas holiday season. It is understood that the cost of erection and illumination of the lamps will be borne by the gas and electric department.

At the last meeting of the court of common council the local merchants petitioned the council for $1,500 to take care of the expense, but as the city's celebration fund has already been exhausted for the present fiscal year, the council was unable to grant the appropriation requested.

The merchants are unable to finance the cost this year, it is said, and therefore appealed to the gas and electric department. In previous years the merchants have paid for the erection of the lamps and the gas and electric department has provided the illumination.

METHODIST BOY SCOUTS RECEIVE SERVICE PINS

The weekly meeting of Boy Scout, Troop 6, was held Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at Trinity Methodist church with 13 scouts attending, including Assistant Scoutmaster Rooke and Scoutmaster Ray Brown. Scout Executive John L. Sullman and Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor, were also present. Supper of salad, cake, cookies, cocoa and candy was served. Miss Grace Murphy assisted in serving.

Two boys applied for membership. Senior Patrol Leader Edward H. Lichenstein led in a short drill and reported on the patrol leaders meeting. Scout Caskey was voted patrol leader of the Crow patrol and was also named scribe. Short talks were given by Scouts Caskey, Rooke and Ray Brown. One month service pins were presented to Scouts Heller and Francis Gentile and Scout S. P. Lichenstein received a three months service bar.

Senior Patrol Leader Lichenstein led in a delightful song service and also rendered a solo, "Sweet Ivory Soap." After a short business meeting the meeting closed with taps by Bugler Heller.

PLANTING PINE SEEDLINGS ON RESERVOIR WATERSHEDS

Reforestation work undertaken by Connecticut water supply utilities reached its highest point this year with the planting of approximately 300,000 pine tree seedlings upon watershed land. This was an increase of about 200,000 trees over the planting work completed in the previous year. This year's planting brings the total amount of watershed land seeded with growing timber to more than 6,000 acres.

Several of the larger water companies in Connecticut have planted practically all available watershed space. In fact, between 80 and 90 per cent of all of the watershed land in the state is now growing trees. Harvesting of the full grown pines and the annual harvest of previously existing hardwood trees makes new land available for planting each year, however. Although the water companies do not obtain any large amount of income from the sale of lumber and of young growth for decorative purposes, they are nevertheless able to obtain from this source some return from land which, due to sanitary reasons would otherwise be idle and without income.

Practically all of the trees now planted by the water utilities are pines. This specie is used for many reasons. Its growth is more easily controlled than that of the harder wood trees and it produces more board feet per acre. The pine needles fall and remain beneath the trees, while the leaves of hardwood growths blow into the reservoirs and incur considerable expense in their removal. Pine forests also tend to retain moisture instead of shedding it quickly as other timber does, a fact which is an aid to slow drainage.

WILL GIVE DEMONSTRATIONS IN WOODLOT THINNING

In co-operation with the New London County Farm bureau, J. A. Gibbs, extension forester from Storrs, is to conduct two public woodlot thinning demonstrations in the county Thursday, the first at 10 o'clock at the woodlot of Roy Nash of North Stonington, half a mile due east of Clarks Falls postoffice. In the afternoon at 2 o'clock he will be at the woodlot of Clark Woodmansee of Preston, located one mile from Preston City on the Voluntown road. There will be an estimating contest, the winner of which will receive an estimating and cruising stick used by forest rangers. With Mr. Gibbs will be W. K. Williams of the U. S. forestry service, who has had wide experience in the farm wood lot problem.

Those woodlot owners who have young stands of hard woods in which they intend to make a cutting for a firewood supply will find it worth while to attend one of the thinning demonstrations.

LOTUS MALE QUARTETTE GAVE PLEASING PROGRAMME

The Lotus Male quartette of Boston entertained a large audience Tuesday evening at the Masonic temple auditorium, under the auspices of Sachem chapter, No. 57, Order of the Eastern Star, and Somerset lodge, No. 34, F. and A. M. The quartette, which has appeared in Norwich on several previous occasions, was well received by the delighted audience who heartily applauded the varied programme given. Assisting, in readings, humorous and dramatic, was Miss Shepard of Boston. Mrs. Olive Roberts was the piano accompanist.

The entertainment committee which was in charge comprised Arad R. Manning, Harry Kromer and Herbert H. Corey of Somerset lodge, Mrs. Anna H. Abel, Mrs. Jennie Manning, Miss Bly Partridge of Sachem chapter, with Mrs. Catherine Chappell, matron of Sachem chapter, and Avery Gallup, master of Somerset lodge.

JUDGMENT FOR $50 IN WOMAN'S SLANDER SUIT

Mrs. Ida Rajewska of this city is given judgment for $50 against Zenon Sienkiewicz, also of this city, whom she sued for slander, according to a decision handed down Tuesday by Judge C. B. Waller of the common pleas court.

In his brief memorandum of decision, Judge Waller says:

I think the plaintiff has established by the required degree of proof that the defendant spoke of and concerning her in the presence and hearing of another, the words in the first count of the complaint, which clearly charged the plaintiff with a breach of chastity and was therefore slanderous per se. I find that the plaintiff has failed to establish that she is entitled to recover under the second and third counts of the substituted complaint.

Judgement may be entered for the plaintiff to recover of the defendant the sum of $50.

THIS STATE 33RD IN LEGION MEMBERSHIP RACE

Never before in the history of the American Legion has there been such a whole-hearted response as at present by veterans of the World war to an attempt to get all membership dues paid up for the coming year before Jan. 1, according to word received by officers of this department from national headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind.

The response is the answer of the veterans to an appeal to strengthen the Legion's ranks with 1930 members in order to impress congress when the Legion again this winter asks that construction be allowed for government hospitals to care for 5,543 mentally ill comrades who now are inadequately cared for in over-crowded state institutions, often in jails.

Efforts will be continued in this department to have a complete, 100 per cent enrollment of members as a Christmas present in behalf of the disabled.

In the percentage of its 1930 quota attained up to Nov. 19, Connecticut stood 33rd in rank among the states of the Union, New Hampshire was 24th, Vermont 34th, Rhode Island 41st and Massachusetts 46th.

WINS VERDICT TO COLLECT FOR BOARDERS

Edsel Sutterfield of New London who sued John and Lillian Morris, husband and wife, of Groton, is given judgment to collect $240.16, according to decision handed down by Judge C. B. Waller of the common pleas court before whom the suit was tried. The plaintiff's claim was for board and lodging for Mr. and Mrs. Morris and their three children from Aug. 6, 1926 to Oct. 11, 1926. Decision was handed down in the case Tuesday by Judge Waller.

TO HAVE JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL EXPERT LOOK OVER THE SITUATION IN NORWICH

Two school problems were given some consideration Tuesday evening at the December meeting of the town school board which was held in the school superintendent's office at the court house with Chairman Walter F. Lester presiding.

One was the matter of inadequate school accommodations with which the public schools and the Norwich Free Academy are both concerned and in which the junior high school plan has been suggested as a possible solution. The town school board has got so far along with consideration of the subject as to arrange for a junior high school expert from New Haven to come here and look the Norwich situation over. He has had experience with the practical operation of the junior high school plan, the building requirements and the other essentials that enter into the junior high school system. When his report has been received, the town school board will have something more definite than it now has to work on. Estimates of the probable expense made by members of the board to carry out the junior high school plan run from $500,000 up.

Some consideration also was given at the meeting to the suggestion that the county home buildings on Smith avenue, which will be of no use to the county after the new buildings on Laurel Hill road have been built, should be bought for town school purposes. This is to be given further consideration, but it is understood that opposition to the plan is likely to arise in the town school board membership.

The board voted to make the Christmas recess for the schools extend from Dec. 20 to Jan. 2.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps Her So Much

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"I was just completely run-down. I had tired, heavy, sluggish feelings and I could not eat. I was losing in weight. I read so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what a good medicine it is, that I started taking it. I have taken eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and about the same in tablet form. This is one medicine a woman should have in the house all the time. I am improving every day and I sure am able to eat. I am willing to answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ella Richards, 91 Chautauqua St., N. S. Pittsburgh, Pa.

BAD MAN RALPH INORIS TAKEN FROM NEW LONDON BY NEW HAVEN POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 10. — Ralph Inoris, married and residing at 133 Cole street, New Haven, a youth much wanted by the police of that city on a statutory charge, is in the clutches of the New Haven police. After having been arrested in New London late last night by State Police Officers William MacKenzie and Charles Hill, the fugitive was taken back to New Haven today and will be in the New Haven city court Wednesday.

Inoris, who was known under the alias of Russo, several months ago with other young men, assaulted a girl of 15 and immediately afterwards fled from New Haven. He was traced to Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, but always the police were behind the fugitive for on each occasion when trace of him was obtained, Inoris would have left that city just before the officers could arrest him. This week it was ascertained that Inoris was in New London and the state police made a thorough investigation in an effort to learn his residence. Last night Officers MacKenzie and Hill secured information that indicated that the youth sought would be found at a Garfield avenue house. The officers went there and were rewarded with success for Inoris was found. No time was lost in escorting him to police headquarters where he was held until this afternoon when Detective Charles Gills came to New London and took charge of the prisoner.

Joseph Prachniak, of Stonington, was in Stonington town court today, charged with non-support. He was sentenced to six months in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended for one year, on condition that Prachniak contribute $40 each week toward the support of his wife. Prachniak disappeared from Stonington several weeks ago when he obtained knowledge that his wife had lodged complaint with the prosecuting authority because he would not support her. The warrant was given to the state police and they traced Prachniak to Trenton, N. J. The police of that city were requested to be on the look out for the fugitive and yesterday he was found and arrested. State Police Officer Frederick Johnson went to Trenton yesterday afternoon and early this morning returned to New London with his prisoner.

Salvatore Frank was charged with assault on Constable Sheldon, of the Pawcatuck police force. He was fined $20 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail. Frank beat the officer several weeks ago when Sheldon sought to arrest him. Several days ago while on State street, Sheldon was recognized by Traffic Officer Albert Iverson and was arrested.

DAY-TIME PEEPING TOM CLAIMS HE IS JACK BARNETT

A daylight peeping Tom was apprehended in Groton today in the arrest of a youth of 20, who says he is Jack Barnett and that he resides on Church street, this city. In default of bail of $200, Barnett was locked up at the Groton police station. Barnett was arrested by Supernumerary J. C. McLaney at 10 o'clock when the youth was detected peering through windows of residences on Broad street, the shades of which were drawn. It is believed that the young man has made it a practice of peering through windows so successfully in the night season that he sought additional thrills by his peeping activities during the day-time.

TERESA TAYLOR, NORWICH, HELD UNDER FORGERY CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 10—Teresa Taylor, 27, who formerly conducted a tea room at Wauregan and of late has been residing in Norwich, was arrested here this morning by Patrolman Albert Iverson charged with forgery on two counts. She is being held a prisoner at police headquarters in default of bail of $7,000 pending a hearing in the police court tomorrow.

The police have been on the lookout for Miss Taylor nearly a week for it was anticipated that she would call for a package at the post office and it was because of the correctness of that supposition that the young woman was arrested. The woman was identified on the street by a post office clerk as the person having applied for the parcel. At first Miss Taylor denied all knowledge of the alleged fraudulent acts, declaring she had come to New London a few minutes before, to make a purchase at a chain store. She declared that she came to New London frequently for this purpose, and had not been to the post office. She even requested that Attorney Thomas M. Shields of Norwich, be questioned for the purpose of establishing her identity. This was done, but the revealing of the woman's identity did not remove the suspicion of guilt and she was held. Miss Taylor's guilt was not established until she made a complete confession after a grilling of several hours at police headquarters.

Miss Taylor, it is claimed forged the name of Miss Mabel Harris, an Old Lyme resident, to two checks, one for $194 and the other for $16 recently. Both checks were drawn on the National Bank of Commerce. The check for $194 was cashed at the store of Cluery & Webb in Providence. Miss Taylor having made a purchase and directed that it be sent to Old Lyme and she would call for it at the general delivery window. Later Miss Taylor called the postmaster at Old Lyme and requested that the package be sent to the New London post office. This act of the young woman resulted in her arrest, for officers were kept on duty at the post office to await her claiming of the package. This morning when the officer who had been assigned to keep a watch at the general delivery was absent, the young woman appeared, but she was informed that the package had not arrived. The clerk then followed the woman to State street and prior to that communicated with police headquarters, Officer Albert Iverson was sent in plain clothes to seek Miss Taylor having her description. Going to State street Iverson encountered the postal clerk, Terrence H. Cook, who, when he observed Miss Taylor in front of a chain store pointed her out as calling for the package. Iverson placed Miss Taylor under arrest, she was taken to police headquarters and is there detained.

The second check, of the lesser amount, was cashed in a Hartford store.

It is believed that Miss Taylor is guilty of passing numerous fraudulent checks and the police are looking up her record.

CAVE MAN PRISONER THE CHECK-BOOK COVER

After the Taylor young woman had been locked up in a cell, she confided somewhat in Corado Tongherlini, 22, of 92 Frank street, Quincy, Mass., who was arrested this afternoon by State Police Officer Donald Brown, charged with speeding. The odor of burning paper had been detected in the squad room and one of the officers went to the top of the cell room stairs where he heard paper being torn. A few seconds later the Taylor woman was heard to request Tongherlini to secret something she referred to about his person and destroy it when he was released. Tongherlini later was released upon bail of $100 for his appearance in court tomorrow and when searched the cover of a check-book, which the Taylor woman had given him to destroy was found. The blank checks and the stubs had been removed by the woman and after having been burned the charred paper was deposited in a toilet.

The funeral of Mrs. Adelia T. Habenstein, widow of Edward Habenstein, was held this morning at 10 o'clock from her residence, Thames street, Groton. At 2 o'clock this afternoon there were services at the chapel in Cedar Hill cemetery, Hartford, where the burial took place. Both services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of the Groton Heights Baptist church.

Charles T. Drew

The funeral of Charles T. Drew, of 114 Willetts avenue, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from St. James' Episcopal church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The service was read by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of the church. The bearers were George and John Ryan, Samuel Hick and William, John and George Tomlinson. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Homer L. Marvin

The funeral of Homer L. Marvin, of 129 Montauk avenue, freight conductor in the employ of the New Haven railroad, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at St. James Episcopal church and was attended by many mourners, including a large representation of members of the Order of Railroad Conductors, Brotherhood of Trainmen, New London lodge of Elks and Knights of Pythias. The service was read by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge. The bearers were Harry M. Darling and Charles T. Hanson, representing the Order of Railroad Conductors; William J. Duggan and H. E. Levitt, representing the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; James W. Shields and John J. Foley, representing New London lodge of Elks, and William Bosworth and George Goodwin, of the Knights of Pythias. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

INFANT'S DEATH PRECEDES THAT OF MONTVILLE MOTHER

Mrs. Michaelina Brycki, 42, wife of Michael Brycki, of Montville, died today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, following childbirth. The infant died a few hours after birth and was buried yesterday.

Clarence Denison, 495 Montauk avenue, was arrested by Patrolman Carlos Stone this afternoon, charged with driving without a license and will be in court tomorrow.

Joseph Bates, 382 Jefferson avenue, reported to Patrolman Henry Sylvia this afternoon that his automobile truck, a Ford, which had been parked on Huntington street, had been stolen. A short time afterwards the truck was found, but a short distance from where it had been taken.

After Neglectful Husband

Michael DeFeo, who was recently arrested in Paterson, N. J., at the request of the New London police, who hold a warrant charging him with non-support, will be brought back to New London this week for trial. Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh went to Paterson this afternoon to take charge of the prisoner. DeFeo was arrested 10 days ago upon complaint of his wife who is a resident of East New London.

Missing From Bridgeport

The New London police, as well as the police throughout the state, has been requested to be on the lookout for Charles Arlofski, 47, who has been missing from Bridgeport since Wednesday last. Arlofski is described as being about five feet, six inches in height and weighs about 150 pounds. He has brown eyes, brown hair, brown moustache and wore a dark brown overcoat, black trousers and black shoes.

LETTER CARRIER 47 YEARS— JOHN BLAKE GRAVELY ILL

There is no change tonight in the condition of Letter Carrier John Blake, who was stricken with a shock at his rooming house in Tilley street. At Lawrence Memorial hospital, where the veteran letter carrier is receiving treatment, it was said that he had not been restored to consciousness. Mr. Blake's entire right side is paralyzed. Mr. Blake has been a letter carrier 47 years.

Alfred Harvey's condition also remains unchanged at the same hospital. Mr. Harvey was taken to the hospital Sunday afternoon and an emergency operation performed because of a ruptured appendix. Mr. Harvey is employed as driver of the Ponemoc hose company's aerial truck.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of Harry H. Henderson and Edward Knox, submarine base; Adrian Murray, 21 Jefferson avenue and Fred B. Shields, 13 Town Hill court.

WESTERLY CAR OWNER DENIES CHARGES MADE

Charles L. Wescott, 5 Hillside avenue, Westerly, denied to the New London police today that it was his automobile that struck Francis Glynn, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Glynn, 678 Bank street, last Saturday night. Westcott said that his automobile was not in New London that night. After the boy was struck, it is claimed the driver speeded away and the mother of the youth was informed that a car bearing the registration of Westcott's auto struck her son.

Joseph Riker, U. S. Coast Guard, was in the police court this morning charged with breach of the peace, but he was given suspension of judgment. Riker was arrested last night by Patrolman Louis Tooker and upon complaint of Mrs. Irene Murphy, who declared that Riker appeared at her home and was violent in his abuse toward her.

The only other case tried was that of an old offender charged with intoxication. He was also given suspension of judgment.

One trial shows how Bayer Aspirin relieves sore throat; dissolve two tablets in quarter of a glass of water, and gargle well! Until you've tried it, you can't believe how quickly you get complete relief. You've often been advised to gargle for sore throat or tonsilitis, but it is what you gargle that counts. Gargle Bayer Aspirin, and you get results. Real relief, and the infection effectually reduced. To break-up a cold, stop neuralgic pains, and headaches from any cause, physicians say there's nothing better than Bayer. They will tell you, too, it does not depress the heart. So you're safe if the box says Bayer! All drugstores. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer manufacture of monoaceticacidester of salicylicacid.

A&P IS THE WORLD'S LARGEST RETAILER OF COFFEE

New... Coffee Prices Lowest in Years!

THE coffee market has dropped to its lowest point in five years . . . and prices of coffee in A&P Food Stores have been reduced accordingly. In passing this saving on to its customers, A&P follows its usual policy of immediately lowering food costs whenever the market permits. These sharply reduced coffee prices are not sale prices . . . they are A&P's new, low, regular prices.

A&P guarantees its coffee to be the finest grades grown in the world's greatest coffee producing countries . . . Colombia and Brazil. And no other food stores, anywhere, exercise such complete control of the quality of the coffee they sell as A&P does. For A&P has its own purchasing offices in South America and its own buyers select the cream of the crop.

A&P guarantees its coffee to be "fresh-roasted" because it also controls its sale at retail. A&P Food Stores get frequent deliveries in small quantities from nearby roasting plants. This, together with the fact that A&P is the world's largest retailer of coffee, means that coffee moves so rapidly from A&P Food Stores that it doesn't have a chance to lose its oven-freshness.

WESTERLY

NON-SUPPORT CASE GOES OVER FOR A WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 10.—Before Judge William A. Wilcox Tuesday morning in Stonington town court, Samuel A. Melanson, of 90 Liberty street, Pawcatuck, taken into custody by Police Officer George Seidel, charged with non-support of his wife and family, had his case continued one week. His counsel, Attorney Benjamin Hewitt of Mystic, was engaged in court at Norwich.

Saved $1—Penalized $27.95

John W. Burrell 21, of Westerly, apprehended by State Officer Arthur Whitmarsh of Groton barracks for the operation of auto on Boston Post road Dec. 8th with improper markers, pleaded guilty. Officer Whitmarsh testified that at 2:40 a. m., defendant was driving toward Westerly when he stopped him near Clark's Chowder House. The plates on his Ford touring car had been taken from a Ford coupe and the expenditure of $1 would have made a legal transfer. Burrell was fined $15 and costs, totalling $27.95, which was paid.

Judge Censures Boys Out Late

Edward Lord, 22, of Westerly, pleaded guilty to the operation of an automobile Dec. 8th at 1:15 a. m. on the Norwich-Westerly road, when he was given a court summons by Officer Whitmarsh, the plate on his Ford sedan rightfully belonging on a Ford coupe. The defendant said he had been to see his girl and they had been to a dance at the Wheeler high school and the car having been for some time in North Stonington he had transferred the plates with the idea of making the required payment after he received his pay on Saturday night as a substitute carrier at the post office. The fine is $15 and costs amounted to $12.95 more, as Judge Wilcox imposed sentence, saying: "I can't see why so many young men are out late—boys should be home abed."

Old Mystic Man Reckless

Borlack Pavaliski, of Old Mystic, pleaded not guilty to driving his Buick sedan Dec. 8th at 3:30 a. m. on the Old Mystic-Mystic road on Greenmanville avenue recklessly. The witnesses against him were State Police Officers Arthur Kathe and Whitmarsh. Their testimony showed the rate of speed 40 or 45 miles per hour in foggy, rainy weather and the auto had two besides the driver on the front seat and three passengers in back. In stopping the auto, Officer Whitmarsh said he ran off the road for shelter near a wall to prevent being struck by the machine, at which both officers had waived their flashlights. The accused said he did not recognize the officers at first and was fearful of putting on brakes on the wet highway. He was fined $50 with $12.95 additional costs.

Frank Taken To Jail

Salvatore Frank, 30, residing on Prospect street, Pawcatuck, Nov. 2, 1929, when Officer Adin R. Sheldon was called by the accused's brother to quell a disturbance in the house on Sunday morning, pleaded guilty to the complaint made by Prosecutor Henry P. Hammacher, charging a disturbance and breach of the peace and the striking on the head with a bottle of Adin R. Sheldon, special constable in Pawcatuck. The defendant was arrested in New London by city policemen and turned over to Officer Johnson of the Groton barracks who presented the accused in court. Patrolman Sheldon testified to being called to the home on Prospect street at 11:30 a. m. and as he stood in a doorway inside the house Frank struck him over the head (showing the scar in court) with a quart bottle with a handle. At the time he hit the accused over the head with a blackjack but he was helped through the door and made his escape. The defendant told the court that in the fight he had seized the blackjack to throw it away but in doing so accidently hit Officer Sheldon on the head. Prosecutor Hammacher asked for a substantial jail sentence. Judge Wilcox found the accused guilty and fined him $50 with costs of $14.95 and to be confined in New London county jail for 30 days. Officer Johnson took the man to jail.

Neglected His Family

Joseph Trachwith, 35, of Norwich and Stonington, was before the court, charged with non support of his wife Anna, on the first count and on the second with the non-support of his children. Selectman John Fribounce testified that the family living at 17 Mistuxet avenue, Mystic, had been supported by neighbors for three weeks before the matter of the husband's desertion came to the knowledge of the authorities. The accused had been arrested in Trenton, N. J., by Officer Johnson, and previous to this time the family had been cared for by the town while the father and husband was roaming about the country, as he said, looking for work. He could promise work for the present time to the man. Judge Wilcox imposed a six months' sentence to New London county jail with a year's suspension. He ordered the accused to pay costs and to report on the first and fifteenth of each month to Probation Officer Frank Grandy. Court, which did not convene until 9:30 a. m., then adjourned, while a juvenile case was heard.

FUNERAL

Robert Crowther

Funeral services for Robert Crowther, of Lower Pawcatuck, were held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at 46 Granite street. He was born Sept. 22, 1860 in Manchester, Lancashire, England, and employed for many years at the William Clark plant of the American Thread Co. His funeral was largely attended by former associates, relatives and friends. There were beautiful floral remembrances. The service was read by Rev. G. Edgard Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church. Burial was in River Bend cemetery with Masonic committal service by Pawcatuck lodge, No. 50, A. F. and A. M., of Pawcatuck, Worshipful Robert D. Vennard, master. Mr. Crowther had been a member of the lodge for 21 years. Samuel Girven acted as chaplain. The bearers, from Pawcatuck lodge, were Stanton S. Greene, Arthur E. Peckham, Raymond E. Pendleton and Frank Rain.

The second day of the Westerly adjournment of the November term of superior court for Washington county before Associate Justice Charles A. Walsh of Providence, was acted. WHAT THE NAVY HAS DONE FOR YOUNG LLOYD FRAZER

When the Noank shipyard was busy, with 12 steamers to be built during the great World war, and rated the second largest wooden shipyard in the United States, having a large office force of 300, at the timer's desk was a young man named Lloyd Frazer. His pals had learned the call of their country before him so one man said "Are you going to war?" He sat down at his desk and started to think. Then he threw up his job and told his boss, "I am going to join the navy." To New London he went, passed O. K., and, with a smile he said, "If the war is on the water the navy will be there, buddy! And I will be doing my bit for Uncle Sam, better than pushing a pencil!" Going to Newport for training for a couple of months, he was put on a destroyer and went as deck hand (known to all the gobs as seaman) and went over to the North sea, helping do his duty. After the war was over, Seaman Frazer stayed in the navy. Many of his pals got out, but his good name was signed on the dotted line for four more years. Then he was transferred to U. S. S. Florida, in Boston, where the ship was at the dry-dock for repairs over a year. Then out to sea the battleship went and the Noank gob, Frazer, behind a deck broom, bound for the Panama canal.

In his spare time he got out his navy books and studied for chief gunner's mate. About a year after he made it and was put in charge of the guns on the man of war. When that was not enough for him, he studied and made a diver and went down several times and made a name among his shipmates. "Never Fear" Frazer also made three trips around the world, and has been in every big port. He spent a year in Shanghai, China, on special duty and understands that race, and speaks their language. He can eat with chop sticks and it is more fun than taking castor oil to see the peas roll off the sticks.

Chief Gunner's Mate Frazer went to the navy school in Washington, sent by the officers of the Florida, for six months. He shook hands with six presidents of the United States and went all through the white house. He has never been seasick although he saw many bad storms. He saw the cook tie the navy beans on the stove (known to all the sailors, a thousand on a plate). it was so rough. A gob was watching on deck and a wave hit him and knocked him into the galley which was better than being lost at sea.

Seaman Dave Long was the champion of the fleet, when he knocked out Wild Red Peters, of the battleship Texas, in three rounds in two blows the first round. That fighter could have had our undershirts for winning that fight and what a wild time on the ship that night! It was like Dempsey putting the sleeping punch on Willard, in Ohio, in 1920, when the world went wild with the good news. Chief Gunner's Mate Frazer, the other night, was telling a crowd at the waiting room. After a year's trip to Italy, Spain and England he is home on a 30-day furlough. He claims that last was the roughest and meanest trip ever across the pond from England. The waves were rolling as high as 40 to 50 feet in the air and the ship could make only about 8 knots an hour. "Several times I did not think we would make it and when the ship got out of those waves it was like taking your girl on the thunderbolt roller coaster at Savin Rock!" We lost one seaman. He was on deck, watching and a wave hit him and he was washed overboard. Never came up. The fleet lost three men. I have been in the navy twelve years and never put in such a trip. Over half the crew was seasick. But at last we landed at Norfolk, Va., and we was all glad to see the good United States again."

Chief Gunner's Mate Frazer can speak French, Italian and Spanish. He can do the new crawl stroke in a swimming race having learned in England. He has learned how to cook and can make bread, pie and cake. Frazer was only a pen-pusher at the shipyard when the war broke out, but now look at him! "The navy made me!" he said, "It is the best place for a young fellow to join. You see the world but not through a port hole and learn a trade. So come on fellows! Join the navy and see the world!"

He was given a big hand by the crowd for his talk. Frazer is a popular young man in the fishing village and the people of Noank are proud of his record in the navy. He claims he is going to stick it out for eight more years, then retire on half-pay, come back to Noank, buy a farm outside of the village, and raise pigs and chickens.

POETRY

The Croaker

Once, on the edge of a pleasant pool
Under the bank where 'twas dark and cool,
Just where the creek flowed outa' the bog,
There lived a grumpy and mean old frog,
Who sat all day in the mud and soak
And just did nothin' but croak and croak.
Then a blackbird hollered: "I say, you know,
What's the matter down there below,
Are you in trouble, or pain, or what?"
The frog sez: "Mine is an orful lot
It's a dirty world"; thus the old foe spoke:
"Croakety, croakety, croakeyt, croak.
"But, yer lookin' down," the blackbird said:
"Look at the blossoms overhead;
Look up, young feller! Why, bless my soul,
Yer lookin' down in a mush-rat hole!
And a wise old turtle, who boarded near Sez to the blackbird: "Friend, go here;
Don't shed no tears over him," sez he
"That feel's low down 'cause he like to be.
I'll tell you somethin' that ain't no joke—
Don't waste no sorrow on folks that croak."

Age Strikes A Balance

Lost:
Enthusiastic dreams of youth,
The hope of visioning the Truth,
An undervalued store of health,
The hope of winning fame and wealth.
The vim of vigor unimpaired,
The joys of countless pleasures shared,
Ambition for the coming years,
The strife of mingled hopes and fears.

Gained:
A philosophic view of life,
Exemption now from ceaseless strife,
A less impassioned view of things,
The calm that failing vigor brings
Unquestioned right to daily naps,
More interest in your views, perhaps,
Increased respect for what you say—
But no great reverence today.

Some of the mysteries of life made clear.
But still a wonder why we're here.

—Somerville Journal.

Hope Fades for Flyer

Believed the victim of a crash while flying his mail plane over the New York to Cleveland route in a storm, Thomas P. Nelson, above, a friend of Colonel Charles Lindbergh, is believed dead after rescue planes failed in scouring the treacherous western Pennsylvania district in search. The pilot was a veteran in the airmail service.

Intense rivalry to become the established port of call for American liners has recently developed among the three ports of Galway, Blacksod Bay and Fenit, on the west coast of the Irish Free State. Galway has long been seeking to have the government spend some $10,000,000 on the harbor there and the recent successful exploit of Colonel Charles Russell in carrying American mails from Galway to London by airplane has given rise to great hopes in Galway that that center will eventually be selected as the chief port of call for the ocean liners. Blacksod Bay is a claimant because of its magnificent harbor. Now Fenit with its commanding position at the head of Tralee bay comes along as a rival of the other two.

IOWA'S COUNTER CHARGES ARE DENIED QUICKLY BY OHIO STATE OFFICIALS

CHICAGO, Dec. 10—(AP)—The first of an especial series of counter charges of subsidization of athletes in western conference schools, following in the wake of Iowa's failure to gain reinstatement in that athletic circle, were made and quickly denied today.

Two affidavits were published in the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Gazette-Republican, purporting to show that Frank Baker, star Northwestern university end, and Elmer Marek, former Ohio State half-back, were given financial aid directly or indirectly by their respective schools.

Major John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the conference, said he had been given the changes several months ago and that the faculty committees had ruled both players and both institutions were not guilty of violating conference rules.

In the Marek case, the Cedar Rapids newspaper published an affidavit by Jess Blake, railroad company official, who charged that Marek's father had informed him that his son "held out for the most money" in selecting a school and that his father said his son had "received the best offer from Ohio State, expecting to get $200 a month."

Alongside the affidavit was a denial of such statements by the elder Marek.

Major Griffith said an investigation indicated Marek had been promised financial aid by certain Ohio State alumni if he would come to their school but that after he enrolled he received nothing and was forced to work his way through school.

The second affidavit, bringing up the Baker case, was made by Charles D. Bedlock of Chicago, who said Baker had boasted to him that he was given free meals by an Evanston restaurant. He would get checks like other patrons, Mr. Bedlock said Baker told him, but turned them in without paying for them.

Major Griffith said Baker's statement had been investigated and that it was found he was working for his meals in the restaurant and that he was unquestionably boasting.

"All the charges against these two men have been passed by me over to the conference faculty committee," Major Griffith explained.

The threatened revolt of Iowa against the present administration of the University of Iowa for its handling of the Hawkeye campaign to gain reinstatement appeared to have lost out today. The state board of education unanimously adopted a resolution pledging its faith in President Walter A. Jessup and the university board in control of athletics.

ALL-EAST TEAM HAS BEEN COMPLETED BY KERR

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 10—(AP)—Andy Kerr, of Colgate, tonight announced the complete list of 22 players who will represent the east in the Shriners Hospital fund football game at San Francisco, New Year's day.

Fifteen schools in the east, middle-west and south are represented in the roster, which includes nine backs, four ends, three guards, four ends and two centers. Approximately half of the athletes have been named for a number of All-American selections.

The squad, Kerr said, had been ordered to report at Northwestern university in Evanston, Ill., next Monday. Equipment will be issued then and the team will be sent through one practice under Kerr and Dick Hanley, Northwestern coach, before proceeding that night to San Francisco. The players are due on the coast December 18.

Backs: Holm, Alabama; Edwards, Brown; Taylor and Dowler, Colgate; Grimes, Iowa; Peters, Illinois; Caldwell, Northwestern; Nesbit, Drake and Brazil, Detroit.

Centers: Cox, Colgate; Erickson, Northwestern.

NO RETURN BETWEEN SCOTT AND VON PORAT SEEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Whatever happened in that ring at Madison Square Garden last night, is just so much water under the bridge as far as Phil Scott is concerned, for blighty and the Christmas holidays are calling.

The leaning tower of London has put behind him all thoughts of the foul that spoiled a good fight, caused Jack Dempsey his first major headache as a referee, and ruined for the time being Otto Von Porat's bid for heavyweight recognition. "Our Phillips," as he is known to his managerial forces, will sail December 14 for England to return when business picks up in the knuckle industry.

Von Porat, the heavy hitting Norwegian, made a desperate effort today to make amends for the low left swing that dropped Phil in agony so acutely portrayed that even part of the front row customers at the Christmas fund charity show seemed to suffer with him. Otto offered to fight Scott for nothing but the defy was refused.

Despite the efforts of Tex McArdle, matchmaker at the Garden, to bring the heavyweight pair together in another match either here or on the card at Miami, Fla., next February, there seemed little likelihood of another such bout. Scott now is satisfied that his next opponent must be Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailor man, and he is now eager to box the New Englander in the south.

The difficulties thus presented may result in a four cornered elimination series between Von Porat, Tuffy Griffiths, Johnny Risko and Victorio Campolo, with the winner chosen as Sharkey's rival in the second annual battle of the Palms. There also is a possibility that Max Schmeling, the Teuton ace, may return here in time to settle his difficulties with the New York state athletic commission and enter the elimination round.

MONTREAL BEATS COUGARS IN OVERTIME GAME

MONTREAL, Dec. 10—(AP)—Two goals from the stick of Howie Morenz in an overtime period, gave Montreal's Canadiens a 4 to 3 victory over the Detroit Cougars in a National Hockey league game here tonight. The winning counters came after the Canadiens had come from behind to tie the score.

Detroit got a two goal lead in the opening period on tallies by Aurie and Goodfellow, but the flying Frenchmen took advantage of penalties to tie it up. Lepine and Leduc making the shots. Detroit went ahead again in the second period only to have Sylvio Mantha knot the count again in the third. Aurel Joliat, Canadien left winger, was kept out of the game by an injured shoulder.

KID CHOCOLATE KAYOES SILVERBERG IN FIRST

Silverberg was no match for the redoubtable Cuban. Soon after the opening bell, Chocolate tore into his rival with both hands. A hard right caught Silverberg flush on the jaw and he went down to be counted out after one minute and 12 seconds of fighting.

Bruins Beat Pirates

BOSTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—The Boston Bruins edged the lowly Pittsburgh Pirates out in a loosely played National league hockey game here tonight, by a 5 to 4 score.

N. Y. AMERICANS WIN CLOSE GAME FROM TORONTO

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—The reconstructed and vastly improved New York Americans scored their second victory of the National Hockey league season tonight, defeating the Toronto Maple Leafs, 1 to 0. It was the third time this season Toronto has figured in a one goal game, losing two of them.

Although a great part of the improvement in the Americans was due to the newly added reserve strength, it was their veteran player—manager, Lionel Conacher, who scored the only goal. Before the game was five minutes old, Conny sailed down the right alley and beat Goalie Chabot with a perfect shot. Conacher also was the defensive star with Roy Worters, American goal tender, as an able second.

ARMY PERFECTS ITS DEFENSE FOR STANFORD

The first team, with Miller, center, Hillsinger and Humber guards, Perry and Price, tackles, Messinger and Carlmark, ends, Carver, quarterback, Cagle and Hutchinson, halfbacks, and Murrel, fullback, was pitted against the string Plebe eleven which went through the season unbeaten.

The plebe attack developed great strength and had Coach Jones permitted the plays to advance beyond the development stage the first year men conceivably might have scored several touchdowns. Running plays used by Stanford last year were put on by the plebes with great success but Coach Jones expects the varsity will be able to offer a better defense within the next few days.

PUBLICITY WILL KILL FOOTBALL SAYS ROPER

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 10—(AP)—"If football is going to be killed, it is going to be killed by publicity," Bill Roper, Princeton's football coach said tonight at the annual banquet in honor of the Princeton football team. Roper strongly condemned the current "public hysteria" over football which, he said might kill the game if anything can.

"Football is not going to continue," Roper declared, "because 75,000 people clamor for seats on the 50 yard line or because newspapers give column after column of space to it, setting up mere boys as idols and then knocking them down for a single mistake. Football has reached its present heights because it has brought out the sterling qualities in men. If it is going to continue, it will continue because it will maintain those qualities which have made it great."

YALE BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS WITH VICTORY

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 10—(AP)—Opening its basketball season, the Yale varsity defeated Upsala college by a score of 32 to 19, one of the largest made by an Eli team in many years. Patterson, center, was the high scorer with a total of 10.

The Blue counted 24 points before the boys from New Jersey found the basket.

A Challenge

The Stafford Olympic would like to arrange games for both their 15-21 year team and semi-pro outfit. Both teams are composed of former high school stars. For games get in touch with Charles Ward, Center street, Stafford Springs, Conn., or phone 233.

PLAINFIELD PROS RENEW BATTLE WITH BOSTON WHIRLWINDS TONIGHT

Tonight's Lineup

Boston		Plainfield
Crotty, lf	lf	Kasper
Riordan, rf	rf	Williams
Waters, c	c	Conway
Morley, lg	lg	Barnot
Kiley, rg	rg	Dissinger

Tonight at the Plainfield Community house the Plainfield Pros clash once again with the Boston Whirlwinds, renewing a basketball feud that has extended over a period of five or six years. The Whirlwinds during the early part of the feud proved too strong for the Plainfield club but of late years the Plainfield club has been holding its own or perhaps doing a little better. Tonight's game should throw the balance one way or the other.

That the fans can be assured of a real basketball battle lies in the fact that never have these two teams played anything but a close game, one that was always decided in the closing minutes of play. Tonight's game will be no exception. Boston is coming to Plainfield with a strong lineup for a loss will sadly impair their chances of copping off the New England professional basketball crown. A defeat for Plainfield will also put the team far back in the running for the same honors. Plainfield rules a slight favorite to win from the visitors tonight by virtue of their victor over the Plymouth team last Saturday night, when the Plymouth lineup was made up of many of the Whirlwind players.

The Plainfield club has the advantage of playing on their own floor and before a home crowd. The lineup for the Plainfield team is as strong as any this season and should do big things against the Boston club. Boston on the other hand has two new stars in Riordan and Waters, who played only a part of last season with this aggregation.

There is a fast preliminary scheduled between the Buddies and another fast Eastern Connecticut team. The Buddies, an aggregation of local boys, is putting on a brand of basketball that is worthy of a more experienced club. The preliminary starts at 8 o'clock and the main game goes on at 9. Dancing as usual follows the game.

WEST GRID TEAM FOR CHARITY GAME NAMED

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10.—(AP)—With the addition today of John Waldorf, University of Missouri backfield star, the squad of football luminaries who will represent the west in the East-West charity game here New Year's day was completed. Twenty-two players from all parts of the west have been selected for the contest, an annual affair held as a benefit for the Shriners' Crippled Children's hospital.

The western players will gather here Dec. 18 and the eastern squad will arrive a day later. Daily practice sessions will begin at once under the direction of Head Coaches Andy Kerr and Percy Locey.

The western squad:

Backs—Benny Lom, California; "Dutch" Clark, Colorado college; Ed Pomeroy, Utah; Carl Gilmore, Oregon State; "Fanny" Hunting Gonsaga, Ted Sloan, Nebraska; John Waldorf, Missouri; Joe Fredericks, Olympic club of San Francisco.

Linesmen—Tom Churchill, end, Oklahoma; Russell Striff, end, Oregon State; O. D. Alsbrook, end, Texas A. & M.; Wally Halmgren, end, Whitman; George Diehl, tackle, Idaho; Gordon Brown, tackle, Texas; George Ackerman, tackle, St. Mary's; Ray Richards, tackle, Nebraska; Bill Gregor, guard, Washington; Hoot Herrin, guard, St. Mary's; Bert Schwarz, California, guard; Mike Brumbelow, guard, Texas Christian; Roy Riegels, center, California, and Armand Seghetti, center, St. Mary's.

PLAINFIELD CUTS SQUAD AFTER TWO WEEKS PRACTICE

Plainfield high school will start the basketball season with a league game against Putnam on the 17th of January. On the first day of practice 25 candidates reported, but this squad has been cut to 15 and work has begun in earnest. The outlook for a successful season is very promising as four of the squad are veterans of the past year. Lang, this year's captain, will be remembered for his fine work as left forward. He will be in the lineup again this year and will cause worry to more than one opponent. The other veterans are Burby, Shippee and Polewaczik. The schedule will not be very long, consisting of only 12 games of which six are league contests. This is Plainfield's first year in the league so they are going out to make as good a showing as they did during the football season this fall.

The schedule:

Friday, Jan. 17—Putnam at Putnam.

Tuesday, Jan. 21—Chapman Tech at New London.

Monday, Jan. 27—Woodstock at Plainfield.

Friday, Jan. 31—Warwick at Warwick.

Monday, Feb. 3—Killingly at Plainfield.

Friday, Feb. 7—Stonington at Stonington.

Friday, Feb. 14—Chapman Tech at Plainfield.

Monday, Feb. 17—Warwick at Plainfield.

Monday, Feb. 24—Putnam at Plainfield.

Friday, Feb. 28—Killingly at Danielson.

Tuesday, March 4—Stonington at Plainfield.

Monday, March 17—Woodstock at Woodstock.

VALUABLE STALLION KILLED BECAUSE OF DISEASE

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 10—(AP)—Flying Cloud, 12 year old thoroughbred stallion retired to the farm of E. Gay Drake, two years ago, has been destroyed because of an incurable disease. The stallion, the property of Meehan Brothers, was wrack out of Robinetta by Fair Play. He won 35 races and $43,000 during his career.

GREENLEAF BEATS LIVSEY IN POCKET BILLIARD PLLY

DETROIT, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Ralph Greenleaf, New York, defeated Spencer Livsey, Los Angeles, 126 to 106, in a 40 inning game in the world's championship pocket billiard tournament tonight.

Livsey's high run was 32, and Greenleaf's was 56.

The game was the fourth of a series of 36, and was the first in which either player participated.

Harvard Coach Named.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 10.—(AP)—The appointment of Charles J. Whiteside, of Duluth, Minn., to the Harvard crew coaching staff, was announced tonight by William J. Bingham, director of athletics. Whiteside coached the Syracuse freshman crew which won first place at the intercollegiate rowing regatta at Poughkeepsie last June.

Wesleyan Opens Season Today

MIDDLETOWN, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Wesleyan university basketball team opens its season tomorrow night at Worcester, Mass., meeting the Clark college quintet. The Wesleyan team is composed of veterans. Nye will jump center, Ward and Howard will be at the forward positions with Millspaugh and Owen as guards.

Jimmy Goodrich Wins

Goodrich weighed 146; Cleccone 138 1-2.

Elks Play at New London Tonight

The Elks indoor sports team clashes with the New London Elks at the Elks home in New London tonight. The local Elks in the first match of the tournamein broke even with the Willimantic team and tonight's battle is the second of the league for the locals.

DeVito Takes Wrestling Match

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Joe DeVito, Italian champion, tonight won a wrestling match from Stanley Pinto, of Chicago, in two straight falls. The first fall came in 47 minutes and the second in four minutes. DeVito weighed 214, and Pinto 209.

The Whirlwinds of Taftville will be unable to play the Mystic All-Irish team at Taftville on Thursday night.

TRAMP OF SOLDIERS' FEET AN ECHO NOW IN COBLENZ

The tramp of foreign soldiers on the streets of Coblenz, Germany, is becoming a mere echo.

The French, who have maintained the Allied "Watch on the Rhine" since the American forces in Germany evacuated in January, 1923, are reported leaving the city.

"The traveler finds that there is little wonder that American soldiers liked their assignment to Coblenz," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Few cities and towns, even in the Rhine valley, enjoy the picturesque setting of Coblenz. For many miles above and below the city, the Rhine shore is studded with quaint villages, like gems strung on a gracefully curving string. Behind them, well-kept vineyards, sources of the famous Rhine wine, clothe the steep river banks from the village backyards to the foot of massive walls of castles that a few centuries ago were the gay gathering places of some of the great and near-great of Germany.

"From the opposite shores, or from the rail of a Rhine river boat, Coblenz displays no evidence that there was a town on its site 2,700 years ago. A colossal equestrian statue of Kaiser Wilhelm I overlooks the Rhine from the junction point of the Moselle and Rhine rivers. From this point to the opposite end of the city, the Rhine shore is lined with a wide, open space with shaded promenades and numerous grassy parks.

"No sooty smokestacks and warehouses are visible to mar the skyline of modern buildings and lofty church steeples. There is a landing place on the riverside but it is spotlessly clean and free from unsightly piles of cargo. Coblenz is a great wine market, but after viewing the fine buildings, and palatial residences set amid wide lawns, travelers search for other evidence of the city's livelihood. On the Moselle banks they find it. Barges constantly come and go from the quays and a visit to the nearby streets reveal busy piano, paper and dye factories, and chemical laboratories. On the riverside are small yards from which slip some of the boats and barges that ply the Rhine.

"Along the Moselle banks also are a few narrow, crooked streets, lined with venerable houses, business buildings and churches—all that remains of old Coblenz, formerly Confluentia—so-named because of its situation at the confluence of the Rhine and Moselle.

"The church of St. Castor, founded eleven centuries ago; the Liebfrauen church, a 13th century structure, and the municipal picture gallery, formerly an old castle, are a few of the interesting historic gems found within the site of the once walled town.

"A pontoon or boat bridge crosses the Rhine leading to Ehrenbrietstein fortress on the east bank of the Rhine. The Stars and Stripes flew over Ehrenbreitstein from December, 1918, to January, 1923. Beautiful panoramas of the Rhine and Moselle valleys and a splendid bird's-eye view of Coblenz is ample reward for a climb to the fortress whose walls rise 385 feet above the Rhine."

YAKUTZK ONLY SIZEABLE TOWN IN URAL REGION

In its flight of more than 3,000 miles from the Ural mountains across Asia the Graf Zeppelin sighted only one sizeable town. That was Yakutsk on the banks of the Lena river barely 300 miles south of the Arctic circle. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society deals with this isolated metropolis of northeastern Siberia.

"Yakutsk is one of the northernmost towns in the world," says the bulletin; "ranking in this respect with Nome, Alaska; Trondhjem, Norway; and Archangel in European Russia. Some of these competitors are actually closer to the North pole than Yakutsk, but the later undoubtedly takes first honors in the coldness of its climate. The mean temperature for January is 46 degrees F. below zero, while the mean for July is only 66 degrees F. above zero, a temperature which in the United States means chilly autumn weather.

"If one travels to Yakutsk other than by dirigible, he must negotiate a long and arduous journey. The nearest railroad, the Amur river branch of the Trans-Siberian railway, lies 600 miles south of Yakutsk, across almost impassible mountains. Even higher mountains, those of the Stanovoi range which the Zoppelin had great difficulty in crossing, lie between Yakutsk and the Pacific coast 300 miles to the east. The natural outlet of the region is the Lena river which, however, flows northward into the Arctic ocean where ice conditions usually interfere with navigation. The most traveled route connecting Yakutsk with the rest of the world lies up the Lena river and over the mountains near its headwaters to Irkutsk on the Trans-Siberian railway near Lake Baikal. This road is more than 1,500 miles long and it requires from twenty-five to thirty days to traverse it.

Since the building of the Trans-Siberian railway, Yakutsk has been left far to the north of the beaten path across Siberia. Strangely enough, however, this far northern town was one of the principal bases of operation when the Russians were extending their control eastward to Asia. This was because the geography of the country made it easier for the pioneer Cossacks to travel along the great streams of the north and their tributaries. In this way the headwaters of the Lena were reached and that river was followed eastward. A fort was built in Yakutsk in 1632 on the right bank of the Lena, and the town was moved across the river in 1640. At that time the Amur valley, which has played such an important part in Russian affairs, had not been discovered by the pioneers. With Yakutsk as a base, adventurous bands of Cossacks went southeastward between 1643 and 1650 and began the conquest of the Amur valley which was to be the real path for Russia to the Far East.

"From the seventeenth century on Yakutsk was used as a place of exile for Russians who had incurred the Tsar's displeasure and for Poles and other war captives. Later hundreds of religious sectarians whose tenets were not acceptable to the Othodox church were sent to Yakutsk to join the political exiles. Several thriving and prosperous villages near the city are maintained by colonies of Skoptzi, fanatics whose aim is to subdue all things physical to the spirit.

"Since 1920 Yakutsk has been the capital of the soviet state of Yakutia which goes by the official name of 'The Yakutian Autonomous Soviet Socialistic Republic.' The city now has a population of about 10,000 of which about half are Russians. The remainder are Yakuts and members of other Siberian tribes. The Russian Orthodox cathedral is the dominant building of the city. Practically all of the other structures are low and are built of wood. The chief activity of the city is as a market for the thousands of furs that areb rought in from the marshes and forests that extend in every direction."

NEW TREES FOR STREET PLANTING

The Norway maple, probably the most widely used shade tree for street planting, is being threatened by the attacks of an insect hitherto European in range.

For this reason substitutions must be made in planting by cities and towns. Among suggested trees are Red Oak, Pin Oak, Maidenhair, White Ash, European Linden, Oriental Plane and Hackberry.

Many of these trees, while little used, are most desirable from the standpoint of beauty, color, hardiness, and relative freedom from insect and disease attacks.

TWO TIMBER CROPS IN 30 YEARS.

As the result of foresight in leaving a good stand of young timber after the first cutting, a profitable timber crop is being harvested for the second time in less than 30 years on a tract on the Sunfish Hills, Pike County, Ohio. According to a report to the forest service of the United States department of agriculture, the Breece Lumber Co., has installed a sawmill at Latham and is producing 100,000 board feet of lumber a week for use in rotary veneer work. When the last big lot of oak, poplar, and chestnut was cut out about 20 years ago, a crop of young oak, chestnut, hickory, and yellow poplar was left. Where this young growth was protected from fire, logs averaging 12 to 16 inches in diameter are now being cut.

FRENCH GOVT. POSTPONES CHAMBER ACTION ON BUDGET

PARIS, Dec. 10. —(AP)— The Tardieu government, abandoning its attempt to put the budget through parliament before December 31, today introduced into the chamber a bill postponing the opening of the official fiscal year from January 1 until April 1.

MAJOR LEAGUES CONSIDER SHORTER SCHEDULE AND 'CHAIN STORE' BASEBALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The first skirmishes of the annual midwinter baseball battles were decided today with all indications pointing to an earlier closing date for 1930 and to a closer check of activities of clubs aiding acquire control of franchises in smaller leagues, Commissioner K. M. Landis, active opponent of "chain-store baseball," as it is operated by the Cardinals and other clubs, brought the question of an official check-up before the opening session of the two leagues in the Commodore today.

National league club-owners favored the commissioner's plan to require major and minor clubs to file official notification with baseball authorities upon acquiring control of a smaller baseball property. The commissioner's recommendation pointed out that in the case of the purchase of an individual player, any club was required to notify duly constituted authorities and that it was only reasonable to ask as much when an entire team was purchased.

The National league's consideration of the Landis recommendation was merely preliminary to a vote which will decide the question at the joint meeting Thursday. The American league expressed itself as of the opinion that the matter of chain-store ownership could be better solved by adopting the universal draft, indicating that the Barnard circuit may vote adversely upon the question in the joint session. The favor of the National league and the commissioners' own vote, cast only in case of tie, apparently assured success of the plan, however, regardless of American league action.

The commissioner would require major league clubs purchasing minor franchises to notify not only the office of the commissioner but also the two major league offices and the headquarters of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, the minor league governing body.

The National league also favored the reduction of the playing season to 168 days with a closing date on September 28, indicating the success of this measure is the same way as Commissioner Landis is known to oppose an extended schedule. The American league did not make known its deliberations upon this question.

The question of broadcasting major league games was not decided by either league today, and the chances seemed to be that the matter would be dealt with only in the joint meeting.

National league magnates adopted a memorial resolution expressing the thanks of the circuit to the late Major A. G. Mills for his services in laying the foundations of the structure upon which the league has been reared. Major Mills served as the third president of the National league in 1883 and 1884. He died last August at his summer home on Cape Cod.

The National league also announced the purchase of Umpire Ted McGrew from the American Association. Cullen Cain was elected press representative for three more years.

Both circuits admitted the use of the lively ball by considering the question of one. The National league felt that its present policy of having the umpires remove the gloss from the balls was sufficient to control the situation. It was pointed out that after the adoption of this plan, the senior circuit's home run crop was reduced by 45 per cent. The American league arrived at no conclusion on the matter.

President John A. Heydler's report to National league club owners carried a hint toward the solution of the vexing question of the armed neutrality observed by the rival factions of the Brooklyn club. This was the only allusion to the feud between the McKeever interests and the Ebbets heirs. Mr. Heydler assured his club owners that he would do everything in his power to "get the two factions to meet."

The National league elected a directorate composed of Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh, Charles A. Stoneham of New York, William Veeck of Chicago, and Emil E. Fuchs of Boston. The automatic shift of American league directors under the constitution sent into office Jacob Ruppert of New York, Robert Quinn of Boston, Alva Bradley of Cleveland and Charles Comiskey of Chicago.

Both circuits will convene again tomorrow and will assemble in the joint meeting tomorrow.

The clubs today were represented as follows:

National league: New York, Charles A. Stoneham, John J. McGraw, James J. Tierney, and Leo J. Bondy, Boston, Emil E. Fuchs, Philadelphia, William F. Baker and G. F. Nugent, Brooklyn, Wilbert Robinson, Steve McKeever, Joseph A. Gilleaudeau and F. B. York, Pittsburgh, Barney Dreyfuss, and Sam Dreyfuss, Cincinnati, Sidney Weil, Gustave H. Hilb and Louis C. Widrig, Chicago, William Veeck and John O. Seys, St. Louis, Samuel Breadon.

American league: New York, Jacob Ruppert and Edward G. Barrow, Philadelphia, Thomas Shibe and Connie Mack, Boston, Robert Quinn, Washington, Clark C. Griffith and Edward E. Evnon, Detroit, Frank Navin, Cleveland, Alva Bradley and William G. Evans, Chicago, Harry Grabiner, St. Louis, Phillip D. Ball and L. C. McEvoy.

CHRYSLER'S BIGGEST VALUE

NEW CHRYSLER "66" COUPE, $985

TODAY'S Chrysler "66"—the lowest-priced six ever to bear the Chrysler name—is in every way the biggest value ever offered by Chrysler.

It gives you Chrysler beauty, Chrysler luxury—and Chrysler performance! Here is high-compression power from any gasoline. Here is a superb engine with 7-bearing crankshaft and Iso-therm Invar Strut pistons; with impulse neutralizer and with positive fuel pump, instead of a vacuum tank. Rubber engine mountings are another Chrysler advantage.

AND UP . . . F. O. B. DETROIT

Here is the safety of weather-proof internal-expanding four-wheel hydraulic brakes. Here are remarkable riding qualities secured through a perfectly-balanced chassis and extra-long springs—and a new type of rubber-core spring shackle, noiseless as well as resilient, and never in need of lubrication. Just ask your nearest Chrysler dealer for a demonstration.

STOCK PRICES ADVANCED ALONG BROAD FRONT AS MARKET TRADING SLACKENED

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Stock prices pitched and tossed nervously as trading slackened up sharply in today's market, and professional operators felt about for a trend. Bolstered by bullish demonstrations in selected issues, the list finally ended the day with substantial advances along a broad front.

The abrupt decline late yesterday appeared to have inspired caution anew, and many traders were inclined to lighten accounts or stick to the sidelines. Total sales were but 3,447,400 shares, compared to 5,018,050 yesterday.

Radio came forward as a leader for the first time since September, rising about 6 points in a turnover of more than 40,000 shares. This stock was given a whirl on the basis of Owen D. Young's recommendations before the senate interstate commerce committee for a radio-telegraph communications monopoly.

The fluctuations of U. S. Steel common, however, continued to guide market sentiment. Rumors that any bullish announcement would be forthcoming from the regular meeting of the finance committee after the close of the market had been largely discredited, but the unfilled tonnage report at mid-day showing the moderate increases of 80,783 tons during November, was greeted with some enthusiasm. The stock sold up 4 1-2 points, but the gain was reduced to 1 1-2 points at the close.

Funds remained plentiful in the money market. Call loans held officially at 4 1-2 per cent, but the undertone was a little easier, some loans being placed at 4 per cent in the outside market. Time money, on the other hand, was slightly firmer, quoted at 5 per cent, against 4 3-4 to 5 yesterday.

Foreign exchange rates still indicated early exports of gold, probably with fast steamship sailings late this week.

The federal reserve's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks was rather disappointing, showing no reduction in loans against securities, although brokers loans declined $58,000,000 in the corresponding period. This was the more striking in view of the fact that commercial loans were reduced by $160,000,000, and it tended to bear out the New York Federal Reserve agent's recent analysis showing that banks throughout the country are struggling with about as heavy loans on securities as ever, despite the sharp reductions in brokers borrowings.

Dividend announcements were not so uniformly favorable as they have been recently. Norfolk and Southern Railway and Seiberling Rubber passed the dividends due on their common stocks at this time. Directors of Public Service of New Jersey, however, announced a 50-cent special payment and an increase in the annual rate from $2.60 to $2.40 next year. Adolph Zukor indicated that Paramount would be put on a $4 basis next April, compared to $3 now. Singer Manufacturing declared an extra of $3.50.

Western Union appeared to be stimulated by Mr. Young's recommendations in Washington, although the part it might take in a communications merger has never been disclosed. The stock mounted nearly 10 points, and closed near the top. American Can, American Telephone, American and Foreign Power, Bendix Aviation, the St. Paul issues, Columbian Carbon, Anaconda, Du Pont, Hudson Motor, International Telephone, Johns Manville, New Haven, Simmons and Westinghouse Electric closed 3 to 5 points higher. General Electric sagged a few points during the morning, then rebounded for a net gain of over 3 points. Motors continued firm, Chrysler and General Motors closing about a point higher.

National Biscuit, Chesapeake and Ohio, Fox Film A, Lambert, Gillette, First National Stores, Otis Elevator, and Stone and Webster lost 3 to 4 points. Pathe Exchange surged 1-2 point to within a fraction of its low, on news of the fire and loss of life in its Manhattan Studio.

Commodities were steady to firm. Cotton futures closed 65 to 95 cents a bale higher, largely on short covering. Wheat advanced 1-2 cent and corn reflecting a decrease in the world visible supply, and higher Argentine export rates. Corn closed practically unchanged.

Sterling cables held at $4.86 3-8, and the German mark touched 23.83 cents, a new low mark.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Bond prices made small changes in today's market, the dullest in three weeks. An advance to 5 per cent flat in time money quotation, reflecting seasonal demands, tended to restrict inquiry from large buyers and the list was again irregular, although there was a mild revival of interest in the late trading.

Declines outnumbered advances in the early hours, but some of these small losses were recovered as the session drew to its close and final prices proved to be about the best of the day. The change in sentiment was especially noticeable in the United States government group, where large turnovers were recorded in the last hour, with closing prices irregularly higher.

Adjustment income bonds found a strong market in the rail division. St. Paul 5s, Great Northern 6s and Seaboard Air Line 5s advanced 1 to 1-2 points, the first named showing a volume that was exceeded only by the American Telephone convertible 4 1-2s. Speculative mortgage and debenture issues which had been marked up a point or two in recent sessions met with profit taking. Norfolk & Southern refunding 5s lost a point, equalling their 1929 low, on the announcement that the semi-annual dividends on the national stock had been passed. First grade rails were mixed, showing unimportant gains and losses. Soo Line 4s and New Haven debenture 4s made new highs for the year.

The irregularity of stocks imparted a similar trend to the convertibles. The American Telephone debenture rose 1 1-2 points net, while International Telephone 4 1-2s, and Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s gained less than a point. There were small net declines in American I. G. Chemical 5 1-2s, American International 5 1-2s, Commercial Investment Trust 5 1-2s, and New Haven 6s.

Activity in South American loans was a feature of the foreign division, Brazilian issues, with the exception of the firm 8s, turned heavy. Argentines were irregular. British 5 1-2s, among the European government obligations, declined nearly a point to within 1-2 of their 1929 low.

New bond financing scheduled for offering tomorrow includes a new issue of Peoples Light & Power corporation one-year 5 1-2 per cent notes at 99 1-2. Proceeds will be used for retirement of unfunded debt, payment for improvements and other corporate purposes.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 10—(AP)—Despite sharp setbacks in prices at times today, the wheat market here averaged higher. Domestic hard winter wheat brought the topmost premium which importers have paid yet this season, as compared with future deliveries, furthermore, the Liverpool wheat market today showed the widest difference over Chicago quotations which has been reached in many weeks.

Chicago closing prices on wheat were 1-4c to 1-8c per bushel above yesterday's finish. Corn closed 7-8c off to 1c up, oats 1-4c to 3-8c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 12c.

Buying power in the Chicago wheat market today was at its best during the final hour, but top prices did not hold in the face of enlarged speculative selling. Export business in North American wheat today was estimated as totaling only 750,000 bu. and this amount afforded insufficient stimulus to keep up enthusiasm on the part of friends of higher prices. The majority of wheat traders gave evidence meanwhile of a disposition to keep close to shore while awaiting a normal export movement that up to this time has been lacking, although on the whole the outlook today for such a movement was said in various quarters to be strikingly brighter.

On the other hand, authoritative reports today from European sources were to the effect that although the amount of wheat afloat for trans-Atlantic countries is 20,000,000 bu. less than the total a year ago, European importers as a rule are satisfied to allow surplus wheat to remain in exporting countries for the present. The principal reason assigned is comparative dearth of funds abroad to finance forward shipments, but admission is made that Germany is expected to require fair amounts of wheat from now forward. Argentine dispatches today told of stormy weather and of considerable fresh damage to crops.

North American export news, however, rather than Argentine field reports occupied the center of the stage. Credit on the part of traders who are short of corn needed to fill December contracts here did much to give the corn market a strong undertone today. Besides, the forecast pointed to widespread rain or snow. Oats offerings were light and cash demand good.

Provisions sagged on account of liquidating sales of the December delivery of lard and because of some hedging in the January delivery.

F. E. Williamson and Charles Donnelly, presidents respectively of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and Northern Pacific railways, today said that the gross and net operating revenues of their roads for November and December will be less than for the same months last year.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—A further decrease in the production of steel ingots by the United States Steel corporation is reported by Dow, Jones & Co., which states that the average is now down to 65 per cent of theoretical capacity, compared with 68 per cent last week and 70 per cent two weeks ago. Independent producers were reported operating at about 66 1-2 per cent, against 67 per cent last week and 69 per cent two weeks ago. The average for the entire industry was placed at the same figures as given for the independent operators.

Directors of the Great Northern railway have approved a capital expenditure budget for 1930 amounting to $19,000,000,000. Of this amount $12,-000,000 will be spent for new equipment, including the purchase of 2,000 freight cars and 20 locomotives. A full maintenance program, calling for $35,000,000 for next year, also was approved.

A valuation of the assets of the Interstate Equities corporations, an investment trust, sponsored by the Bancamerica-Blair Corp., based on market prices Dec. 5, showed that they had exceeded the original $25,000,000 invested, according to a letter sent stockholders by E. R. Tinker, president.

EXCHANGE IS FAIR INSTITUTION SAYS CUTTEN

CHICAGO—(AP)—Arthur W. Cutten, famous veteran trader of the grain pit and the exchange floor, says the stock market is a fair institution for investors who use intelligence in making their purchases.

The name of Cutten has been closely linked with that of the Fishers of Detroit and other large traders who have taken the long side of Westinghouse, United States Steel, Baldwin, Montgomery Ward and International Harvester, profiting when the market was booming.

He is averse to publicity and takes no part in the activities of a dozen or more clubs to which he belongs. He pays the highest income tax in Chicago area and is credited with having taken $10,000,000 out of the market in a single maneuver.

Cutten, however, permitted himself to be interviewed informally as he leaned against the fireplace in his office, smoking. He said:

"Two things are needed to succeed in the stock market—nerve and vision.

"The stock market today is a fair institution. Everybody has a chance except those who do not use their heads. A man can't expect to make money on a stock if he buys without the faintest knowledge of the stock."

Cutten is small, lean, trim, with a prominent jaw. His sparse hair is curly and gray and his eyes gleam. His glasses are rimless, cut half moon-shape.

Chief among Cutten's diversions is his 800-acre farm in Du Page county. The place is stocked with 1,000 hogs, 200 cattle and about 20 horses, the latter because he is "sorry for the critters." He was born in Canada and took out his citizenship papers only a short time ago.

PROFIT FROM TOPS HITS $300,000 IN HALF YEAR

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—From the sale of yo-yo tops, an ancient Filipino invention, a St. Louis manufacturer has made $300,000 in the last six months.

E. L. Reicholdt, already the president of a window dressing concern, sought an investment for his spare money last June. Noting the yo-yo fad, he decided to put the tops on the market in large quantities.

He was surprised when his factory began to work 24 hours a day to supply the demand. He has manufactured more than 3,600,000 tops.

CHURCH-GOING DOG TRIES MOVIES; DIES

ATLANTA—(AP)—For five years Joe Brown Connelly, a wirehaired terrier, was a dog of stern religious convictions. Then he weakened and it killed him.

Spic and chic in his neat coat, Joe trotted daintily and dutifully to the First Presbyterian church every Sunday morning, greeting old friends, about half the congregation, at the door with sober Sabbath dignity.

When the service started he solemnly took his place in the rear of the auditorium. Mid-weeks he went to prayer meetings.

Then he became a movie fan and died. A hit-and-run driver struck Joe while the terrier was trotting to the theatre behind his mistress.

A NOSE IN NEWEST STYLE? WELL, NOT FOR MR. SIMS

ATLANTA—(AP)—There is an old proverb about absence and what it does to the heart which seems to apply to noses—W. I. Sims' nose, anyway.

Sims' nose was demolished in the course of an argument and while surgeons were doing what they could with the relics they suggested he might like something fancy or even modernistic in the way of a new schnozzle.

Mr. Sims was not impressed. He had lived with his nose for 62 years and, in a way and when he thought about it, had grown fond of the old thing.

"You just give me the old model. I like it," he told the medicos, and so they did.

EX-ACTOR POLICEMAN IS THEATRE CENSOR

MINNEAPOLIS—(AP)—"Look them over with a broad mind," is the policy fixed for himself by Dave Broderick, police captain, new censor of the theatre here.

Broderick, an actor before he walked a beat, was appointed by the mayor, William F. Kunze, to act "as the need arises."

The censor's first task was viewing Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude," which he found satisfactory when looked upon with an "honest attitude."

BOOTLEG DEALS DETECTED BY POLICEMAN'S SPYGLASS

ATLANTA — (AP) — Patrolman Charles W. Crankshaw of Atlanta's prohibition squard has been playing "I spy" with bootleggers.

From a lookout at the top of a tower at Terminal railroad station, Crankshaw scans the neighborhood with a telescope.

Hip pocket transactions in doorways and alleys—or elsewhere within the range of the spyglass—bring the officer on the run to the Nelson street bridge, which the unsuspecting suspects cross to return to the main part of town.

WAR AGAINST CATTLE TICK IS ON GAIN IN THE SOUTH

ATLANTA —(AP)—A total of 10,358 square miles of additional territory in four southern states has been released from the federal cattle tick quarantine.

The areas lie in Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Texas.

The release frees the entire state of Alabama, making it the tenth state to join the list which, through tick eradication, has worked its way above the tick fever quarantine line.

At the same time Jefferson Davis parish, Louisiana, was requarantined and quarantines were continued in Arkansas and Porto Rico.

10,000 MICHIGAN FARMERS TO HAVE ELECTRIC POWER

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(AP)—Ten thousand farmers of the lower peninsula of Michigan will use electric power for the first time by the end of the year. The greatest campaign for rural electrification in the history of Michigan will be completed by the time, it is announced by Prof. H. J. Gallagher, head of the rural Michigan State college.

Charged With Wrecks

Tom Vernon, above, five-time convict, is under arrest at Pawnee, Okla., charged with the wrecking and robbing of the Portland Limited near Cheyenne, Wyo., and the West Coast Limited near Saugus, Cal. Passengers victimized in each wreck have identified pictures of Vernon as the bandit.

Pilchard Plants Grow

VANCOUVER, British Columbia —(AP)—In the last four years 23 plants have been established on the west coast of Vancouver Island to convert pilchard, a sardine, into oil, fertilizer and stock feed.

Average 240 Eggs

YAKIMA, Wash.—(AP)—An average of 240 eggs a hen was made in a year's test of 208 pullets on the farm of E. M. Krienke near here. Scientific feeding was regarded as the most important factor contributing to the results by the county agriculture department.

FIRST CHURCH CALENDAR DONATED BY A FRIEND SUNDAY

The church calendars used at the First Congregational church Sunday, were made possible through the generosity of a friend of the church, whose name was withheld by request. As it was Bible Sunday, the sermon by the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, centered upon the Bible as a means to a great end. The floral offering for the services Sunday was in memory of Mrs. Bailey and was provided by her children. The children's hymn for December is 479. It is expected that this will become very familiar to all before the month is over.

Today (Tuesday) the Intermediate and Junion C. E. societies will meet in the chapel at 35, to prepare Christmas gifts for others. Christmas means more to us when we try to make it a glad day for some other person was quoted on the calendar. Small gifts have been solicited from those interested in helping these young people in their worthy efforts. Mrs Ernest Washington and Miss Jessie C. Hyde are the leaders.

The Young People's C. E. service, at 6:30, in the Congregational chapel, was in charge of Miss Jessie Hyde, who ably treated the topic, "What Is Back of Our Christian Giving? Matthew and I Corinthians. There was a good delegation with the pastor, from this society, in attendance at the evening service at the Methodist Episcopal church.

Thursday evening at the prayer and conference meeting of the Congregational church, in the chapel, the question for consideration will be "What Do We Mean By Keeping the Faith? II Timothy 4:1-8.

The December meeting of Home chapter of the King's Daughters, held Monday afternoon at the Johnson home, which had an attendance of 65, was the closing meeting for 1929, and was in charge of the leader, Mrs. William E. Manning. During the devotional period the 13th chapter of Exodus was the lesson for study. The 14th chapter of this book will be the lesson for the meeting in January, 1930. One new member was received into the chapter. Mrs. Charles Cross was treasurer pro-tem, in the absence of Mrs. Herbert R. Branch. The secretary's report and that of the treasurer, as well as the reports of committees, were submitted and approved. The nominating committee, Mrs. Dwight L. Underwood, Mrs. Ernest Washington and Mrs. William Martin, reported that all officers and committees to serve Home chapter for 1930, were to be re-elected at the meeting in January, with the exception of the work committee. Mrs. Edward Briggs is to succeed Mrs. William H. Whiteman, (resigned) as chairman of that committee. Announcement was made that the next meeting of Home chapter sewing society would be with Mrs. Neville Bilco, of Rockwell street, Wednesday of this week. Mrs. Woodbury O. Rogers, Miss Elizabeth Ortman and Mrs. Frederick Armstrong were appointed a Christmas committee. The following entertaining program was given: Piano solo, Glow Worm, Mrs. Frank L. Arnold; dressed in Indian costume, Mrs Louis Russell song "By the Waters of Minnegonska." This was followed by a pantomine "Wanted A Wife," by Professor Ebenezer Doolittle (impersonated by Mrs. Edmund A. Prentice). The applicants and their impersonations were With Only An Eye for Beauty, Mrs. John Olsen; Too Tired to Move, Mrs. Gertrude Tootill; All Around Hustler (a coon) Mrs. Earle H. Christman; Too Loving a Nature, Mrs. Thomas Keen; One Mass of Giggles, Mrs. William F. Bogue; Correct In Every Way, Mrs. Walter G. Cowan. The last applicant made such an impression she was accepted by the professor. After putting on her wedding attire the prospective bride and groom marched out to the music of the Bridal Chorus, from Lohengrin, played by Mrs. Arnold, who also gave as a concluding number, another piano solo, Buona Notte. During the social hour, under the direction of Mrs. David M. Dean, cake and coffee were served.

It is pleasing to the many friends of Miss Margaret Mahoney, of Scotland road, a teacher at the school in Lyme, that she has recovered so satisfactory. She was injured in an automobile accident. About ten days ago, near the Norwich Town green, while enroute to Lyme, accompanied by a friend. Miss Mahoney, who was taken to Backus hospital for first aid treatment, was later in the day, removed to her home. She returned several days ago to resume her duties at Lyme.

"A Love Gift

At the meeting of the C. E. society of the Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday night, the leader was Mrs. Rose Manning and her subject, "What Is Back of Christian Giving?" The leader told a most interesting true story "A Love Gift." While teaching school thirty years ago, one of Mrs. Manning's pupils named Molly as the Christmas season approached, came to her one day with a little package neatly wrapped and apologized because she was not able to give the gift she had wanted to give. When the teacher opened the package she found a little lace mat composed of circular small pieces all done by this child admirer. Enclosed in the package were six merit cards that represented many days of special effort and hard work in school. Mrs. Manning said the stitches in the mat were uneven and far from artistic, but back of the mat was the love of the little girl who gave it. So today, it is what lies back of the gift that counts, not the gift.

Wolf Cubs to Change Program.

The Wolf Cub pack of scouts connected with the Methodist Episcopal church, at the meeting, Monday afternoon, voted to change their program and try out the plans set forth by the American Boy Scouts. Formerly they have been following the English Wolf Cub program as their was no American organization for the boys of cub ago. The cub master in the new organization is known as Akela. Rev. George Warren Poter read another installment in the book "The American Family Robinson." The cubs played a game of Murphy Says. The cubs are to have a library and Woodruff Sullivan was elected librarian. There was an attendance of thirteen.

ROCKVILLE, R. I.

The New England Seventh Day Baptist Y. P. S. C. E. union held its quarterly rally with the Rockville society Saturday evening. Rev. Clayton A. Burdick was the speaker.

Mrs. Ida Irish is visiting in Providence.

Samuel Wright has purchased a house at Centerville from the Centerville Mfg. Co.

Mrs. Annie B. Kenyon has a cow that is the mother of twin calves, all doing well.

John Gorton sawed wood for Frank Burdick last week.

A number of wells in this vicinity are low and people have to cart water some distance.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Foxes Share Their Feast
By Thornton W. Burgess

More is gained by those polite,
Than by those who pick a fight.
—Jimmy Skunk.

Reddy Fox led the hound that was chasing him far away. There, at a little brook, he broke his trail. The brook was shallow. He ran down the brook in the shallow water; then he climbed out on the opposite bank, ran a little distance and jumped back into the brook. Then he turned and went back up the brook. This time when he left it he did so with a series of long jumps. Then he trotted swiftly in a line that brought him back on the trail he had just come. He followed this back until finally he came to the big rock where he had left Mrs. Reddy. He barked softly as he drew near. There was an answering bark. So he knew that she had waited for him.

Meanwhile the dog was doing his best to work out Reddy's trail. He followed it straight to where Reddy had entered the brook. There, of course, the scent ended. The dog worked his way down the brook on that bank, carefully smelling everywhere for Mr. Reddy's scent. Finally he gave up and returned to where Reddy had entered the water. There the dog crossed and worked down the other bank. So it was that at last he came to the place where Reddy had left the water and run down the bank for a short distance. Once more he began to bay as he followed the trail. But it was only for a short distance; then it ended once more in the brook. But the dog was sure now in which direction Reddy had gone and so he kept on hunting down the brook. You see, he was completely fooled.

"Did you get a turkey?" Mrs. Reddy asked eagerly as soon as Reddy was near enough.

Reddy nodded. "Yes, my dear," said he, "I got one. And I was so big that it was all I could do to get it under the barn. We'll go straight back there now. We'll have just about time to eat that turkey before daylight. If worst comes to worst, we can spend the day under the barn and no one will be the wiser. When that dog gets back home, he'll be too tired to poke around much if any. There'll be nothing to fear from him."

So they trotted straight to the farm where the turkeys lived

So they trotted straight back to the farm where the turkeys lived. Everything was dark there, for the night was cloudy. The farmer and his family had long since gone to bed. The turkeys were roosting up in the apple tree, all but one. Reddy grinned as he looked up at the dark masses in the tree. He and Mrs. Reddy had been smart enough to catch one and he hoped they would be smart enough to catch another. Then they crept in under the barn where Reddy had hidden the turkey. Perhaps you can guess how they felt when they discovered some one else enjoying a turkey dinner. They ground their teeth in rage, but that is all they could do. You see, Jimmy Skunk had found that turkey and he was having a very pleasant dinner.

"That's our turkey!" snapped Reddy. "You leave it alone!"

"You mean it is my turkey," replied Jimmy Skunk. "I found it, so it is mine."

"I killed it!" retorted Reddy. "I killed it, so it is mine!"

"Come take it if you want it," said Jimmy, and grinned. At the same time he lifted that big tail of his a little.

Instead of going forward, Reddy moved backward somewhat hastily. So he and Mrs. Reddy were forced to sit and watch Jimmy eat until Jimmy had had all he wanted and turned away. Then and not until then did they dine on turkey. But there was plenty and they had such a feast as they had not enjoyed since the winter began.

The next story: "Reddy Gets More Than He Bargained For."

"Drove to New Rochelle yesterday in three hours."

"Boy! That's saving time! What did you do when you got there?"

"Came back in two hours and forty minutes."—Life.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Two big all-talking first-run features at the price of one. That is what the Palace theater is offering today, Thursday and Friday to its patrons. One of these great features is "Big News," a gripping drama of newspaper life and romance in the metropolis. The other is "The Girl from Woolworth's," an all-talking, singing and dancing Warner Brothers production which has already established big box office records in the cities where it has played since its release recently.

If the plot of "Big News" were to be transferred to real life, the front page stories would probably read something like this:

"One of the most baffling crimes in local police annals was committed some time this afternoon when James Addison, veteran newspaperman, editor of the 'Courier,' and part owner of that sheet, was murdered in cold blood in his private office.

"The police have apprehended 'Steve' Banks, star reporter of the 'Courier,' for the murder of his employer. Banks stoutly denies his guilt. Addison was murdered with a pocket-knife, which was subsequently identified as belonging to Banks. A mystifying element in the affair was the odor of gas on the scene of the crime. The coroner, however, established that Addison died from a stab wound.

"An unknown woman is believed involved in the web of circumstances surrounding the crime."

Modern youth, out for its fling—out to have a good time. That is the spirit of "The Girl from Woolworth's," the other big hit on the Palace program. Alice White is starred in this production. She plays the part of a five and ten cent store clerk, who eventually crashes into the night clubs as an entertainer. She sings and dances in this all-dialogue picture, and by her vivacious spirit and high kicking, lives up to her title of the youngest actress in Hollywood. Charles Delaney is her leading man, while other stars in the cast are Wheeler Oakman and Ben Hall. A large group of chorus girls adds spark and fire to the plot, not to mention a lot of comeliness, curves and other assets generally associated with the chorus. Altogether this double feature bill is one of the finest yet presented in Norwich.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

People "in the dough" are known to fakirs and confidence men the world over as the easiest "suckers" of them all, the average working man or girl being a wee bit more chary of spending their hard-earned dollars foolishly. So it was the most natural thing in the world for a canny photographer at a beach resort to sell his "spirit-photos" to the wealthy vacationists. What a windfall it was when a half-starved, "busted" chorus girl stumbled into his studio one day. She had looks, personality and a good "line," and offered a perfect type for the new medium's use in his false seances. Thrills, follow thrills, with comedy heaped over, in the all-talking drama "Darkened Rooms," which opens at the Broadway today, with Neil Hamilton as the fakir and Evelyn Brent in this, her first starring part, as his not too willing assistant. E. H. Colvert, Doris Hill and David Newell are also in the cast. An interesting program of talking short subjects is built around the feature, with the Fox Movietone news, a Broadway "bouncing ball" song novelty, Solly Ward and a troupe of "hi-steppin'" night club stars in "His Wife's Birthday," a featured comedy, Halligan and Mulhern in "Somewhere in Jersey," Guy Robertson in "High River," and Ben Pollack and Park Central Musikeers in a fast musical melange. George Bancroft has wired the Broadway to be on the lookout for his latest dramatic knockout, "The Mighty," which will open at the Broadway Saturday next.

GREENEVILLE

OVER 1,200 COMMUNICANTS AT FORTY HOURS DEVOTION

The forty hours which has been in progress at St. Mary's Memorial church for the past three days came to a successful closing Tuesday morning at the two masses and hundreds received the sacraments. The two masses Tuesday morning were offered at 5 and 7 o'clock and at 8 o'clock. Rev. Frederick M. Coholan gave holy communion. The mass at 9 was offered by Rev. Father Coholan and the 7 o'clock mass by Rev. Father Carey, of Voluntown.

The devotion was brought to a close with the offering of the public prayers to gain the closing graces, by Rev. Fathers Carey and Coholan. Rev. William A. Keefe, the pastor, feels highly pleased at the results of the forty hours devotion when upwards of 1200 communicants received the sacraments. Assisting Fathers Keefe and Coholan during the devotion were: Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May and Fathers Myles P. Galvin, John J. Reilly, Norwich; Edward J. Quinn, Norwich Town; Frederick H. Desureault, Omer Mandler, Donat Jette, Taftville; William F. O'Brien, A. Jalbert, Baltic; Ludovic Paradis, Occum; William C. Fitzsimmons, Joseph N. Ranieweki, New London; Nicholas V. Caron, Jewett City; John D. Carey, Voluntown; Ulderic O. Bellerose, Putnam, John C. Machieu, Norther Grosvenordale, and Father Fortier, O. B., of Lowell, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. William McDermott have returned to their home at New Bedford after spending a few days with relatives on Prospect street.

Christmas seals in Greeneville are on sale at the drug store of Pitcher and Service, who have generously offered their assistance in the seal sale.

Held Christmas Sale

The Ladies' Aid of the Third Baptist church, held their annual Christmas sale and meat pie supper in the chapel recently. The sale of aprons, fancy articles and candy opened at 3 o'clock and at 6 o'clock a bountiful supper, consisting of meat pie, mashed potato, mashed turnips, cabbage, relish, cranberry sauce, pickle, rolls, squash and apple pie and coffee, was served to a large attendance. Mrs. William A. Lund, president of the Ladies' Aid, was in charge of the affair and was assisted by the following ladies: Fancy work table, Mrs. William Sweet, Miss Gladys Upton; aprons, Mrs. Irving Larkin; candy, Mrs. Elmer Mulkin; World Wide guild table, Mrs. Henry Sebastian and Mrs. Val Sebastian; kitchen, Mrs. Herbert Peckham, Mrs. James Spicer, Mrs. Harry Conklin, Mrs. George Upton, Mrs. Matilda Haisch and Mrs. Chris Wunderlick. The waitresses were: Mrs. Alice Cousins, Miss Lillian Hayfield, Miss Dorothy Conklin, Miss Elinor Howard, Miss Jennie Sebastian and Miss Doris Lund. As a result of the sale and supper a goodly sum was added to the treasury. The ladies are planning to make their annual cash donations to the Salvation Army and tuberculosis sanitary fund, and a number of other worthy causes.

FIRST BAPTIST MISSION CIRCLE ELECTS OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the Woman's Mission circle of the First Baptist church was held on Tuesday afternoon in the church. The president, Mrs. D. Louis Browning, presided. Christmas hymns were sung and the annual reports of the officers were read. The election of officers resulted in the following: President, Mrs. D. Louis Browning; first vice-president, Mrs. Louis A. Wheeler; second vice-president, Mrs. Howard Demarest; secretary, Mrs. Walter M. Cowan; treasurer, Mrs. Frank D. Davis. A Christmas program was presented, consisting of readings on work done at home and abroad.

TRENOR RICE'S WIFE GETS DIVORCE, ALIMONY AND CUSTODY OF CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 10.—Judge Edward M. Yeomans of the Windham county superior court today signed judgment in the divorce action of Edna Shorter Rice against Trenor A. Rice, granting the plaintiff a decree on the grounds of intolerable cruelty, the custody of their four children and alimony of $100 a month. While not actually contesting the divorce, Rice, represented by Attorney William A. King, had appeared as a defendant against the amount of alimony, the plaintiff having sought the sum of $150 monthly.

The case was heard in court here Oct. 22, last.

The principals in the case, especially Rice, came into prominence during the investigation of the murder of County Detective William E. Jackson, who was shot to death in the kitchen of his home on Quarry street the night of Jan. 29, last. Rice, a former boarder at the Jackson home, was arrested shortly after the funeral, which was held Feb. 3, and was indicted on a charge of first degree murder at Putnam by a grand jury, Feb. 11. Two days later, Feb. 13, Mrs. Gertrude Jackson, wife of the slain detective, committed suicide at her home, leaving two notes which purported to exonerate Rice and place the responsibility of the killing on herself. One of the notes was addressed to Attorney King, who represented Rice, and the other to the accused man. Claiming that the death of Mrs. Jackson and that of Mrs. Merton A. Andrews, considered another important witness, had frustrated the plans of the state in the plan of testimony, the state dismissed its case against Rice during the superior court session of April 26.

Rice is maintaining his residence on Brown avenue, this city, and is employed by the Colt Firearms Co. at Hartford. Mrs. Rice, who withdrew divorce proceedings while her husband was confined in the county jail at Brooklyn following his arrest, is residing in a home which she purchased in South Coventry.

TIRREL TO TALK ON CHARACTER AT COURT

Two hundred parents of Boy Scouts in the city of Norwich have been invited to attend the Boy Scout Court of Honor this (Wednesday) evening at 8 o'clock in the town hall, according to Scout Executive Sellman. Principal H. A. Tirrell will give a talk to the scouts on character, and the local office is urging that parents attend the court to hear the talk and to stimulate the scouts to greater endeavors. According to the scout executive, not a sufficient number of badges is being earned by all the boys regularly to put the record of awards and promotions in an A-1 class. The real difficulty, it is felt, is that parents of scouts are not well enough acquainted with the system of awards or are not yet sufficiently interested in this phase of boys' work to give it home support. "If a second class or first class scout is not passing tests regularly, that is, if he is not appearing before the court of honor, he is failing to be a scout in the best sense of the word," says F. H. Cranston, chairman of the board of review. "Every scout in the city of Norwich should be appearing before this court at least once every two months. Every parent should ask his scout why he is not appearing before the court more regularly."

An interesting program has been planned for the occasion. The scouts will, as before, march in at the sound of the bugle, while Miss Dreschler plays a march. A candle ceremony will be held for the tenderfoot scouts. Ten candidates for the rank of second class are expected to appear before the court, while it is probable one or more first class badges will be awarded. Merit badges in the following subjects will be awarded: Woodwork, athletics, leathercraft, cycling, first aid to animals, scholarship, public health, first aid, personal health. One life scout badge will be awarded.

The board of review composed of John Hill, Howard Ludlow and Mr. Cranston, will meet at 7 o'clock in the rear of the town hall. All candidates for the rank of second class and first class must report at that time. According to a ruling by the badge committee appointed by the scoutmasters, badges will be paid for by the scouts or troop before the court begins at the board of review.

Scoutmaster Howard Ludlow will lead the scouts in songs and yells, while Arthur Adams of Hartford will show 25 minutes of moving pictures of winter camp activities. H. A. Tirrell, F. H. Cranston, deputy commissioners, and others will preside at the court.

A log will be kept of all parents who attend the court to see what troop leads in total parent attendance at the end of five months. The next court of honor, planned for the first week in February, will be an International Jamboree court with moving pictures of the Jamboree, talks by the New London Jamboree scouts and a flag display of the flags of every nation in the world.

GREEK ORTHODOX CHURCH IN FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN

The Greek Orthodox church, which is located on Boswell avenue, has embarked in a financial campaign to cover the cost of extensive repairs which have been made to the church at a total cost of $15,000, of which the congregation has already pledged the sum of $10,000. To assist them in raising the balance, the church has issued a general appeal through letters which have been sent out by the campaign committee of which Peter Sellas is chairman and Ulysses Sakelaredis is treasurer.

The second meeting of the parliamentary law class of the Woman's City club was held Monday afternoon in the club room at the Wauregan hotel. Mrs. William H. Dawley presided.

As there were several new members present, the leader, Judge Arthur F. Libby outlined the subject of the first meeting, organization. He then spoke upon the order of the meeting. As one of the privileges of the members of a meeting is to make motions, the points especially dwelt upon during the afternoon were motions, main and subsidiary, including indefinite postponement, amendment to main motion and amendment to the amendment to the main motion.

The order in which they can be discussed and voted upon was very clearly made.

For Motor Law Violations

State Policeman Smith of the Groton barracks on Tuesday summoned three different motor vehicle operators into the city court for this (Wednesday) morning for violations of the motor vehicle law. Those who are to appear are Stave Takmon of Jewett City, Walter Wisnieski of R. F. D. No. 3, and Andrew Buksar of this city.

On Prom Committee

Miss Sadie Frances Schwartz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abner Schwartz of 25 Perkins avenue, has been chosen on the prom committee at Emerson School of Oratory, Boston, one of the coveted honors among the student body.

WILL RECEIVE $17,307 IN SCHOOL MONEY FROM STATE

Early in January, Norwich will receive from the state approximately $17,307 as its share of the state school fund, the allotment being based upon the school census just completed.

For every pupil of school age enumerated, the town will receive $2.25 from the state. The school enumeration reports 7,692 children of school age in this town this year, which was two less than in 1928.

The money paid to the city comes from the state school fund established in 1795 through the sale of the so-called Western Reserve.

The school fund, the most unique and beneficial department of the state, was established by an act of the general assembly at the May session in 1795.

A committee of eight was appointed by the general assembly, and they sold to some 48 associates the Western Reserve, containing more than 3,000,000 acres of land bordering Lake Erie in northern Ohio, for $1,200,000. The actual investment of the fund was two years later, in 1797, and since that period annual dividends have been paid which have been devoted to the interests of public education. During the long interval of years the fund has disbursed in excess of $15,000,000.

The outstanding figure of the administration of the school fund was a great Connecticut patriot, James Hillhouse, a resident of New Haven and once mayor of that city. He resigned as United States senator to take charge of the school fund as its first commissioner. From the school fund he resigned to take charge of the building of the Farmington canal and was later elected treasurer of Yale college.

Since 1909 the custody of the school fund has been wholly in the hands of the state treasurer. The entire capital of the fund is invested in first mortgage loans with the exception of $83,000 in 4¼ per cent. U. S. treasury bonds. The yield from the principal is very nearly 6 per cent.

The state branch is probably the most liberal loan institution to be found anywhere and frequently lapsed interest payments are allowed to accumulate, the penalty amounting to 9 per cent., often swelling the income without impairing the security afforded the state.

Unlike large corporations, the commonwealth has a soul, and frequently citizens in dire need of financial assistance are helped; in fact a bond of just and generous sympathy is maintained between the clients and the state with the result that thousands of people have shared in the benefits accruing from the wisdom of the state's policy of helpfulness and co-operation. Many times when other sources of borrowing are closed the state after a thorough investigation takes upon itself the burden refused by others whose business is the loaning of money.

Since 1810 when the first commissioner received $1,100 and was the highest paid official of the commonwealth, the custodians have labored to keep foremost the traditions and make the school fund what it has often been termed in the halls of the legislature, a sacred fund—the pride and glory of the state. In the long history of the fund the management has rested upon the shoulders of many prominent men.

TAFTVILLE

When Miss Lillian Laramie entertained a number of friends at a Pit party in honor of Mrs. George U. Smith, the first prize was won by Mrs. Wilfred Smith and the consolation prize was awarded to Miss Yvonne Caron. After cards, the hostess served delicious refreshments at the tables. Those present included Miss Rosalma Gadbois, Miss Anna Gadbois, Miss Yvonne Caron, Miss Courannn Paradis, Miss Mabel Giadue, Miss Lillian Laramie and Mrs. Wilfred Smith.

Mrs. Richard B. Snow of North C street, chairman of the Christmas tuberculosis seal committee, announces that residents of the village who have not received seals by mail, or who desire more, may obtain them from Mrs. Ada Lafrentere.

The Thimble club met Tuesday evening with Mrs. Walter W. Kellner at her home on Providence street.

The class of young ladies studying home nursing and hygiene met Tuesday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building. Miss Louise Sigrist, R. N., was the instructor.

A letter for Johnny Desrosier is the only lost letter advertised this week at the local postoffice.

When the Lisbon Community club meets this (Wednesday) evening at the Community house in Lisbon for its monthly meeting it will take the form of a Christmas social. A varied programme has been arranged by the committee in charge and will include entertainment by the children, selections by the Community club orchestra and the distributions of gifts by Santa Claus. Each person attending is expected to bring a gift, the value of which is not to exceed 10 cents. The children will each receive a box of candy.

NEW LANDING COMPLETED AT GARDNER LAKE

The new landing on the Arthur C. Brown property at Gardner lake, which has been under construction for several weeks, has been completed. The pier is about 200 feet long with a 3 1-2 feet high cement wall. Between the wall and the pavilion has been filled in with stones gathered off the beach and top-dressed with gravel. This makes a fine promenade with broad walks along the water front. Next spring other improvements are to be made, such as building new streets and erecting several new cottages. The beach is of white sand and is one of the best beaches around any lake in New London county.

EXPECTS LOWER PRICES FOR CHRISTMAS TURKEYS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Dec. 10—Indications are that Christmas prices for turkeys will be lower than at Thanksgiving, according to Dr. E. A. Perregaux, marketing specialist at the Connecticut Agricultural college, in a radio talk delivered from station WCAC. Not as large a percentage of the birds that were to be sent to the Thanksgiving market were shipped which, with the increased supply of gobblers, leads to the belief that prices will be lower at Christmas time. Another factor to be considered, Dr. Perregaux pointed out, is that while turkey is the "piece de resistance" for Thanksgiving, many prefer duck, goose, capon or some other type of poultry meat for Christmas, so that the market for turkey is then more limited.

Growers who plan to expand their turkey business should do so with caution, the state college economist advised, as there is a limited demand for the high quality native product at prices which the producer must receive in order to make a profit. There has been wide interest in turkey raising all over the country, and the large supply of turkeys from other sources cannot help but depress the local price if the present rate of increase in turkey production in the United States is maintained, the economist said.

While Danish or late cabbage production for 1929 is estimated at four per cent greater than a year ago as a result of an eight percent increase in acreage this year, production this season is 16 per cent less than the five year average, Dr. Perregaux said.

Prices of Maine potatoes at Boston on Saturday were about 30 cents a hundred weight less than on the same day in 1926, and $1.40 less than at the same time in 1925. Local prices for the remainder of the season will depend largely upon the extent to which the surplus is absorbed in markets outside the usual territory supplied from Maine.

Shipments of seed potatoes from Maine have been very light. The prices asked and those offered are so far apart that the U. S. department of agriculture's representative questioned the advisability of quoting a price, Dr. Perregaux stated. Buyers are slow to purchase and are waiting for possible declines in the asking prices for seed due to the wide variation between the seed and table stock prices, Dr. Perregaux stated.

CRIPPLED WORLD TRAVELER ADDRESSES STORRS STUDENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Dec. 10—Ellery Walter, 23 year old author and world traveler, who possesses only 1 leg but an indomitable and adventurous spirit, related to an enthusiastic student body on Tuesday morning a number of his experiences on a recent world tour. Mr. Walter, while he was president of the sophomore class at Washington university, seattle, and a member of the varsity crew, suffered an infection while rowing against the University of California which necessitated the amputation of his left leg.

Advised to travel for his health, the young man embarked with a ticket to Honolulu and $15 in cash. From there he went to Sidney, Australia, thence to Port Said, then up the Nile, from there to Rome, then to Europe, and America.

He has had many amazing adventures, and has met many prominent persons. He contributed to current periodicals, and is the author of "The World on One Leg." Mr. Walter was perhaps the most interesting speaker ever to appear at the state college assembly, and at the conclusion of his talk was given an ovation by the students.

FLOODED CELLAR SUIT ON TRIAL BEFORE JURY

Defense testimony was heard Tuesday in the superior court at New London before Judge Earnest C. Simpson and a jury in the $2,000 damage suit of Frank Cella of Pawcatuck against the J. W. Moore company of Providence and Sam Nardonne of Pawcatuck, with Attorney Thomas M. Shields as counsel for the plaintiff and Attorneys B. H. Hewitt and Davis for the defendants.

The suit arises out of an attempt by the defendants, contractors, to stop the flow of water alleged to come from the Pawcatuck river, into the cellar of the plaintiff's house at 1 Mechanic street. At times, according to the plaintiff, the water in the cellar reached a depth of four feet and more.

The plaintiff engaged the J. W. Moore Co. to repair the cellar and the company engaged Nardonne to do the cement work.

DELIVERED SERMON FOR COMMUNITY SYNAGOGUE

At the Friday evening service of the Community synagogue of Norwich, held at the home of the B'nai Brith lodge on Shetucket street, Rabbi Bernard H. Ziskind of New York, a graduate of the Jewish Theological seminary, gave an instructive sermon to a capacity audience, which was in the main young people of the Jewish community. The preacher chose for his text: "And Esau Shamed the Birthright."

At the conclusion of the sermon, hymns were sung by the congregation. Rabbi Ziskind also officiated at the services Saturday morning and evening. After the evening service Saturday, he addressed the organization meeting of the Sisterhood at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Israelite on Joseph Perkins road.

During his stay in Norwich, Rabbi Ziskind was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Gordon.

CHRISTMAS SEALS BOOTH AT THE CRANSTON STORE

Mrs. Richard B. Snow, chairman of the Christmas seals sale, makes this announcement; through the courtesy of Cranston & Co., always ready to cooperate with every good work pertaining to the city, a booth for the sale of Christmas seals will be opened today (Wednesday) for one week. The booth is to be in charge of Mrs. Harold W. Carpenter assisted by several young women ready to do their bit.

In addition to this announcement Mrs. Snow urges the Christmas shoppers visiting this store filled with its attractive gifts, to pause and buy Christmas seals. "On that long list are expensive gifts purchased for every member of your family and your many friends, have you added Christmas seals to that list to help buy health, the greatest gift of all? Add to those you may already have at home. They cost so little and every one you buy helps so much."

POLICE COUPE HAS REAR WHEEL DAMAGED

The police coupe driven by Officer Clifford Crary was somewhat damaged Tuesday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock when it was run into by a machine operated by Paul L. Sackett, 26, of Melrose, Mass. Mr. Sackett, arrested by Officer Crary on a charge of failure to grant the right of way, pulled out from the curb on Main street near the postoffice without giving warning. The police machine sustained a damaged rear wheel and fender. Sackett will be presented in the city court this (Wednesday) morning.

$100 FINE ON CHARGE OF DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

In the city court Tuesday morning Nicholas J. Doyle of R. F. D. No. 7 was fined $100 and costs on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. It is understood that the accused will appeal to the court of common pleas. Doyle was arrested late Friday night on Main street by Officer Clarence Simpson, when it is claimed Doyle was driving through the street at fast speed and without having the lights on his machine lighted.

11 CONVICTS AND HEAD KEEPER KILLED DURING RIOTING AT AUBURN PRISON

Guards and Police Regained Control Last Night, Six Hours After the Convicts Had Killed the Keeper and Had Seized the Warden and Seven Guards—Half a Dozen Guards Were Shot or Gassed in Rescue of the Warden and Guards—Warden, While Captive, Under Threat of Death Endorsed an Ultimatium of Convicts Demanding Safe Conduct From the Prison—There Were About 15 Convicts in the Revolting Group, the Main Body of the Prisoners Remaining Quiet in the Prison Yard

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 11—(AP)—A besieging force of guards and police tonight had wrested control of Auburn prison from convicts who six hours earlier seized its warden, Edgar S. Jennings, and seven guards and killed the principal keeper, George A. Durnford.

A mopping up of barricaded positions commenced with occupation of the prison yards and part of the cell blocks by several hundred heavily armed guards and police. Skirmishes incidental to the search of cell blocks, shops and offices brought a convict death list from 5 to 11, at least one of the inmates being killed by the gunfire of his comrades as he complied with orders of state troopers to rip down a barricade.

Guards Shot or Gassed

A half dozen guards were shot or gassed when under cover of a gas attack Warden Jennings and the seven guards were snatched from the clutch of a score of convicts who held them hostage.

Five companies of national guard were grouped about or converging on the prison to late any last effort of the comparatively small group of convicts to escape. As night closed in, a group of power company workmen strung wire and erected flood lights in the prison yards to aid the small army patrolling from the walls.

Chief of Police M. L. Cadin, of Syracuse, aiding in the quelling of the riot, reported at 5:30 p. m. that six prisoners had been killed by machine gun fire in fighting in the south wing of the building.

Included among the dead convicts, Cadin said, was Stephen Pawlak, Buffalo criminal, who figured as ring leader in the riot of last summer. Ernest Pavesi, another of the ring leaders in the previous riot, also was included in the death list by Cadin.

The machine guns, according to Cadin, were in the hands of state troopers.

Warden Weakened

While the warden and guards remained in the hands of the mutineers, Henry Sullivan, spokesman of the rebels who was later killed, sent out a written ultimatum in which he declared eight prison officials would be killed if state troopers, national guardsmen, police and armed civilians were not withdrawn from the vicinity of the prison. Their demand was endorsed by Warden Jennings, who sent out by a trusty the urgent request:

"For God's sake give them what they want."

This demand, relayed to Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, state commissioner of correction at Albany, brought a prompt denial which was endorsed by Acting Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and orders were issued to forces surrounding the prison to shoot to kill any convict who attempted to escape.

Attack by State Troopers

State troopers then attacked the building under cover of tear gas. Shots were exchanged between the troopers and the convicts, the latter retreating once more into the rear hall, but leaving behind them the bodies of three of their number and their hostages, most of whom had succumbed to the gas used to effect their rescue.

With their last hope of buying their way to freedom gone, the desperadoes barricaded themselves within the hall and covering the door and windows with their pistols, prepared to make a last stand.

The murder of the principal keeper brought each of the mutineers face to face with a murder charge and the possible penalty of death.

Main Body of Prisoners Quiet

The warden and guards were removed to Auburn City hospital and one of the guards told the details of the capture of the prison hall. According to his story there were about 15 convicts, practically long termers or lifers in the revolting group, the main body of the prisoners remaining quiet in the prison yard, although at times the only barrier between them and freedom was the machine guns of the troopers.

He also declared that when the troopers made their rescuing attack the convicts attempted to carry out their threat to kill the guards but the action of the troopers was too fast for them and they failed in their purpose.

Sullivan and Pavisi escaped from Auburn in March, but were recaptured nine days later at Watertown.

David Winney, a guard, was the first to give the alarm at the prison. As he entered the rear hall he was covered by a pistol in the hands of a convict and ordered to throw up his hands. He dung himself sideways behind a pillar and, with bullets singing about his ears, gained the main office and summonded aid from outside.

The wounded guards are James F. Van Heusen, shot in the eye; George E. Atkins, shot in face and neck and probably fatally wounded; Albert C. Holzhauer, shot in mouth. Those gassed in addition to the warden are Claude R. Dempsey, Walter J. Falley, Leclue Hugunin and Milton J. Riker, who was wounded during the riot last July.

WARDEN'S STORY OF HIS CAPTURE AND SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

AUBURN N. Y. Dec. 11—(AP)—Warden Edgar S. Jennings, of Auburn prison tonight told the Associated Press the story of his capture by a group of rioting convicts. He gave the account from his bed where he was recovering from the effects of tear gas used by troopers as they wrested the warden and seven guards from the clutches of the maddened inmates.

His account follows:

"Soon after 10 o'clock this morning I was informed that there was some disturbance brewing in the prison, so I went down at once to the kitchen where I knew I had some reliable men who could ascertain what was wrong. I was returning from the kitchen and had reached the stairway leading up to the principal keeper's office and the chapel door when a convict suddenly stepped out and shoved a gun into my stomach. 'Do not move or say anything, warden or I will kill you,' he said quietly.

"At the same time, two other convicts, one with a knife and one with a razor, came on each side of me and threatened to kill me if I made any outcry. I glanced at the gun and saw that the convict meant business. The convict then said, 'Just come with me, warden, we want you to accompany us to the punishment gallery, and you will have to cover us, or we will kill you.'

"On reaching the punishment gallery, the three officers in charge, seeing me, and not yet suspecting anything, suddenly found themselves held up at the points of guns and they too were relieved of their weapons and forced to open all the punishment cells, releasing most of the men who figured in the subsequent shooting.

"We were then handcuffed together in pairs and taken to the upper back hall of the south wing, and presently several other guards also were taken prisoner in the same manner.

"I do not recall who were taken altogether, but the group of guards included, Dempsey, Ryther, Atkins, Holzhauer, Salley, Hugunin, and the former woodshop keeper, MacTagert. Sullivan and Pawlak, (convicts) appeared to be among the leaders and Sullivan said quietly:

"'Warden, we are going to ask you to instruct the men out front to let us go out with you and these other officers. You will have to give the order, or we will kill you. We are determined to go out or die, but if you fail, we will all die together.'

"They issued instructions simply telling the men in front to open the doors and to keep all officers from any gunplay, as they marched out with us as their prisoners. They handcuffed us in pairs and they said: 'Warden, we intend to put a convict behind every two keepers. He has a gun and will shoot his pair at the first indication of treachery. You will march out with us and we will place you in the cars with us.

"We plan to seize enough automobiles from the streets of Auburn to provide for us all. If you play fair with us, we will take you all out into the country, and dump you alive. If we die, you die.'

"They scribbled with a lead pencil instructions and asked me to sign it. I refused to sign it. Pawlak, when they became insistent, said: 'Warden, you have your hands up, so what the hell more can we ask,' but then they put a gun on me and forced me to go to the door and pass out the note.

"Later, when they got no response, they became more threatening. And soon Father Cleary came up bravely under their guns and started to plead with them. He asked them in all decency to drop the effort to escape, which was doomed to failure, and Sullivan, I think, replied:

"'Father, I am a Catholic and would like to obey you, but this has gone too far. Either we are going out, or we shall die, and if we die, these officers are going to die with us.'

"The priest returned to the front office and the men then began to discuss the next move. They knew they had killed Durnford, and that all

DISCOVERY MADE BY THE SENATE LOBBY COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.— (AP)— A proposal by H. C. Larkin, president of the Cuba company, looking toward having Latin-American countries bring pressure to bear against a sugar tariff increase by the United States, was discovered today by the senate lobby committee.

Sharply questioned in regard to the attempt, Larkin—whose company has large sugar holdings in Cuba and who has been active in behalf of a low sugar duty—informed the committee he was "very much ashamed" of his action and added he had been "rebuked" by Rafael Sanchez Abalil, Cuban secretary of communications, to whom the proposal was made.

CHARGED WITH CAUSING DEPRECIATION OF STOCK

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—William T Hollingsworth, 69 years old, multimillionaire president of the Claude Neon Lights corporation, was arrested at his suite in the Savoy-Plaza hotel today on a warrant signed by Magistrate George W. Simpson, in Tombs court, charging he caused depreciation of the stock of the Federal Neon system by more than $5,000,000 by the insertion of false and misleading advertisements in newspapers.

The complaint was Charles V. Bob, president of the Federal Neon system. Hollingsworth was specifically charged with violation of section 952 of the penal law and was taken at once to the Tombs.

BOY SUFFOCATED, AND ONE FATALLY BURNED

Henri Pepin, Jr., 2, who lived in the house where the fire occurred was suffocated in a closet, where he hid to escape the flames, and Armand Houle, 4, a friend, died at the Sacred Heart hospital tonight from burns he received.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PARIS, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Discontented because they did not get enough Italian language study, the students of the Faculty of Arts at Aix-En-Provence, declared a week's strike.

HIRSCHBERG, Silesia, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Count Christian Stolberg-Wernigerode was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment today on a charge of killing his father last March through negligence.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—(AP) —Le Havre, famous port where the French line steamers and many others from America dock, wants to change its name. It has put its request before the state council, which every year gets at least fifty such requests. Most of them are granted.

BERLIN, Dec. 11.— (AP) — United States Ambassador Jacob Gould Schurman told a large audience of Americans and Germans that "there is no greater mistake than the supposition that effective diplomacy can nowadays be an affair of smooth speech and sharp practice."

WORK FOR CONNECTICUT LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

HARTFORD, Dec. 11—(AP)—The next national convention of the League of Women Voters, will be held in Louisville, Ky., April 28 to May 8, according to an announcement made at the meeting of the executive board of the Connecticut League of Women Voters, held at the Y. W. C. A. in New Haven today. Mrs. Frederick S. Chase, of Waterbury, and Mrs. Swift, of Darien, were appointed delegates to the national conference on the Cause and Cure of War, which meets in Washington, D. C., January 14 to 17. Mrs. Lewis Rose, of Hartford and Miss Anne Schover, of Ridgefield, will be the alternates.

The committee appointed to make plans for the memorial anniversary fund consists of Mrs. William Couch, of Cromwell, Mrs. F. Annie Dixon Welch, of Columbia, Mrs. F. U. Johnstone, of Woodstock, Mrs. Annie G. Porritt, of Hartford, and Mrs. Emerson Swell, of Greenwich. This committee will meet at the state headquarters in Hartford, on December 17 to make further plans.

Mrs. James C. Howell, of Salisbury, was appointed advisor to young voters at today's meeting. Her work will be principally with students at Connecticut College for Women in New London.

85 STORY BUILDING TO HAVE DIRIGIBLE MOORING MAST

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith announced today that the 85-story building to be erected on the site of the old Waldorf-Astoria hotel by the Empire State, Inc., of which he is president, will be surmounted by a 200-foot mooring mast for dirigible airships.

The plan, he said, is to make the building a terminal for dirigible passenger lines which eventually may operate on regular schedules back and forth across the Atlantic, across the continent, to and from South America, and around the world.

The former governor will go to Washington tomorrow to see Secretary of the Navy Adams, in the hope of enlisting the aid of navy department engineers.

The new Empire State building will be 1,100 feet tall, exclusive of the mooring mast. It has been advertised as the tallest office building in the world. It also has been said that it will have the largest amount of floor space in the world.

DISABLED SCHOONER 300 MILES SONTH OF NEW LONDON

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11—(AP)—The United States coast guard destroyer Cassin tonight was standing by the disabled four-masted schooner, G. A. Kohler, 300 miles south of here after supplying water and provisions to the craft which was 23 days out of Haiti bound for Boston.

The Kohler was crippled by loss of its rudder, and its water and food supplies were exhausted. It was due in Boston tonight at midnight.

Another craft, the William Killegrew, a dragger, was reported in distress because of engine trouble, 75 miles east of Cape Cod. The destroyer Burrows from Boston was reported to be on its way to her aid.

BAR BECOMES A COUNTER WHEN IT LACKS BRASS RAIL

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—A legal definition of a bar and of a speakeasy was obtained today in federal court, Brooklyn, in the trial of John Rossi of Staten Island, arraigned on a charge of illegal possession of liquor.

Joseph Wackerman, defense counsel, called Rossi's establishment a store and objected when James Wilkinson, Assistant United States attorney, spoke of it as a speakeasy.

"It had a bar," Wilkinson contended.

"No, not a bar, a counter," argued Wackerman.

"Was there a brass rail before the counter?" asked Judge Byers and the answer was "No."

"Then we'll call it a counter," he said. "Fine the prisoner $150 for possessing intoxicating liquors."

PLAGIARIST ARRESTED FOR GRAND LARCENY

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—A writer who was said to have admitted copying stories from magazines and selling them to others, was arrested here today on a charge of grand larceny.

Robert A. Carter, the writer, was arrested on complaint of John B. Kelly of Fiction House, publisher of "Wings," an aviation story magazine, who said that Carter had paid $240 for a story he fraudulently represented as original, whereas it had been copied verbatim from the magazine "Air Trails."

COALITION SPLIT OVER TARIFF ON WOOL WASTES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)— The split in democratic and republican independent ranks in the contest over proposed increased tariffs on wool wastes continued today when the senate rejected, 46 to 35, a graduated duty ranging from 8 to 16 cents a pound on wool rags.

Factions Battle For Possession Of Canton

Many Thousands Reported Killed or Wounded—Foreigners Leave Nanking.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 11.—China tonight continued a cauldron of revolt against the nationalist government. Many thousands were reported killed or wounded in a battle for possession of Canton. Rebels and loyalists battled in Honan and Anhwei provinces.

Thousands of Chinese made panic-stricken by apparently false reports of rebels' approach against the native section of Shanghai were prevented by armed white police from entering the city's foreign section for safety.

Nanking, capital of nationalist China, was virtually denuded of foreigners.

Rebels, who had fought the nationalist defenders of Canton since Monday night were halted, at least temporarily, and thrust back after penetrating the loyalist lines to within seven miles of the city. With thousands of casualties on each side, Canton's hospitals were filled with wounded, while others continued to arrive. The famous "Ironsides Division," which led the rebel attack, was said to have lost 5,000 men, captured in a nationalist trap while retreating.

Severe fighting was reported 50 miles north of Nanking between Pukow mutineers and loyal government troops. The wounded streamed into Nanking. The loyalists were reported holding a line with three divisions and one regiment against an attack begun by the mutineers.

Reinforcements sent from Nanking virtually left the capital without government troops, and disorderly elements were said to be active, with looting threatened.

Fighting was said to be in progress in Honan province, but the rebel menace toward Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang was lessened somewhat by combinations of less important militarists against the rebel chieftain, General Tang Seng-Chi.

In other areas there was a lull in fighting due, according to report, to strong efforts of the government to conciliate the faction aligned against it.

HOOVER RECOMMENDS EMBASSY AT WARSAW

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—The American legation at Warsaw, Poland, shortly will be raised by President Hoover to the status of an embassy.

This was announced at the white house today, where it was said that the move was a compliment to the large number of people in this country of Polish descent and signified the increased importance of Poland in Europe.

The president will send to the senate the nomination of John B. Stetson of Philadelphia, now minister at Warsaw, to be an ambassador, and congress will be asked to appropriate the difference between the salaries of the two classes of foreign officers. An ambassador receives $17,000 a year.

14 STATE POLICEMEN ARE ON DUTY AT BRADFORD, R. I.

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 11—(AP)—A detail of 14 state police arrived late this afternoon at Bradford village to assist local police in preventing recurrence of demonstrations by strikers of the Bradford Dyeing association against non-union workers at the plant.

The Westerly board of police commissioners at noon today asked that state police be sent because strikers hurled stones at two buses taking 50 non-union workers to the plant early this morning. The arrival of the troopers, local police believe, prevented another demonstration from a crowd of 200 who surrounded the building when the workers started back to their hotels in Westerly tonight.

State police will continue guard duty, Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown announced tonight, and the present force will be enlarged if outbreaks occur. A week from today, he said, the company will begin to evict strikers from houses it owns.

TESTIMONY THAT SHERIFFS FIRED AT TEXTILE WORKERS

BURNSVILLE, N. C., Dec. 11—(AP)—Testimony that deputy sheriffs fired at textile strikers who were fleeing from tear gas released by officers was heard today as the state presented the first capters of its story of the early morning battle at a Marion cotton mill October 2, in which six were killed or fatally wounded.

Eight deputy sheriffs are on trial here on a change of venue from McDowell county, charged with second degree murder.

OPPOSE SENATORIAL ELECTION IN WYOMING

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Dec. 11—(AP)—The democratic state central committee today took a stand against a special senatorial election in Wyoming, although such action would prevent the party from contesting for the seat now temporarily held by Senator Patrick J. Sullivan, republican, until the regular election next fall.

The democrats opposed the calling of a special election to choose a successor to Senator Sullivan on the announced grounds that such an election would cause needless expense to the taxpayers.

JAPANESE DELEGATIONS ARRIVE AT SEATTLE

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 11.—(AP) — Greeted by a large crowd of civic and military officials, the Japanese delegations to the arms conference in London arrived here today. After a brief reception aboard the Sloeria Maru, the Japanese state men and their party was conducted to a hotel here. They will remain in Seattle until tomorrow night.

Kentucky Coal Miners Have Voted To Strike

Would Enforce Recognition of Union and Restoration of 1917 Wage Agreement.

CENTRAL CITY, Ky., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Union coal miners in the 40-odd mines of western Kentucky have voted in favor of a strike to enforce recognition of the union and restoration of the 1917 wage agreement. There are from 15,000 to 18,000 miners in western Kentucky.

In announcing today that the vote as tabulated thus far stood 8,355 to 193 in favor of the strike, W. D. Duncan, district president, said the next step lies with the executive committee of the United Mine Workers of America.

Operators generally declined to comment on the vote but one of the larger operators expressed doubt that a strike would be sanctioned by the international union, saying that John L. Lewis, international president, recently had told President Hoover that no strikes would be called in the immediate future unless wages were reduced. Operators steadfastly have refused to recognize the union, but claim that with few exceptions the mines are paying the 1917 wage scale. Small mines, known as "wagon mines" in some cases are paying less.

The 1917 agreement provided for a basic scale of from $4.09 to $4.35 a day for inside work, $3.56 for outside work and 44 to 45 cents per ton for labor employed on that basis. Mr. Lewis said some mines are paying that rate but that others are paying as low as $2 a day for outside work and $3 daily for inside work.

600 MINERS TO MARCH TO AUBURN MINE TODAY

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 11.—(AP) — More than 600 miners, members of the United Mine Workers of America, late today resolved to march in a body to work tomorrow at the Auburn mine of the Panther Creek Coal company, taking "any steps necessary to get through the picket line" which was formed there by members of the National Miners union. Their action was taken at a meeting held here.

Meanwhile state and county officials said they were taking steps to prevent serious trouble, officials of the state highway department issued orders for motorcycle patrolmen and their outriders to clear the roads of all cars in the vicinity of the mine mouth, and to prevent as far as possible the gatherings of large groups about the entrance.

RESCUED FROM ICY WATERS OF LAKE ERIE

SANDUSKY, Ohio, Dec. 11.— (AP) — Thrown into the icy waters of Lake Erie when the 65-foot boat, the Mascot, capsized today its two passengers and crew of three men were saved from death by a thrilling rescue performed by the crew of the Messenger, a sister ship.

The Messenger was breaking a path through ice toward Kelley's Island, where the boats were taking the passengers, freight and mail. Off Marble Head, the Mascot apparently struck a big cake of ice and started filling with water.

The five persons aboard had time to grab life savers but a moment later, the boat turned over. Captain J. J. Frederick of the Messenger, which was a mile away, turned his boat as shortly as possible and went full speed to the rescue, braving the dangers of ice and high waves.

Suffering badly from exposure the five men from the Mascot were pulled from the water and taken to Kelley's island for medical treatment. They had been in danger, not only of death by exposure, but of drowning in the high waves, or of being crushed to death in the ice.

S. A. Thompson, of Washington, D. C., was re-elected secretary-treasurer, and Senator Ransdell of Louisiana, and John H. Small of Washington, both ex-presidents, were elected lifetime honorary directors.

State vice presidents elected included: Maine, Henry F. Merrill, Portland; Massachusetts, Frank S. Davis, Boston; Connecticut, Frederick W. Allwig, West Haven; Rhode Island, George J. Kelley, Pawtucket.

$750,000 SUIT AGAINST MRS. HENRY H. ROGERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—A suit for $750,000 damages brought by former secretary of Col. Henry H. Rogers, Standard Oil millionaire, against Col. Rogers' present wife and two other defendants was disclosed today when the state supreme court denied a defense application to seal the papers.

In the suit the former secretary, Edward E. Kern, charged that the defendants, Mrs. Margit Bordala Braun Rogers, and Andrew and Marie Zichy, maliciously caused his discharge. One of their reasons for this, he alleged, was an investigation made by him at Rogers' request into Mrs. Margit Rogers' mode of living before her marriage.

BALL POOL ATT'Y ORDERED TO ANSWER QUESTIONS

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Joseph L. Delaney, Albany attorney, today was ordered by a federal judge to answer before the federal grand jury questions asked him pertaining to the fees he charged and collected as counsel for the various defendants in the Albany baseball and stock market pool case.

Delaney, before the grand jury yesterday, had refused to answer such questions, advancing as his reason the confidential relationship of attorney and client.

SERIOUSLY BURNED BY OIL STOVE EXPLOSION

NEW BRITAIN, Dec. 11—(AP)—Frank Nirke, 42, was seriously burned tonight in an explosion of an oil stove. His body was showered with burning oil and hot water which stood on the stove. He was rushed to the New Britain hospital.

GRUNDY APPOINTED TO SEAT IN THE SENATE DENIED VARE

Gov. Fisher of Pennsylvania Announced That the Appointment Was Made With the Understanding That Grundy Would Run in the Primary Next Year For the Same Office—Vare Has Declared That He Will Be a Candidate "to the Finish"—Joseph R. Grundy is President of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association—Senate Nye Will Challenge Grundy When He Presents Himself in the Senate.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 11.—(AP)—The seat in the United States senate made vacant by refusal of that body to seat William S. Vare as senator from Pennsylvania has been given to Joseph R. Grundy, wealthy Bristol manufacturer.

Governor John S. Fisher tonight signed a commission appointing Grundy to the senatorship. The naming of Grundy, who is president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' association, and a power in the republican party in Pennsylvania, will give this state two seats in the senate for the first time since March 4, 1927, when the term of George Wharton Pepper expired, provided the senate accepts the appointee.

In announcing the appointment the governor said that Grundy had agreed to accept the commission, and that it was made with the distinct understanding that he would be a candidate for the republican nomination for United States senate at the primary election in May. The commission signed by the governor expires in January, 1931.

Vare has announced that he is in the fight for the seat "to the finish." Thus a party struggle is in prospect with the possibility that Gifford Pinchot, former governor, may enter the field and precipitate a three-cornered battle.

The appointment was made without consulting Vare as to his successor. The governor said he had received no expression from the Philadelphia leader on the subject.

Asserting that the choice of Grundy was in response to popular demand of persons of prominence throughout the state, the governor said that 99 per cent of the thousands of telegrams, telephone calls and letters that he had received in the past few days had urged the naming of Grundy. He added that no effort was made by himself or by the republican organization to influence the attitude of those who advised him.

Grundy has been much in the public eye of late as a result of the investigation of his activities in Washington by the senate lobby committee. His belief in a high tariff, he has testified, is next to his religion.

Long a powerful influence in the republican party in the state, Grundy in recent years has come to be known as a member of the "triumvirate," composed of Governor Fisher, W. L. Mellon of Pittsburgh, and himself. This trio has conferred concerning all important state legislative matters in recent years.

GRUNDY TO BE CHALLENGED BY SENATOR NYE, REP., N. D.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.— (AP) — Joseph R. Grundy will be challenged when he presents himself to the senate as the appointee of Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania, to succeed the rejected William S. Vare. Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota, will make the challenge.

Senator Reed, republican, of Pennsylvania, who has served alone in the senate for that state for almost three years, made the following statement:

"I understand Mr. Grundy's appointment was requested by the leaders of all factions throughout the state. He comes to the senate with a long experience in business affairs. He has an alert mind and for all these reasons will fill the position admirably."

Senator Nye said today that if the senate seated Grundy it "clearly awards the contested Pennsylvania seat to the highest bidder." However, some senators who opposed Vare's admission do not believe there is any ground to exclude Grundy as the legal appointee of the governor of Pennsylvania.

Informed of the appointment, Senator Nye said he was ready to submit a resolution similar to the one which the senate adopted in denying the seat to William S. Vare last week.

Nye must present his resolution at the time Grundy comes before the senate, probably tomorrow, to receive the oath of office.

Little hope, however, was held tonight for adoption of a resolution barring Grundy. Leading lawyers of the senate hold to the opinion that his appointment by Governor Fisher is legal and nothing can be done about it.

Senators Borah, Idaho, and Norris, Nebraska, republicans, who fought Vare, are of the belief that there is no legal or constitutional grounds for blocking Grundy's admission as the duly-appointed senator of the governor of Pennsylvania.

GRUNDY IS PREPARED TO PRESENT CREDENTIALS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.— (AP) — Joseph R. Grundy, who told the senate lobby committee what he thought about the senate, came to Washington tonight to take the place of William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, who was informed by the senate that he was not wanted there.

Within a few minutes after Governor Fisher announced his appointment to the vacant seat to which Vare was elected, Grundy reached the capital from Harrisburg and prepared to present his credentials to an aroused senate.

Word of the appointment of Grundy spread quickly in the senate, which only yesterday received a report from the lobby committee on the "lobbying activities" of the Pennsylvania manufacturer in behalf of the pending tariff bill.

Senator Nye, of North Dakota, a republican independent, immediately set about to prepare a resolution to exclude Grundy as a participant in the $1,500,000 campaign in the 1926 Pennsylvania primary of the Mellon-Fisher-Pepper ticket. That was the ticket which was defeated by Vare in his $785,000 campaign for the republican senatorial nomination, but John S. Fisher of the opposition ticket won against Vare's candidate for the governorship.

GALES OVER BRITAIN HAVE DECREASED CONSIDERABLY

LONDON, Dec. 11.—(AP) —The gale that has been furiously buffeting northwestern Europe for the past week settled tonight into a deep depression over northern Scotland, and weather forecasts were for continued gales at exposed points on the coasts of Great Britain and Ireland.

The violence of the wind, however, decreased considerably today. Shipping began to resume its normal proportions after high winds and rough seas had made havoc with large and small vessels. English shipyards have begun to provide work for the unemployed because a great number of damaged ships of all sizes and classes need repairs.

Flood waters mounted in English rivers and streams, turning vast stretches of fields and low lying lands into lakes and submerging many roads. No loss of life from the floods has been reported, but the total number of deaths during the gale is put in England and on the continent.

The Thames continued to rise slowly and threatened to cause heavy damage. The Tate gallery, which lies at a low point on the embankment in London and houses a priceless collection of Turner's paintings among other art treasures, was being carefully watched as the river rose. The lower grounds of Windsor castle, home of King George and Queen Mary, were submerged.

BODIES OF COUPLE CLAIMED BY RELATIVES

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.— (AP)— The bodies of Henry Grew Crosby, 32, and Mrs. Josephine Rotch Bigelow, 22, both socially prominent Boston'ans, were claimed by relatives today, but police still were without a motive to sustain their belief that the couple died in a suicide pact.

The bodies were found last night in an artist's apartment in West 67th street. Both had been shot through the head as they lay side by side on a bed. Crosby's left arm encircled Mrs. Bigelow's neck and his right hand clutched a small automatic pistol.

Mrs Bigelow's body was claimed by a cousin, Wright Ludington, of Philadelphia, an undertaker, acting for her husband, Arthur Bigelow, of Boston, removed it to the home of an aunt, Katherine Ludington, in West 10th street.

Crosby's window, Mrs. Caresse Crosby, living at the Savoy-Plaza hotel, ordered an undertaker to claim her husband's body.

ADDITIONAL TAX CUT PROPOSED IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—Additional tax reduction in the form of a permanent cut from 12 and one half to ten per cent in the capital gains and loss tax was proposed today by Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, as an amendment to the pending resolution for a $160,000,000 slash on income taxes due next year.

The resolution will be brought up on Friday in the senate with indications pointing to early adoption. Hoping to obtain action on the resolution in the form it passed the house, senate leaders held out little hope tonight for the Couzens proposal.

The resolution provides for slashing one per cent off existing rate on the individual and corporation levies. The cut would apply to incomes of this calendar year.

Discussing his amendment, Senator Couzens, who is a member of the finance committee, explained that it would not go into effect until next year and would have no effect on the 1930 income of the treasury.

CONDITIONS THROUGHOUT HAITI ARE UNCHANGED

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Conditions throughout Haiti were unchanged today with no report of any conflict anywhere in the interior. Official reports to the office of Colonel Richard Cutts, commander of the Marine Corps brigade, this afternoon said that 175 national guard outposts had reported that all was quiet and the population calm.

Colonel Frank Evans, commanding the marine gendarmes here, said he expected the 9 p. m. curfew law to continue in effect until early next week.

President Louis Borno this morning received a detailed report of the clash last week at Aux Cayes between marines and natives, the report said six Haitians were killed outright by machine gun fire of the marines and that four died later in the hospital from wounds. It gave the total number of wounded as thirty.

NEW AIR MAIL ROUTES APPROVED YESTERDAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—Air mail routes from Atlanta, Ga., to Los Angeles, Louisville, Ky., to Dallas and Fort Worth, and from New York to St. Louis, were approved today by the Interdepartment committee on airways.

Assistant Postmaster General Glover announced bids for transportation of the air mail would be invited shortly but no date has been fixed for those opening as the proposed lines must be lighted by the commerce department.

ADDITIONAL FUNDS NEEDED BY LOCAL WELFARE BUREAU

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 11.—The need of additional funds at this time when there exist several definite avenues for its expenditure along worthy lines was disclosed at the quarterly meeting of the directors of the Welfare bureau. Secretary Miss Elizabeth P. Anderson reported much illness and many cases of unemployment that in some cases were working much hardship among families. It was pointed out that the bureau was helpless to lend assistance without public aid. The statistical reports of the secretary showed that there were 312 office calls during the quarter, 296 telephone calls and 249 home visits. A considerable increase in calls for relief was noted during the period. Aside from this work many interviews were made for other organizations, and several friendly visits served to help solve home problems. There were a few Travelers' Aid cases and the usual court cases.

Despite the meager financial fund the directors went ahead with plans for the annual Christmas party which has come to be a much-looked for event by many children. The Christmas tree party will be held in the town hall Tuesday, December 24, and it is hoped to have sufficient funds on hand at this time to make the usual gifts to the youngsters who attend.

SEVERAL CASES SETTLED AT COURT SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 11.—The case of George J. Rood of Windham Center versus Jacob Starr of North Windham, a suit for damages of $2,750 involved in the moving of a store owned by Starr, was completed during the forenoon of today's session of the Windham county superior court. Judge Edward M. Yeomans ordered the attorneys, Samuel B. Harvey and John H. King, representing the plaintiff and defendant, respectively, to file briefs within two weeks. The concluding testimony taken in the case today was brief. Rood testified that he had done a first-class job in moving the building, and that Starr had found no fault with the work at the time. Additional witnesses for the plaintiff called today were: Adam Larrabee, Theron E. Palmer of Windham Center, Richard E. Wright of North Windham, Henry Richardson of North Windham, Myron Lyons of Mansfield, and Elsworth Weeks, also of North Windham. The counter-claim by Starr is that Rood used faulty shoring and timbering methods in moving the store building, thereby damaging the structure to a considerable extent. He testified he had paid Rood over $300 by check, cash, groceries and gasoline.

Owing to a misunderstanding between the attorneys, the case of Samuel Spector vs. Blanchette & Blanchette was not completed today and was re-assigned for trial after the short calendar session in this city next Friday. The action is one of long standing and involves the purchase by Blanchette & Blanchette from Spector of a Ford motor for $35. The only witness heard today was Rudolph H. Miller of Springfield, Mass., who testified for the defendant concern. Miller was baker-manager of the firm at the time and he testified that the purchase was made on condition that the motor meet with the approval of the firm. He said that the expense for repairs was more than the original price of the motor which was found to be in poor condition and had to be subjected to two or three days of overhauling. The motor was run for nine or ten days and then returned. In the lower court, Justice of the Peace Frank H. Ross found for the defendant with costs but the plaintiff appealed.

A settlement was announced in the case of Fred Gee versus Noel A. Millette. The case of the Willimantic Savings Institute versus Zenowitz, admr., et al, was ordered to go off the calendar and the case of Joseph Bosse versus the Hurteau-Bosse Corp., is to be arranged for assignment later.

Cases listed for the short calendar session to be held here Friday morning at 10 o'clock are Joseph F. Coombs vs. Herbert L. Fortune et als; Joseph F. Coombs vs. Herbert L. Fortune et als; Samuel B. Harvey vs. Ruel M. Hide et al; Max Lehrman vs. Sadie Rosenthal et als; Mary Kasmerczak vs. Joseph Zaklukiewicz et al; Burton M. Welch vs. George E. Lummis; John H. Hambly et als vs. Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing company; Gregory Swelki vs. Byron M. Lewis; Paul Locrasto vs. Jennie M. Farnum, admr.; Vina B. Franklin vs. Edward Langford, Josephine Langford and Anthony K. Mazall. Other cases are to be assigned for trial at that time.

Court adjourned today until 10 o'clock Thursday at Putnam when six court cases will be taken up.

The following cases are on the trial list for assignment at Willimantic Friday, December 13: Franklin D. Romen vs. Paul D. Yakvolev; W. D. Freyberger vs. Bowie Bros.; Chauncey E. DANIELSON

LARGE NUMBER PAY FINAL TRIBUTE TO MRS. CHAGNON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 11.—This morning one of the largest funeral congregations ever assembled there attended the solemn high mass at the Sacred Heart church in Wauregan for Mrs. Hermanie Chagnon, who died Sunday, and who both in point of years and residence was one of the oldest of the community's people.

Included in the congregation attending the mass, at 10 o'clock were approximately a score of priests, largely from eastern Connecticut parishes, and delegations of Sisters of the Holy Ghost from convents in Wauregan, Moosup, Jewett City, Plainfield and Putnam, paying memorial honor to one who was mother of a priest and mother of a nun.

Rev. Henry F. Chagnon, curate at All Hallows' church, Moosup, and son of the deceased, was celebrant of the mass, with Rev. J. C. Mathieu, a former pastor at Wauregan, now pastor at North Grosvenordale, as deacon, and Rev. J. H. Quinn, now pastor at Wauregan, as sub-deacon. Rev. Henri Chabot of Hartford, whose parental home is in Wauregan, was master of ceremonies.

The music of the mass, a Gregorian requiem, was sung by Joseph Rivard, Michael Magnan, Frederick Gagnon, all of Putnam, and Ovila Guertin of Wauregan, with Mrs. A. Lauron of Putnam, organist and offertory soloist.

Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery, the committal service conducted by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church at Putnam, and formerly in charge of the Sacred Heart parish in Wauregan. The bearers were Joseph Messier, Alfred Messier, George Messier, George Desmaris, Jeremiah Desmaris and Samuel Therian. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements. The floral remembrances were beautiful.

In addition to the priests heretofore mentioned in connection with the services the following were in attendance: Rev. W. A. Keefe, Greeneville; Rev. Edward J. Quinn, Norwich Town; Rev. Nicholas Caron, Jewett City; Rev. J. H. Carey, Voluntown; Rev. P. L. Massicot, Moosup; Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S., Danielson; Rev. Fr. Ladoucer, Danielson; Rev. Ignatius Kost, Dayville; Rev. Leo Lavalle, North Grosvenordale; Rev. J. J. Pappilon, Rev. Harmidos Belac, Rev. Edward Mathieu, all of Willimantic; Rev. Urban Laurion, Hartford; Rev. Donat Jette and Rev. Omer Mandler, both of Taftville, and Rev. Adelard Jalbert, Baltic.

Last evening at the annual meeting of the Snake Meadow Club, Inc., the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Charles A. Tillinghast; vice-president, Dr. F. P. Todd; secretary-treasurer, Francis E. Storer; directors, A. T. Sisson, Providence, Charles E. Franklin, Dr. F. P. Todd, John B. Bassett, E. A. Sullivan, Francis E. Storer; improvement committee, A. T. Sisson, chairman, John B. Bassett, C. E. Franklin; house and grounds committee, A. T. Sisson, Dr. F. P. Todd, J. B. Bassett, C. E. Franklin, E. A. Sullivan; entertainment committee, Jeho Downes, Wauregan, chairman, E. C. Rogers, Putnam, J. B. Bassett, A. T. Sisson and Fred Swan, Wauregan.

Mrs. Agnes H. Paine, directing the sale here this holiday season, said this morning that purchasing of Christmas seals is now a benevolent indulgence of many local people who like to have a part in aiding those afflicted with the great white plague and in assisting the work that aims at the complete eradication of tuberculosis. It is an impressive fact that 8,000 quarts of milk and a great many dozens of eggs were purchased here during the past year for patients out of money coming from the sale of Christmas seals, which are to be had at the postoffice here and also at Dowe's. It is pointed out that the Christmas seals on your holiday mail matter is an evidence of kindliness of heart and sympathy for the afflicted as well as indicating that one is participating in a great humanitarian work.

There was a youthful guest at the noon-day meal at the state police barracks on North Main street today, Peter Hudson, 13, who told the officers he ran away from home in Hartford last Saturday, made his way to his old home city of Providence and was trying to beat his way back to Hartford when he was picked up out of sympathy by Elmer Brindamour of the West Side and delivered at the barracks. Hudson, of Italian descent, says that his people moved from Providence to Hartford about a month ago. He is unfamiliar with the latter city and unable to give his street address. Hartford officers were trying to locate his home this afternoon. Peter said that he has been sleeping in barns and sheds the past few nights, and that meals have been scanty and infrequent. This appeared to be borne out, as to eating, by the manner in which his appetite was working this noon.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill said this afternoon that his questioning of Herbert Parker of Brooklyn in the inquest in the death of Charles Webb of the Allen Hill section of Brooklyn brought forth the statements that Mr. Parker did not see Webb, riding a bicycle in East Brooklyn Thanksgiving eve, until his automobile was about ten feet from Webb and that the accident immediately followed. It was also brought out that the Webb bicycle was equipped at the rear with a properly working headlight and that on the rear of the bicycle was a red reflector. Coroner Bill had not, up to this afternoon, completed his finding in the case.

Max Bretschneider, his leave of absence of four weeks' duration drawing to a close, will leave here Thursday morning to return to Horton, Kansas, where as a mechanical engineer he is in the employ of the Rock Island railroad and making steady advancement in his profession. He has spent practically all of the time he has been in the east visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arndt Bretschneider, of Mechanic street. His work at Horton and along the lines of the Rock Island railroad has largely to do with assembling and equipping oil-gas engines, oil-electric engines and checking on the efficiency performances of steam locomotives.

Mrs. Susan Hopkins, who has a place of business on Center street, is to occupy the home she recently purchased in Dayville.

A light fall of snow in this section during last night raised the total snowfall of December to date to seven inches.

Leslie Murray, who recently completed a course of study in embalming in Boston, was at his home here today after having been in Hartford to take the Connecticut state board examinations for embalmers. At present he is with an undertaking firm in Dorchester.

A considerable number from Danielson were at Wauregan this morning to attend the funeral of Mrs. Hermanie Chagnon, who died Sunday.

The Tri-Y, a non-sectarian group of high school girls, has presented the Westfield Congregational church with a beautiful picture, which has been placed in the assembly room of the parish house. The gift was made by the girls in appreciation of the use of church property for their meetings.

Danielson has a World war veteran who served overseas. The situation in which he finds himself is much the same as that of a man without a country. While his home was here he enlisted as a volunteer in Providence. Since then Rhode Island has denied him a state bonus, on the ground that he is a Connecticut man, and Connecticut has denied him one of its service medals because he is officially credited by the war department to Rhode Island.

This community's business section strutted its holiday dress tonight for the first time during the Christmas season. At dusk tonight the long lines of colored electric lights that will enliven the business section until Jan. 2, were turned on and added a pretty touch to a season intended for happiness.

PLAINFIELD

"Forest Acres" a three-act comedy is to be presented by a cast of thirteen local players: Lemuel Crockett, Elmer Greene; Mrs. Lemuel Crockett, Mrs. Fred Lyon; Elizbeth Crockett, Mrs. Cecil Butler; Hepsibahhad, Mrs. Elmer Greene; Franklyn Arthur, Mr. Ralph Hopkins; Miss Lucy Ruggles, Mrs. Ernest Buell; Evelyn Newcomb, Mrs. Joseph Herbert; Andy Hobbs, Mr. Cecil Butler, Mr. Buxley, William Hall; Elsie Buxby, Mrs. George Dawley; Constance Loring, Bessie Condon; Nora, Mrs. Robert Generous. This is the first play to be given by the new Dramatic club and the proceeds will be for the First Congregational church.

Mr. and Mrs. Jason Lathrop returned home Sunday after a trip to the Pacific coast.

NEW NURSES' HOME IS PROPOSED AT HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 11—Before many months will have passed the executive board of the Day Kimball hospital is to provide a home for the members of the nursing staff. The home will be attached to the institution located on the western outskirts of the city. Alexander Gilman, a member of the board of trustees and well known Putnam business man said this afternoon that plans for the construction of the proposed home are now under consideration. While elementary technical work is underway, Mr. Gilman said that nothing definite in regards to the date of construction has been reached, since the project is a major one and will require weeks of contemplation before any building proceedings can be gotten underway.

TETREAULT APPEAL UP FOR TRIAL TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 11—With the assignment for trial in superior court in this city Thursday of Dr. Philias Tetreault's appeal from the state board of health's suspension to practice medicine in this state, it was expected tonight that wide interest would be manifest in the case that has been hanging in the courts since February 1, 1924. Tetreault is a well known physician in this city with a large practice. On the date mentioned Dr. Tetreault's license to practice his profession was revoked by the state department of health, following investigations of the eclectic board whose actions against the Putnam doctor were taken because of his attendance at the Middlesex College of Physicians and Surgeons. Dr. Tetreault at once resorted to legal procedure taking an appeal. He has continued his practice since that date and has come to be recognized throughout the county in administering his profession. Judge Edward M. Yeomans of Danbury will preside at the hearing, to be taken up following the opening ceremonies of court at 10 o'clock.

Other cases which are destined to occupy the spotlight in Thursday's superior court session in this city are the actions of Mrs. Daisy P. Bosworth of Pomfret against her husband Burton Bosworth of Pomfret in which a divorce and a large amount of alimony is being sought by the estranged wife, and that of Camille Laflamme vs. Cleophus Laflamme of North Grosvenordale. Six other cases have been assigned for trial, according to an announcement made today by the clerk of superior court.

Frank J. Barber of Springfield, Mass., an official of the Junior Achievement league, organized 10 years ago in that city, was the speaker at Wednesday's meeting of the Putnam Rotary club. Mr. Barber spoke interestingly on the development of the boys and girls society during the past decade. It was instituted in Springfield with its underlying purpose being to direct the surplus energy of children to keep them active and interested in work. The organization of clubs is built on the principle of constructive and productive work, through which the child is taught the value of things in money and the value of life and themselves. The objectives sponsored by this New England institution assists many of its members in choosing a life work which will be fruitful and wholesome, Mr. Barber said. At the present the Junior Achievement society is a child's stronghold consisting of 1,000 clubs and a membership of between 10,000 and 15,000 in New England, the speaker intimated during his address. Mr. Barber was well received by local Rotarians who are carrying out the speaker's objective sfor children in this city on a reduced scale.

At the business session of Rotary, presided over by President Subbo Nickcloff, committees reported that a community Christmas tree to be erected in Union Square will be sponsored by the club in cooperation with the Putnam plant of the Connecticut Light and Power company. The latter will furnish equipment and power for the illumination of the tree. Another commendable work of the Rotary club along community welfare lines was the announcement today that needy children bereabouts will be endowed with shoes at Christmas time.

Visitors at today's luncheon were Van Thompson of Danielson and Arthur Kay of Webster.

With the announcement in the Bulletin this morning of the death of Rev. William Beach Olmsted, headmaster of Pomfret school at Pomfret, who died early Tuesday evening, many friends and acquaintances of the Pomfret clergyman and educator who reside in this city felt the loss of a man whose valuable services in the past quarter of a century have been impartially bestowed here as well as in the adjoining community of Pomfret. Rev. Mr. Olmsted possessed a wide circle of friends in this city and was a frequent visitor here.

A death in this city today was that of Mrs. Rosanna Gilman, a life long resident of this city, who died this morning at her home on Providence street after a protracted illness. Mrs. Gilman was 82 years of age. For a number of years she was employed at the tailor shop of P. Simon on Canal street where she worked as an expert seamstress. Her husband Eugene Gilman, a brother of Alexander Gilman, died a few years ago.

With the city election entered in the annals of municipal history and the ward aldermen awaiting the first council meeting of the year when they will assume the responsibilities of their office, rumors of changes in the various city departments have become current. Officials of the city departments are subject to re-appointment at the first meeting of the new governing body in January. No official word has come as yet that would indicate that any drastic changes will be made in the public service branches of city government nor has there been any statements issued that will insure the re-appointment of officers now performing municipal duties.

The police department, from the captain down to special patrolmen, according to city charter is to experience the ordeal of being re-appointed to office. This is likewise true of executive heads of the fire department and city clerk. Rumors which have gained currency during the past week purport that a few citizens have declared themselves to be candidates for appointment to office as the eve of the initial gathering of the new administration looms up. In the past such rumors of shakeups have always passed over like a windstorm, but the fact that several new aldermen have been elected to office has increased the feeling of uneasiness among city servants who will not know their fate until after the first meeting.

It was learned today that a slight improvement has been noted in the condition of Dr. Edward F. Perry of this city, who is a patient at a private hospital in Hartford. During the last week Dr. Perry's condition had been unchanged and today's report will prove to be of interest to his many friends in this section of the county where he is widely known.

Mrs. Addie H. Parks, matron of the Windham county temporary home in the Sawyer district is seriously ill with pneumonia and her condition came to be regarded as extremely critical tonight, when physicians attending advised that a specialist be consulted. Mrs. Parks is known throughout Windham county for her motherly affections towards the youthful inmates of the home who have come to know her as "Mother Parks."

Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett of Main street and Mrs. E. L. Beebe of Whittemore street were in Worcester today.

William T. Jones, wife chief at the local telephone exchange was in Hartford today on business.

William Valentine of Pomfret, an agriculturalist, has been re-elected presiding secretary of the Connecticut Vegetable Growers association.

Delma Fish, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Fish of Woodstock avenue is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital where he is suffering with a compound fracture of the leg. The youth was injured yesterday in a coasting accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy W. Thompson who were married in this city Saturday have taken up their residence in Long Island, N. Y. Mrs. Thompson was before her marriage, Miss Elizabeth Moras of Bradley street.

JEWETT CITY

BOTANISTS INTERESTED IN GRAVES COLLECTION

Local amateur botanists are pleased to learn that Dr. Charles B. Graves, of New London, has presented Connecticut College for Women a collection of nearly 5,000 specimens of plants, native to the southeastern portion of this state. The collection comprises flowering plants, ferns and fernallies and is preserved in five large cases. The botanical department will house the gift.

Dr. Graves, for more than 20 years, has been the local flower lovers' referee. Whenever the finds of local flora have proven beyond amateur knowledge, which has many times been the case, Dr. Graves has never failed to furnish identification, often with the inquiry where and when and by whom the specimen was found. If the college permits the privilege, a party from Jewett City will go to New London to see the collection. Two hundred eighty-five wild flowers and shrubs have been found to blossom in Griswold.

As the houses in the borough have notifying the telephone exchange of been renumbered recently several are the change, so that in the new directory, soon to obe issued, the street address will be correct. Since the new numbers have been placed on the houses, a woman from out of the borough, walked the length of Main street trying to locate a house by the address she had taken from the telephone directory now in use. Unless these numbers are changed in the directory, it would be difficult for the telephone trouble-men to locate a house where repairs may be needed. According to the notice published in Wednesday's paper, the company should be notified of any change very soon, in order to have new addresses published in the new directory.

Heard Talk on England

At the meeting of Dorcas Circle of The King's Daughters held at Mrs J. W. Carter's Tuesday evening, the delightful part of the program was the account Mrs. Carter gave so very vividly of her recent visit to her former home in England. Adding much to the interest were the numerous pictures she had brought back, as well as pictures and curios given her by her sister who lives in Cape Town, Africa, and whom she met in England after twenty-five years' absence. Reports of work done and in process of doing were given, many Thanksgiving remembrances having been sent, gay picture books being made to be sent to the Children's Aid society and gifts being prepared for Seaside sanitorium. A quilt is ready for sale, and the Tuberculosis Christmas seals are being sold under the auspices of the circle. A nominating committee was appointed by the drawing of names and is Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, Mrs. F. I. Ray and Mrs. Albert Harris.

Held Christmas Party

The World Wide Guild girls held their annual Christmas party in the Baptist vestry Tuesday evening, fifteen being present. The vice president Ruby Gray presided at the business meeting in the absence of the president, Winifred Scates, who was ill. A Christmas tree with gifts for each one afforded much amusement. Sandwiches, pickles, potato chips, cake, candy, candied grape fruit peel and hot chocolate were served. Mrs. R. A. Wilbur assisted by Mrs. Samuel Cathcart, Jr., was in charge of the arrangements for the party.

STATE OFFICERS VISIT LOCAL D. A. R. CHAPTER

The December meeting of Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., was held at the home of Mrs. John Post, Wednesday afternoon. The business meeting was preceded by a luncheon at one o'clock, the guests of honor being the state regent Miss Katharine Arnold Nettleton of Derby, and Miss Katharine Matthies, state chairman of Better Films.

The hostesses, Mrs. Post, Mrs. Wallace H. Payne and Mrs. Henry E. Olson served the following menu: Cream of asparagus soup, shrimp patties, peas, potato chips, tomato and lettuce salad, olives, stuffed celery, rolls, fruit ambrosia with whipped cream, macaroons and lady fingers, coffee, candy. At the close of the luncheon the meeting was called to order by the regent, Mrs. Charles E. Spicer. The December message of the president-general of the National society was read by Mrs. B. A. Faust. Letters of appreciation for materials sent to Ellis Island were read. Through the cooperation of the Silberman Furniture Co., of Norwich, the chapter was able to purchase and ship a sewing machine to Ellis Island.

The program of the afternoon opened with two vocal solos by Mrs. Helena M. T. Church, of Norwich, "The Old Fashioned Town" and "Just Lazin' Along." Mrs. Spicer presented Miss Matthies, who spoke of the Better Films service which the D. A. R. is rendering. Believing in 'Selection, Not Censorship" for the motion picture and that in no way can patriotism and history be more effectively taught than by the silver screen, the society has worked for the past three years with The Open Door of Public Relations department of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., and has put out this year 18 flag trailers. These may be had for local use simply by paying return postage. The local chapter owns one of these flag trailers which has been shown in the local theatre through the courtesy of Manager John Barnett.

Mrs. Church again sang "Grandma" and "That's All." Mrs. Spicer then presented the state regent, Miss Nettleton. She called attention to the fact that the society was 39 years old. It has grown from 18 members at organization to a present membership of 170,395 in 2,341 chapters. In Connecticut there are 53 chapters.

From the beginning the founders had a vision of what they wanted to do but the accomplishments have been far greater than any of their dreams. She spoke of Continental hall and the beautiful new auditorium recently dedicated. So perfect are the acoustics that a woman's voice can be heard in the farthest corner without an amplifier, Miss Nettleton reminded her hearers that the daughters "are banded together for home and country and it must pass on to others the enthusiasm, and ideals which have been handed to us by those patriotic women who founded the national society. Various phrases of work emphasized by Miss Nettleton were: National Defense. The daughters did not wish war but they believed in the support of adequate national defense.

Americanism. Under this heading two lines are being stressed this year: help for the International college at Springfield, Mass., where representatives of all nationalities are being trained to work among their own people and the foundation of sons and daughters of the republic clubs. Any boy or girl nine years of age, regardless of ancestry, race or creed is eligible to membership. The object of these clubs is to study national, state and municipal governments and the practice of patriotism and good citizenship. In closing Miss Nettleton quoted from the constitution of the national society as our aim, to cherish, maintain and extend the institutions of American freedom, to foster true patriotism and love of country, and to aid in securing for mankind all the blessings of liberty. The program closed with another selection by Mrs. Church, "Sweetest Story Ever Told." Mrs. Church possesses a voice of rare charm and her selections received spontaneous applause. She was ably accompanied by Mrs. E. E. Gilbert.

A rising vote of thanks was given the guests who brought such helpful and inspiring messages and entertained with song. The decorations were red carnations, the gift of Miss Mary M. Partridge, of Hartford, in memory of her mother, Mrs. Hannah Partridge, first regent of Anne Brewster Fanning chapter.

GRUNDY'S APPOINTMENT

If Senator Nye thought that he could frighten Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania and prevent him from carrying out his intentions relative to the appointment of a senator from the Keystone state to take the seat which the senate would not permit William S. Vare to occupy, he has an opportunity to consider his words in vain.

The North Dakota senator made it clear that should Joseph R. Grundy be named by the governor of Pennsylvania he would not support him and he gave the impression that such an appointment would fail of approval. He voiced his objection against the political faction in Pennsylvania to which he claimed Mr. Grundy belonged and indicated that if for no other reason his politics might be the ground for denying him entrance into the senate.

The unjustified action of the senate in denying a seat to the man selected by the voters of Pennsylvania to represent them in the upper house of congress may have created the idea in the mind of the western senator that the combination of democrats and insurgents could do anything it pleased, right or wrong, so long as it suited its fancy, but when any threat or any attempt is made to keep a duly-appointed senator out of his seat because of political affiliations which do not please certain members of that body it discloses a condition which presents a sad picture.

Governor Fisher has seen fit to name Joseph R. Grundy to fill the vacancy caused by the refusal of the senate to seat Mr. Vare. He will go to Washington with full credentials to occupy the seat until his successor is elected. He is named in the manner provided by law and his appointment should be accepted. Mr. Grundy is a well-to-do manufacturer. He is a protectionist. He has labored before congress in behalf of tariff schedules at his own expense and he has unquestionably been able to accomplish much for his state and others. He knows his tariff and it is not surprising that the governor of Pennsylvania believes he is a man needed to represent that state in the senate.

Having deprived Pennsylvania for three years of half the representation it is entitled to, it is time for the senate to show that it is not influenced by any such arrogant attitude as has been attributed to Senator Nye. It is for a state, not the senate, to say who shall represent it as a senator.

THE WORLD COURT

The idea of settling international disputes in the manner which might be employed in adjusting civil claims is one that has long been advocated in this country. There has been objection raised to rushing into war, and rightly so, when peaceful methods might be employed.

It was as the result of such agitation that the idea of an international court of justice was developed. That we should be interested in such a plan was inevitable and yet when the time came to adhering to the provisions governing such a court there was objection. This was so strong that we could not join. Reservations were set up by the United States senate setting forth the terms under which we would join. Those reservations established such safeguards as were considered advisable.

In order to work out a thorough understanding regarding those reservations, Elihu Root was sent to confer with representatives of the other countries with the result that protocols were drawn up under which United States membership would be possible. Naturally, it was desired that this country should join the court and Secretary Stimson in his report to the president sets forth that the objections raised by this country have been met and proper safeguards have been established.

Under these conditions, President Hoover authorized the signing, at Geneva, of the statute and protocols by this country's representative. Once again our entrance into the court depends upon ratification by the United States senate. Although the requirements set forth by that body nearly four years ago have been met there are indications that there will be opposition to ratification. How strong that will be remains to be seen. There are certain irreconcilables who probably never approved the reservations and are adamant against entrance under any terms. It can be expected that they will make as hard a fight as possible and strive to prevent ratification as well as use that matter to delay other legislation, but it is believed that the sentiment of the country is for ratification and entrance into the court. Let the protocols be scrutinized as carefully as possible for any defects but, with that accomplished and no good reason for withholding approval found, let ratification proceed apace.

LINDSEY'S DISBARMENT

Judge Lindsey of Denver is a reformer, one who has proceeded along lines which are bound to create strenuous opposition. He has been able to get much support for the views he has advanced and his work in connection with the juvenile court has not only gained widespread attention but it has often been held up as an example. Likewise, there are those who have been won over to his advocacy of companionate marriage.

When it comes to putting forth his views and advocating his reforms he has a right to his ideas, radical though they may be. But when it comes to going off on a tangent in regard to his professional conduct it is a different matter.

Judge Lindsey was charged with professional misconduct in accepting fees while judge from Mrs. Helen E. Stokes and her attorney in connection with a case in which she was seeking to establish the rights of her two children for an estate settlement. There was no denial of the fact that the money was paid to him but the claim was that he had a right to take it. The result was that his disbarment was sought. It was carried to the supreme court of Colorado with the result that that court was unanimous in its decision that he should be disbarred.

The answer of Judge Lindsey to the decision is that he was unjustly treated and that the action was the result of political persecution. That indicates an unwillingness to accept the decision that he had misconducted himself professionally and amounts to the same thing as saying that the highest court in that state had not given him a fair hearing. Just how far he can expect any such attitude to be accepted is a question. Friends may be inclined to sympathize with him but they will be reluctant to accept the view that a state's supreme court had joined a conspiracy to injure him.

However many enemies he may have, there will have to be something far more convincing than his statements to create the belief that he couldn't get a fair hearing before the courts of that state. That method of trying to throw off the effect of his disbarment will not carry much weight.

THE AUBURN OUTBREAK

For the second time within a few months New York has experienced a desperate prison riot. The object of the convicts has been to gain their freedom and they have indicated their willingness to take as many lives as were necessary to accomplish it.

Whatever may have been the effect of the investigation that followed the first one it is evident that it did not establish conditions that were sufficient to prevent the second. At Auburn prison long-term convicts were able to obtain firearms with which to carry out their threats of killing the warden and guards of the prison if their demands were not met. This indicates laxity of a serious character somewhere.

On the part of the authorities there was no disposition to compromise with the convicts. That was in accord with the general sentiment of the public in that vicinity, if we can judge by the reports that armed citizens in large numbers occupied the territory surrounding the prison to guard against the escape of the prisoners. Through methods employed the situation was brought under control but it is inevitable that there should be a demand that such situations should not be allowed to develop.

If it is the fault of the prison system that is responsible for such outbreaks New York should hasten to find it out. If that state isn't able to control its convicts so as to prevent desperate characters from taking command of its prisons it has a problem to solve.

If these revolts are the result of bad management and so much leniency that the protection of the general public is neglected they should be valuable lessons to the Empire state. They show what can be accomplished when there are enough desperate characters within and enough friends aiding them from the outside.

YOUR HELP IS NEEDED

These many deaths which occur each year from tuberculosis are reminder enough of the need of the assistance that can be given through your purchase of Christmas seals.

It is not claimed that, through the aid that might be rendered by the funds provided from the sale of the seals, all these deaths could be prevented, but it is true that a harder fight could be made against the ravages of the white plague. It would be possible to furnish treatment for many who are unable to get it otherwise and it would be possible to set up the many safeguards that are of the greatest importance in checking the advance of the disease. Likewise it would contribute greatly to that equally important preventive work.

Individually we may not know where our dollars could be put to the best use in this direction, but through the organization that is carrying on this work they are put where they will be effective and, for the most part, locally.

The purchase of these Christmas seals involves no great burden for anyone. Because of that there is an opportunity for everyone to participate and through contributions, large or small, not only insure the continuance of a most valuable work but to aid in increasing it. Until such a time comes as those directing such a fund declare they have more than enough to meet the local requirements there should be an effort made to exceed the purchases of the previous year. This will not only indicate the response of a growing community but of a growing sentiment to aid those afflicted in the various stages and to better protect the health of the community.

You can make good use of the seals and the anti-tuberculosis organization can make better use of your dollars.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Once more, and just for this week, Friday the 13th is back with us again.

Christmas shopping is something which cannot be put off indefinitely.

The man on the corner says: Many seek but few find that place where there is absolute freedom.

It might be interesting to keep a record of the coasting accidents for the winter.

KNOWING PEOPLE

"I beg your pardon," murmured Patty, dropping the can of peas. "I beg your pardon," echoed the wistful little person behind the bag of celery and things, relinquishing the same can of peas. Patty laughed merrily. The wistful little person managed a puckered smile.

"It looks like you were going to have company," Patty tried not to sound envious. She was going to eat alone again tonight. Grilled bacon, crisp lettuce, ruddy tomatoes, of course. But alone.

The wistful little person rested her bag on the edge of the cookie counter and sighed. "Yes. I am—but——" And then, as though the flood gates of silence had suddenly opened, she burst into words. "My husband's employer is coming to dinner. And I just know he is going to be bored to death. I did so want to make an impression—as though we knew lots of people and had lots of fun. I did so want to ask some girl to make at a foursome—but I don't know a single person in Chicago except my husband."

"O-o-o-h. It was a sympathetic little coo of complete understanding. "Well, of course," said Patty, weighing her words carefully, "I do know some people in Chicago——" The girl behind the celery and things leaned forward suddenly.

"I just have to have some one—could—you would you—come?" Patty gasped.

"I really do know who you are—at least I know you live in our apartment building. I have seen you dashing off to work in the morning in that jaunty red jacket while I was waving good-bye to Bill. You see, Bill's boss lives at a big hotel. He knows people and goes places, and I just can't bear to have him think we hole up in our apartment night after night because we don't know a soul in the city. It will make such a difference for Bill if Mr. Keith thinks he has social contacts. Could you do it?"

Vistas of snowy linen, crystal, silver, faces, friendliness, swept before Patty—and left a bleak momentary memory of a breakfast nook, one cup, one plate, one person.

"I should love to," said Patty. Poised in their mutual corridor, the girl caught Patty's hand. "I am Ruth Brown. My husband is Bill. I am going to wear rose crepe."

"I am Patty Western. Would buttercup organdie be all right?" And after their doors had closed their happy laughter hovered in the solemn hall.

At 6:31 Patty, a slender, eager jonquil, put a pink finger on the bell marked Brown. Quick arms drew her into the tiny hall and in the wake of gay laughter she was borne into the living room.

"Bill, you remember Patty Western—she came east to our wedding." Across the room a big good-looking youth gulped and held out a hand that wabbled slightly.

"Of course I do. So glad to have you with us—Patty."

"And may I present Mr. Keith?" Patty lifted eager eyes to meet the friendly smile of the fourth guest. "Yes," Patty catalogued mentally. "He has the assurance of social position. He will be nice to me this evening—then go dancing with North Shore debs and forget even my name. Oh well; tonight is tonight." In the momentary pause of bouillon, Ruth turned to Patty.

"Have you seen the Wentworths lately?" Bill looked startled. But not Patty.

"Yes, indeed. I spent a heavenly week-end with them. You knew, of course, that Hazel is going abroad and Bob will join her in Naples for the holidays?" Paty and Ruth warmed to their task, and as roast succeeded bouillon, and then came salad, there passed in review an endless parade of people who wrote plays, drove high-powered cars, lived here and there on the continent, owned hunting lodges in the north woods and castles in England.

Now and again Bill and Mr. Keith got a chance at baseball, business or golf, or all four met momentarily on the common ground of shows or politics. But at the first sign of flagging conversation Patty and Ruth leaped to the rescue and gave birth to a fascinating panorama of friends

As the Brown's door closed on their final farewells Mr. Keith turned eagerly to Patty.

"You will never know how wonderful this evening has been to me," he exclaimed. "My firm sent me to Chicago on a moment's notice and I guess there isn't a man in the city who knows fewer people. You cannot appreciate what it means to me to meet the Browns—and you—people who know people."—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Now that he has hopped to both poles and also spanned the Atlantic by air what new fields of aviation pioneer work remain for Dick Byrd to conquer?

There is the Pacific, of course. It still offers inducements to adventurous spirits like Byrd.

And having talked much with the commander back in the days when he was at the navy department working up details of his north pole flight, the Bystander is satisfied that Dick Byrd between times, is thinking over that very question of what to do next.

The restless spirit of energy is in his blood and bones. In his case, however, it is controlled by an urge to do the job right, to organize against every possibility of the projected dash; and to seek for scientific advancement as well as aviation fame.

And it is an dd commentary on the way things go that all of these Byrd flights were projected, organized and put through by a man who had been found physically unfit to continue as an officer of the regular naval service!

If Byrd, suffering under any sort of physical handicap, can do all this, what would a physically perfect Byrd have done? Imagination staggers at the prospect. He might have reached the moon.

Same Sniff

The Bystander recalls with some distaste having foregathered with a group of service aviators just after Byrd's north pole experience and heard them sniff at him as a pilot.

Just what kind of a flier he may be, the Bystander does not know. Nor does it seem important. The real acomplishment of Byrd in any one of his ventures was the promotion of the plan and the organization of the expedition.

He has a genius for that—and apparently for finding able pilots to steer the ship where he wants to go, supremely confident in Dick Byrd's leadership and judgment.

If his relations with these fellow adventurers remain now as they were back in the north pole flight days, there is real affection between them, a feeling that makes nothing of differences of military rank or social position. And that alone is a highly valuable asset for the success of any Byrd enterprise.

No Argument

Incidentally, the Bystander was amused by a London news report saying that while Downing street had taken necessary precautions toward reasserting claims to territorial discoveries at the south pole founded on the work of British tourists in that region, no popular agitation over possible conflicts on that score was to be expected.

Of course not. What man-in-the-street is going to worry about territorial boundaries in either the north or south polar regions? Who wants to go there to settle anyhow?

There was some gossip in diplomatic quarters that a Japanese ex-navy officer of considerable personal wealth might have set up discovery claims in the south pole area.

Inquiry at the state department failed to disclose that any word of this had reached American authorities, however. In fact, available official records failed to show actual Japanese penetration of the polar zone.

But territorial claims at either the top or bottom of the world ought to be about the easiest thing imaginable to arbitrate. Who can get "het up" over 'em?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Overstepped Law During License System

Mr. Editor: Just a word of encouragement to those who, like Mr. Shaw, whose letter was published in today's Bulletin, are fearful concerning the future of our country, because lawlessness seems so rampant just at the present time. Let them recall how, in the days of the license system, liquor sellers were continually overstepping the law. If they think there is less bootlegging where limited amounts of liquor are sold, let them investigate concerning the lawlessness in Canada.

A law for prohibition of the liquor traffic was petitioned for many years ago, but it was not until just before our boys went to the World war that the congressmen were elected, who put the measure through. There are many people who still consider it one of the best laws that was ever passed.

To enforce this law is not to put our country in the hands of bootleggers; but to make it legal for the coming generation to acquire a taste for more than 1-2 of 1 per cent and so gradually to require something stronger, so that the multitude are rebellious instead of the daring few, would be a highway toward that goal.

Such a calamity need never happen, if those who know what is just and right will stand by their convictions. Yes, there are thousands, and we hope millions, who have not bowed the knee to Baal, and will help to keep our country safe.

Horned Larks

Mr. Editor: A short time ago there appeared in your columns an article dealing with bird life, more especially horned larks. The information given was correct but rather general. I am enclosing the body of a hornet lark which met death by accident. The especial points of interest about this bird are as follows:

1. Long lined toe.
2. Legs round, instead of wedge shaped as is usual with most birds, and covered with scales.
3. Nostrils surrounded by stiff feathers.
4. Last joint of wing shows only nine feathers instead of the usual ten, the 10th being small, almost embryonic in character.
5. The species moults only once a year instead of the usual two times. The ends of the feathers wear off from day to day so the color of the plummage is constantly changing in color. By spring the forehead of this particular bird would have shown a brilliant black.
6. The "horns" on the head.

You may not be interested in all this but the writer of the article may be glad to examine the enclosed specimen.

7. Note the long upper tail coverts. (This bird apparently set the styles for the evening gowns of the present season!)

Yours truly,
EDWARD GOULD ROWLAND, M. D.

YOUR HEALTH

Civilized Man Brushes His Teeth

From Gorgas Memorial Institute
By C. N. Johnson, L. D. S., D. D. S.
Chicago, Illinois

Barbaric man did not brush his teeth; why is civilized man obliged to do it? (That is, he is obliged to do it if he is to save his teeth and to preserve the decencies of modern life.) Simply because barbaric man lived on coarse simple diet that compelled vigorous mastification and this produced friction over the surfaces of the enamel. Stop and think what that means.

1. The teeth get no such scrubbing in our modern methods of mastication, or rather our lack of mastication, and thus if they are to be presentable in appearance they must be brushed to remove the particles of food and other materials that cling to them, causing discoloration and unsightliness. The brushing also prevents the lodgment of foreign matter that brings about decay of the teeth.

2. I many mouth there is a tendency for the accumulation of calcereous deposits on the teeth called tartar, and if this is allowed to remain it encroaches on the gum tissue and irritates it till it becomes absorbed and the teeth loosen. It is estimated that there are most teeth lost from diseases of the supporting structures of the teeth than from the formation of cavities in the teeth themselves.

3. There still remains another factor concerned in our inadequate mastication. The gums, the membranes, and the bone around the roots of the teeth were all built on the principle of receiving usage in the process of mastication, and when this function is not properly performed these structures naturally deteriorate and lose their tone. Any structure that is not used in the reasonable exercise of its normal function begins to atrophy and become useless. A broken arm tied up and kept out of use for a time gets smaller and weaker. Not till function is restored and the arm is exercised does it resume its normal size and efficiency. The same principle holds true of the structures around the teeth, and unless something is done to compensate for the lack of mastication it is only a question of time when deterioration of these tissues takes place.

This is why civilized man must use the toothbrush if he is to keep his teeth, and it is just as important to brush the gums as it is to brush the teeth. They need this massage to take the place of the vigorous friction of food which barbaric man gave them in mastication. But the brush must be used properly or it will do harm. The gums should be brushed toward the teeth, not away from them; that is the upper gums should be brushed downward and the lower gums upward. If the brush is used in this way, the oftener and the more vigorously it is used the better, but if it is used too much in a crosswise manner it will force the gums away from the teeth, and injure them.

Then, a parting word. After you have done your best brushing at least twice day for six months, go to your dentist and have him check up on the results. If you do not have the semi-annual check-up of your mouth you are missing comfort and taking chances, in the long run, of also missing some valuable teeth.

Stories That Recall Others

Complicated

Small Bobby was having difficulty in mastering the use of the word "complicated." He had used it incorrectly several times and it seemed to weigh on his mind. One morning at breakfast he remarked thoughtfully: "Mother, an egg hatches into a chicken and the chicken lays an egg, and I eat the egg. That's complicated, isn't it?"

Strategy.

David had been solicitous of his mother for several days. Hurrying home from school he had insisted that his mother go down town shopping and leave the baby brother to his care. The lad's patience with his non acquiescence mother ceased and he said disconsolately:

"It's going to be a sad Christmas for baby brother if you don't go downtown."

Any COLD

That cold may lead to something serious, if neglected. The time to do something for it is now. Don't wait until it develops into bronchitis. Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin as soon as you feel a cold coming on. Or as soon as possible after it starts. Bayer Aspirin will head off or relieve the aching and feverish feeling—will stop the headache. And if your throat is affected, dissolve two or three tablets in a quarter-glassful of warm water, and gargle. This quickly soothes a sore throat and reduces inflammation and infection. Read proven directions for neuralgia, for rheumatism and other aches and pains. Genuine Bayer Aspirin is harmless to the heart.

OCKOONEFF'S $10,000 SUIT FOR ASSAULT ON TRIAL

Trial was begun in the superior court at New London Wednesday before Judge Earnest C. Simpson and a jury in the $10,000 damage suit of Sol Ockooneff, crippled jeweler of New London, against Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander and Supernumerary Charles White of New London.

The jury consists of the following: New London—Walter D. Beckwith, Harry D. Burdick; Groton—Philip J. Blackert; Stonington—William P. Birdloss, Joseph Leahy; Montville—Frank J. Martin; Ledyard—Herbert G. Crouch; Waterford—Vine W. Starr, George A. Keeney; East Lyme—Thomas J. Hill, Asahel R. DeWolf, Charles J. Luce.

Ockooneff testified to the way he was thrown out of the tax collector's office on July 29 by the supernumerary when Tax Collector Alexander said "throw the dirty kike out." He said he was punched in the eye, his cane was taken away from him and he was thrown to the floor, sustaining injuries for which he had to see a doctor and was in such a nervous state that a doctor attended him for five weeks.

Ockooneff was given a stiff cross examination by Attorney Arthur M. Brown, which went so fast at times that the court stenographer, Mrs. Sadie Machol, threw up her hands in despair at taking the stenographic report.

Attorney Arthur T. Keefe and Leon Beismeim are counsel for the jeweler. The tax collector and the supernumerary have Attorney Brown and Attorney J. James Floyd as counsel.

SHOWED SPORT PICTURES FOR ASSOCIATION MEETING

Members of the Norwich Fish and Game association with a number of visitors from Willimantic enjoyed a showing of motion pictures Wednesday evening at a meeting of the association which was held at the home of President Louis Ortman, 90 Orchard street. The pictures were enjoyed through the courtesy of the National Sportsman's magazine. Frederick Wargo operated the machine and the first reel showed views from the Massachusetts game sanctuary. This was followed by an interesting series of a hunting trip to Canada and the third reel was on Hungarian pheasant shooting in the wheat fields of Alberta, all giving the sportsmen a big thrill as they saw the fine bags of game that could be made in these favored regions.

The concluding pictures were a reel of skeet shooting at the Norwich club, which was shown by Jean Kieffer who had taken the pictures.

Coffee, doughnuts and cider were served and Jan. 24 was set as the date for the next meeting.

BENEFIT CARD PARTY BY B'NAI BRITH AUXILIARY

The hostess, Mrs. Hyman Schwartz, served delicious refreshments after the play.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Joseph F. Tighe

At 8:15 o'clock Wednesday morning, the funeral of Mrs. Joseph F. Tighe was held at her home, No. 424 1-2 Main street, with many relatives and friends present. There was a requiem mass at St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock, Rev. Frederick M. Cohoian, celebrant. Mrs. William Murphy was at the organ and at the offertory Edward T. Connelly sang Pie Jesu, and When Evening Comes as a waiting hymn. Mrs. Murphy played Chopin's Funeral March at the recessional.

The interment was in the family plot in St. Joseph's cemetery and Rev. Fr. Cohoian conducted the committal services. The bearers were Walter W. Nichols, Alexander Taylor, Charles Tighe, Frank Harrington, Charles P. Marsh, and Hugh J. MacDonald. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes. Undertakers Cummings and Ring had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Miss Harriet S. Johnson

The funeral of Miss Harriet S. Johnson, formerly of Norwich, who died Saturday in New London, was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Shiloh Baptist church, New London. The pastor, Rev. Sinclair Grimstead, conducted the services which were attended by many mourning friends.

The body was brought to Norwich for burial about 3:30 in the Almy family plot in Yantic cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Grimstead read the committal service. Norwich friends joined the mourners at the cemetery and there were beautiful flowers from friends in both cities. For over thirty years Miss Johnson had been a devoted nurse and maid in the family of the late Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Ballou Almy, of Washington street, Norwich, and members of the Almy family were among those in attendance at the final rites for this faithful and exceptionally capable woman.

As a result his machine collided with and somewhat damaged the police coupe driven by Officer Clifford Crary.

CAMP PICTURES THRILL BOY SCOUTS WHEN SHOWN AT COURT OF HONOR

"I want to go! I want to go!" could be heard from 60 scouts at the close of the two reels of moving pictures depicting life at the scout camp. The pictures were shown at the close of an entertaining Court of Honor Wednesday evening in the town hall at which many awards were made. The court was marked by a large attendance, more than double that of the previous session, between 200 and 300 persons attending. At 7 o'clock the board of review composed of Frederic H. Cranston, Scoutmaster John Hill, and Howard Ludlow reviewed all second class and first class scouts. At 8 o'clock following assembly, blown by Scout Edward Jordan, bugler of Troop 2, 70 uniformed scouts marched into the hall two abreast behind the American and council flags. While all stood at attention, H. A. Tirrell officially opened the court by lighting the candle, the light standing for a scout's honor, while all scouts repeated the scout oath and law. Presiding at the court were H. A. Tirrell, chairman, F. H. Cranston, President Charles Colt, Dr. R. R. Agnew, Deputy Commissioner William M. Wyman and Scout Executive John L. Sullman.

Following the official opening Scout Executive Sullman called for the candidates for the tenderfoot rank to come forward. Four boys appeared and while a light was passed from candle to candle of 12 scouts serving as witnesses, the candidates gave the 12 scout laws—trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent. Deputy Commissioner Wyman then certified that the boys had been duly examined on all their tests and asked that the court make the award. Frederic H. Cranston conferred the badges. Candidates for the rank of second class scout were then summoned before the court and badges were presented to Millard Mullkin, Lee Quinley, Earl Christianson, Daniel Brennan, of Troop 21, and to Wesley Sholes, Woodrow Sholes, and Elvin Schelin of Troop 9. Mr. Cranston in making the award urged the scouts to become first class scouts and expressed the hope that he would be able to present the higher rank to everyone soon. President Colt presented the first class award to Kenneth Kivlin of Troop 10, pointing out that the entire field of merit badge work was now open to the scout.

Scoutmaster Howard Ludlow newly chosen song leader and yell leader at the Scoutmasters' training course, led scouts and parents in several folk songs accompanied by Miss Ruth Dreschler at the piano

Merit badges in woodwork and leathercraft were awarded Scout Edward Jordan, merit badge in cycling was awarded Scout Nelson Packer who is ill at his home. Luther Packer was given the badge in the absence of his son. Merit badges in athletics, first aid to animals, scholarship, public health, first aid, and personal health were awarded to Scout Edward Lichenstein who at the same time was presented with his Life Scout badge, the highest rank to the coveted Eagle rank. Mr. Tirrell in presenting this badge praised Scout Lichenstein for his effort. Troop charters were presented to Jean Kieffer, troop committeman of Troop 1, and Scoutmaster Howard Ludlow of Troop 8.

President Colt introduced the speaker for the evening as needing no introduction to the boys or parents of Norwich, declaring that Principal Tirrell was probably as well qualified to speak on character as any person in Norwich. Mr. Tirrell gave a talk for the scouts, stressing habits as being the great factor in building character. With many apt illustrations and semi-humorous, semi-serious remarks, Mr. Tirrell held his audience for 15 minutes. On behalf of the scouts Mr. Sellman thanked Mr. Tirrell, declaring that the talk seemed all too short.

Dr. R. R. Agnew, chairman of the camping committee, told of the steps taken in arranging a winter camp at the Hartford council camp. He introduced Arthur Adams, field scout executive and director of the camp, who entertained the scouts and parents with two reels of pictures. Winter camp pictures were especially well received. Mr. Adams assuring the scouts of a big fireplace, warmth, good food, plenty of skating, skiiing, hikinz, games, campfires, test passing, etc. Dr. Agnew called attention to the fact that Scout Executive Sellman would accompany Norwich scouts. Following the pictures the court adjourned.

Among the parents who signed the log of the court for attendance were: Mrs. J. L. Smith and Mrs. Charlotte Powell of Troop 1, Mrs. Bessie V. Ladd and Mrs. M. Hardenbrook of Troop 2, Mrs. J. Mahoney, Mrs. Roderick F. Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnson, Charles V. James, John E. Ready, Mrs. J. R. Bowman, Jr., Harold Lieberman of Troop 5, Mrs. J. Lichenstein, Mrs. Agnes Coughlin of Troop 6, Mrs. Elizabeth Buthiewicz and Cecilia Burron of Troop 7, Mrs. John Hotchkiss of Troop 8, George W. Rathbun, Clarence Sholes of Troop 9, Mr. and Mrs. James Kilvin, of Troop 10, Luther D. Packer, Dorothy Packer, Mrs. Vera H. Manning, Harold L. Edmond, Mrs. H. E. Turner, Mrs. Henry D. Smith of Troop 12, Miss M. Combies, A. Dlysmburg, Providence, R. I., Leslie R. Harris, Olive E. Rathbun, Ruth O. Purvis, Frank W. Clapp, principal of Broadway school, Mrs. C. F. Eastman, Miss M. H. Talcott, Miss Ruth Dreschler, Miss Esther Bonin. Training Course Scout leaders present were: Alexander Ruelke, William M. Wyman, William A. Collins, Franklin Robinson, John W. Hill, Cecil Wetherbee, Howard Ludlow, Robert Burke, H. Downer Johnson, Jr., H. Lloyd Rathbun, Walter P. Weidman, John P. Boldrichini, and Jean Keiffer.

NEEDING LARGER RESPONSE TO SALVATION ARMY APPEAL

According to the experience of the Salvation Army so far this winter, the needy poor who have been helped by the Army far exceed the number helped in the whole of last winter, and the indications are that the Army's aid to bring Christmas cheer to a number of poor families will be needed more than ever.

For that reason Captain Percy Day is hoping for a much greater response than has been received so far to the 1,500 letters he has sent out asking for Christmas gifts and contributions towards the Christmas dinner and winter relief fund. Up to date only 119 people have answered the call.

Captain Day feels that if the people of Norwich who always have their hearts and purses open to the unfortunate of the community could know the condition existing among an increasing number of poor and unemployed in the city, they would respond generously to the Salvation Army appeal. During their intimate relation with the poor of the city Captain and Mrs. Day come in contact with respectable unfortunates who suffer great need and who feel that to extend a hand and ask for charity would lower their self respect. The suffering and privation of these good people is usually of the most touching nature. Only the sympathtic and closely religious basis of the Salvation Army worker gains the confidence of those who are fairly afflicted to divulge their precarious situation. In a large number of instances the Salvation Army give succor both materially and in service, especially in the homes which are visited by sickness, and where one or both bread-winners are temporarily incapacitated and unable to carry on the battle of life.

The Salvation Army is planning to bring baskets of food one day before Christmas to a number of poor homes, and the number of these gifts depends largely upon the response received in return of Christmas appeal. The regular quota raised annually by the Salvation Army in Norwich is for the work carried on by the organization throughout the year, but it is not sufficient to cover the Christmas and winter relief work, and therefore the earnest Christmas appeal to the generosity of those who are able to help if ever so little.

SETTLEMENT REACHED IN SHELDON WILL SUIT

A contest over the will of the late Delano Sheldon of Ledyard has been settled by stipulation and the appeal from probate dropped. Two of the deceased's children, Daniel D. Sheldon and Sallie Sheldon Turino of Medford, Mass., contested the will when it was filed for probate and appealed to the superior court from the probate court.

They claimed their father had not signed the will and that at the time the will was made he was not of sound mind and was not capable of disposing of his property by will. It was also claimed that on July 9, 1928, the date of the will, and for a long time previous, his health was greatly impaired and his mind deranged. Samuel E. Holdridge was the executor of the will.

The stipulation provides that the appellants and the executor agree that judgment may be entered confirming the will. The stipulation has been filed with the clerk of the superior court.

The bequests in the will are as follows: $4,000 to the Ledyard Ecclesiastical society, to be known as the Delano Sheldon fund, the income to be used for the support of the Ledyard Congregational church; $1,000 to Delano Sheldon, outright; $100 to Daniel Sheldon, outright; $100 to Sally A. Sheldon Turino; $6,000 to Mary Sheldon Chaffee, outright; the income from the residue of the estate to be divided annually between two grandsons, Sheldon Wye Turino and Lawrence Chaffee, the principal to be divided between them when they reach the age of 21 years.

HERBARIUM OF 5,000 SPECIMENS TO COLLEGE

A gift which it would be almost impossible to duplicate has just been made to Connecticut college at New London in the form of a herbarium of between 4,000 and 5,000 specimens of plants native to the southeastern portion of Connecticut. The collection is the work of Dr. Charles B. Graves of New London who has presented it, arranged in five large cases, to the botanical department of the coleige, to which it will prove most valuable.

The herbarium comprises what is considered a practically complete collection of the flowering plants, ferns, and fern-allies growing wild in that portion of the state in which Dr. Graves has worked. Other parts of the state are fairly well represented by specimens secured from friendly botanists. And the collection contains several hundred specimens chiefly of more northern plants, authenticated and distributed under the term exsiccatae by the Gray herbarium of Harvard university. Included also are a few sheets of type material, which are specimens of plants that proved to be new to science and undescribed, among them being a peculiar beach plum named for the discoverer, prunus gravesii.

The collection is particularly strong in groups in which Dr. Graves has been especially interested, such as the grasses and sedges, asters and golden rods, the native hawthorns, and some other smaller groups.

Duplicates of certain of his collected specimens are to be found in the Gray herbarium, the herbarium of the New England Botanical club, the National herbarium at Washington, etc. He is a charter member of the Connecticut Botanical society, and served as chairman of the committee from that society which compiled the Catalogue of Flowering Plants and Ferns of Connecticut, published as Bulletin No. 14 of the state geological and natural history survey.

In addition too its actual scientific and monetary value, which is by no means small, the collection stands also as splendid evidence of what may be accomplished by a man in the margin of time left over from his real profession. Dr. Graves has been a busy practicing physician since his graduation from medical school in his early manhood.

But in addition to that he has carried along with him through life an avocation which has greatly added to his pleasure, which has been of real service to the cause of science, and which now serves as a most worth while gift to the growing department of botany at Connecticut college.

Pretty Birthday Party

A delightful birthday party for Muriel Betty Trachtenberg was held Saturday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Trachtenberg, No. 124 Broadway, with 18 of her little friends attending. The prizes in games were won by Peggy Bruckner in pinning the bow on the bear, Margaret Edwards in the peanut hunt and the basketball game and Rhea Levine in the bean guessing contest. The dining room was attractively decorated in Christmas colors. Hats, baskets of candy and favors were given to the children. Refreshments were served and the afternoon was concluded with games, recitations and songs.

DESCRIBED WORK OF MANSFIELD TRAINING SCHOOL

Miss Mabel Matthews of the Mansfield state training school gave an interesting address on the work carried out at the institution, at a meeting of the Norwich Mental Hygiene society, held Wednesday evening at Slater hall annex. The institution is maintained for the care of the feeble-minded and epileptics, and at present its population is about 900 with a waiting list of over 600, she said Lack of judgment is the most serious point of those mentally defective, those so afflicted acting on the impulse of the moment without weighing the result of the act. This is typical of the feeble-minded, she said, they fail to foresee the results of an act.

They fail to appreciate the rights of others, she said, and will do petty stealing if they desire an article. The feeble-minded react to group training, she replied in response to a question. Unless he is protected he falls the prey of the unscrupulous; also has the failing for lending money and is taken advantage of by his fellow workers at pay-day. He hasn't that "something" not to loan the money and when he asks for the return of it he is made fun of.

In taking up the epileptic group, Miss Matthews said that they come to the institution for medical care. They are normal mentally, but because of the disease they need the care. They may have seizures with us but they are in no danger as in the community at large. All sorts of work is done by them, in the kitchen, sewing rooms and gardens and housework, all depending upon the severeness of the case. The inmates receive protection, medical care, occupation and education.

Quite a number of epileptics are on the waiting list, she said, the majority of them being located in the manufacturing cities of the state, like Hartford, New Haven, and Stamford. There are a very few in the eastern end of the state.

Miss Matthews outlined the procedure in gaining admission to the institution. She said that there were three groups, the urgent, not urgent, and undecided. The urgent consist of the adolescent boys and girls and the low grade children, who are too heavy a burden for the strength of the mother, and the children whose fathers and mothers have died, leaving them without protection. The not urgent comprise the low grade, between the ages of 18 and 30 years, who are taken care of by their parents. On the death of the parents they enter into the urgent group.

The work of the social department figures largely in the admission of patients. Upon arrival, they are placed in groups according to the age. They are taught to obey, be tidy and do various kinds of work. She said that a large percentage of the clothes worn at the institution are made by the inmates, who also laundry work, cobbling, etc.

Many of the inmates are paroled back to their homes, she stated, and for those who are paroled and have no home the institution secures employment for them, making them self-supporting. Girls are placed in private homes as waitresses, and boys are given employment on farms.

After her address she answered many questions that were asked by the audience. She was introduced by Mrs. Louis Walden, president of the society.

NECK AND NECK RACE IN CITY PINOCHLE LEAGUE

The Thermos and Duwell teams are in a tie for first place in the City Pinochle league, which was entertained Wednesday evening at Eagles home, Cliff street. The American Icy Hots went into second place, dropping two games, one to the Duwells and the other to the Foresters, who won a doubleheader. The league will meet next week at the Foresters' club rooms. The results:

SPOKE TO ROTARIANS ON PRINCIPLES OF ORGANIZATION

"Rotary International," was the subject of a very interesting talk by Rev. Dr. T. M. Shipherd at the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club at the Wauregan hotel. In his talk Dr. Shipherd spoke of Rotary as an organization that has always had the promotion of world good-will as one of its principles. Dr. Shipherd said in part:

Not only is Rotary international in its nature and make up, but its very existence and its continued life depends upon the practice of conference, discussion, deliberation and mutual understanding. Rotary is committed to international good will.

Just now we are face to face with a forward step which seeks to establish a firmer process for making reason and justice function among nations. This is our entrance into the World court. Every man with a good disposition, or every man who wishes to maintain a good disposition can whole-heartedly urge this step upon his countrymen and his senators, because it expresses the action which must follow up our opinion. It is not a bold, wild or dangerous adventure. Rather, it is the inevitable consequence of the Kellogg pact, if we are sincere about the matter. It is gratifying to realize that the men of Rotary International represent a body of opinion and conviction upon this subject which is a credit to themselves and their several countries. The active quest of good will, the practice of reasonableness is clearly and strongly placed as the corner stone of our new civilization.

At the conclusion of his talk Rev. Dr Shipherd, who was introduced by Eben Learned, was given a hearty vote of appreciation.

The business session of the meeting was in charge of President Frank R. Murdy, with C. A. Gager and Lucius Briggs as songleaders. It was voted that the club would follow the same procedure as in previous years in distributing practical gifts to the needy children of the city. The arrangements were turned over to the Boys' Work committee.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

BROWN UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT TO BE C. OF C. CHRISTMAS PARTY SPEAKER

Dr. Clarence A. Barbour, who on of Brown university, Providence, R. I., October 18 became the tenth president has accepted an invitation to speak before the Norwich chamber of commerce Christmas night party, planned to take place Friday evening, December 20.

Dr. Barbour recently came to Providence from Rochester, N. Y., where he was president of Rochester-Colgate institute. His reputation as an orator of unusual ability has been maintained for many years in the United States. He was formerly connected with the international committee of Young Men's Christian associations. His subject in Norwich will undoubtedly be "The Christmas Spirit."

President Frank R. Murdy has appointed a large committee of prominent citizens to make the arrangements for this affair, of which Arthur M. Brown is general chairman. Sub-committees have been appointed at a committee meeting as follows: Attendance, James L. Case, chairman, Ernest O. Rodier, Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, Miss Lucy B. Abbott, Abner Schwartz, John Morley, Walter F. Lester E. J. Graham, John P. Lyston, Bennett M. Gaines and William J. Fitzgerald.

Walter T. Camp was appointed chairman of the committee on decorations; LaRue Bliven will not only assist Mr. Camp, but will also have charge of the menu and service. Judge Allyn L. Brown was appointed the head of the reception committee along with Professor H. A. Tirrell, E. Russell Smith and Ernest O. Rodier. Max Hanover was appointed to have charge of the physical arrangements in the dining hall.

"Each cough hurt ME more than it hurt Johnny"

"My elder sister's boy was staying with us for the Christmas vacation. So when he caught a cough I felt doubly anxious. I just had to make him well again. I immediately gave him some Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup which I myself used before. It worked as well with Johnny as it did with me—better! And Johnny actually liked the syrup—he said 'It's like candy'. He lost his cold completely in a couple of days." MRS. SAM COUZENS, New York City.

TERESE TAYLOR, OF NORWICH, TAKEN TO PROVIDENCE FROM NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11. —Teresa Taylor, formerly of Wauregan, Conn., where she conducted a tea room, but more recently of Norwich, who was arrested here yesterday at the request of the police of Providence, charged with forgery, will be presented in court in the latter city tomorrow. Durling today, Inspector John J. Bowen, Providence police, came to New London and took charge of the young woman. Bowen and his prisoner left for Providence on the 11:35 o'clock train and prior to her departure the young woman made a signed confession in which she admitted her guilt. She was wise to do so for the evidence the New London police obtained in connection with her fraudulent operations was such that she had no loop hole by which to escape punishment. Since the arrest of the woman it developed that the charges that resulted in her arrest were not the first exploits the Norwich woman entered into in order to obtain easy money. It has developed that several days ago she negotiated a fraudulent check for $200 on the Union Bank & Trust company. She was arrested, but when she made restitution, the woman was not prosecuted. However, at that time it was not known that Miss Taylor was the fraudulent check passer whose arrest was requested by the Providence police. She was allowed her liberty only to be re-arrested for the passing of two checks, one for $194 and the other for $16, drawn on the National Bank of Commerce, in this city, represented to have been issued by Mabel Harris, of Old Lyme. The first check was negotiated in Providence where Miss Taylor purchased apparel and had she not requested that the purchase be forwarded to the Old Lyme post office, her arrest would not have been the easy matter it turned out to be. When Miss Taylor requested the postmaster at Old Lyme to forward the purchase to the post office here, the general delivery window was watched several days by the police and yesterday Miss Taylor put in an appearance for the package. An officer was not on duty there at the time, so one of the clerks, who had been working in accord with the police, followed Miss Taylor when she left the post office and when Patrolman Albert Iverson, off duty, was found on State street, the clerk informed the officer that Miss Taylor was wanted by the police and she was arrested. In making her confession, Miss Taylor stated that another young woman was in her company when the checks were negotiated, but that the second woman, who is supposed to have resided on Golden street, this city, did not take any part in the drawing of the checks, which were from a blank check book. This book, Miss Taylor had with her when arrested, but it was not found on her for the reason that she was not searched. During last evening, Miss Taylor was discovered to have removed the checks and stubs from the book and to have destroyed them by burning. She also gave the cover of the book to a prisoner occupying an adjoining cell with the request that he destroy it when liberated. The prisoner, Corado Tongherlini, Quincy, Mass. did not have an opportunity to do so, however, for when he was searched on being admitted to bail, the cover was taken from him.

Eugene O'Neill, playwright and actor, now residing at Ridgefield, Conn., has sold a house and lot, corner of Mather court and Richard street to Fadey Rotsko.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Arthur M. Beebe

The funeral of Edith G. Beebe, wife of Arthur M. Beebe, of 5 Brooks street, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev Charles E. Spaulding. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Union cemetery, Niantic.

OBITUARY

Mrs Frank H. Briggs

Mrs. Anna Briggs, about 53, wife of Frank H. Briggs, formerly of New London, died yesterday afternoon at her home in Philadelphia. Besides her husband, Mrs. Briggs is survived by a daughter. Mr. Briggs and family moved to Philadelphia about four years ago.

Gertrude Reife, of 30 Maple avenue; Harvey Larreau, U. S. Coast Guard; Mrs. William Lloyd and infant son, 240 Colman street; Mrs. Malcolm Brown and infant son, Quaker Hill, Waterford; Mrs. Emma Barnes, 103 Riverview avenue, Miss Lila Quintiliani, 131 Blydenberg avenue, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Violated Motor Laws

In the police court today, Corado Tongherini, of 92 Franklin street, Quincy, Mass., charged with speeding, was fined $10 and costs. He was arrested on Bank street yesterday by State Police Officer Donald Brown. Clarence Denison, 495 Montauk avenue, was charged with driving without a license. Denison, who was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Carlos Stone, was fined $2 and costs.

From Hospital To Sick Bay

Patrick M. Cassidy, fireman third class, and a member of the crew of the United States Coast Guard destroyer Shaw, will not die as a result of his attempt at suicide last Sunday afternoon when he swallowed the contents of a bottle of iodine on Golden street. The sailor was discharged at Lawrence Memorial hospital today. He is now a patient in the sick bay, state pier. Cassidy, who was despondent because of ill health, purchased the poison at a State street drug store and a few minutes later walked to Golden street where he swallowed the poison. He was found in agony lying on the sidewalk by a pedestrian. The latter informed the police and Cassidy was rushed to the hospital.

TEMPERATURE 12 ABOVE LATE WEDNESDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11—The most severe weather of the winter hit New London today. Late last night a snow flurry was followed early this morning with a light fall. After the storm had abated during the forenoon a decided drop in the mercury continued throughout the afternoon and evening. At 9:30 o'clock the thermometer in most places registered 16 above zero, but in one location, on lower Bank street, the mercury showed but 12 above.

A force of city laborers was engaged this afternoon scattering sand on sidewalks in the center of the city, particularly the shopping district, because of the slippery condition.

Winifred Violette, of Niantic and Mrs. John Haid, of Groton, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Lewis J. Young

Mrs. Isabel B. Young, wife of Lewis J. Young and mother of Mrs. William G. Dunn, of 77 Blackhall street, died this morning at her home at Clark's Mills, N. Y.

Developing Crack Shots

The members of the New London police department are practicing daily in order to obtain the highest mark of efficiency for revolver shooting. A team of four men will be sent to Hartford next month to participate in the revolver shooting contest to be sponsored by Colt's Firearms company. When the local officers have completed the practice shoot, the six obtaining the highest marks will be selected for a competitive shoot and the four to make the best scores will comprise the team that will represent the department at the Hartford shoot.

At the annual meeting of Brainard lodge No. 102, A. FR. & A. M., held last night in the temple on Green street, the following officers were elected: Worshipful master, Roger N. Dabill; senior warden, Raymond C. B Jencks; junior warden, Bertrum F. Luce; treasurer, Malcolm M. Scott; secretary, Frederick W. Edgerton; trustees, Carey Congdon, Alfred H. Pollock and Francis Allanach. The following officers were appointed: Senior deacon, Edmund H. Chidsey; junior deacon, Alick Bettles; senior steward John A. Harvey, Jr.; junior steward, Lloyd E. Gallup; chaplain, J. Romeyn Danforth; associate chaplain, William E. Green; marshal, Frank E. Dubois; tyler, David Connor. The newly elected officers were installed by John Masterton, retiring worshipful master, assisted by Past Worshipful Master Harry F. Myers as grand marshal, on behalf of the lodge. Retiring Master Masterton was presented a past master's jewel in behalf of the lodge by Past Worshipful Master John G Austin. Past Worshipful Master Herbert L. Avery presented retiring Master Masterton with a life membership pin. Following the election and installation, a banquet was served.

BOY'S LEG FRACTURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Raymond Berntsen, 13, Station 12, Waterford, was struck by an automobile driven by George Batting, 12 Clement street, Waterford, last night, the youth sustaining a fractured left leg and serious scalp wounds. He was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where it was reported today that he was resting as comfortably as could be expected. aB tingwasaerrated S-caw expected. Batting was arrested by State Police Officer James Dygert on a technical charge of reckless driving and will be in Waterford town court Monday next. Batting said that he did not observe the youth and a companion because of his vision being impaired by the headlights of a car approaching from the opposite direction.

Improvement in Patients

A very slight improvement was reported at Lawrence-Memorial hospital tonight in the condition of Letter Carrier John Blake and Alfred Harvey, driver of Konomoc Hose company's aerial truck. Mr. Blake suffered a shock Sunday and Mr. Harvey was operated on the same day for ruptured appendix. Improvement was also reported in the case of Ernest Dickinson, druggist's clerk, a resident of Riverview avenue, who suffered a shock several days ago.

ONE WOMAN CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED J. F. MURRAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11—The members of the city council have not yet made a move to select a successor to the late John F. Murray in that body. There is understood to be few who have been mentioned as possible candidates. The recommendation of a successor to Mr. Murray was referred to the committee on administration, but no meeting of the members of the council as a committee has been held yet, because Councilor Scott has been indisposed. The recommendation is to be made to the city council at its regular session Monday next, and that the recommendation will be approved goes without saying. It is understood that the councilors are disposed to secure a business man who has had experience in the affairs of the city and who is a man of judgment and of years of discretion. The duties of the office demand such a man and he will undoubtedly be such when recommended. There is one woman candidate for the place, but it is said the members of the council are determined to select a man to succeed Councilor Murray.

Early Seekers For Work

Early risers this morning declare there were more men on the streets at 6:30 than have been seen there on any day this winter. They all carried shovels and were seeking employment in the removal of snow.

A municipal Christmas tree has been placed in position at the monument on State street.

Lawn Mowers Sharpened

An enterprising merchant on Bank street displays a sign near the entrance to his store that reads, "Lawn mowers sharpened." But hasn't been kept busy at that employment of late."

FOUR MEN IN AUTO WRECK GET OFF WITH WHOLE SKINS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11—A Hudson automobile, driven by Byron R. Bogue 24, of 196 Broad street, and with Patrick Sullivan, 76 Harrison street; Richard Morgan, 122 Ashcraft road and John Sullivan, 220 Mitchel street, Groton, passengers, was wrecked and all four occupants injured when the car crashed against a telephone pole on Williams street early today, then plunged against a stone wall. The four young men sustained lacerations and bruises and were taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital. After obtaining the necessary treatment, the young men were discharged. The automobile, a complete wreck had to be towed to a service station.

The automobile was headed in a southerly direction and when between Mohegan avenue and Grove street it overtook a police patrol car driven by Officer Elwood Bailey. The Bogue auto was being driven at a high rate of speed and when about to pass the police auto, Bogue evidently identified it, for he applied his brakes. In reducing the speed of the auto suddenly, the automobile skidded badly and turned around three times before it started for the side of the highway. Bogue could not get the car under control and it crashed against the pole, causing the heavy timber to snap close to the ground and fall. The pole barely escaped landing on the police car. After hitting the pole, the auto left the highway entirely and came to a stop only when it encountered the stone wall. Bogue was not arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

The dates for the annual automobile show in the state armory have been set for early in February.

Cop Settles Women's Scrap

The police acting in a civil matter and as a collecting agency last night, caused hysteria to two women, who had engaged in a heated argument over the payment of rent. It was some time after the officer detailed on the case, was successful in pacifying the aggrieved parties. When complaint was received at police headquarters that a row was likely to occur at a house on Denison avenue, when one of the occupants arrived there, Patrolman Frank Philopena was instructed to drive one of the women, an employe at the Day Nursery to her home. Arriving there it developed that there was a difference of opinion over the rent payment by the woman to the other, owner of the house. The presence of the officer only aggravated the owner of the house and she and her tenant exchanged such harsh words that both became frenzied, the former finally fainting. The officer then became nurse and was compelled to apply restoratives, after which he advised both to seek the services of an attorney to settle their dispute in a civil court. This, it is indicated, will be the course pursued.

A sign attached to the Goldsmith building, corner of State and Main streets, was dislodged by the strong wind today and crashed to the sidewalk. Several pedestrians were passing, but the falling object did not strike anybody.

The annual meeting of Pequot Hose company was held last night at the company's quarters, Lower Boulevard. The election of officers resulted as follows: Foreman, Thomas H. Perkins; first assistant foreman, H. T. Sheehan; second assistant foreman, Donald Bain, Jr.; third assistant foreman, John Purnell; treasurer, H. H. Appledorn; financial secretary, Joseph Corkey; recording secretary, M. M. Worthington; entertainment committee, Donald Bain, Jr., chairman; M. L. O'Connell, Fred Schello, Alexander Jordan, T. A Sinclair and Frank Gallagher; executive committee, A. H. Burr, chairman; Charles C. Reeves and Dominic Menghi. At the conclusion of the business session a turkey dinner was served.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"Chickens come home to roost," so they say, but when the spirit of a "dear departed" materializes himself, without the assistance of the medium, just in time to break up a delightful seance with $10,000 in cold hard cash awaiting the medium, "if successful," it's just too bad. But that's what happens to Neil Hamilton, a fake spiritualist in Evelyn Brent's first starring drama, "Darkened Rooms," which opened at the Broadway yesterday. Hamilton is getting more deeply involved from day to day, with prison staring him in the face, when Evelyn Brent, whom he has befriended, decides to stop his game, and by staging the clever bit of hokum described above, drives Hamilton from his crooked game and straight into her arms. The Fox Movietone News, Solly Ward in "His Wife's Birthday," a screaming featured comedy, "Good-bye My Lady Love," a "bouncing ball song" and three select Vitaphone specialties, Guy Robertson in "High Waters," a novel song monolog, Halligan and Mulhern, vaude favorites, in "Somewhere in Jersey," and Ben Pollack's Victor recording orchestra, complete a surrounding program of all-talking featurettes of unusual merit. "Darkened Rooms" continues tomorrow and Friday, and will be followed by George Bancroft in his most virile role, "The Mighty," the tale of a big-town gangster drafted into the "first hundred thousand."

Palace Theatre

Steve Banks was the star reporter, the best one in the city—he was discharged from his paper for drunkenness, after a big argument with the publisher. About the same time he learns that his wife, Margaret, a "sob sister" on a rival journal, is going to divorce him because he drinks too much. All in all the future looks pretty bleak for Steve, but that isn't all that's due to happen to him. Of a sudden the publisher who fired him is found murdered, and Banks, caught in the web of circumstantial evidence, is accused of the crime.

The other feature on the Palace program is a Warner Brothers all-talking, singing, dancing hit, "The Girl From Woolworth's," starring Alice White and Charles Delaney. Here is comedy, mingled with pathos, misery and melody, the whole gamut of emotions set in a wide range of action in the great and tensely cruel city of New York.

She was just a clerk in the five-and-ten; he was a subway guard, but each was dissatisfied with life as it was and both longed for better, happier times. They met at a dance, and each, true to his nature, told the other an untruth. She said she was on the stage, and he believed her, just as she believed him when he told her he was a traveling man. Next day she sees him at his job—a guard on the subway—and it is some shock to her. Imagine for yourselves how the plot moved from then on—and just bet yourselves that you'll guess wrong about it, too!

Beginning Saturday and lasting for four days, the Palace will present that matchless extravaganza of color, melody and humor, "Paris," starring the great Irene Bordoni and Jack Buchanan. If you liked the "Gold Diggers," you won't be able to help liking this, too.

Thank Goodness! He Exclaimed My Last Pound of Fat Is Gone

It Will Never Come Back While "That Kruschen Feeling" Lasts

"A year ago I was 30 pounds overweight—I was fat and no one knew it better than my own indolent self.

"I was told of lots of drugging ways to get rid of it, but I would not sacrifice my health for the sake of losing weight.

"To tell the truth I was getting lazy—didn't have much energy—and very little ambition.

"Just then I heard so many good things about Kruschen Salts that I started to take them and never missed a morning.

"Well! In a couple of weeks I commenced to feel like doing something and in six weeks I was as active as I ever was in my life—that tired, indolent feeling left me and has never come back.

"But that's not all! My energy is like a youth's—I get up in the morning thoroughly refreshed after a sound sleep and am ready and anxious to get to work.

"It's a great feeling, 'that Kruschen feeling,' seems as if I never get tired. I can walk for miles and enjoy every mile of it.

"That's how my fat left me—fat cannot exist long when a man's active, energetic, ambitious and full of joy of living. But I haven't stopped taking Kruschen Salts, not for one day. I would rather go without my breakfast than my Kruschen."

Kruschen is six salts—not just one—these salts act on stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys and soon keep pure, fresh blood coursing through the veins—a jar that will last 4 weeks costs but 85c at Lee and Osgood's and druggists the world over. It's the little daily dose that does it.

BRADFORD STRIKERS FIRM—PLEDGED TO STICK TOGETHER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 11.—The aid of Rhode Island state police was asked by Chief Thomas E. Brown Wednesday noon from the Westerly police committee, Joseph Fraser, Archie Meikle and John Monti, at a committee session held at police headquarters.

The 50 or more operatives who have been brought to Westerly from Taunton, Fall River and other places were allowed to quit work Wednesday afternoon while it was daylight, in order to reach their boarding places, the Alcasa and Martin hotels, in Westerly. On the arrival of ten state police at Bradford, two busses of the Rhode Island Coach Co., making special trips, brought the workers out of the B. D. A. plant at Bradford, with some in private cars. They were greeted with jeers and shouts by a crowd of over a hundred strikers gathered on Bowling lane, near the driveway to the plant. Just before the line of busses and autos left the mill property four state policemen came out of the driveway to clear the road while others took up positions along the streets. The entire membership of the Westerly police committee was at Bradford as was also Chief Brown and Officers George Madison and Charles E. Button.

The appearance of state police came within a few hours of the stoning of new workers by strikers. Fifty new workers were on their way to the plant early this morning in two busses when a barrage of stones was laid down in the village by strikers, in spite of the guard of Westerly police During the stoning, windows in the busses were smashed and the occupants were showered with broken glass, but only slight injuries were reported.

Dr. Donald S. Ashbrook, manager of the plant, later said that none had been seriously hurt, as far as he could discover.

The plant manager, in speaking of the employes, 16 of whom arrived in Westerly last night to join the 25 already on hand, referred to them as "new permanent employes," and not strike-breakers. He said their number would be steadily increased.

Eviction notices were served on the strikers by Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell, giving about 50 families one week in which to vacate company houses. A return to their jobs will save the strikers from eviction, but thus far they have given no sign of weakening and their leaders declare they will stick together and fight to a finish.

Christopher M. Dunn, state deputy commissioner of labor, conferred with strikers and officials of the plant Tuesday, and probably will make a report on the situation. It is understood that there appeared to be no chance of an amicable settlement.

A public mass meeting is being planned by the strikers' leaders. The Westerly-Pawcatuck Retail Merchants' association also is considering means by which the trouble can be settled.

In Westerly the imported workers have been eating at restaurants on Canal street and Railroad avenue, they being the points of departure of the special busses for Bradford.

Ann Weinstock, special representative of the United States department of conciliation in labor disputes, was in Bradford Wednesday for a short time and she was a speaker at the Burdick hall meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Strike-Breaker From Norwich

As the Rhode Island Coach Co. busses were discharging their force of Bradford workers at 4:45 p. m., Wednesday, to enter the restaurant in the Martin House, the special men with the mill help were accosted by a shivering man who declared that he had walked the 19 miles from Norwich to secure employment. He was given the price of his supper and directed to find a room in Pawcatuck, for which he was given the price of a night's lodging.

OBITUARY

Guy B. Page

Guy B. Page, 56, of 8 Union street, died from a complication of diseases Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at Westerly hospital, where he has been a patient for several weeks. He was employed by the highway department of the town of Westerly and as engineer operated the town rollers. He was an active fireman and from close residence to the fire station many times a truck driver to fires in Westerly. He held membership in Franklin lodge, No. 29, F. and A. M., of Westerly. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Zita Page.

Precarious Motoring Wednesday

About midnight Tuesday a snow and sleet storm began, the third of the season in Westerly. By 1 a. m., Wednesday, the ground was white. Snow fell steadily through the early morning hours until the sky cleared in the forenoon. The streets in Westerly and vicinity were covered with a thin coat of ice, causing autos to skid in all directions when not equipped with chains. The early morning busses operated between New London and Westerly and Ashaway, Providence, Bradford and Westerly, had to travel slowly because of the slippery condition of the roads. No accidents were reported from skidding, but one bus traveling between New London and Mystic met with trouble on Fort Hill and another bus had to be substituted for it. Employes of the highway department of the state board of public roads were out early sanding the grades on the Nooseneck Hill road and several bad spots about Westerly were sanded by employes of the Westerly highway department.

Tuesday evening, Hancock Woman's Relief corps, No. 2, elected officers. The following, and ten to be appointed by the incoming president, will be installed by Mrs. Mary Noyes, Jan. 14, 1930: President, Mrs. Cora Fuller; senior vice-president, Mrs. Lillian Weller; junior vice-president, Mrs. Marion Pascoe; treasurer, Miss Hattie Coon; chaplain, Mrs. Anna Merriss; conductor, Mrs. Mildred Collins; guard, Mrs. Grace Worthington; delegate to department convention, Mrs. Mabel Brown; alternate, Mrs. Ermina Clark.

The next regular meeting will be held Dec. 24, and there will be a Christmas tree, members exchanging gifts. The sewing society is to meet with Mrs. Ermina Clark Dec. 19 for an all-day session and covered dish dinner.

Mrs. Calvert B. Cottrell and daughter left Wednesday morning on the New England express for Boston.

Rupert H. Austin, of New York, has been a Westerly visitor for the past few days.

Clarence A. Vars was able to be out Wednesday after being confined to his home for several days by illness.

The workers of the mission are mending toys, dressing dolls, painting doll carriages and furniture all of which will go to make some little boy or girl happy on Christmas morning. Donations of money, vegetables, groceries or toys are being received at the mission rooms on West Broad street.

MYSTIC

PROMINENT SPEAKERS ARE TO ADDRESS LOCAL C. OF C.

The Mystic chamber of commerce is to hold its annual banquet this (Thursday) evening at 6:30 in Odd Fellows' hall. The supper will consist of chicken, served southern style, by Mystic Rebekah lodge. The two principal speakers of the evening will be Dr. Katherine Blunt, president of the Connecticut College for Women, New London, and Robert T. Hurley, commissioner of state police, from Hartford. The invocation will be by Rev. Byron U. Hatfield of West Mystic, pastor of Westerly Baptist church. Former Mayor William C. Fox, of New London will be toastmaster. The committee of arrangements is Atty. Henry P. Hammacher, Mrs. Carl Cutler, Mrs. Lucy Haley Chesebro, John Fribance, L. E. Vatet and R. K. Burrows.

The Children's World Crusade, Miss Dorris Bindloss leader, met in the vestry of the Union Baptist church, Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. A letter from the Baptist Christian center was read, thanking the children for patchwork. The children have made boxes and they will be filled with candy and sent to the kindergarten of a Mexican school. They also voted to send $3.00 to the same school, to help furnish milk for the undernourished children. Following the business session there were songs, games and refreshments of sandwiches, fancy cookies and punch. A Christmas tree gave pleasure to the 21 members present.

The December meeting of the auxiliary to Richard Morgan post, No. 55, American Legion, will be held this (Thursday) evening. At this time a kitchen shower will be held, the members not having enough dishes to work with at the hall.

Mystic Lions' club held a meeting recently and voted to provide Christmas cheer for deserving families in the village. They are not making any appeal to the people of the village, but those wishing to assist in any way may do so by notifying Charles C. Kleburg.

Members of Mystic Farm Bureau group met in Grange hall, Tuesday morning, and three of the members present made moccasins. Dinner was served at noon. In the afternoon, the public entertainment committee of Mystic grange held a whist. Four tables were in play and the prizes were won by Mrs. John D. Eldredge, of Old Mystic and Mrs. William Leiss, of Mystic.

Old Mystic Social Circle met in the M. E. parish house, Monday evening, with 21 present. This being the annual meeting, the following officers were elected for the new year: President, Charles E. Tinker; vice president, J. W. Pollard; secretary and treasurer, J. F. Meyer. It was voted to hold the next meeting on Monday evening, December 30, instead of December 23, and the Christmas tree will be held at that time. A lunch of sandwiches, cakes and coffee was served by the committee.

The Mystic Building and Loan association is to meet next Monday evening.

George Costello of New London, was a business caller in the village Tuesday.

Miss Erastine Perry is ill.

Friends and acquaintances in the village were shocked to learn of the death, Tuesday morning, in the Waterbury hospital, of Mrs. Sarah A. Spicer, wife of Edward E. Spicer of Groton. Mr. and Mrs. Spicer have visited in the village many times and are the parents of Mrs. Wilfred E. Brown of Denison avenue, Mystic. Mr. and Mrs. Brown spent last winter with Mrs. Spicer and her husband in Florida.

The Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters held a whist in K. of P. hall, Tuesday evening with 12 tables in play. Prizes were won by Mrs. Walter Lovelace and Fred Godfrey, Mrs. Douglas of West Mystic and Isadore Fiedler. Refreshments were served.

Miss Eleanor A. Williams, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace S. Williams of Old Mystic is ill.

The Friendly League of the Union Baptist church, met Monday evening with Miss Jessie Fish of New London road. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Chester R. Chapman, and opened with the singing of several Christmas hymns. During the short business session, a nominating committee was appointed to choose officers for the annual meeting, which will be the next one. The scripture was read by Miss Fish. Mrs. Alberta Hammond gave two vocal selections which were greatly enjoyed. A poem written by Miss Violet Allen Storey a summer resident, dealing with Christmas was read by Mrs. William Holliday. The leader, Mrs. Chapman, read an article on Mary and Joseph, after which there was a short discussion on that subject. Refreshments were served to the 25 present.

Mrs. Fred Sebastian has been confined to her home by illness.

STONINGTON

Joseph Trachwich, of Mystic, was presented before Judge William A. Wilcox Tuesday in Stonington town court on a charge of non-support. He was brought to Stonington after a diligent search by Selectman John Fribance, who testified that the state funds and neighbors had been supporting his wife and child. He pleaded guilty and was ordered confined to jail for a term of six months. Selectman Fribance said he had a job for the man until he could do better and the sentence was suspended for a year.

The case of the state vs. Samuel Meleson, charged with non-support, was continued for one week on the request of Attorney Benjamin H. Hewitt, who represented the accused.

John Burrell, of Westerly, charged with driving a motor vehicle without the proper markers, pleaded guilty and was fined $15 and costs of $12.95, which he paid.

Edward Lord was arraigned on a similar charge and the same fine was imposed; he paid.

Basilick Pavalski, of Old Mystic, charged with reckless driving, pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs of $12.95. He paid the bill.

John Allison, of Fishers Island, was a visitor here Tuesday.

The meeting of Stonington council, No. 5, Jr. O. U. A. M. is to be held in Mechanics' hall Friday.

James W. Harvey post, No. 58, A. L. met in the Mechanics' hall Wednesday evening. The auxiliary met also and following the meetings a joint Christmas party was held. There was a tree and much of fun for those in attendance.

MYSTERY OF WHITE PIG IN GAS STATION PIT

Owner Lester Smith and his side kick Walter McDonald, of the Community Gas station, had the thrill of their lives Saturday morning when both men got there to open up for business. At the same time a Ford coupe drove over the pit to change oil in the car. McDonald got ready to jump down in the pit and saw a mystery, a white pig, weight about 40 pounds. He was afraid to go down there and Smith started to run. How was that little pig to get out? Truck Driver Fred Clark, who used to be a farmer and a champion in raising pigs, was the hero. He jumped down, getting the mystery pig by the hind legs and taking him out of danger. Soon a crowd came to see the hero, Clark, with the white pig and cheered him for his kind act, for getting the animal out to breathe the free air again. No one knows how that pig got there if it was stolen or put there as a joke. For many hours the pig was without a country and nowhere to hang his hat. Soon the news got all over the fishing village that Smith caught a large pig in the pit at the gas station. The pig was put in the back of his automobile, until he found the owner and also got a place at his home to keep the pig until the owner came and could tell it was his property. Now comes the story, how did Mr. Pig get in the pit? Was he let out of his pen and lost his way? Some think the pig escaped from his home through a hole in the pen, walked in his sleep and landed in the pit. People who live around the gas station heard the pig squealing but could not find out where the noise was coming from. Sam DeBerry could not get his beauty sleep for the pig was making too much noise and he had to get up around 2 o'clock to have a smoke for the little white pig kept them all up with its crying while McDonald was in the station. About an hour afterward he went out to show Billie FitzGerald the pig and it was gone. He did not see anyone take it but everyone was saying "the pig has gone!" Some claimed the owner had his white pet under his arm bound for home, with four claiming the pig and it looks as if the right owner has it now. Smith, of the gas station, was disappointed for his Christmas dinner faded away. That white pig must have nine lives like a cat and it had a blue ribbon around its neck. Must be ready to enter the pig show at Westville, Mass. Well the pig was lost and claimed by half the town, it seemed, but it will never be known how the pig got in the pit. But now the little pet is back safe in his pen, with his pals and happy. The owner gave his pig about a half bushel of Prospect hill corn. The pig ate so much he had to lie down and sleep off the meal. Soon now a 472-lbs. pig will get the knife and the job will be done by the champion pig killer Walter Willis, for he has sent many pigs to dreamland. The operation will take place in a week, at the home of Patsy McWilliams, and the champion pig killer of the fishing village will do his stuff with his rain coat on and hip boots. He has a trick of his own and in 6 minutes, will have the monster pig put away like a cat would a mouse.

OPERATORS FOR RISE CAUTIOUS AS MARKET REACHES STALEMATE PERIOD

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Stock prices drifted aimlessly about today on rather weak cross currents of buying and selling which represented little more than cautious experimentation by both speculators for the rise and for the fall. After frequent shifts of trend, several leading shares dipped rather sharply in the last hour. Total sales were 2,897,300 shares, a moderate increase over yesterday.

The market appears to have reached a stalemate for the moment. More than a third of the losses of the past two months has been regained. The history of most previous bear markets of this century, showing sharp secondary relapses after about 46 per cent. of the first declines had been regained, makes operators for the rise rather cautious at this period, but nevertheless optimism still dominates, and bearish efforts meet with meagre success.

The day's corporation and industrial news remained fairly favorable, and faith in the widely predicted revival of business fairly early in the new year seemed to be growing. Several more favorable dividend actions were announced, led by an increase from $4 to $5 in Westinghouse Electric's annual rate. The recent influx of extra dividends have lost their bullish effect upon market sentiment, as they reflect primarily the earnings of a period now past, but increases in annual rates indicate confidence in the future. Another splitup was announced, directors of Otis Elevator arranging a four-for-one split.

The weekly steel trade reviews remained optimistic. Iron Age said that indications are for lower production and shipments this month, but explained that this may be attributed largely to the reduction of stocks for year end inventories, and pointed to an encouraging revival of inquiry for automotive steel. It found nowhere the signs of a general paralysis of trade such as has developed after other stock market crashes. The freight car loadings report for the last month of November showed sharp reductions from the previous week and the line week a year ago, but that may be attributed in part to the Thanksgiving holiday.

Credit was slightly firmer, call money holding at 4 1-2 per cent., with no concessions in the outside market. Despite a slight sag in foreign exchange rates, a large shipment of gold to England was rumored to have been negotiated. Time money was nominally quoted a little easier at 4 3-4 to 5, but remained extremely dull.

U. S. Steel sagged 4 1-4 points to a new low for the week at 177 1-4, after touching 182 3-4 early in the day. Utilities were given a brief upward whirl, but this failed to produce any general rally. Standard Gas sold up about 9 points, but its gain was reduced to 5 by the close. Despite the higher dividend rate, Westinghouse Electric closed 6 points lower, as many traders had bought in expectation of a splitup. Western Union lost more than 8, and Radio about a point, in realizing on yesterday's upturns in the communications shares. General Electric, American Bank Note, American Telephone, Johns Manville, and Union Pacific were among shares losing 3 to 7 points.

A few of the more closely held issues made wide gains. Philadelphia Co. shot up about 36 points, Otis Elevator mounted 13 on the splitup news, but later lost 9 of its gain. Despite the interstate commerce commission's announcement of postponement of railroad consolidation legislation, some of the key roads in the mearger plans were exceptionally buoyant. Jersey Central jumped 22 points, Pittsburgh and West Virginia made an extreme gain of 16 points, Wheeling sold Lake Erie gained 10, and Wabash sold up more than 6.

Commodities were largely heavy. Wheat futures lost more than 2 cents on bearish weather reports and weak cables, and corn lost nearly a cent. Coffee futures reached new lows for the season, reflecting weakness in Brazilian exchange. Cotton declined 35 to 60 cents a bale in sympathy with Liverpool.

Foreign exchanges were featured by a sag of 1-8 of a cent in sterling cables to $4.88 1-4, where it is still around the gold point.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Wheat broke today to as much as 12 1-2c a bushel under prices that were obtainable just one week ago. Collapsing of values today was simultaneous with indications that for at least the time being the bottom had fallen out of European demand for what from North America. Leading holders of wheat future deliveries here were reported to be letting go, and numerous standing orders to sell out and stop losses at various set limits were forced into operation by successive tumbles in price.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled a somewhat above the day's bottom level but 2 1-8c to 2 3-4c below yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-4@3-8c off, oats 3-4c to 1c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 12c.

Joits to friends of higher prices came right at the outset of today's trading, and there were added wrenches later, with the market at no time showing any decided power to rally. Sharp downturns in prices both at Liverpool and Buenos Aires and meagerness export clearances of domestic wheat and flour both from the Atlantic seaboard and from the Gulf of Mexico as well had the effect of solar plexus blows in depriving the market here of stamina. Meanwhile domestic milling demand for wheat was anything but aggressive, and about the only speculative buying which developed was for previous sellers who were in a position to collect profits.

Virtual halting of North American business in breadstuffs today was ascribed by leading authorities to a general disposition of European interests to stand aside for the present, and await further crop developments in Argentina. Among the motives given for this course were Argentine reports of favorable harvest weather and advices that large tenders of wheat were available at Liverpool, with practically no demand for new arrivals. An outstanding feature in Chicago was that houses with eastern connections were persistent sellers all day.

Corn and oats declined owing to sympathy with wheat weakness. On the other hand, corn-belt weather conditions were unfavorable for any heavy movement of new corn.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—For the first time in nearly a month sales of listed bonds totaled less than $11,000,000 in a five hour session today. The market was suffering from the neglect that became apparent as soon as time money was marked up to 5 per cent after displaying steadiness at around the 4 1-2 per cent level.

A lively demand is reported for short term securities as important sources of investment buying await the anticipated easing of money after the pressure of the holiday demand is relaxed. Meanwhile, the maturing issue of Treasury certificates will release a large volume of funds early next week, and part of this amount is expected to find its way into the bond market. Government securities were irregularly lower. The new Treasury 3 1-8, selling on the over-the-counter market, traded when issued at 99 30-32 bid and 100 asked, the latter being the offering price.

Considerable interest was shown in the sale by New York city of a $57,600,000 issue of 1 to 30 year 4 1-2 per cent bonds and corporate stock to a large banking syndicate on a bid of $102.3487. This group, headed by the National City company, the First National Bank of New York, the Bankers Company of New York, Guaranty company and Brown Brothers & Company, subsequently made public offering of the $38,000,000 block of bonds at prices to yield 4.10 to 4.30 per cent, while the $27,000,000 50-year stock was offered at 104.50.

The price obtained by the city was better than had been anticipated. Bidding was keen and ten tenders, amounting to $265,553,500 were submitted. The successful bid gave the city a premium of $1,526,657. Offering of the securities, representing the largest municipal offering of the year, had been scheduled for late in October but was postponed because of unfavorable market conditions.

On the whole, the list of domestic bonds was inclined to ease, although losses were minor. Changes of a point or more either way were fairly numerous, but came out on small turnovers. In the rails, declines of about half a point in Atlantic Coast Line 4 1-2s, Burlington 4 1-2s, Norfolk & Western 4s, and Union Pacific 4s were balanced by advances in New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 5s, New York Central 3 1-2s, Northern Pacific 5s, St. Louis & Southern First 4s and Missouri Pacific 5s.

Industrials and utilities were likewise mixed. Remington Arms 6s and Liggett & Myers 7s rose a point, while International Cement 5s, Postal Telegraph 5s and U. S. Rubber 5s lost about the same amount. Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s equalled their year's high at 101.

Convertibles weakened after a display of firmness. Net declines of 1 to 3 points marked American Telephone 4 1-2s, American International 5 1-2s, International Telephone 4 1-2s, Lautaro Nitrate 6s and Public Service of New Jersey 4 1-2s.

LIBERTY HILL

The Liberty Hill Men's club held the monthly meeting, Tuesday evening, instead of Monday, on account of the storm. A social hour was enjoyed with short talks by several members. A lunch of sandwiches, cake and coffee was served by Horace Foote, President E. C Payson and John Elarke.

Since the snow came there is not much feed that birds can get, so some people are scattering rolled oats in the yards and putting suet on the trees for them.

Mr. and Mrs Gordon Kinnard, of Boston, spent the recent holiday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnard.

Men on the state road are engaged on the driveways putting on trap rock. They are also building cement steps at the church and at the front of dwellings where necessary.

Mr and Mrs. I. Colt Harris and the former's father, Albert Harris of New London, visited their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. George Clark, Sunday afternoon.

James C. Choquette and family, of Middletown, were guests, Sunday, of Mr. Choquette's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Choquette.

Mrs. C. E. Goodrich and Mrs. Ruby Robbins attended the Christmas bazaar at the Methodist church, in Willimantic, Friday afternoon.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Reddy Gets More Than He Bargained For

Who takes a chance should not complain
If failure brings both fright and pain.
—Old Mother Nature.

Such a feast as Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy had had on that turkey! When they finished there was little left but feathers and bones, and these were all nicely hidden under the barn of the very farm where the turkey had been caught. You see, Reddy and Mrs. Reddy were smart enough to know that the farmer would not expect them to hide so near. Therefore, they were safer there than if they had gone far away. It was broad daylight by the time they finished that turkey, so they decided to spend the day right where they were under the barn. And this is exactly what they did. Jimmy Skunk was curled up in one corner and Reddy and Mrs. Reddy were curled up in another corner.

Having eaten so much, they were very sleepy. They slept all day. The turkeys had already gone to roost by the time they ventured out. "This is no place for us to stay," said Reddy to Mrs. Reddy. "It would be foolish to try to get another turkey right away. The thing for us to do is to go back home for a few days. Then we can try the same trick over again."

So it was not until four days later that Reddy and Mrs. Reddy tried for another turkey. They tried the same old trick. Mrs. Reddy showed herself and led the dog away. Reddy stole down as near to the tree where the turkeys roosted as he could get and waited for them to come to roost. He was so intent on watching those turkeys as they came up toward the tree that he failed to notice the farmer peeking around a corner of the barn. In the farmer's hands was a terrible gun. That farmer was wise to the ways of Foxes. He had understood perfectly what had happened the evening he had lost a turkey. He knew that two Foxes had been working together. "They'll try that trick again," said he. "One will lead off the dog and the other will try to catch a turkey. I shall have to give them a surprise. I doubt if they will be around for two or three nights, but they certainly will come before long. I'll just keep a watch every night while the turkeys go to roost."

So the farmer kept his gun handy in the barn. On this night he heard the dog start off after Mrs. Reddy. He slipped out the back door, taking his gun with him, and stole very carefully and silently back of the barn until he could peek around the corner near to where Reddy was hidden. He saw Reddy at once. Reddy had his head lifted and was eagerly watching the turkeys, which were making their way slowly toward the apple tree. Slowly the farmer lifted the terrible gun. It was going to be a long shot, but he knew that he could get no nearer to Reddy without alarming him.

Just as the terrible gun reached the farmer's shoulder, Reddy happened to glance that way. Like a flash, Reddy leaped to one side. As he did so the terrible gun went bang! bang! Reddy felt a number of stinging pains. He had been hit by the shot from that terrible gun. But he hadn't been seriously hurt. You wouldn't have thought he had been hurt at all, could you have seen him run. He had got more than he had bargained for this time. Instead of a fat turkey in his stomach, he had a number of small shot under his skin. But what was even worse from Reddy's point of view was the knowledge that their clever plan for catching turkeys had been discovered by the farmer.

ELEVEN CONVICTS AND HEAD KEEPER KILLED

would die in the chair and they were determined to kill us unless they got out.

"Then we got word that the men in front had some plan of meeting their (convicts) wishes. At any rate they said they would convince the prisoners that the doors were open and the automobiles ready to take them away, and they opened the doors so they could enter the main hall and have an unobstructed view of the open prison door all the way to the street, with the automobiles waiting for them.

"Thereupon, the doors of the main hall were opened from both north and south wings, and we all went out into that main hall. The convicts had up to now controlled enfiladiting gunfire from these two doors. They came into the hall, taking us with them, when suddenly a state trooper with astounding bravery, stepped into full range of their guns and threw a gas bomb. More followed. One rolled right under me.

"The bomb was a signal for a general melee and there were shots on all sides. Some of the convicts realized they had been tricked and ran back into the south wing hall, while others ran into the north, but they turned on us and fired at our handcuffed officers at close range. One evidently tried to shoot me in the head, or hit me with the butt of his gun. Or perhaps a keeper struck his hand and I got only a glancing blow, but it landed behind my head at the base of the skull and I began to get dizzy.

"The gas also, by this time, began to render me unconscious, and the last sensation I had was of a pain in my wrist as I was being dragged somewhere by my handcuffs.

"It later turned out that it was MacTagert, and they tell me that my convict orderly who had run in from my front office also assisted in dragging me out

"I lost consciousness and the next thing I knew, I was in bed here in the City hospital."

Will Speak at Church

Mrs. Mary Chalmers, director of religious education in the home, will speak at the Central Baptist church this (Thursday) evening on "Unchanging Needs in the Changing Homes." Mrs. Chalmers, who is to be in the state for just three days, is kindly giving one of these evenings to come to the Central Baptist church to speak on this topic that is of vital interest to all who are interested in religious education.

Population of suburban communities in this country is increasing more rapidly than city population.

POETRY

Moon-Madness

They did not know that the moon had shone
All night across my face;
And they marveled why I wandered alone,
Picking up acorns and pebbles of stone
In a solitary place.

How should they know I had dreamed all night
With the moonbeams on my eyes
Of a goddess slender and tall and white,
Who walked in a garden of strange delight
In the regions of Paradise?

They wondered why I was rapt and pale,
Haggard and ill at ease;
For they did not know I had watched a sail,
Like a shimmering mist where the dream-winds fail
On magical, moon-bright seas.

And they questioned, "Why does he linger there
Where the grass is withered and dead,
With dry leaves tangled among his hair,
And fingers that tremble, and eyes astare?
He is mad, quite mad," they said

They could not know of the songs I heard
In the fair moon-gardens; nor why
I listened there for a whispered word,
And started at pine of a sudden bird
Or wept when the wind went by.

—Victor Starbuck.

If Thou Must Love Me

If thou must love me, let it be for naught
Except for love's sake only. Do not say:
"I love her for her smile—her look—her way
Of speaking gently—for a trick of thought
That falls in well with mine, and certes brought
A sense of pleasant ease on such a day"—
For these things in themselves, Beloved, may
Be changed, or change for thee — and love, so wrought,
May be unwrought so. Neither love me for
Thine own dear pity's wiping my cheeks dry;
A creature might forget to weep, who bore
Thy comfort long, and lose thy love thereby!
But love me for love's sake, that evermore
Thou mayst love on, through love's eternity.

The Scotch appear to have a strong hold on the British premiership. J. Ramsay MacDonald is the fifth prime minister. The others were Lord Rosebery, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Earl Balfour and Bonar Law. During the same period, the Welsh have had one premier, David Lloyd George, and the English two, Lord Salisbury and Stanley Baldwin.

Robbers two years ago carried off a steel safe at Biloxi, Miss. It was thought the thieves took the safe to some isolated spot where it was opened and the contents removed. Lately a fisherman angling in a nearby arm of the Gulf of Mexico found his hook caught on some heavy object in the water. It was the missing safe, and it was still locked. Inside were $720 in cash and va uable papers. Nothing was missing but everything was decidedly damp.

In the little town of Gallatin, Mo., sixty-two years ago, two boys, Mark Stewart and James Watson, became friends. Mark was five and Jim six. Then Jim's parents moved. Recently they met for a reunion dinner at Colorado Spring. Both distinctly remembered events of their boyhood life. Watson now is a prosperous Chicago business man, maintaining a summer home in the Black forest, near Colorado Springs. Stewart now is a lay minister in the Methodist church at Phoenix, Ariz., where he is interested in establishing an All-States sanatorium for young men without means.

Itchy Eczema on Husband's Scalp. Kept Him Awake. Cuticura Heals.

"My husband had eczema break out in sore eruptions on his scalp. It itched and burned and kept him awake nights. The eruptions scaled over and he used to scratch them until they would bleed. He had to wear a cap at night on account of the trouble. It bothered him for several months.

"He began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped him and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one and a half boxes of Cuticura Ointment he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. M. C. Ross, 37 Happy St., Norwich, Conn., March 19, 1929.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

RED ARROW BOOSTER CONTEST OVER TWO MILLION MARK

The display of the Red Arrow Booster prizes at the stores of Ferguson Jewelry Co., O'Neil Electric Co., and Hanover-Curland Co., created renewed interest among the boosters who have enlisted their friends to help them obtain Red Arrow money to be exchanged for votes. The prizes consist of a diamond ring with a platinum setting, the stone of which weighs one and five-eights carats, valued at $450; a Kelvinator refrigerator, porcelain lined and porcelain covered exterior, valued at $275; a Hamilton 14-carat gold watch, with 23 jewels and a special white gold raised-numeral face, valued at $172; a new model Savage washing machine, valued at $170; and a table set of 57 pieces, Rogers plate silver, valued at $87. The prizes will be awarded at the next auction in order of the boosters having the largest number of votes.

The contest is now on in earnest among the leading boosters who are striving to win the valuable prizes. Miss Agnes White, secretary of the Red Arrow club, reports that a large quantity of Red Arrow money is being exchanged daily into Red Arrow votes at the Reid & Hughes Co., which is acting as the clearing house for the Red Arrow club. The Booster ballot box at the Palace theatre lobby, into which the votes are deposited is opened daily and the votes are removed, counted, and credited to the account of the boosters enlisted in the contest.

Leading the boosters with 2,020,930 votes, Arthur Chartier is working in all earnest persuading his friends to give him their Red Arrow money. He has also secured a sizable number of votes from "Uncle Boost" at Springfield, Ill., in return for the new customers he is securing for some of the Red Arrow stores. Second in the race, determined to secure one of the prizes is Joseph Burke with 951,175 votes. The others in order of their standing in the booster contest are: Mrs. G. Louisa Atterbury, 751,670; Mrs. Ida Hough, 701,269; Mrs. Frank DiCarlo, 558,915; Joseph Falcone, 487,452; Miss Fannie Longo, 128,745; Mrs. Elfleda Kellish, 117,490; C. Manning, 41,305; Mrs. Amey E. Coles, 33,875; Dr. Haddad, 5,920; Mrs. A. Wood, 15,030; Mrs. G. Roessler, 45,000; Miss Catherine McVeigh, 6,400.

Those who are interested in the booster contest, and their friends, are watching with great interest the new count as announced in the local papers. The announcement creates new zest and competition and a renewed determination to forge to the front.

In addition to the Booster contest, the Red Arrow merchants will give to the boys and girls of Norwich, in exchange for 32 Red Arrow money, a bag of Schrafft's sugar cuts and high grade of satin-finish candy. This Christmas gift will be awarded beginning Saturday, Dec. 14, until further notice, at the basement Red Arrow booth of the Reid & Hughes Co.

The Red Arrow club has arranged for new features of public interest to take place during the month of January, 1930, and which will be announced at the next Red Arrow auction to be held on Dec. 27.

Stealthily he crept forward. He was almost upon her, and yet she suspected nothing. Closer and closer he moved, and now he was almost leaning over her. His head was close to hers. His eyes drank in everything, and then he whispered to her softly. "Move the paper over so I can read it: this is sure one tough exam."—Detroit News.

SEVERAL TRADES ANNOUNCED AT MEETINGS OF MAJOR LEAGUES

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Sixteen major leagues were represented in the annual baseball meetings closing here today but only four contributed to the news of the day and these outside the council chambers. The St. Louis and Philadelphia clubs of both leagues completed transfers of players which will send four athletes back to their former baseball allegiance.

The St. Louis Cardinals traded Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran pitcher and world series hero, to the Phillies, with Harry McCurdy, former White Sox catcher for Homer Peel, outfielder and Bob McGraw, pitcher. Alexander the Great, entered the major league with the Phillies.

The St. Louis Browns followed with a trade by which Wally Schang, hard hitting catcher, will go to the Philadelphia Athletics, with Sammy Hale, infielder, moving to St. Louis in exchange.

Alexander Rejoins Phillies

Alexander rejoins the Phillies after an absence of 12 years during which he has pitched for the Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals. Schang becomes a Mackman again after the same exile from Philadelphia. He started his major league career in 1913 under the colors of Connie Mack and since 1917 has caught for the Red Sox, Yankees and Browns.

Homer Peel, who went to the Phillies from the Cardinals in the trade sending Jimmy Wilson to St. Louis, now returns to the Breadon, Rickey & Co. system. Bob McGraw, the other player involved, also was a Cardinal at one time.

The Phillies, whose catching staff was reduced to a minimum by the death of Walter Lerian, now is well stocked with receivers for in addition to getting the services of the capable McCurdy, the release of Al Cooper, a tall hard hitting catcher, was procured by purchase from Birmingham.

Little of Public Interest

There was little of public interest accomplished in the league meetings. President E. S. Barnard said the American league devoted itself to a discussion of "internal" questions, while the only notable action by the National league, according to President J. A. Heydler, was a decision to ask the manufacturers of the official baseballs if they can turn out a ball with the gloss removed. Under the rule now in force in the National league, the umpires discolor the balls before giving them to the pitchers, in order that they may get a better grip.

Mr. Heydler said the National league umpires will be permitted to umpire in the spring exhibition games this year. Last year they were not called to the colors until the regular season opened. The employment of league umpires, however, is a matter of choice. The clubs are not required to have members of the National league staff in the exhibition games in the south and west.

The ball and distance hitting was discussed by the National league club owners, including the question of erecting screens to keep batted balls out of stands close to the home plate but nothing was done.

Baseball and Radio

The question of baseball and radio came up when representatives of the National Association of Broadcasters appeared to tell of efforts to set a high standard of ethics for radio reports of baseball games. This is a matter for action by individual clubs.

The club presidents also devoted some time to a discussion of rules, the rule giving a base runner two bases on a ball thrown into a dugout coming in for somewhat extended debate.

It may be clarified by specifying that a runner may advance "one and one," the base he is going to and one more. The present rule permits an advance of two bases from the spot the runner has reached when the wild throw was made.

Three committees were named by National leaguers: Constitution, Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburgh, Charles A. Stoneham, New York, and William F. Baker, Philadelphia. Playing rules, Sam Breadon, St. Louis, William L. Veeck, Chicago, and John A. Heydler. Radio and telegraph, Emil E. Fuchs, Boston, Wilbert Robinson, Brooklyn, and Sidney Weil, Cincinnati.

Burns Goes to Minors

Two players were signed by minor league clubs. George Burns, the former Cleveland, New York, and Philadelphia, first baseman, casting his lot with the Mission club of the Pacific Coast league and Tony Plansky, former Georgetown football player and one of the stars of the New York Giants professional football team, signing with Buffalo of the International league. Plansky is an outfielder.

Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, said he would grant the request of Joe Dugan that he be given his release. Dugan went to the Braves from New York Yankees last year.

Try to Patch Brooklyn Trouble

Another meeting unproductive of results resulted from an effort to have the warring directors of the Brooklyn club smoke the pipe of peace.

John A. Hedyler, president of the National league, with Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the Brooklyn club, S. W. McKeever, vice president, Joseph A. Gilleaudeau, secretary, and Frank A. York, director and attorney, met with K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, in a tentative attempt to reach an agreement by which the deadlock in the directorate could be broken.

Wilbert Robinson's contract as manager has expired and his term of office as president will expire in the spring. Robinson and Gilleaudeau represent the supporters of the present administration while Vice President McKeever, supported by Mr. York, is anti-Robinson. The vacancy caused by the death of the fifth director last year can not be filled as the directors can not agree.

It was understood that the meeting with President Hedyler and Commissioner Landis available as peace makers failed to heal the breach, leaving the situation in its same unsettled state.

Mr. Heydler, however, was optimistic and "hoped" the matter would be worked out. The always cheerful "Robby" had nothing to say about the meeting of the club directors but declared "Brooklyn will have a ball team—and a good one."

Joint Session Today

The two leagues will meet in joint session tomorrow. The length of the playing season will not be an official order of business as the two league presidents prepare the schedules and submit them to their respective leagues for approval. It is understood that the next season will be shortened to close September 28.

Poddubny Beaten

BOSTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—George Kotsonoras of Greece defeated Johnny Poddubny of Russia in two straight falls in a wrestling show at the Boston Arena tonight. Kotsonoras took both falls with a flying mare, the first in 8 minutes, 20 seconds, and the second in 10 minutes, 15 seconds.

MONTVILLE ACES WIN OVER TAFTVILLE FIVE

The Montville Aces won a fast game from the Taftville Buccaneers in the Uncasville school gym last night. The play was fast throughout the game with the lead changing from team to team. The score at the quarter was 11 to 8 for Taftville and at the half 21 to 18 in favor of Montville. The playing of Pete Morosky, Montville forward, was outstanding, he making 15 points all by his lonesome, while Dugas played a good game for Taftville.

The score:

WILLS KNOCKS OUT CASTANO IN THIRD ROUND

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Harry Wills, the ancient "black panther" of the heavyweights, knocked out Andrew Castano, of Mexico, in the third round of their ten-round bout at the Coliseum tonight. It was their second meeting, Castano winning on a foul at Mexico City, two months ago.

Wills had an easy time winning his second battle since he lost to Paulino Uscudun in 1927 at the end of his reign as the "menace" of heavyweights. It took him only a minute and six seconds of the third round to end the battle, slamming over a left hook to Castano's jaw for the deciding punch.

Wills weighed 225 pounds, Castano 198.

Black Bill, Cuban candidate for championship honors in the flyweight division, easily outpointed Freddie Lattanzio of New York in a ten-round preliminary. Lattanzio tried hard but he was no match for the bouncing black Cuban, who won every round and handed out a bad beating although he was not able to win by the knockout route. The weights: Black Bill, 113 3-4; Lattanzio, 111.

Cecil Como of New York took the decision from Tony Santello of Worcester, Mass., in a six rounder. Como weighed 129 1-4 pounds, Santello 130 1-4.

In the ten-round semi-final, staged after the main bout, Harry Smith, New York Negro, took an easy decision from another New Yorker, Billy Kohut. Smith weighed 159 1-2 pounds, Kohut 163 1-4.

LOCAL Y GETTING READY FOR STAMFORD GAME

The Norwich Y basketball team, who last Saturday night at Greenwich made such an impressive showing by taking that outfit into camp, will endeavor to win its second league start this Saturday when the fast Stamford five will play here. This game will be the first league game at home.

Norwich is the only city in eastern Connecticut to be represented in the loop, so the court fans of this vicinity will be greatly interested in the outcome of the local five against the clubs of western Connecticut.

Coach Demarest has put his boys through the paces the past few days and reports his squad in tip-top shape.

Tonight, Manager Leffingwell will take the Junior varsity to Westerly where they will meet the Battery E. second team. Among those to make the trip will be Ludlow, Lynch, Barber, Lambert Dickerman and a couple of others to be picked before starting time. All players are to report at the Y at 6 p. m.

RUDOLPH TAKES LEAD FOR POCKET BILLIARD TITLE

DETROIT, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Erwin Rudolph, former world's champion, took the lead in the world's championship pocket billiard tournament by defeating Joseph J. McCann, of Jacksonville, Fla., 125 to 14, in five innings in the opening game here today. This was Rudolph's second victory in two starts.

In the second game of the afternoon, which was the sixth in the tournament, Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, N. Y., defending champion, turned back Spencer Livsey, of Los Angeles, 125 to 48, in 24 innings. Taberski dropped his first game of the tournament to Marcel Camp, Detroit. He now has won one and lost one.

DARTMOUTH WINTER SPORTS CARNIVAL ON FEB. 6, 7 AND 8

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Dartmouth's 29th annual winter carnival, including an intercollegiate sports meet, today was scheduled for Feb. 6, 7 and 8.

The sports meet will feature the outdoor program, with collegiate athletes from United States and Canada taking part.

All former social events will be retained, including the carnival ball, a musical revue by the Dartmouth players and fraternity dances.

The Dartmouth-Harvard hockey game and the Dartmouth-Yale basketball encounter will star the athletic program.

STRATFORD SCHOOL MAY PLAY AT MEMPHIS

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Samuel Johnson academy, of Stratford, has received an invitation to play a post-season intersectional football game with the Memphis prep school team of Memphis, Tenn., on either Christmas day or New Year's day, it was announced here tonight by Coach Frank A. Silva of the Stratford team.

Coach Silva declared that if terms can be arranged, the Samuel Johnson eleven will make the trip. This year's team has won seven games, St. John's prep of Danvers, Mass., scoring a victory over them with a touchdown in the first minute of play.

Internationals Challenge

The Internationals, a newly organized basketball team of Norwich, are booking games. The Internationals are made up of five different nationalities and do not wish to reveal their names. They are known by the names of the countries of their birth. They would especially like to hear from the Taftville Whirlwinds, Mystic All-Irish five, Noank, Y Emps or other teams of like calibre. For games call 2355-J, between 5:30 and 6 o'clock. They would like to book out-of-town games.

You've all heard about the tough egg and the three-minute egg.

But here's one about the egg that was far from either the tough egg or the three-minute variety, it was a real soft one, in fact it was almost as soft as the day it was found in the nest.

Mr. John was very fond of his egg for breakfast, and a breakfast without his egg was no breakfast at all. And he like his eggs hard boiled — and how.

The other morning Mrs. John had prepared the eggs over the electric stove and supposed they were just as Mr. John liked them. Friend husband picked up an egg, crashed into it as per usual, and found the egg was far from hard.

Several brilliant yellow spots appeared on his vest and napkin and as he started to clean up there was enough torrid language to cook the rest of the eggs to a crisp.

Mr. John raved on about the blankety blank cowardly eggs that hit you and then run. This went on for a few minutes until Mrs. John felt that a retort courteous was necessary.

"Well, if you bought me one of those automatic egg cookers for Christmas a thing like that could not have happened," cut in the good wife with plenty of acid in her voice.

"I'll do just that little thing," says he—but he didn't tell her that the $5 egg-cooker would take the place of a $100 electric sewing machine that he had intended to get.

Opportunity only has to rap just once at this boy's door when he grasps it by the hand and leads it to the well known fireside.

Any way you are of a mind to figure it, this gentleman of our town is far ahead of the game. An automatic egg-cooker will set him back $5, and having his suit cleaned another $1.50, total $6.50.

This deducted from the $100 originally planned to spend for the sewing machine leaves him $93.50 ahead. Seems like the wife spoke out of turn.

It's a poor egg that doesn't do somebody some good.

NINE MEMBERS OF N. F. A. HARRIER TEAM GET LETTERS

Nine Academy students earned their letters in cross-country during the past season when the Wildcats enjoyed one of their best campaigns. The lettermen are: Baronowski, Szarca, Beebe, Lambert, Lyons, Levitsky, Capt. Navick, Richardson and Manager Cohen.

John P. Murphy, former Holy Cross track man, coaching his first year at the school, was faced with none too bright prospects at the opening practice but, in an eleven meet schedule, eight of which were dual affairs, won four and lost four and of the four meets dropped, all were by five points or less. In the other meets, the Academy finished second to Westerly in a three-cornered event with Westerly and Rhode Island state freshmen, was third in the interscholastics and tenth in the Rensalear Polytech meet at Troy, N. Y., which saw the leading schools in the east entered.

Victories were scored over Bacon academy, Stonington; Conn. Aggie frosh and Bulkeley Jr. varsity while Bacon, Chapman Tech, Suffield and Bulkeley varsity won from the Wildcats. The Chapman Tech event was dropped by one point, 28 to 27, Bacon by four and Suffield by three points. In each case Old Lady Luck ruled that one member of the squad should be absent for sickness or some other cause, which probably proved the margin between winning and the slight loss.

The Stonington meet was won by a perfect score, 15 to 40, the first ever turned in by a local harrier team, Georgie Lambert finishing first. Lambert also won first place in the Suffield meet, beating out the runner that had taken second place in the Troy run. In the West Kingston three-cornered run, Navick, captain of the locals, was third.

Most of these boys will continue their running activities on either the indoor track team, which will open its season after New Year's or the outdoor track squad in the spring. Prospects are unusually bright for next year as two of the leading performers on the squad, Georgie Lambert and Johnny Lyons, are only first year men in school.

COL. HAMMOND GIVES CUP FOR SPECIAL HOCKEY MATCH

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP) — The long and short distance individual Santa Claus championship of the sports realm probably will go this season to Col. Johns Hammond, stately silver-headed owner of the New York Rangers.

Col. Hammond, a West Point graduate who introduced professional hockey to New York, has donated a cup valued at $675 for a game to be played annually between the hockey teams of the Kent school, of Kent, Conn., and the Morristown Prep school, of Morristown, N. J. The game will be played here Dec. 21 with the Madison Square Garden donating rent free for the occasion.

The receipts are to be donated to providing scholarships for English boys at Kent school, where Col. Hammonds, 17-year-old son, Orson, plays left wing on the hockey team. Last year's contest, won by Morristown, provided sufficient funds for five scholarships.

ACADEMY SWIMMING TEAM HAS FIVE MEETS ON SLATE

Five meets have been listed for the Academy swimming team, it was announced Wednesday by Coach John P. Murphy. The schools to be met are Bulkeley of New London, at New London; Plainfield high and Plainfield Community team and Windham high, all here, and Crosby high of Waterbury, at Waterbury. The only date tentatively arranged is for Thursday, Jan. 16, with Crosby. A three-cornered meet with Bulkeley and Chapman Tech for the inter-city championship may also be arranged.

About 25 candidates are now practicing and this week much work was put in on diving. The Y pool is being used for practice and will be the scene of all local events. A captain will be named soon.

PLAINFIELD PROS BEAT WHIRLWINDS IN FAST AND ROUGH OVERTIME GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 11.—In the first overtime game of the season the Plainfield Pros nosed out the Boston Whirlwinds, 34 to 30, here, tonight. The game was the fastest ever played on the local floor and the ultimate outcome of the encounter was in doubt throughout the 45 minutes of play. The game was unusually rough with Kiley, the Boston right guard, being a constant offender. Some measure of the roughness of the game is gained from the fact that Plainfield scored 14 of their 34 points on fouls committed by the Boston players.

Plainfield started strong, taking the lead at the beginning of the game and holding it by a scant margin throughout the half which ended with Plainfield in front, 12 to 9. The Whirlwinds picked up the three point lead in the second half and as the final whistle blew the score was deadlocked at 28 to 28.

In the five-minute overtime period some hard and fast basketball was played. Kiley in the first minute of play in the overtime session caged a basket making the count 30 to 28 in favor of the visitors. Brusso a second or two later converted a foul into a point and he was followed by Kasper with a field goal putting Plainfield in the lead by a single point. A foul and another field goal by Kasper clinched the game, Boston being unable to score again.

Kasper was high scorer with a total of 14 points while Riordan was leading point man for Boston with 10. Conway played a brilliant game at center while Dissinger and Bernot played nice guarding games.

The summary:

ITALY PLEASED WITH U. S. A. A. U. INVITATION

MILAN, Dec. 11.—(AP) —Announcement that the American amateur athletic union has invited three Italian athletes, Hector Tavernari, Louis Facelli and Louis Baccali, to go to the United States to participate in indoor track meets, has produced an enthusiastic reaction here. This is the first time a complete Italian team has been invited to America for the whole indoor sports season. The trio plans to leave the middle of January and return the end of March.

Italy is one of five European countries invited by the A. A. U. to be represented in the coming indoor track campaign in the United States. The others are England, which has declined, and Germany, France and Finland, from which no replies as yet have been received.

Only one Italian, Tavernari, was included in the invitation and officials of the A. A. U. expressed surprise that it had been interpreted as including two other athletes as well. The union is prepared to pay the expenses of only one representative of Italy. The men named in the dispatch never have competed in the United States. Tavernari is a half miler, Baccali a 1500 meter man, and Facelli a hurdler.

EDWARD J. MILLEN RESIGNS AS WINNAPAUG GOLF PRO

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 11.—Edward J. Millen, who was golf professional during the past season at the Winnapaug Golf club, has resigned and has accepted a position as professional of the Arimont Country club at Arlington, Mass. Millen succeeded the late James Dowd as the local pro.

Millen's new club is situated only a short distance from his home and this is believed to have been one of the main reasons for his taking the offer. No successor has as yet been named.

GREENEVILLE

FUNERAL

Mrs. Theresa Szostak

The funeral of Mrs. Theresa Szostak was held Wednesday morning from her late residence, 41 North Cliff street, at 8.15 o'clock followed by requiem high mass at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock, which was celebrated by Rev. William Toper with a large attendance. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Toper read the committal service. The bearers were Justin Walka, George Butanowicz, Bronislaw Osurek, Julian Wierzbenski, Chester Butanowicz and Peter Aleksewicz. Mourners were present from New Britain, Webster, New Haven and Willimantic. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful. Undertaker Julian Woltkowski had charge of the funeral arrangements.

The T. D. Sewing circle held their weekly meeting Tuesday evening with Miss Irene Shea of Fifth street and there was a large class present. The first period of the evening was devoted to sewing of fancy articles after which a social hour was enjoyed with vocal and piano selections being rendered. Refreshments were served, consisting of assorted sandwiches, cakes, cookies, fruit, candy, ice cream, wafers and hot chocolate. At the next meeting the members will have a Christmas tree party at which the members will exchange presents. All of these presents have been made by the members while attending the class meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Delaney have returned to their home at Providence after spending a few days with Mr. Delaney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Delaney of Eighth street.

REPORT INTENDED SALE OF WEST SIDE SILK MILL

Reports that the Schwarzenbach-Huber silk mill on Mechanic street was to be closed which were current more than a month ago when Superintendent M. J. Bergstresser was transferred from this mill to another one of the company's mills in Union City, Pa., received a measure of substantiation this week when employes reported that notices had been posted there that the mill is for sale.

Superintendent W. Keller, who was sent here to take Mr. Bergstresser's place, declined to give any information regarding the proposed sale, saying that this was the order from headquarters in regard to newspaper inquiries.

The silk mill has been one of the steadiest employers of labor while it has been operated here by the company for about 25 years past. It has employed about 150 men and women.

EVANSON TO ADDRESS NORWICH MANUFACTURERS

The Norwich Manufacturers' association, of which Albert M. Van Wagenen is president, is to have a speaker of more than usual interest at its annual meeting this (Thursday) evening at the Wauregan hotel, for Charles L. Evanson of Hartford has accepted an invitation to address the meeting.

Mr. Evanson is the expert, whose employment by Senator Hiram Bingham in order that he might serve as tariff adviser raised a storm of criticism against the Connecticut senator from his colleagues at Washington.

It is expected that Mr. Evanson will have something to say about tariff conditions in Washington when he speaks before the Norwich manufacturers.

Supper Not Served by Rebekahs

Through misinformation that was furnished it was reported that the supper at the Norwich Elks district deputy night last week was served by Hope Rebekah lodge. It was not the Rebekahs but a group of Norwich women who did the catering.

The oldest livestock raisers' organization in the United States is said to be the National Wool Growers association, which was organized in 1865.

MR. AND MRS. HIRAM NEFF OBSERVE DIAMOND WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram U. Neff quietly celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary Wednesday at their home, No. 475 Main street, in the East Side section of the city. No special observance of the day was planned, but neighbors, friends and relatives called upon them throughout the day to congratulate them. They received numerous anniversary cards, beautiful cut flowers and a nice frosted cake surrounded with flowers. Mr. Neff is 84 and his wife is 80.

Mr. and Mrs. Neff were married in Norwich, Dec. 11, 1869, at the First Baptist church parsonage, in the West Side section, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. H. Parks and witnessed by his wife. During their wedded life they have always lived in this city and for 36 years made their home at the house, No. 465 Main street. For the past two and a half years they have resided at No. 475 Main street, a few houses distant from their former home.

Mr. Neff was born in Canterbury, Dec. 7, 1845, the son of the late Charles and Julia Maria Burdick Neff, and at the age of 14 years was carrying a gun and knapsack in the Civil war. He was living in Hampton at the time of his enlistment in Company D, 11th Connecticut Volunteers, at Hartford, on Nov. 2, 1861. Mr. Neff served in the war for four years and 56 days, re-enlisting in 1863, and subsequently becoming a sergeant.

Although Mr. Neff was engaged in 19 different battles with his company he was not injured, but had the experience of seeing four of the company's members shot dead around him. He fought in the battle of Antietam, Maryland, Sept. 17, 1861, the battle of Duree's Bluff, Va., and the battle of Cold Harbor, Va. Mustered out of service on Dec. 28, 1865, Mr. Neff returned to Norwich, where he has since resided. He is a moulder, having followed his apprenticeship in the Richmond plant.

Mrs. Neff was born in Norwich, March 9, 1849, and has lived here her entire life. Her maiden name was Mary Bushnell and she is the daughter of the late George T. and Caroline Marshall Bushnell. Mrs. Neff is in unusually good health and is very active, being able to do her housework and take time to call upon neighbors. Her husband is not so well, suffering somewhat from rheumatism and now recuperating also from an attack of grippe. Both appear to be several years younger than they really are. Mrs. Neff has a head of pure black hair.

Mr. and Mrs. Neff have two daughters, Mrs. John D. Brown of Quaker Hill and Mrs. Calla A. Whittemore of Putnam, three grand children, Mrs. John Shelburne and Miss Janet Brown of Quaker Hill and Robert Brown of New London, formerly of Quaker Hill and five great grand children, Victor, John, Jr., and Reba Shelburne and Robert and James Brown. Mrs. Neff has also a sister, Mrs. Harriet Rathbun of Holyoke, Mass.

MONSIGNOR McCORMICK INVESTED AT WASHINGTON

Regarding the high honors conferred upon a young Norwich clergyman whose family home is on Prospect street, the Washington, D. C., Post of Monday said:

Two Washington priests were invested with the robes of monsignor, domestic prelates of the papal household, at services yesterday. Investiture of Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick took place Sunday in the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Catholic university. Msgr. Edward L. Buckey was invested in St. Matthew's church Sunday night. Archbishop Curley, of Baltimore, officiated at both ceremonies.

Prior to the conferring of the rank upon Msgr. McCormick the students and faculty of the university formed a procession from Divinity hall to the shrine, where a pontifical high mass was sung. Archbishop Curley conferred the papal robes.

Auxiliary Bishop Maurice F. McAuliffe, of Hartford, Conn., preached the sermon, in which he dwelt upon the meaning of the immaculate conception and concluded his sermon with a tribute to the new monsignor.

Church dignitaries who participated in the ceremony are Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, rector emeritus of the university; Right Rev. Msgr. James H. Ryan, rector of the university; Right Rev. Msgr. Edward A. Pace, vice-rector. Clerical friends of the new monsignor and members of his family attended.

Msgr. McCormick is head of the educational department of the university, also is president of the Sisters college. He has been identified with the institution for more than 20 years. It was for his work in this field that the honor was conferred upon him by the pope. The brief, announcing elevation, was transmitted by P. Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, on Msgr. McCormick's silver jubilee in the priesthood, July 23.

Following the church services, a dinner was held in Divinity hall, which was attended by church dignitaries and friends of the new monsignor.

The papal brief was read by the eminent scholar and writer, Rt. Rev. E. A. Pace, vice-rector of the university. The impressive Latin document began: Pius XI, pope: Beloved Son: Greeting and Apostolic blessing.

Our Apostolic Delegate to the United States of North America, and with him the Bishop of Hartford and the Rector of the Catholic University in Washington, have commended you to us in the highest terms, desiring of us that we number you among the prelates of our household. They inform us, in effect, that, during your priestly career of 25 years you have earned merit in abundance, by discharging the duties of your office as professor, by editing the Catholic Educational Review and by directing the college established for the higher education of Sisters. In view of these facts, and in compliance with the request of those who have spoken in your behalf, we, being minded to bestow upon you a fitting reward and thereby give public expression of our good-will toward you, do of our authority by these present Letters Apostolic choose, appoint and proclaim you an Urban Prelate, that is to say, our Domestic Prelate.

After defining more explicitly the privileges and prerogatives of the newly-appointed monsignor, the document ended: Given at St. Peter's, Rome, under the Fisherman's Ring, on the 23rd day of July, 1929, the eighth year of Our Pontificate.

P. CARD. GASPARRI,
Secretary of State.

To Our Beloved Son, Patrick Joseph McCormick, Priest.

For the investiture ceremonial the officers of the mass were: Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, celebrant; Very Rev. Nicholas A. Weber, assistant priest; Rev. Dr. Edward B. Jordan, deacon; Rev. Dr. Frank P. Cassidy, sub-deacon; Rev. Dr. John R. Rooney and Rev. Leo L. McVay, deacons of honor; Very Rev. Henry A. Quinn, master of ceremonies.

Among those present were: Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, rector emeritus of the Catholic university; Rev. John J. McCabe, Jewett City; Rev. W. J. Fitzgerald, Milford; Rev. Felix J. O'Neill, Stafford Springs; Rev. B. F. Donnelly, Hartford; Mrs. M. E. McCormick, of Norwich; John T. McCormick, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.; Dr. Thomas J. McCormick, Yonkers, N. Y.; John F. McCormick, New York city. Mrs. McCormick is the new monsignor's mother, and John T. and Thomas J. are his brothers. John F., formerly of Norwich, is a cousin.

Started Patchwork For Quilt

Eighteen members of the sewing circle of the West End Community association met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Fields for its regular meeting, with Mrs. Sourbier, the president, presiding. Rosettes were made at the meeting to be used at the old fashioned dance the following evening and work was started on patchwork for a quilt. Plans were discussed for an active winter season. Fudge was served by the hostess. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. George Gifford in January.

RULES STATE LAW ON TREE CONTROL INVALID

The statutory power of the state highway commissioner to prevent the removal, for beauty's sake, of trees on a land owner's property but within the limits of the highway is declared unconstitutional in a decision written by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin and returned in superior court Tuesday.

Judge Marvin denies the petition of Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald for an injunction to restrain Earl J. Campbell of Manchester from cutting down two shade trees bisected by the line between his property and the highway on East Center street, Manchester. The statute concerned is section 3, chapter 309 of the public acts of 1927, an act giving the commissioner exclusive jurisdiction over trees within the limits of the trunk line and state aid highways.

Mr. Campbell, represented by Judge Arthur E. Howard, Jr., appealed to the superior court after he had been denied permission to cut the trees on an application to the highway department. He has a permit to operate a gasoline filling station, he set forth, but cannot make use of it unless the trees are cut. His complaint later withdrawn, was met by a cross complaint in which the highway commissioner asked an injunction to restrain Campbell from destroying the trees. The case was submitted to the court on a stipulation signed by Judge Howard and Raymond A. Johnson of the attorney general's office.

"It is clear enough," the court's decision reads, "that our people are coming to put a true value upon shade trees and that, whether or not the excuse for exercise of the police power is found in the aesthetic sense or in promoting the public welfare in other respects, such extensions of the police power as three two acts (the 1927 statute referred to and chapter 76 of the Public Acts of 1929) exemplify will be sustained if of private property shall not be deframed in such a way that the use stroyed without compensation and upon the ipse dixit of one man (the highway commissioner) from whose decision there is no appeal."

The case in question, the judge comments has nothing to do with the power of the highway department to remove trees incident to making the highway safe or convenient. The power to prevent a land owner from removing trees without compensation and except with the written consent of the commissioner, he finds, is "confiscatory and so unreasonable as to be arbitrary."

CONTINUING "CONVERSATIONS" OVER McCOOK PROPERTY

The "conversations" between the state tuberculosis commission and counsel for the Eliza McCook estate are progressing, though slowly, in the effort being made by the state of Connecticut to obtain additional land for sanitarium purposes at Seaside, Crescent beach.

State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, representing the McCook estate, has replied to the communication from the tuberculosis commission in which the commission inquired if the McCook estate would sell land adjoining the state property at Crescent beach, for the purpose of erecting a new building for the sanitarium. While little information was given out relative to either communication, it is understood that counsel for the McCooks did not directly state whether the land could be purchased, and the proposition has the appearance of having returned to its first stages when the state attempted to obtain the land through condemnation proceedings. The Alcorn letter was considered by the tuberculosis commission at its meeting on Monday.

Circle Plans Christmas Work

Eight members of Comfort Circle of the King's Daughters attended a meeting held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frelove A. Miller, 20 Penobscot street. The devotional exercises were led by Mrs. William H. Geer, the circle's leader. The members then planned for Christmas work and it was voted to donate $5 to a needy family. Mrs. Miller provided home-made candy following the business meeting.

NORWICH C. E. UNION HAS COMMITTEES APPOINTED

The executive committee of the Norwich Christian Endeavor union was entertained Monday evening by the Franklin society. Ray Beckwith with help of other members of the society, served delicious refreshments.

The observance of Christian Endeavor week was one of the important subjects discussed. This is the week from Jan. 26 to Feb. 1 which will be observed all over the world in some appropriate way, by the many Christian Endeavor societies.

The missionary committee, Mrs. Carl Holdridge, chairman, was appointed to plan for a mass meeting Feb. 1. The general committee in its preparations for Christian Endeavor week, are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Muttart, Robert Burke. Other members are to be added later.

The standing committes were elected as follows:

Literature superintendnet, Mrs. Harold Muttart; junior and intermediate superintendent, Mrs. Dwight Stone; alumni superintendent, Orrin Maples; lookout committee, Harold Muttart, chairman, Mrs. H. Muttart, Celeste Copeland, Jessie Hyde, Theodore Sterry; missionary, Mrs. Carl Holdridge, chairman, Mrs. John Waldron, Helen Eadie, Thomas Farrell, Raymond Allen; finance, Carl Holdridge, chairman, Ray Beckwith, Donald Zabriskie; publicity, Jessie Hyde, chairman, Wallace Blakeslee, Cynthia Crary, Robert Burke, Paul Holdridge, Jared Hinckley; music, Theodore Sterry, chairman, Louise Sterry, Stephen Gorski, Beatrice Littlefield, Julia Standish; community service, Maizie Stamm, chairman, Thomas Farrell, Robert Schmidt, Roger Robbins, Florence Lucy.

BIBLE CLASS STUDY ON LOYALTY TO CONVICTION

The weekly session of the Men's Bible class of the Y. M. C. A. was held Wednesday evening at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. building. The Scripture basis of the helpful discussion was Acts 5:51 to Acts 8:4 and the topic was, Loyalty to Conviction. Among the points brought out were the following. Stephen was the first Christian martyr. To go over the top in a world war is to be greatly commended but for a man who is being stoned to death to pray for his murderers is even more unusual. Though Stephen became a martyr to the cause, his death was the forerunner of a great gain for the cause for which he died. This old world needs more men of the Stephen type, who will die if need be rather than surrender their convictions that they know are right. Stephen was a man great in faith and prayer, and though he was a victim of martyrdom, he was a victor of the Christian cause, and his death was a great contribution to Christ's kingdom.

LUTHERAN CHURCH LADIES AID HOLDS ELECTION

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Lutheran church met Wednesday, electing officers as follows: Mrs. R. Thumm, president; Mrs. A. Grodotzke, vice president; Mrs. H. Retkowske, secretary and Mrs. W. Budzek, treasurer. The standing committees are to be appointed by the president later. There will be sick, financial and refreshment committees. Mrs. B. Weinert and Mrs. W. Zelz were reported on the sick list and Christmas cards are to be mailed to old and invalid members. Mrs. Etta Baumgarten was received into membership. A formal reception and introduction will be held at the next meeting with a special program. "Silent Night" was sung at the conclusion and the meeting closed with prayer. Coffee and cake were served by the coffee committee.

SHOWS HIS GRATITUDE FOR FIREMEN'S WORK

Chief Henry R. Taft of the local fire department, received a check Wednesday for $25 from Contractor Patrick F. Sweeney to be added to the firemen's pension fund. The check was sent in appreciation of the fine work of the firemen in extinguishing a lumber fire late Tuesday afternoon in the rear of Mr. Sweeney's carpenter shop on Chestnut street. The check has been turned over to the city treasurer to be added to the pension fund.

CHRISTMAS SALE SUCCESSFUL—HELD BY ENDEAVORERS

Tuesday afternoon and evening the C. E. society of the Methodist Episcopal church held a Christmas sale in the Samuel Huntington school hall. A good sum was netted for the church pledge. The chairman Mrs. Richard Carter, a tireless worker, put in much time planning and carrying out the affair. She was assisted on the general committee by Mrs. Harold Rose, Mrs. William Weaver, Mrs. Wilkinson, Mrs. Byron Fargo and Mrs. Andrew Gardner.

The apron table was in charge of Mrs. A. D. Zabriskie and Mrs. Arthur Fulton. Mrs. Rutherford H. Snow was cashier. The candy table was in charge of Virginia Ward and Muriel Rose. At the cake table was Miss Josephine Rogers; the grab bag was in charge of Mildred Carter and Florence Gembel. At 7:45, Lewis E. Aldrich, chairman of the entertainment committee and president of the society, presented the following entertainment: Piano solo, Mary Waters; vocal duet, Virginia Ward and Florence Gembel; piano solo, Mildred Carter; Boy Scout play in two scenes, first the meeting place and second the night camp fire; readings, Izetta Dilette; piano solo, Doris Rose. The scouts taking part were Senior Patrol Leader Donald Olsen, Patrol Leaders Wallace Wagner and Clayton Rose, Asst. P. L. Leon Ladd, Earl Robinson and Albert Eyberse and John Laskowski, Frederick Ross, George Hardenbrook, Edward Eccleston and Edward Gallagher.

During a recent visit in New York city Rev. Georoge Warren Potter was the guest of Kirk Parker a young man formerly associated with Rev. Mr. Potter in Boy Scout work. He also visited the national headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America and had an interview with Ray O. Wyland, secretary of the Protestant committee on scouting.

"Of Such Is The Kingdom"

Sunday night next in the Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter is to deliver the December stereopticon lecture. "Of Such is The Kingdom" is the subject of the lecture, an unusually interesting study in child contrasts on every mission field; the native child and its condition of life contrasted with the children in mission homes, churches and schools. During the course of the lecture 70 beautiful hand colored slides will be shown by the operator, Ralph Smith. The service is at 7:15 and is open to the public.

Saturday afternoon Rev. George Warren Potter attended a luncheon and meeting at Hotel Kimball, Springfield, with Boy Scout Executive John L. Sullman. The gathering was of representatives from the New England states interested in the new Cub movement for younger boys.

Alderman and Mrs. Herbert I. Sanderson, of Willimantic, had as guests Monday Mrs. Edith Smith, Mrs. Mary Buckley and Miss Marion Buckley of Town street.

SWEENEY SHOP FIRE NOT INCENDIARY; CHARCOAL BURNER COALS STARTED IT

Investigation by officials of the fire department late Wednesday afternoon, resulted in the discovery that the lumber fire late Tuesday afternoon in the rear of Contractor Patrick F. Sweeney's carpenter shop and store rooms, Chestnut street, was accidental. It was at first thought that the blaze was of an incendiary nature.

Eugene Lacourse was accidentally the cause of the fire. He had been in the employ of Contractor Sweeney for some time and unknown to Mr. Sweeney had been in the habit of using a lighted charcoal burner over which to dry his gloves. Tuesday Lacourse was laid off. He was in a hurry to leave the shop about 5:30 o'clock, and took the lighted charcoal burner with him, leaving by a rear door. Passing through the alley Lacourse scattered the burning charcoal on the ground and believed that all of the red hot coals had gone out. Some of the charcoal, however, dropped into the pile of lumber and landed on an old automobile seat. The flimsy material used to stuff the auto seat caught fire and the blaze spread to the lumber which within a short period of time was in flames. Mr. Sweeney stated late Wednesday afternoon that his loss is between $200 and $300.

There is no good substitute for honesty.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE FOR BUSINESS STABILIZATION

Group of 20 Men Notable in Financial and Commercial Fields Has Been Named—In Announcing the Selection of the Committee, Chairman Barnes Declared That "Nothing of an Emergency Character Exists in the Present Situation to Require Undue Haste" in Further Procedure.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—A group of 20 men notable in American financial and commercial fields, was named today to constitute an executive committee for carrying out business stabilization projects authorized by the national business survey conference, called in Washington last week by President Hoover.

Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the conference and of the committee, in announcing the selection, said that "nothing of an emergency character exists in the present business situation to require undue haste" in further procedure. He added that the committee would meet soon and that it would possibly be assisted by a larger committee, with 40 or 60 members representing an even larger sector of the American business field.

Members of the executive group selected are Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company, Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel corporation; Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan and Company; Paul Shoup, president of the Southern Pacific company; Clarence M. Woolley, chairman of the American Radiator corporation; Henry M. Robinson, president of the Los Angeles-First National Trust and Savings bank; Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey; James Simpson, president, Marshall Field and Company, Chicago; C. F. Kelley, president, Anaconda Copper Mining company; E. L. Carpenter, president, National Lumber Manufacturers' association, Minneapolis; Pierre S. Dupont, Wilmington, Del.; Lewis E. Pierson, Irving Trust company, New York city; George Horace Lorimer, editor, Philadelphia; Walter S. Gifford, president American Telephone and Telegraph company; Alvan MacAuley, president, National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, Detroit; John G. Lonsdale, president, American Bankers' association, St. Louis; Steuart C. Cramer, director, Cotton Textile Institute, Cramerton, N. C.; Charles Cheney, president, National Industrial conference board, Manchester, Conn.; Silas H. Strawn, chairman of Montgomery Ward and Company, and Harry Chandler, publisher, Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, Secretary Lamont said a preliminary survey revealed prompt and efficient mobilization of effort to expedite President Hoover's appeal for co-operation of governors and other public officials to strengthen the stability of business.

The daily average of building permits in 37 states, the secretary said, totalled $21,722,000 during the first week of December, an increase of over $4,000,0000 above the corresponding week of 1928, when the total was $17,026,000. During the last week of November, contracts awarded amounted to $21,466,000.

BRITISH TROOPS COMPLETE EVACUATION OF RHINELAND

WIESBADEN, Germany, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Scenes reminiscent of the first Armistice day celebration were enacted here tonight after the union jack had been hauled down from British headquarters and the last soldiers of King George had evacuated the Rhineland.

Residents of the city held their joy within bounds until after the troops moved on their way. Then they cut loose. Strangers meeting on the street clasped hands in congratulation and the cafes were jammed with celebrants who continuously toasted each other and the fatherland.

The union jack came down from the staff over the Hotel Hohenzollern at 4 o'clock this afternoon. At the same hour another small British detachment was leaving Bingen on the Rhine.

Here in Wiesbaden the company of British Fusiliers mounted guard at the approach of the color-bearers and the detachment then passed in review before General Thwaites, British commander, for the last time on German soil.

There was a long roll from the drums and the military band struck up "God Save the King" as the British flag fluttered down the staff. Then the troops wheeled into column and marched to the station where they entrained at 5:30 p. m.

AIR TRAFFIC PARALYZED BY FOG IN MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Air traffic was paralyzed by a dense fog that gifted over the middle west today while in the northwest sleet hampered telephone and telegraph communication.

Mild temperatures prevailed throughout the day and rain was predicted for tonight.

Lack of wind in the northwest was all that prevented great damage to communication lines. Nearly all wires were coated with a freezing mist, but only a few were blown down.

In Chicago suburban and elevated traffic was at greatly reduced speed while on the highways automobiles crawled along with lights turned on.

Peoria, Ill., was one of the most fog-bound cities in the blanketed area. Street car traffic was barely able to keep moving and all trains in and out of Peoria were running behind schedule.

Air service in and out of Chicago was suspended for the day.

FURTHER INCREASES IN WOOL TARIFFS APPROVED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—Further increases in wool tariffs were approved by the senate today before it adjourned to make action on the $160,000,000 income tax reduction resolution possible.

By adjourning instead of recessing, the parliamentary situation will be such tomorrow as to permit a motion to be made for consideration of the tax cut proposal without debate. The resolution itself, however will be open to unlimited discussion. Leaders of both parties predict its early adoption without delaying the tariff measure unduly.

The finance committee republicans continued today to wean away enough democrats and republican independents from wool growing states to get through increases in duties on wool waste, carbonized wool, and wool rayns to compensate for the increase previously voted on raw wool from 21 to 34 cents a pound.

HARTFORD MURDER SUSPECT SURRENDERED IN NEW YORK

HARTFORD, Dec. 12—(AP)—Sebastiano N. Allano, alleged Hartford bootlegger, who on December 4, it is claimed, by police, shot and fatally wounded Alfonso Minniti, in a Front street store, early last night surrendered to County Detective Edward J. Hickey in New York city, according to word received by The Hartford Courant. Allano was returned to Hartford at 12:30 this morning. It was learned although County Detective Hickey could not be located and the Hartford police refused to divulge any information.

It is understood, The Courant will say that Allano will contend he shot Minniti in self defense and that the search for him by police in four states, which has been fruitless, and that the surrender was because of Allano's fear that private vengeance might be visited upon him by Minniti's friends. Allano surrendered first to his attorney, Abraham M. Flach, of New York.

WATERBURY, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Dr. Edmund Spicer, of Waterbury, was awarded $43,121.15 damages against the Hincks Brothers & Co., stock brokers, in a verdict returned here this afternoon by a jury in the superior court. It is the largest verdict rendered in Waterbury in years and is believed to be one of the largest of its kind ever returned in the state of Connecticut.

Dr. Spicer sued to recover for money said to have been lost through the mismanagement of a margin account that he had with the defendant brokers. The jury was out about two hours and a half. An appeal to the supreme court is expected to be made.

Dr. Spicer alleged that in 1926 he instructed a salesman employed by the defendant to sell certain joint stock land bank securities at the market to meet a demand for more margin. Instead of doing this, he said, the brokers sold some Puget Sound Power & Light stock that he desired to retain. As a result, he said, the stock sold rose in price while that held dropped with a loss to him.

The Hincks Brothers & Co. set up a defense that all of its actions were in accordance with the rules and regulations of the New York stock exchange, of which it is a member. The defendant further said that in any case in which it was told to sell at the market it did so, but that in some instances Dr. Spicer instructed it to sell at a certain price.

Trial of the case started last week.

SPREAD OF COAL STRIKE PREVENTED BY DEPUTIES

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Dec. 12—(AP)—Their efforts to spread the coal strike to southern Illinois thwarted by deputies who used tear bombs, members of the National Miners union returned tonight to Christian county where their efforts have halted operations all week.

The number of strikers in this region continued to grow today when 200 workers in the Penwell company mines at Pana voted to join the ranks of the National Miners' union.

First effort of authorities to round up ring leaders among the insurgent miners was made late today when the state's attorney of Christian county obtained warrants for the arrest of 60, charging rioting and inciting to riot. The sheriff and his deputies immediately began the roundup.

HOUSE VOTES FRENCH DEBT SETTLEMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—Settlement of France's war time indebtedness to the United States was brought nearer consummation today by the House, which voted 239 to 100 to ratify the Mellon-Berenger agreement.

The bill now goes to the senate, where the finance committee already has voted a favorable report on the companion measure introduced by Chairman Smoot.

The roll call vote showed numerous defections from the administration view presented by Hoover in his annual message. Most of the opposition, however, was from the democratic side.

USED CAR ESTABLISHMENT POOR PICKING FOR THIEVES

STAMFORD, Dec. 12—(AP)—Three men walked into a used car establishment here tonight and after binding James Harris, who was in charge of the place, with straps, walked out of the establishment with nothing to show for their efforts.

The men told Harris that they wanted to purchase a car. Unable to meet their requirements, Harris summoned his employer by telephone to the establishment to continue the negotiations. Following the telephonic conversation, one of the men asked Harris to change a $50 bill. When Harris replied that he was unable to do so, the men forced him into a back room, bound him up and then walked out without taking anything.

LEAKSVILLE WOOLEN MILLS REOPEN AFTER STRIKE

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 12—(AP)—The Leakesville Woolen mills, situated six miles west of here, reopened today after being closed for several weeks following a strike called by the National Textile Workers' union. Mill officials said a full complement of workers reported. There was no picketing by union members.

THREE REBEL ARMIES ARE ACTIVE IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, Dec. 12.—(AP)—China's nationalist forces battled successfully on three major fronts today against rebel armies seeking the overthrow of President Chiang Kai-Shek and his government. With the stories of civil war were mingled reports of missing American missionaries, possibly victims of large scale banditry.

Having lost half their number in a vain attempt to capture Canton, the "Ironsides Division" rebels were reported retreating after three days of battle in which thousands of rebels and nationalist government troops were killed or wounded. The Kwangsi province rebels, cooperating with the Ironsides Division, also were repulsed. Nationalist troops took several thousand prisoners.

LIGHT SNOWS IN MANY PARTS OF NEW ENGLAND

BOSTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—A disturbance moving up from the southwestward brought the temperature up to reasonable levels tonight and caused light snows in many parts of New England after the coldest spell of the season had dropped the mercury to zero and below in this section of the country.

At Boston, the temperature hovered around 25 above zero after a low reading of 7 early this morning and another typical experience was at Rutland, Vt., where there was a 31 degree rise during the day from an official minimum 12 below. Snow was falling in Connecticut about the middle of the evening as the low pressure area extended its influence.

CONGRESS TO RECESS FROM DEC. 21 TO JAN. 6

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—With members anxious to begin work upon the 7500 legislative proposals before the new session, the house today completed organizing its standing committees.

Because of their majority of 102, the republicans took 14 seats on all committees of 21, reducing the democratic seats from 8 to 7. The other committees, except those fixed by agreement, were divided proportionately.

The republican and democratic slates and assignments to fill vacancies on 44 committees, were quickly approved.

The house turned from its committee business long enough to adopt the senate resolution to recess from December 21 to January 6.

AGAINST COOPERATING WITH THE W. C. T. U.

HARTFORD, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Members of Russell K. Bourne, D. S. C., post 23, American Legion, of Wethersfield, tonight voted against cooperating with the W. C. T. U. in commemorating the tenth anniversary of the passing of the 18th amendment to be held Jan. 16, 1930. It was announced at the meeting that the Wethersfield W. C. T. U. has requested the post to name a committee to aid in planning a celebration. Among speakers at the meeting commending the refusal of the Legion to join with the W. C. T. U. in the proposed celebration was Rev. Albert C. Morris, rector of Trinity Episcopal church.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 12—(AP)—John F. Shutz, of Milford, who has brought a $40,000 suit against the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, will appear in superior court tomorrow to oppose a motion by W. L. Barnett, counsel for the railroad, that Mrs. Shutz be named as a party defendant to the action.

Shutz in his suit charges that the defendant defrauded him out of property worth $40,000.

Stock Prices Slump In Last Hour Trading

Sharpest Reaction Since Nov. 13, the Low Point Reached in the October-November Panic.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—A sudden flood of selling, striking with terrific impact in the last hour of trading today, carried scores of issues on the New York stock exchange down $2 to $22 a share. It was the sharpest reaction since Nov. 13, the low point reached in the October-November panic, when 420 issues crashed to new low levels for the year. Today's sales were only 4,604,860 shares, but nearly 2,000,000 of those changed hands in the final hour.

Wall street attributed the selling to a combination of unfavorable developments. These included the publication of a statement by Roger Babson, well known economist, that the recent advance in prices which recovered 40 per cent of the ground lost in the break, was only a rally in a "major bear market," the resumption of heavy gold exports to Great Britain, and the announcement of a sharp increase in the stocks of refined copper, seeming to confirm rumors of what amounts to a "buyers' strike" in that product. Mr. Babson correctly predicted the October-November break a few weeks before it actually happened so that his latest comment on the market naturally aroused widespread uneasiness among investors and speculators alike. Heavy offerings of bearish professionals, who are reported to have made known their intentions to attack the market as early as yesterday, also was regarded as an important factor.

The day's market started off rather peaceably but prices headed generally downward despite sporadic attempts to mark up special stocks. Declines were held within moderate limits until the last hour when the rush to sell carried many of the leading industrials and public utilities down $5 to $20 a share, several of them dropping a dollar a share, or more, between sales.

U. S. Steel common, which touched $150 on the break last month and sold as high as $189 on Monday, quickly tumbled to $166 a share, closing 50 cents above the day's low for a net loss of $10.75. Westinghouse Electric, which announced an increase from $4 to $5 in the annual dividends on the common and preferred stocks earlier in the week, plunged from an early high of $148.50 to $130.25, closing at $132.50 for a net loss of $5.75.

Auburn Auto, which had jumped $13 a share to $225 in the early trading, fell headlong to $190 for a net loss of $22. Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, American & Foreign Power, American Machine & Foundry, American Tobacco issues, American Water Works, A. M. Byers, Columbian Carbon, Hershey Chocolate, Johns Manville, R. H. Macy, National Lead, North American Co., Otis Elevator, Simmons Co., Standard Gas & Electric, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Western Union lost $10 to nearly $20 a share.

Similar recessions took place on the New York curb exchange where the losses ran from $2 to $10 in the active issues, and $12 to $25 in the few specialties.

Bank stocks also dropped sharply in the "over-the-counter" market. Stock of the First National Bank, headed by George F. Baker who is credited with holding 20,000 shares, dropped $250 a share to $5200 bid. Brooklyn Trust fell $125 a share, U. S. Trust $100, Fifth Avenue National $50, Guaranty Trust $37 and most of the others $2 to $20 a share.

$85,000 FIRE DAMAGE FROM OIL BURNER EXPLOSION

WEST HAVEN, Dec. 12—(AP)—Fire in a one-story brick block containing six stores, which for a time threatened the post office and a large apartment house adjoining the building this afternoon, resulted in damages estimated at $85,000 by Fire Chief Lloyd Cameron. An oil burner explosion was responsible for the blaze.

Three alarms summoned six pieces of apparatus to the scene as the flames rapidly destroyed the wooden partitions which divided the basement compartments. Brick walls prevented the flames from spreading to the post office and the apartment house, located on either side of the block.

MORE LOTTERY ARRESTS MADE IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Striking another blow at the treasury balance lottery ring in Bridgeport, Thomas J. Morgan, of this city, and Martin Rinke, of Fairfield, were arrested on bench warrants this afternoon and locked up in the county jail under bonds of $5,000 each, after 2,500 lottery tickets were found in their possession.

The two arrests today were an aftermath of the raid on a lottery ticket printing plant in Longhill ten days ago during which more than 700,000 lottery tickets with a sale value of approximately $500,000 were seized and three arrests were made on bench warrants.

12 OF CREW DROWNED WHEN FISHING BOAT CAPSIZED

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Caught in a sudden gale blowing from the Atlantic, the fishing boat Pensetivo was capsized off Capa Rica at the mouth of the Tagus river today.

The vessel was only 500 yards off shore but the storm was so severe that only 10 of her crew of 22 could swim to safety. Rescue boats were unable to reach the sinking vessel.

The tragedy was witnessed by many relatives of the victims who crowded the waterfront. There were distressful scenes as the bodies were washed ashore and carried to the village church. All shops in the place closed.

LINER BERENGARIA DELAYED BY STORM

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The Cunard liner Berengaria docked here today from Europe, two days behind her schedule, after encountering heavy storms throughout her voyage across the Atlantic.

Sir Arthur Rostron, the ship's commander, said the Berengaria encountered a gale Saturday that had a velocity estimated at 100 miles an hour and the seas ran 30 to 40 feet high. The ship made only 277 miles for the day, and, caught in another storm Sunday, made only 193 miles.

GermanGovt.Calls For A Vote Of Confidence

Cabinet Informs Reichstag That Program of Finance Minister Must Be Approved.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The German cabinet which has been under severe criticism of late because of its financial policies, today flatly informed the reichstag that it must have a vote of confidence on the program of Finance Minister Hilferding or must give up its labors.

Chancellor Mueller, disturbed at the recent memorandum issued by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the reichstag, criticizing the government's policies and by charges of inactivity from industrial circles, defended the government program, declared that no fundamental financial reform can be undertaken so long as the Young plan is not in effect, outlined broadly the government's future financial program upon which it intends to stand or fall and asked the reichstag's confidence.

At the same time party leaders were privately confronted with the ultimatum that they must either support the government or face new elections. The chancellor let the leaders know that in the event of a non-confidence vote the government does not intend to resign but instead has the authorization of President Von Hindenburg for dissolution.

Although the government's program suits no party it was believed doubtful whether any would wish to take the responsibility for new elections. Consequently the government expects to win a confidence vote though it recognizes that a surprise always is possible.

The government's declaration which took Chancellor Mueller a full hour to read was received by the Reichstag in comparative silence not to say sullenness except for occasional outbursts on the extreme right and left.

The chancellor expressed amazement at Dr. Schachts "back to the Young plan" memorandum and said that if the financial reforms had been late in reaching the reichstag it was solely because the proposed reforms depended on the acceptance of the Young plan which could not possibly take place before January.

Turning to Dr. Schacht's charge that the German government at The Hague renounced certain rights the chancellor observed that the German experts at Paris also failed to obtain everything they wanted, yet the government never had thought of blaming the experts because it recognized that the opposing sides would not yield to the German viewpoint.

"The reich government regrets that during the negotiations of the past months the opposite side failed to show a readiness to meet and understand our difficult position," he said.

The chancellor then went into detailed refutations of Dr. Schacht's criticism, declaring that the demands of Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, had necessitated sacrifices both by the German government and some of the creditor nations.

He told the reichstag that from 1930 on, provided the Young plan was adopted, there no longer would be deficits in the treasury which he said now is so empty that two measures must be made effective on Jan. 1, 1930. These are an increase of industry's contribution to unemployment insurance and the raising of the tobacco duties.

In addition, he said, the government must obtain before Dec. 31 credit of 330,000,000 marks concerning which for obvious reasons he could not divulge the details. It was generally assumed that this referred to negotiations pending with an unnamed American financial concern.

With the departure of the last English garrisons, the number of Allied troops in the Rhineland has been decreased within a few months by 25,000.

HAS ISOLATED THE GERM WHICH CAUSES INFLUENZA

CHICAGO, Dec. 12—(AP)—Professor I. S. Falk, of the University of Chicago, told the Bacteriology club of the university today that he had succeeded, after more than a year of experiment, in isolating the germ which causes influenza.

Professor Falk, who is 30 years old and an alumnus of Yale, said his researches had resulted in isolation of the particular form of streptococcus infection that causes influenza and that he had made a culture which reproduced the disease in small animals.

Dr. Gideon Wells, a leading Chicago bacteriologist, Dr. Olin West, assistant editor of the American Medical Journal, and Dr. Edwin O. Jordan, head of the bacteriological department of the University of Chicago, pronounced Prof. Falk's discovery as of signal importance to modern medicine.

J. R. GRUNDY ADMITTED AS U. S. SENATOR FROM PENN.

Oath Was Administered After Three Hours of Harsh Discussion Over His Right to the Seat—Mr. Grundy Smiled Frequently as He Heard Himself and Gov. Fisher of Pennsylvania Assailed by Senators Norris and Nye.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—Joseph R. Grundy of Pennsylvania advanced happily to the senate rostrum tonight after three hours of harsh discussion over his right to a seat and took the oath of office.

For the first time since William S. Vare, the republican power of Philadelphia, made that same advance and was turned back two years ago, Pennsylvania tonight had two senators—both republicans.

The Pennsylvania manufacturer and veteran high tariff advocate had smiled frequently during the hours in which he heard himself and Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania, who appointed him, assailed in outspoken language.

A long time was spent in determining what to do with the resolution of Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota, proposing to declare that Grundy is not entitled "to retain" his seat because of his participation in the two million dollar republican primary of 1926 which resulted in the nomination of Governor Fisher.

Finally, without even a roll call vote, the senate approved the motion of Senator Johnson, republican, California referring the resolution to the elections committee and ordering the immediate administering of the oath.

Chairman Shortridge of the elections committee protested that the senate was asking his committee to do "an idle and futile thing." He said tonight he did not know when he could call the committee together.

Democratic and republican independent leaders joined in declaring throughout the debate that the senate must accept the credentials of the governor of a sovereign state.

Senator Nye admitted that he had slight hope of stopping Grundy but both he and Senator Cutting, republican, New Mexico, insisted that the senate must reject Grundy if it was going to be consistent with its vote to bar Vare for the expenditure of $785,000 in the 1926 primary.

By a coincidence, Senator Grundy—upon entering the chamber with Senator Reed of Pennsylvania—sat down in the seat of Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, who sponsored the resolution excluding Vare.

Both he and Norris laughed with the senate when the situation was noticed as the Nebraskan entered the chamber a moment later.

His ruddy face a little more red, the newest senator arose and bowed, beckoning Norris to his seat.

The Nebraskan laughed heartily and told him to sit still.

In a little while Norris was in the thick of the contest, referring to Governor Fisher as an "ass" for appointing Grundy and declaring the appointment was "a stench in the nostrils of the people!"

Almost the first word spoken as Grundy sat down in the midst of the tariff debate on the wool schedule was his own name.

"Grundyism" has become a by-word in the senate debate since he told the senate lobby committee what he thought of the actions of the democratic-republican independent coalition in taring down the high protective republican tariff measure.

"This is Mr. Grundy's special product," commented Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, as the 66-year-old Pennsylvanian was entering the chamber. "This is the production of wool yarns of a high quality and we really ought to have some information about Mr Grundy's industry being depressed by reason of foreign competition before we can assent to this."

Grundy turned his head to notice the speaker, but without expression. A moment later his credentials were presented.

The tariff rate in question went over for future consideration and Grundy, who takes pride in accepting credit for influencing congress in favor of a high protective tariff, will be on the floor instead of in the gallery, to wage his cause.

A seat far over in the corner of the republican side was assigned to Grundy and it is just beneath the place in the senate gallery usually occupied by the Pennsylvanian during the tariff discussions.

When a vote finally was about to be taken on the Johnson motion, Senator Buckley, democrat, Kentucky, inquired whether senators from the "backward states" might vote, and Chairman Caraway of the lobby committee wanted to know if they should do so "out loud or in a whisper."

Grundy smiled broadly at this reference to his testimony before the lobby committee that the senators from the "backward" states, the smaller-revenue producing states of the west and south, should "talk darned small" in revenue legislation debates.

The Nye resolution called attention that Grundy was the appointee of Governor Fisher and said:

"In the same campaign in which William S. Vare and his ticket were found by a senate investigating committee to have expended $785,000 to win nomination, another ticket in opposition to the nomination of the said Fisher for governor of Pennsylvania expended $1,804,979, or nearly three times as much."

"Of the aforesaid sum of $1,804,979," it said, "a total of $400,000 was raised and contributed by Joseph Grundy, the appointee of Governor Fisher, and the expenditure of such large sums of money to secure nominations is contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the dignity and honor of the senate, dangerous to the perpetuity of a free government and destructive of the value and merit of an election climaxing a campaign of such expenditures."

As Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, and other democrats and Senator Norris warned that the senate could not legally question the election of a governor of a state and must accept the credentials of a governor, Senator Nye replied that he did not want an investigation into the Fisher campaign but solely into the moral qualifications of Grundy to a seat.

VARE REPORTED TO HAVE SUFFERED ANOTHER STROKE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Dr. Elwood Kirby was summoned from Philadelphia this afternoon to the home of William S. Vare, Philadelphia republican chieftain. It was said that Mr. Vare had suffered another stroke.

Mr. Vare returned to his home here from Washington two days ago after the United States senate had refused to seat him as a senator from Pennsylvania.

No announcement was made concerning the nature of his illness.

ABANDON PLAN TO RAISE THE PRICE OF NEWSPRINT

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 12—(AP)—The Toronto Star this afternoon in a special despatch from Montreal says that Canadian manufacturers of newsprint have abandoned their plan to increase the price of paper $5 a ton at the mills.

The despatch follows:

"Practical acknowledgment that the Canadian manufacturers of newsprint will have to give up the intention of raising the price of paper $5 a ton this year and send new contracts to their customers quoting last year's price of $55.20 a ton at the mills, was made by manufacturers here today, following an informal conference between members of the Canadian newsprint institute and Premier Laschereau.

The threatening attitude of the American Newspaper Publishers' association and the certainty that, in face of this opposition, the International Paper company cannot join with the Canadian manufacturers in raising the price to $60 are said to be the factors influencing members of the institute.

MEN WITH POLICE RECORDS AT MAGISTRATE'S DINNER

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—Magistrate Albert Vitale's "welcome home" dinner last Saturday night, which was blighted by a holdup and the subsequent demotion of a detective who was one of the guests, received further attention from the police department today.

Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, in a statement announcing that the detective had been suspended, charged that seven men with police records were guests at the dinner. Magistrate Vitale emphatically denied the charges.

To Mr. Whalen's statement was appended a list of the seven men. The commissioner said one of them, a robbery suspect, was discharged by Magistrate Vitale.

MARTIAL LAW CONTINUES IN REPUBLIC OF HAITI

PORT AU PRINCE, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The island republic of Haiti, which has furnished for several years one of the most difficult problems of American foreign policy in the West Indies, was less strictly patrolled by American marines and Haitian gardes today, but martial law continued in force.

Colonel Evans, commanding the Nacional Garde, said he believed martial law would be in force for some time.

The fact that the presidential elections are coming in April, has already set the political pot to boiling and there is a crowded field of candidates. The strike in the schools and the customs service has been checked for the moment.

COLD DELAYED AUTO AND RAILROAD SERVICE

By the Associated Press

Gripped in freezing temperatures that in many localities sank far below the zero mark, the east looked forward hopefully last night to fulfillment of the weather bureau's promise of relief.

Snow or rain, with generally rising temperatures, were forecast for today.

The cold wave which two days ago swept in from the west pressed the mercury column down to as low as 20 below zero, freezing rivers, hampering railroad service and crippling automobile transportation.

A Worcester, Mass., woman, missing since Tuesday afternoon was found by her husband yesterday frozen to death in a woods half a mile from her home.

The tugboat Frontenac, which had gone out to the Malu Duck Islands Wednesday in an effort to save some of the cargo of the wrecked freighter Sarpiadoc, foundered Wednesday night in the rough seas on her way back to port Portsmouth. Her crew was rescued.

At Quebec, Que., where the mercury dropped to nearly eight below zero, the ice bridge between the island of Orleans and the mainland, was formed, almost two weeks earlier than usual.

The Connecticut river at Turners Falls, Mass., and the Deerfield river were frozen over. Schools were closed at South Merrimack, N. H., after the mercury plunged to 12 below.

Unofficial readings of 30 below zero were reported in Londonderry and St. Johnsbury, Vt., but the Boston weather bureau stated that the lowest official reading in New England was 20 below at Northfield, Vt.

200,000 PAID HOMAGE TO "OUR LADY OF GUADALUPE"

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Worshippers estimated as numbering nearly 200,000 thronged through the Villa Guadalupe today to honor "Our Lady of Guadalupe," patron saint of the republic.

This was the first time since the outbreak of the trouble between the church and government in 1926 that priests have been permitted to officiate at the annual services.

The first mass started shortly after midnight and one celebration of the rite followed another for more than 12 hours. Scores of police were on duty at the church.

EDEL GRANTED REPRIEVE UNTIL DECEMBER 30

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 12—(AP)—Fifteen minutes before he was to have been prepared for execution in the electric chair for the death of Mrs. Emma Harrington, Frederick W. Edel, was granted a reprieve tonight until December 30 by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

LOCAL STREETS TAKE ON HOLIDAY ATTIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 12—With the completion of the community decorations Willimantic took its place tonight with the communities of the state offering attractive business sections during the Yuletide season. The work done here by the Retail Merchants' bureau of the chamber of commerce with the co-operation of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company and the city government is most satisfactory. The festive appearance of the business streets is one that is well worth seeing. Over 200 carefully selected fir trees have been arranged in clusters surrounding the standards of the "white way" system. Generous strings of electric bulbs illuminate these with a red color effect. The huge tree at Lincoln square was wired today. Standing in a central position on the square it can be seen for quite a distance on Main St., as the eye passes down the uniform avenue of smaller trees.

Exterior efforts have not been the only attempt of the merchants to make Willimantic an attractive buying center during the holidays. Excellent stocks of Christmas merchandise are in evidence everywhere.

PLANS FOR EXPOSITION ARE BEING FORMULATED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 12—Tentative plans for the annual Willimantic Exposition which will open at the state armory on Pleasant street, January 4, were enthusiastically endorsed at a joint meeting of the committees from the chamber of commerce, Business Men's bureau and the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association, held in the chamber rooms tonight.

Encouraged by an unusually fine response, exposition manager D. D. Cavanaugh stated that his committees would proceed with plans for establishing a new department of antiques and curios. A number of collectors have already mailed in entries of articles made before the discovery of America. Old money, books, furniture, guns, etc., will be accepted in this department.

Another important feature along educational lines will be the enlarged exhibits by the Connecticut Agricultural college. Professor David Z. Warner of Storrs is in charge of this department. Manager Cavanaugh has succeeded in booking a number of the outstanding exhibits shown at the Boston and New York shows. Local merchants and out-of-town firms have generously responded to a request for special prizes to be given away in connection with the exposition.

Thursday morning, January 9, those connected with the exposition and guests will visit Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs. That evening the annual exposition banquet will be held at the Nathan Hale hotel with Milton Donzzer, assistant manager of the Eastern States' exposition as the main speaker.

Stanley J. Sumner has been elected by the Windham town school committee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation in November of Kenneth H. Hillhouse. He has been appointed as a member of the properties committee, taking the place of Mr. Hillhouse, and William B. Sweeney has been named chairman of this committee. The committee has received from Acting City Engineer John F. Collins, a tentative plan for Hayden field, which has been purchased by the town for use as a high school athletic field. The proposed layout includes a football gridiron, baseball diamond and running track. he football field is to extend east and west and nearest the north side of the field. This will leave a considerable area to the south. The running track is to be placed around the football field and will be about four laps to the mil. It is to be about 10 feet wide.

The baseball diamond will be from the northwest to the southeast corners of the field. The home plate will be about 200 feet from the Mountain street fence with room for dugouts, benches and bleachers.

The dimensions of the entire field are: Hayden street frontage, 437 feet; Mountain street, 353 feet; Willard street, 273 feet and the north boundary along private land, 420 feet. The field slopes in sections to the Hayden street side and considerable filling will be required to level it. Engineer Collins is of the opinion that much earth can be spared from the higher sections to the lower levels. Loam has already been hauled to the field and a drainage pipe has been installed, running to Willard street. The cost of following this plan has not been estimated. Of the original appropriation made for improvements to the field there remains about $300, virtually all of the expenditures having been involved in erecting a six-foot wire fence around the entire field and hauling loam.

William B. Sweeney was elected president at a re-organization meeting of St. Vincent de Paul society of St. Joseph's parish held in the school house Wednesday evening. Other officers elected were: Secretary, John J. O'Rourke; treasurer, John F. Ahern; chaplain, Rev. Michael Thompson; executive committee, the above officers with John F. Carr and Joseph B. Riordan; publicity committee, P. D. Donahoe, Walter J. Fahey, Daniel A. Sullivan; charity committee, J. E. Sullivan, Eugene E. Hickey, James H. Hurley. At a later date a city-wide investigation committee is to be appointed. The objectives of the societ yare to assist the worthy poor. For the present the membership is limited to communicants of St. Joseph's parish.

FUNERALS

John E. Shea

Leaving from the family home, 42 Jackson street, the funeral of John E. Shea was held this morning with a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Michael Thompson was the celebrant; Rev. Francis A. Duch, deacon and Rev. Henry E. Quinn, sub-deacon. Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance presided at the organ and was accompanist to Miss L. Monica McKean, soloist. In attendance was a delegation of Willimantic Lodge No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks. Burial was in the family plot of St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Thompson conducted a committal prayer. The bearers were, James Dillon, John Sheehan, Leroy Hallahan, Cornelius Shea, Donald Connor and Michael Sheehan. Arrangements were in charge of Kilbourey Brothers.

Mrs. Olive M. Alexander

Services for Mrs. Olive M. Alexander were held at the mortuary chapel, 43 North street, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. E. P. Ayer of Branford officiated. The remains were placed in the receiving vault of the Willimantic cemetery, to be interred later in the Hope cemetery, Worcester, Mass. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and VanZandt.

The Dramatic club of Windham high school will present the three-act comedy Dulcy, by George S. Haufman and Marc Connelly, at the school auditorium later this month. The presentation will be for the benefit of the W. H. S. Athletic association. The cast of characters follows: Dulcy, Alice Connelly; Gordon Smith, Alvin Gallagher; William Parker, Edmund Viner; C. Roger Forbes, Harry Larkin; Mrs. Forbes, Claire Frink; Angela Forbes, Anna Kaplin; Schuyler Van Dyck, Frederick Haddad; Tom Sterrett, Spencer Lincoln; Vincent Leach, James Timmins; Blaire Patterson, Russell Potter; Henry, Gerald Ballon.

A charge of misconduct in the operation of a motor vehicle will be placed against Walter Neff of this city, upon his arraignment in the Mansfield town court next Tuesday. Neff was the driver of a car which on Saturday evening, October 12, collided with one operated by Henry Miller of Springfield, Mass., at Perkins' orner. As a result of the collision Mrs. Jennie E. Miller, 18, of Woodsville, N. H., mother of Henry Miller, died at St. Joseph's hospital the following day. Neff has been held on a technical charge of reckless driving since that time. County Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson issued his finding some time ago, stating that the young man was responsible for the accident. Neff, who is out under bonds of $1,000 has retained Attorney Harry S. Gaucher as counsel.

Miss Katherine Keeler, a member of the elementary staff of the Lincoln school in New York city will discuss a progressive school at Education night to be held at Yeomans' hall, Columbia, Friday evening. She will illustrate her talk with slides. A program of activities which are possible in a rural school will be given by a class of pupils from the Columbia grades. The meeting is to be under the auspices of the teachers of Columbia. Miss Keeler, who spends her summer vacations in Scotland, is quite well known in this section.

A bond of $300 was posted in police court today in the non-support case of Ovila Martin of this city. The bond guarantees payment of $12 weekly toward the support of his family for the next six months. Martin further agreed to pay up an amount of $36 covering the past three weeks.
